Cementmen Lose To Plumbers In Eleven Frames

Point Anne Cementmen, looked on by many as the dark horse team in the 'A' section of the Commercial Softball League nearly pulled off a Trojan Horse job on the Plumbers from Howe and Hagerman last evening before dropping a tense struggle 6-5 in eleven innings.

Veteran Pat Maracle went all the way for the losers, dropping his second overtime game by one run. July 13, Brewers Warehouse pounded over a lone counter in the twelfth frame to take a 7-6 verdict. The win left Howe and Hagerman perched at the top of the league standings while the Cementmen dropped back into a third place tie with Ramsay Paints.

Point Anne opened the scoring in the top of the first frame with three runs on two errors, a single, a passed ball, and a fielder's choice. They added another in the second on a single, double, and an error, and took a five - run lead in the third on a walk, a single, and two more errors.

The Plumbers, facing the largest deficit which they have had to overcome this year, closed in a bit in the bottom of the third, when left fielder Ed Donovan, blasted a home run into right field to score Tomaso who had walked, and Marty Fitzgibbon who had singled.

Bob Hunter came to the mound for the Plumbers in the fourth to relieve starter Al Adams and went the rest of the way in a brilliant job of relief pitching. He gave up just three scattered singles in eight innings, claiming five on strikes and walking none.

Counted in Seventh

The Plumbers counted once in the seventh with Amo scoring when centrefielder Gerald Horwood dropped Marty Fitzgibbon's hoist with the bases loaded and one away. Harry Wardhaugh grounded to third into a double play as the Cementmen pulled themselves out of a hole.

A walk to Spafford, a double by Don Adams, and a fielder's choice gave the Plumbers the equalizer in the eighth. They won the game in the bottom of the eleventh with Don Adams scoring from third on a dropped fly ball. Adams led off the inning with a walk and went all the way to third when third baseman Doug Sword threw wide at first on Amo's bunt. Pitcher Bob Hunter lofted one to second base, which was dropped as Adams raced in with the winning run.

Maracle walked five, struck out seven, and gave up eight hits for six runs in eleven innings. Al Adams gave up four hits for five runs in three innings as a wobbly defence booted the ball five times behind him.

Line ups:—

St. Catharines Ties for First Place in Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

It was the pay-off game for St Catharines Athletics Tuesday night when they squared off with Owen Sound Crescents in an Ontario Lacrosse Association Senior tussle in St. Catharines.

Before the game, Athletics were one game behind the first- place Owen Sound Crescents. When it was over St. Catharines had a 7-5 victory and the two clubs were tied for first place.

In the other scheduled game, Toronto Riverdales maintained their record of not winning a game this year. They lost 26-10 to Brampton Excelsiors.

Jim McMahon and Harry Wipper each collected a pair of goals to lead the Athletics in the St. Catharines game. Marlow Woods scored twice for Owen Sound.

Sports Shorts From Britain

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Aug. 8 (CP)—The member of parliament who wanted Britain to create a ministry of sport sent shudders down the spine of one British sports writer.

"A ministry of sport!" echoed Eric Stanger of the Yorkshire Post. "Imagination boggles at the prospect."

Stanger ~~was~~ commenting on a proposal made in the House of Commons by J. E. Haire, Labor member for Wycombe. Haire argued that the only way for this sport-loving island to recover its dignity, and a few trophies, would be to appoint a minister to head a new government department.

But the narrow escape didn't prevent the Yorkshire Post man from speculating what might happen if Whitehall ever did get its hooks into sport. At question time in parliament, a minister of sport might get queries such as these:

"Is the minister aware that John Smith was left out of the England team because he is known to share the political views of H. M. Opposition?" or

"What steps does the minister propose to ensure that in future all members of the England side touring Australia are members of the National Union of Cricketers?"

No matter what happens to Britain in tiddly-winks or tug-of-war, Stanger said in effect, let's not have any nonsense about Whitehall controlling sport.

Peter Elliott, a British Olympic diver, went to Southampton to show schoolboys how the experts do it. He went out on a springboard to test it—and fell in with his clothes on.

In a sermon later, Mr. Robson urged all fathers to follow Woodcock's example, and "not allow size to stop you from taking a share in domestic responsibilities."

Mrs. Percy Knight was delighted when she received an invitation to head England's women's tennis team. She told her friends and made all the arrangements.

Then came the blow. It turned out the Lawn Tennis Association really meant Mrs. K. M. Knight of Lancashire. British sports writers called it the worst blunder ever made by an official body.

Chet Laabs Hasn't Stopped Hitting Since Given Berth

(By The Associated Press)

Who says Chet Laabs is washed up? Surely not Buffalo Bisons or Toronto Maple Leafs.

Fact is, each would like to have him back. But Chester, home-run hitter de luxe, will do his slugging for Jersey City Giants this season.

The Bisons had the 36-year-old outfielder last year and they let him go to Toronto. The Leafs gave him his walking ticket early this season—after all, hadn't the once mighty power-house hit only one homer for them?— so Chester shopped around.

But when Chet exploded a homer against Toronto June 7th Becker decided to give him a regular berth.

Laabs hasn't stopped hitting since. He's socked 24 homers in all—six against Buffalo, three against Toronto.

The stocky flychaser found the range three times against Buffalo last night as the teams split a doubleheader.

The Bisons captured the opener 3-2. Jersey's tallies resulted from Laab's two-run poke in the sixth. But it couldn't keep Lynn Lovenguth from his fifth victory.

The nightcap was a different story. Laabs hit two homers in this one. The Little Giants prevailed 9-7 in 10 innings. Laabs' second homer of the game in the 10th inning, snapped a 7-7 tie and gave Tony West the nod over Harry Byrd. In all, Laabs drove in seven runs, five in the second game.

Toronto divided a twin bill with Syracuse. Art Hartley stopped the Leafs 5-0 on six hits in the opener. But Lefty Jocko Thompson paced the Maple Leafs to a 7-3 victory in the second game as he scattered five Syracuse hits and struck out 12.

Baltimore scored twice in the 13th inning to defeat the league-leading Rochester Red Wings 5-3. Eddie Pellagrini's double snapped a 3-3 tie.

Joe Landrum, making his first start for Montreal, pitched the Royals to a 5-3 edge over Springfield. Landrum yielded five hits and walked one man while fanning eight.

An "Inside Story"
1. Baked in aluminum plates and bought in these same aluminum plates—that's why so many "over-the-counter" pies taste as good as the homemade kind.
2. Aluminum plates give you tender, thoroughly baked pies with the delicious juices all sealed in.
3. Aluminum plates mean no more broken pies for the baker . . . no more thick, soggy bottom crusts for you!
4. No other material is more "food-friendly" than aluminum. When you see aluminum on the outside of a food or a drink, there's an "inside story" of perfectly protected flavour, quality.
Hints to the Housewife
The natural minerals in foods and water sometimes leave a dark deposit on cooking utensils. It's easily removed from aluminum. Simply use a tablespoon of vinegar in boiling water.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

"BUCK" McCORMICK RIDES AGAIN!

Two men and a "girl" went ariding on Picton Bay last Monday afternoon. The men were genial "Doc" Walter Robinson, internationally known speedboat driver and racer of champions of Alexandria Bay, one Robert McCormick, photographer of this city, while the "girl" was the Doc's new trim Canadian Own Design "Mrs. Dockit". The little lady is the successor to a series of racing .225 cubic inchers named "Mr. Dockit" which carried the Robinson colors across the finish line in front of the field on not a few occasions.

Marse Robert asked for it and got it. "Doc" smole a beautiful smile when Robert queried him as to being a passenger aboard the saucy "Mrs. Dockit" while that little lady was kicking up her heels and incidentally foam in the faces of her competitors.

"Certainly, my boy, you are welcome. I'll try and give you a fast spin," smiled the affable 'doc'.

Robert clapped a fiery red crash helmet on his curls, clutched his camera to a heaving bosom and clambered aboard the little lady via the rear seat. He turned down the "doc's" offer to ride "up for'ard".

"Doc" kicked the throttle; the little lady kicked her heels; Marse Robert swallowed in one convulsive jerk a huge cud of gum someone had suggested he use to ward off mal-de-mer, and the party was on.

"Mrs. Dockit" veered around in a sharp curve, nearly dislocating the McCormick neck (later it was discovered he had three vertebrae pointing in as many different directions) and headed for the start line in a cloud of spray.

* * *

She roared over the line with a beautiful bone in her teeth, her pert nose held high in the air. Again she leaped like a hound loosed from the leash as "Doc" stole a quick look at his passenger and rammed down the throttle. Marse Robert's head snapped backwards with a click that could be plainly heard on shore. He wondered for a moment how come his coat buttoned up on his back. He adjusted himself and settled away for the ride thrill when the little lady sideswiped a wash wave that rolled across the course from the spinning wheel of a cabin cruiser getting under way inshore.

* * *

The "doc" crouched low in his seat. The McCormick chassis bumped up and down like a buxom gal taking her first treatment on a vibrator. It felt at the moment as though seventeen drummers were playing "Yankee Doodle" on the south side of the McCormick lap. He tried to stand up in the cockpit, suddenly decided to resume his seat and met it halfway coming up. There was another resounding thud as boat struck pants, and another sly smile crept over the face of the "doc" who was not only enjoying the incident immensely, but was on his way to a new world's record for his class.

* * *

However it waf a thrilling ride and the McCormick camera grabbed several beautiful shots of speedboats pounding along in a welter of foaming spray at the rear of the speeding "Mrs. Dockit".

* * *

Eventually, like weddings and jail sentences, it was all over, and the "Doc" proudly piloted his trim craft to the dock. Willing hands reached out and uncoiled Marse Robert who at this time resembled a pretzel trying to imitate a boa constrictor. After he was unravelled, he discovered that his voice was being aired through his right ear, while his tonsils protruded each cheek like a peanut-gorged chipmunk. His expensive camera had developed a curvature or whatever a camera uses for a spine, while the lenses leered more or less grotesquely from a twenty-degree angle.

* * *

We have not seen the results of this wave-by-wave photography, but it will probably be the first underwater third dimensional shots ever taken in this neck of the woods. In any event Marse Robert can proudly boast that he rode a flaming nautical miss in a race that created a new World's record for her class, even if he was forced to retrieve three molars, two bicuspids and a hunk of bridgework from "Mrs. Dockit's" narrow cockpit after the race.

ROYALS HERE TONIGHT!

With eight games remaining in their schedule, the Batawa Shoemen had better start hitching up their britches, girding their loins, loosening their batting arms and sharpening their fielding eyes if they intend partaking in the jug of gravy usually associated with league playoffs. They are perched precariously on the second rung from the bottom of the loop ladder, and "that ain't no place to be" if a squad has playoff aspirations. They face a stiff test here this evening when they meet the second place Smiths Falls Royals in a Central Ontario Baseball League tussle. The one-run gremlin is still hovering in the vicinity but the Shoemen have high hopes of shaking the pesky hex and trotting home with a victory over the tough Royals squad tonight. Game at 8:30.

Brantford Looks Better Every Day In Intercounty

By The Canadian Press

It's Brantford by a nose as the Intercounty Senior Baseball race goes into the home stretch.

The power-laden Red Sox moved into sole possession of first place Tuesday night by downing Stratford Nationals twice as the erstwhile leaders, Waterloo Tigers were dropping one to St. Thomas. That gave Sox a scanty half-game margin over Tigers.

Stratford, who have shown a tendency to roll over and play dead every time they face the Sox sluggers, did just that Tuesday. Walks and errors at crucial moments gave Brantford all the edge they needed.

They didn't need much. The first game was the completion of a game called after five innings May 6 when Sox were sporting a 17-9 lead. Brantford added five more runs to their total in the final four innings with the final score 22-11 for Sox.

Brantford also took the second game, 7-4, getting some gilt-edged pitching in the pinches from Billy Gibbs, who scattered eight Stratford hits over the route. The winners could only manage eight hits off Gerry Hamm and Rolly Chailfoux, but one of those was a home run by Jim Burns.

Hamm got off to a shaky start, spotting Brants two runs on only one single. An error gave Sox another run in the third, and Burns' homer in the fourth made it four. Three more runs crossed the plate in the seventh on a walk and three singles.

Patton Leads Hitters

Gene Patton, Branford second-baseman, led the game's batters with three hits in five trips. Billy Flick who poled a triple, hit two for four for Stratford, as did first-baseman McGillivray.

St. Thomas bested Waterloo Tigers 7-4 for their fourth straight victory. The win moved Legion into undisputed possession of sixth place, a half-game ahead of Galt Terriers.

Dick Long won his fifth game of the year for Legion, although aided by Pat McCullough who pitched to one batter in the ninth. Cy Bricker started for Tigers, but was shelled to cover in the third. Al Dumouchelle and Cliff Myers followed Bricker on the hill.

Kitchener Legionnaires kept up their torrid streak by scoring a 9-4 win over London Majors. Each team made eight hits, but London tossed the game away with six erorrs.

Wolly Beggs went the route for Kitchener, and settled down to pitch good ball after a shaky start in which Majors tallied two first-inning runs. Orv Cott hit a three-run homer for the winners.

Aged Ed Whitehill pitched Peterborough Marines to two victories in the viaduct major loop. Marines downed Toronto Dovers 7-2 and 7-5. They were Marines' ninth and 10th straight wins.

KESSELRING QUALIFIES

Buffalo, N.Y., Aug. 9. (CP)—Gerald Kesselring, of Kitchener, Ont., shot a 36-hole 146 Tuesday to qualify for United States amateur golf championship play.

Tony Matlock, also of Kitchener, got an alternate spot in a sudden death playoff with Richard Neelon of Buffalo. Each had 150 for the 36 holes.

Ten Will Start In Canadian Cut Pacing Stake

(By The Canadian Press)

At least 10 horses will start in Friday's $15,000 Canadian Cup Pacing Stake at Toronto's Thorncliffe Raceway.

Dr. Stanton, owned by Linley Fraser, of Forest, Ont., and Gene Abbe, trained by the celebrated Eddie Cobb of Washington Court House, Ohio, arrived at the track from New York Tuesday.

The CBC has arranged to broadcast the stake Friday afternoon and Edwin T. Keller, dean of harness racing announcers in the U.S., will do the commentary.

Dr. Stanton and The Diplomat are expected to provide the strongest Canadian competition for American horses shipped to Canada for the big pacing test.

The Diplomat, owned by Alex Parsons of London, Ont, has been training at Thorncliffe for several days. Dr. Stanton has been campaigning at Roosevelt Raceway on Long Island.

Oro G. Herbert has won most of the stake races during the five weeks of the meet and holds the track records for the mile and the mile and one-sixteenth.

Gene Abbe has a record of 2.00 3-5.

Thorncliffe also received the official entry of Linda's Boy, owned by Mrs. William Tillner of Warsaw, N.Y., and trained by Levi Harner. Linda's Boy recently won a free-for-all at Hamburg N.Y., covering the mile and a sixteenth in 2.12. This is two seconds faster than Oro G. Herbert's Thorncliffe standard.

Manitoba and Ontario Tuesday won their respective matches against British Columbia and Alberta during the second day of the Canadian cricket championship at Winnipeg.

Manitoba defeated B.C. by three wickets and one run while Ontario won over Alberta by five wickets and five runs.

Florence Chadwick, 31, of San Diego, Calif., who Tuesday broke the women's record for swimming the English Channel, is being invited to take part in the women's three-mile swim at the Canadian National Exhibition, George Duthie, C.N.E. sports director cabled her the invitation after learning of her channel swim.

Winnipeg Scottish staged a second-half driving offensive Tuesday night and whipped Montreal Hakoahs, 6-1 to enter the Dominion soccer final against the Alberta-B.C. winner. Winnipeg took the best-of-three series by winning the first and third contests. The second ended in a tie.

Tar Heel, a slick black colt owned by W. N. Reynolds, of Winston-Salem, N.C., won the third and final heat of the $14,480 Geers stake for two-year-old pacers Tuesday at Goshen, N.Y., circling Bill Cane's triangular track in 20.3.

A six-man British relay team swam the English Channel Tuesday in 11 hours and 10 minutes, rested awhile in France and then started the swim back.

The Briton's time was one minute better than the record set last year by an Egyptian team.

Lefty Curt Simmons, a 14-game winner, rejoined the league-leading Philadelphia Phillies Tuesday after return of his National Guard unit from camp.

Simmons' Pennsylvania National Guard division has been ordered to active duty. No date has been set for reporting but it probably will be sometime within 30 days.

Russia has agreed to compete in the European Athletics championships, opening in Brussels, Aug. 23.

A telegram confirming the participation of a Soviet team—stated to number 40—was received by the Belgian Association.

Miss Della B, owned and driven by Hugh McLean of Port Elgin, Ont., won Tuesday's harness racing feature at Toronto's Thorncliffe raceway. Miss Della B paid $14.30 as she paced a mile and one-sixteenth, defeating Buddy Hanover, Dillon Seymour and four other rivals.

Phillies' Ability to Defeat Brooklyn Dodgers Keeps Them On Top of National Loop

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The flying Phillies are a prohibitive favorite to win their first National League flag in 35 years. Why? Because manager Eddie Sawyer has convinced his men they could beat Brooklyn.

How well the young Phils took Sawyer's lectures to heart is attested by their eighth triumph in 13 clashes with the Dodgers this season—a close 6-5 verdict.

Until Sawyer took over in the middle of the 1948 season, the Phils finished outside the first division since 1932. During those years, they'd been able to win only one season's series from the Dodgers—11-to-10 in 1937, with one game rained out.

In his first full season at the helm, the Phils held the Brooks even in 22 games.

This year they've been even more potent against the defending champions. Last night's decision marked the Phils' sixth win in their last seven meetings with the Brooks.

The triumph widened the Phils first-place lead over Boston to five games—their biggest lead thus far. The Dodgers, in a virtual third-place tie with St. Louis, trail by 5 1-2 games.

Cardinals handed Pittsburgh Pirates their 10th straight loss, 6-4, while New York Giants suppressed the Braves 2-1, for their eighth consecutive victory.

Red Sox Make Gain

Boston Red Sox made the biggest gain in the American League race. They trounced New York Yankees 7-4 while Chicago White Sox defeated the front-running Detroit Tigers 9-6. The fourth-place Red Sox now are six games behind the Tigers who lead the Yankees and Indians by three. The defeat dropped the Yanks into a second-place tie with Cleveland. The latter's game with St. Louis was postponed by rain.

In the night's only other action, Cincinnati's Reds swept both ends of a doubleheader from Chicago, 10-1 and 9-0, to climb within 1-2 game of the sixth-place Cubs. Philadelphia's Athletics blanked Washington 5-0.

Young Robin Roberts gained his third straight triumph over the Brooks this year although he needed assistance from ace reliever Jim Konstanty in the ninth. It was Roberts' 15th victory. Don Newcombe was the loser.

Konstanty came in to protect a 6-4 lead with one out and a man on first. A double by Roy Campanella put runners on second and third. Konstanty then retired the next two Dodgers on grounders with the potential tying run dying on third. Doubles by Richie Ashburn and Dick Sisler and a single by Willie Jones produced the winning runs in the eighth.

Homer Beats Spahn

Wes Westrum's 19th homer with one on in the sixth inning gave Sheldon Jones and the Giants a 2-1 triumph over Warren Spahn and the Braves. Bob Elliott's 18th homer of the season was Boston's 105th of the season, one better than the club mark set in 1949.

Stan Musial's 16th homer with one on in the second proved to be the deciding blow in the Card's triumph over the Pirates. Ralph Kiner and Clyde McCullough homered for the losers. It was No. 30 for Kiner.

Splendid pitching by Ken Raffensberger and Will Ramsdell highlighted the Reds' two victories over the Cubs. Raffensberger, celebrating his 33rd birthday, scattered 10 Chicago hits for his 10th win in the opener. Ramsdell allowed only five safeties in registering his first major-league shutout.

The White Sox overcame a 5-0 Detroit lead to win. They knocked out starter Hal White with four runs in the sixth, added two more against Hank Borowy in the seventh and finished with three off loser Paul Calvert in the eighth. Eddie Robinson's 12th homer snapped a 6-6 tie.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT
(For Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)

New York, Aug. 9 — (AP) — There were some hearty laughs among the fistic set when Sugar Ray Robinson announced he would fight Charlie Fusari for charity.

The diehards among the skeptics were looking for the harlem flash to come down with one of the obscure ailments which have plagued his career and given headaches to promoters far and wide.

But it just goes to show how wrong a skeptic can be. Here it is the day originally set, and unless Sugar Ray stumbles over the scales and pulls a tendon he will defend his welterweight title against Fusari tonight—for charity.

Whether in a belated bid for true popularity, or what, Sugar is taking only $1, with the remainder of his 30 per cent of the purse going to the Damon Runyan Cancer Fund. It is such a gesture as to square a lot of raps.

Joe Chipped In

The only other fighter of modern times to have made such a sacrifice was one of Robinson's own color, Joe Louis, who defended his heavyweight title twice for army and navy relief during the war. But even then there was a difference.

Joe knew to his own satisfaction he could whip the likes of Abe Simon and Buddy Baer, perhaps even call the round if necessary. Sugar, on the other hand, is risking his own crown against a foremost challenger, who might prove dangerous if the champion has weakened himself making the 147-pound class limit.

In view of all this, the men who chronicle boxing have reversed their field in recent days and written some glowing articles about the champion.

About the best they have said for him in the past was that he was the greatest fighter in the world, pound for pound, which was evident to begin with.

As for Robinson outside the ring, the implication has been that you could have him. He has managed his own affairs, driven tough deals with promoters and never hesitated to walk out on a match which, for one reason or another, he didn't wish to fight.

Selfish Ray

He said the other day, quite frankly, that he considered a boxer foolish to enter the ring if he had even a little hurt on one finger. "If you don't watch out for yourself, Sugar said, nobody else will. This strange and selfish attitude has gained Robinson no friends in the fight business.

There could be no greater contrast than that between Sugar Ray and Louis. Joe made and kept a million friends. Those who bought tickets to his fights always knew they could depend upon Joe to knock out his man if he could. Joe hasn't any money and owes the government a pile.

Robinson has never bothered about being a good fellow. Often, it is suspected, he has employed just as much of his brilliant ability as was necessary to win a decision. Why risk his valuable hands in an effort to score a knockout? Ray has plenty of money, owns a cluster of paying shops in Harlem and can afford to fight this one for charity.

Maybe he doesn't call himself Sugar for nothing, and maybe he isn't so dumb.

Only Two Teams Left in Powerful OHA Senior Loop

Toronto, Aug. 9 (CP)—Senior hockey in Ontario may not be dead yet, but it's looking more like a corpse every day.

It was dealt a body blow Tuesday with announcement that a proposed Niagara Falls entry, counted on to keep the Ontario Amateur Hockey Association senior "A" series functioning, was definitely out.

That, plus the rumored withdrawal of Owen Sound and Kitchener, left only two teams definitely in—Toronto and Hamilton. But George Panter, league business manager, refused to admit the league was through.

"Because one group pulls out of hockey in a city doesn't mean a whole league has to fold up," he said. "Senior 'A' hockey is anything but dead in Ontario."

League officials denied they have received notice of withdrawal from Owen Sound and Kitchener, but officials of the two clubs have stated repeatedly they are through with senior hockey for the present at least.

The league operated last year with four teams—Owen Sound, a combined Kitchener-Waterloo entry, Hamilton and Toronto, whose Marlboros went on to win the Allan Cup. Attendance was none too heavy in Owen Sound and Kitchener.

The clubs complained the customers were tired of seeing the same teams play night in, night out. And with the high price of hockey talent, they had to satisfy the customers to survive.

Showed Interest

That started the movement for a fifth team, and Niagara Falls showed interest. Kitchener said they might stay in if Niagara Falls entered. Owen Sound said they might stay in if Kitchener and Niagara Falls agreed to come in if the other teams stayed.

Now Niagara Falls is out. They gave as reasons a lack of senior calibre hockey players, and the fact that the other teams have stated their intention to withdraw.

What Next?

Panter said if the league did fold, it could be revived next year with the re-entry of Kitchener and possible new entries from London and Peterborough. By then Niagara Falls may be ready too.

In the meantime, Marlboro officials indicated they would probably send as many players as possible to farm clubs of the parent Toronto Maple Leafs. The remainder would be released to other senior clubs.

Another rumor had Hamilton and Toronto joining the strong Quebec senior loop, but officials of that league strongly denied the possibility.

No One Will Try To Pick Winner Of Hambletonian

Goshen, N.Y., Aug. 9 — (AP)— The Silver Anniversary Hambletonian with a record purse of $75,209 is scheduled for ancient Good Time Park today and nobody here will try to pick the winner.

Thirteen of the fanciest three-year-old trotters in the harness world have been entered for the event—stellar attraction on the grand circuit program. The first heat is scheduled to get away at 2 p.m. (EST).

Usually an outstanding sophomore trotter has appeared on the scene by Hambletonian time, but at least half a dozen horses impress the rail birds this time.

"The winner is going to know he's been in a horse race," said E. Roland Harriman, New York railroad magnate who owns part of Star's Pride and Florican. The other half of Star's Pride belongs to L. B. Sheppard of Hanover, Pa., the shoe man who has the Hanover Shoe farm whence comes the "Hanover" name given thousands of standard bred horses.

The race is expected to draw a crowd of around 20,000. Biggest part of the pot will be 55 per cent of the gross, minus a breeders' award, or $40,537.

Greying Tom Smith, who won the race twice, has a speed demon in King's Ransom, from the Coldstream stud, Lexington, Ky.

Mid-western and western support is going to Lord Stewart, from the stable of Ralph H. Kroening of Milwaukee.

Ray Robinson Makes Last Stand As Welter Champ

He doesn't expect to lose his title to Fusari—he figures to romp home like a 1-to-5 shot. But the grind of making the 147-pound weight is getting him down.

Robinson admitted as much yesterday at his Pompton Lakes, N.J., camp when he said "win, lose or draw, this is the last." Later he added that he meant "last if I get a middleweight title shot at Jake Lamotta."

There was little doubt about Robinson making the weight at the 10 a.m. (EST) weigh-in at the stadium. Down to 147 1-4, yesterday, he was a cinch to do the job. But he may be weak at the weight.

The weight question and Fusari's popularity with New Jersey fans is expected to lure a crowd of 30,000 and $150,000. If the crowd comes up to expectations, the cancer fund should net about $50,000. There will be no television.

Robinson is donating his 30 per cent of the gate, with the exception of $1, and Fusari is to give a portion of his 25 per cent purse to the fund. Another 15 per cent comes "off the top", before anybody is paid, into the cancer fund treasury.

In 11? fights, Robinson has lost only one—to Lamotta. He has fought two draws.

Rampaging Cubs Clip Cannifton By 15-3 Score

Base blows burgeoned off the booming bludgeons of the Belleville Cubs at Exhibition Grounds last night when they defeated the Cannifton Clippers 15-3 in the first game of the two-of-three semi-finals series of the Belleville District Baseball League.

Fifteen clouts, three of them homers bounded into the wild blue yonder off the clubs of the rampaging Cubs. Huck Reeves led the smash parade with a homer, triple and single with Russ Soules pounding out a double and two singles. Elder Neilson hit the longest four-bagger ever seen in the park and garnished it with a pair of singles. Dave Lockyer also hit for the circuit while Gary Schreider poled out a brace of singles. In fact the entire Cub team connected safely with the exception of Jack Elliott.

Fine Pitching Effort

"Chuck" Barriage, whose 'ole soup-bone" improves with age, hurled one of the best games of the season. The veteran right-hander held the Clippers to three isolated hits up to the ninth when he eased up and the foe garnered four clouts for their three runs. He struck out seven and nary a runner reached first on a base on balls.

Big Jim Titus, ex-Flyer hurler, went the route for the Clippers and was no puzzle to the Cub sluggers. They started in the first innings scoring three runs off as many hits and added to the total in every inning except the 7th and 8th. Titus whiffed three and walked one.

The Cubs came up with a flawless effort behind Barriage with not an error being chalked against them. The Clippers bobbled the ball on six occasions some of the miscues proving costly.

The second game of the series will be played in Exhibition Park on Thursday night when the Cubs expect to cinch a spot in the loop finals. Tonight at Sixardee the undefeated airmen take on the Point Anne team in the other semi-final bracket, a best two-of-three series.

HOPE HOLES OUT

New York, Aug. 9—(CP)—The National Amateur Golf Championship at Minneapolis Aug. 21-26 will go on without Bob Hope, the slide-nosed comedian who found the 36-hole qualifying tests Tuesday a bit too rough. He took 80 swings on the first tour of the par-70 course and picked up his ball, conceding.

Chicago, Aug. 9 (AP)—An "extra-inning" international showdown, between British open champion Bobby Locke and 1946 U.S. open titlist Lloyd Mangrum, was on tap today for the All-American pro tournament top prize of $2,500.

They popped out of nowhere yesterday to add to the usual confusion in Tam O'Shanter's fairways spectacle by deadlocking at six-under-par 282 for first spot in the All-American.

An 18-hole playoff (2 p.m. E.D.T.) was ruled by Promoter George S. May.

Meanwhile, a play-off among five 294 shooters had been conducted which finally landed Lawson Little among the 32 eligibles for the rich world tourney which starts Thursday.

Besides, some precedence was established when Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, and Wilford Wehrle from Ormond, Fla., tied in the All-American amateur Sunday and settled their affair at 18 holes yesterday.

Stranahan won in a vague finish in which Wehrle forgot medal-play rules and picked up on the 18th green. Technically, he was disqualified, but Stranahan with a four-under-par 68 was five strokes ahead when the error occurred.

Locke, banned from U.S. fairways for a year by the Professional Golfers' Association for dodging dates last summer, exploded a closing nine 31, five under par, to negotiate his tie with Mangrum. Both had final-round 67's, but Mangrum did his spurting with a first-nine 31, also five under par.

The finish was a bitter disappointment to Ed Furgol, crippled-armed star from Royal Oak, Mich., who led after 54 holes with a five-under-par 211. He ballooned to a 75 over the last 18 for a 286 and a four-way tie for sixth place.

Third spot and $1,250 went to Dave Douglas, from Newark, Dela., with 283.

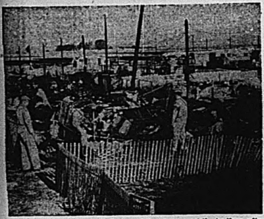
200 FAMILIES ESCAPE DEATH BY MINUTES



Charred ruins are all that remain of automobile trailers after a B-29 Superfortress crashed 150 feet away from the trailer camp near Fairfield-Suisun air base, Calif. Thousands of gallons of flaming gasoline were splashed on the auto camp when the plane exploded, 10 minutes after the crash. The 200 service families living in the camp were evacuated safely. Nineteen persons were reported dead and 60 injured. — Central Press Canadian.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

A lying partner needs a quick kick in the slacks. The times he craves a splurge of leading out of joint and fails to curb the urge I hope he gets the point.

The order of choice of leads is tops, longies, shorts. Lead a top of a top; fourth best from a long suit; highest of a short suit. These are standard policies in blind opening leads.

When partner has bid a suit your first choice opening lead is a card in his suit. Which card? Same as advised for blind opening leads; top of top, fourth best of long, highest of short.

If partner has bid a suit and you do not lead his suit, what has he a right to assume? That you are void in his suit. Else you would have led it, according to standard custom.

Is there an unless to this? Yes, there is. Unless you can first make a lead without losing control of the lead. Because if you have not lost control of the lead you can still lead his suit.

South is in four spades when you have this west hand:

♥A K 6 2
♦7 6 3
♣Q 7 5 4

Suppose your partner in east had bid clubs. Rule asks you to lead a club, the suit partner has bid. So, if you led a club from your holding it would be the four, the fourth best of your length.

But in this case you would first lead heart king. This would advise your partner that you held the ace of hearts. He would then know how to enter your hand, if necessary.

When you win the trick with the king you are still in the lead and can lead your club four. This will tell him you have four cards of his suit as well as the ace of hearts.

Notice you gave him this information without misleading him. How? By not losing control until you could show what you had in his suit. Make the most of opportunities.

Hollywood, Aug. 9 — (AP) — Can clowns really be funny with breaking hearts? Must the show always go on? Do they want to play tragedies?

Emmett Kelly, North America's most noted clown, is the sad-eyed wistful little hobo who played for years with many circuses. His weary Willie has made millions laugh.

Kelly, a soft-voiced, pleasant man of middle years, has a round, expressive face with eyes lingering between sadness and humor.

Play It Serious

"My theory of comedy has always been to play something very seriously," he says. "I am always intent on what I am trying to do. The comedy comes when everything goes wrong."

What about the Pagliacci that a clown should laugh even in sorrow?

"It's true," he replied. "I've gone on many a night with tears in my eyes. Most other clowns have done it too. You see the audience can only see the painted smile on a clown, not his real expression.

"Or with a clown in a sad makeup, like myself, real sadness makes him seem funnier. Very often I get my biggest laughs when I am not feeling good. But I usually feel better by the time I come off.

What about the tradition that "the show must go on?"

"That's a lot of hooey. There have been times when I was too sick to go on and stayed in bed Any performer who tells you he never missed a show is handing you a line."

Kelly, frustrated in his early desire to be a newspaper artist, turned to entertaining chalk-talks before audiences. In his drawings he evolved the character of Willie, taken from an old comic strip. Eventually, he assumed the role of the sad clown and joined the circus. Except for a stretch as an acrobat, Kelly has been Willy for 30 years.

Windsor, Ont., Aug. 9 — (CP) — More than 250 natives of the Isle of Man gathered in Windsor Tuesday for the 23rd annual convention of the North American Manx Association.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was doing the bridge problem in the paper, and pop was out for his Wensday nite bowling, and I was reeding my lyberry book and wishing ma would let me stay up late enough to reed the last chapters, and I looked at the clock and it was almost time for me to go to bed if ma happened to notice the time, which she always does, and I thawt, Heck, maybe she'll let me if I ask her by slow degrees. I bet I can finish the book in about half an hour, I thawt.

And I said, Hay ma, do you realize this is vacation and I dont have to go to school tomorrow?

It's been vacation for some time, so why should I go out of myway to realize it now, especially? ma said, and I said, Because I've got a suddin ambition to stay up till 12 o'clock, and if I sleep exter late in the morning: the result will be the same.

The result would be far from the same. I assure you, ma said. The helthy time for children to sleep is when the stars are shining, and not the sun. Dont you realize that? she said, and I said, Yes mam, can I stay up till eleven if I promise to go rite to bed without a single argument as soon as the clock strikes eleven?

Certainly not for land sakes, ma said, and I said, then can I stay up an exter half hour?

No, not even that, ma said, and Meening me, and proving it you ask for more than you expect you're libel to get at least almost as mutch as you wanted.

Veterans Issued Special Call To Join Ranks

Ottawa, Aug. 9 (CP) — The Chief of the General Staff said Tuesday night Canada's special army brigade for United Nations service could reach the stage of training as a formation "in relatively few months" providing it can recruit enough veterans and reservists. Recruiting starts today.

The Chief, Lt. Gen. Charles Foulkes went on the air over a CBC network with Defence Minister Claxton to issue a special call to veterans and others with military training to enlist in the new force so it can quickly take the field.

Training Outlined

Statements by the defence leaders in their broadcast Tuesday night made these points:

"1. To prepare the new brigade rapidly for action its three infantry battalions will be given "on the job training" with the existing regular units of the active force. That is men who enlist, say, in the new, second battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment will go to the existing first battalion of that regiment at once to live and train with its regulars, "absorbing the customs and characteristics of the parent unit."

2. Artillerymen will join the 2nd Field Regiment and go to the parent unit at Shilo, Man. Other units—engineers, medicals, Army Service Corps—will go to schools organized for those corps.

Gives Instructions

Gen. Foulkes gave these instructions to volunteers:

"If you are a former private soldier bring your paybook and your certificate of discharge to the nearest recruiting centre.

"Officers apply direct to army headquarters sending their certificates of service. But officers who served in the field with units of the type now being raised, that is to say infantry, artillery, service corps, electrical and mechanical engineers and medical units, if they meet all other qualifications, may be taken on by the G.O.C. . . .

"Given enough veterans and men from the reserve forces, we can advance to formation training in relatively few months."

Former O.P.P. Constable Has Been Demoted

Windsor, Ont., Aug. 9 (CP) — W. M. Durnford, Provincial Police officer demoted from sergeant to the rank of constable and relieved of his command of the Essex County Provincial Police detachment, withheld comment Tuesday on his demotion.

Cpl. John B. Sheff of Chatham took over as acting sergeant of the Essex detachment. Provincial Police Commissioner W. H. Stringer, in Toronto, said Sheff is an "outstanding man, with a splendid record overseas in both world wars."

Commissioner Stringer declined to give any reason for Durnford's demotion, but said he will be transferred from Essex. His new post has not been decided yet.

Durnford refused to discuss the matter. "I have no comment," he said. "It is strictly a departmental matter."

County Doctor Beloved Citizen For Half Century to Have Day

Danville, Que., Aug. 9 (CP)—A country doctor who brought more than 2,000 babies into the world and then lost count is going to have his day.

The day is next Saturday. Out at the Dnaville fair grounds the folks of Danville and many from parts of Quebec's eastern townships will honor Dr. R. H. Stevenson, physician, wise counseor and beloved citizen for half a century.

There will be sports and games, a basket picnic and speeches and a presentation.

The good doctor is deeply touched by it all. But he shies from publicity. He said he would be a lot happier if the people would just put him in a tent, charge admission to see him and send the money to the Manitoba Food Relief Fund.

Dr. Stevenson, now 71, looks fit and strong. He is still lean and brown. He has never lost his quiet, dry humor, and his dark eyes sparkle under eyebrows that seem lifted in surprise.

Out of McGill University as a full-fledged doctor at 21, and looking barely 17, he set up practice in Danville.

One of his early calls was a maternity case. A jittery young man took the doctor to the home where grandma-to-be waited in a flutter on the front porch.

"Who you got there?" she called out.

"It's all I could find, ma," was the repy. "All the other doctors were gone."

But the embarrassed young physician was finally allowed to enter, and the baby was successfully delivered.

"That must be from attending children," he mused. "Children like to be treated as a piece of furniture. Then the first arrival of the doctor isn't quite such a shock."

There are scores more anecdotes, told in solemn truth, about the practical, down-to-earth doctor who "isn't afraid to use the kitchen table."

The man who has brought three generations into the world has been an outstanding figure in addition to his work as physician.

He has thrived on his interest in community affairs. He has been president of the golf committee, the tennis club committee and—his happiest job — the cemetery committee. The explanation of the doctor, who had the cemetery graded, terraced and abundantly planted with flowers, is simple:

"People are good enough to have me take care of them while they're living, so I had better take care of them when they die too."

Denmark's House May be Disssolved After Defeat

Copenhagen, Aug. 9 (AP) — Denmark's Parliament was due for dissolution today after defeat of a government austerity program, but the lawmakers planned to vote $62,700,000 in new defence funds before giving up their seats.

Following defeat of his proposed import controls in all-night session, Prime Minister Hans Hedtoft handed in his resignation and that of his cabinet to King Frederick.

New elections said Hedtoft, will be held Sept. 5. Meanwhile the cabinet will continue in office as a caretaker government.

The dissolution decree was held up, however, until parliament's Lower House could meet today to appropriate the previously announced increase in funds for the armed forces and civilian defence. The money, which is in addition to present appropriations, would be spent during the next two years.

PROBABLY WAS WHALE

St. John's, Nfld., Aug. 9 (CP)—Was it a whale or a submarine? That's the $64 question in Newfoundland.

A fisherman reported last night he saw an unidentified undersea raider just outside the harbor here Monday night.

The navy says it probably was a whale. There have been numerous reports of a sub— probably Russian—during the last month but many remained unconfirmed.

A Candid and Honest Discussion on a Delicate Subject

IMPORTANT! Here is frank information — in non-technical language—regarding an annoying, painful, often embarrassing physical condition which now afflicts countless thousands — you, perhaps, among them. Far too frequently this condition, at first superficial in itself, can be Nature's warning of more serious trouble to come. We belive everyone who suffers from this condition owes it to his or her own personal comfort to read the statement below. LEONHARDT PROPRIETARIES, LTD.

Since the dawn of civilization, medical men have been fighting a ceaseless war — to save lives and to conquer dread diseases.

When they discover a new "miracle" drug or surgical technique, the news rings round the world! Yet all the while, other "unsung" men of science are working equally hard to relieve suffering caused by less dramatic, "everyday" maladies. Among them is perhaps the most painful of all — piles!

A Subject Seldom Discussed

Pile sufferers are burdened with a double hardship. They yearn for relief, but hesitate to seek it because of false pride and embarrassment. Yet to the man or woman who knows the agonizing torment of itching, burning piles, the truth about their trouble may mean a world of difference in business efficiency, in social pleasure, in good looks and vitality!

What Causes Piles?

Piles are not a primary ailment. Conditions which cause them never originate in the parts affected. At first, piles are simply inflamed and distended "varicose veins" in the delicate membranes of the rectum. A common cause is hepatic congestion (torpidity of the liver) which results in ordinary, everyday constipation.

How Piles Develop

As the liver function slows down, blood flow from the lower bowel to the liver is retarded and small rectal veins swell with blood. Then, usually, constipation starts. Hard, clogging masses form in the lower bowel — irritating and bruising the distended rectal veins. Blood stagnates in and bruised areas, until the tiny veins become greatly inflamed, lumpy, horribly painful.

This agonizing pain aggravated by constipation, is "self-perpetuating". The constipation adds to the itching, burning pain and soreness—which in turn increases the constipation — which then tends to further enlarge the swollen veins until they become pile tumors. If this vicious circle is not broken, there is only one choice — chronic piles or the surgeon's knife!

Why Face This Choice?

Decide now to break this vicious circle! Many others have done so, thanks to an able professional man who, more than 50 years ago, began an intensive study of piles — their cause and effect. Knowing that piles are caused by congested conditions inside the body, he wisely searched for an internal medication that would relieve hepatic congestion, stimulate bile flow, gently ease constipation and improve circulation of the blood in the lower bowel — thus helping Nature herself promote a healthier condition in the sore, painful areas where piles are found. Finally, in his own practice, he devised a formula of medically-proven elements — small tablets taken by mouth — which showed amazing results in 86 out of 100 cases that came to his personal, professional attention!

Sufferers Acclaim Hem-Roid

He gave his formula the trade name of Hem-Roid — using it first in his own practice, later supplying it to friends and acquaintances. In 1904 he sold the formula and name. Since that time, millions of packages have been bought by the public throughout the world — and countless satisfied users of Hem-Roid testify to its quick, efficient action.

Accept This 10-Day Offer!

Naturally — long-standing, neglected cases of piles may call for a doctor's advice. But for average pile conditions, we know nothing better than Hem-Roid to give you the relief and results you want. To prove it, we make this special 10-day offer!

Now from any drugstore, get a package of Hem-Roid — 60 tablets 20 full days treatment — at the amazingly low price of $1.50. Use the tablets exactly as directed for 10 days. If at that time you are not delighted with results you get, just return the package with unused tablets to your druggist for full refund of the purchase price! You risk nothing — and you stand to gain immeasurable relief from the embarrassing discomfort and torment of itching, burning piles. Ask for Hem-Roid —today!

The Gentle Heart

By Kay Hamilton

Ruthven had taught Dick the "dog fight game" with Ghillie, and Jenny had to warn him that the scottie could not take too much excitement or exercise at his age, or he would have run the old dog ragged. When he went off to bed, she breathed a sigh of relief, and it was not until then that she thought again of Faith Owen and her visiting mother-in-law.

Natalie and Gary were out at the movies, so she threw an a coat and ran next door.

Faith was very happy to see her. "Jenny, how nice! Come right in. You must meet Mother Owen. Mother, this is my very good neighbor, Genevieve Mayhew."

Jenny laughed. "I've practically forgotten that that is my name," she explained. "Everyone simply calls me Jenny. And I like it better, somehow. I'm afraid I'd have to develop a little glamour to live up to Genevieve."

Mrs Owen was a rather tall woman with dak hair just beginning to turn grey, and a peering air. "She's near-sighted," Faith explained later, 'but she won't wear glasses."

"So you're Jenny," she said now taking Jenny's hand in her own. "Faith says you're a fine little housewife, and I believe I am indebted to you for the splendid coffee cake recipe she sent me." She asked, without any transition whatever. "I suppose you know this Max Lord, who was a friend of my son's?"

"Yes, very well," Jenny said, with what calmness she could muster. The attack had been so sudden. "He is a friend of our family's and we see him often You will like him." She was glad she could say this last with assurance, and the older woman nodded once or twice, as if an opinion of her own had been confirmed.

"I've met him," she declared. "And I do like him. Faith, you must ask him over frequently while I am here, so that I can talk to him about Ken."

Faith paled a little, and Jenny felt for her. She foresaw how difficult it would be for Faith and Max to be together under this woman's observation, while their entire talk must be about the dead man whose place Max was hoping to fill. It would have been a difficult situation in any case, but this might well prove disastrous. She said hurriedly, "How long are you staying?" and then blushed furiously hoping it didn't sound as if she were tying to hurry Mrs. Owen away from Green Ridge.

"I don't know. I haven't decided. Perhaps until Thanksgiving. But long enough to get well acquainted with this little town and with Faith's friends and neighbors. This is my first visit here, you know."

Jenny went home soon after, to go to bed and sleep uneasily that night. She could not forget Mrs Owen's strong, possessive hold upon her hand, the peering intentness of her near-sighted eyes. Would such a woman, who had lived entirely in her son, forgive Faith for having loved a second time?

Natalie came home late, and hurried through her breakfast the next morning. Jenny supposed it was because she had some work still to do on the fishnet design. But, to her surprise, her sister did not go into the studio at all. Only Brent was there, painting away and whistling a little between his teeth at intervals. When Jenny went upstairs to make the beds, she found Natalie in her room.

"Why, Nat!" she exclaimed. "Going to take a day off You need it; you've been working hard."

"Yes, I need it." Natalie's voice was tense, her manner jerky. "I thought I'd go over my clothes this morning. I—I'm going to New York for a few days, Jenny. I telephoned Eleanor this morning. and she said she could put me up."

Jenny, straightening the sheets, did not look up. "Going to do some research? Or going on a binge?" she asked.

"Both, I suppose. I want to look over some things at the Metropolitan. And I want to have some fun."

Jenny glanced at her sister with a humorous smile. "You don't sound as if you were in the right mood for it," she chuckled. "Downright belligerent!"

But Natalie's face, to her astonishment, crumpled a little. "I'm not in the mood for it," she admitted. "I'm not in the mood for anything decent. After last night!"

At once, Jenny sensed that something serious underlay her words. "Did you and Gary quarrel?"

'Oh, no! Not even an angry word!" Natalie exploded. "That's just it. He has about as much — as much gumption as a—a jellyfish, and I never want to see him again."

Jenny sat down abruptly. Her knees felt weak. "But what happened?"

"Nothing, I tell you. You wouldn't think a man like Gary—a man who is as devoted to science as he is—would put such emphasis on money, would you?"

Jenny was puzzled. "But I'm sure he doesn't. I'm sure Gary isn't interested in money," she said positively.

"Yes, he is," Natalie said, just as positively. "I found that out last night. He might not think of money in connection with his work, but he'd let it stand in the way of his happiness. He's just full of false pride!"

And, despite Jenny's gentlest probings, she would not say another word. Instead, she set about laying out her things angrily, flinging her dresses on the bed, and going over her stockings with hands that trembled so much, she put runs in two of them.

She took the two-forty train in to New York. When Brent, at lunchtime, protested against her leaving her fishnet design half finished, she said, casually, "There is no rush for it. It's not an order. It's more to the point that I should be gathering some new material. I'll be working hard enough in a couple of weeks."

At the last minute, Brent decided to go along. "I haven't anyone posing for me until tomorrow afternoon," he declared, "and I need some supplies. I'll spend the night with Hazeltine."

By three o'clock Jenny was sitting alone in the house. It felt strangely empty and uncomfortably silent. The school bus would not bring Dick home for another three-quarters of an hour, and Jenny set herself to rearrange her menu. The meal she had planned for tonight would have to be changed, now that there would be only Dick and herself. And then she said to herself, "Why not ask Pete and Elsa? Perhaps, if I saw them all together—"

They were delighted. "A real meal that I don't have to prepare myself?" Elsa had cried over the phone. "I'll be there! I'll even wash the dishes!"

"Now don't be rash," Jenny could hear Pete's voice cautioning his wife. "They've got good china, and if you should forget your glasses—"

She had scarcely hung up before Dick came slamming into the house. He tossed his books down on the hall settle with a thump, yelled a greeting to Ghillie, who was turning himself into pretzel curves with delight, and stamped into the living room. "Hi, Jenny!" he said. "What's cookin'?"

"Quite a lot since this morning," she said. "Natalie has gone in to New York for a few days, and Brent went along with her to get some supplies. And your parents are coming over for dinner."

The happy, open look fled from his round face, and the old stubborn expression slid over his features. "They're not my parents," he said coldly. "At least Pete is, but Elsa is not. She's not my mother and I won't call her that, ever."

"No, of course she's not your mother, and I didn't mean it that way," Jenny said with assumed calmness. "But you will have to get used to people saying that, Dick. You can't go around explaining to everyone that Pete is your father, but Elsa is his second wife."

His air did not soften. "I will if I see they think she's my mother."

Jenny leaned forward in her desk chair. "Dick," she said quietly, "do you miss your mother very much?"

"No," he said angrily. "No! I don't miss her at all. I can get along without anybody if I have to." But he ran from the room, Ghillie a comforting black shadow at his heels, before she could see the trembling of his lips.

Jenny leaned her head on her hands, her elbows propped on the desk. She had done the wrong thing. She should have waited a little longer, given the neutral atmosphere of her home time in which to work a change in Dick's attitude toward Pete and Elsa. She played with the idea of calling the dinner off. She knew that her friends would agree instantly, but she also knew that Dick would consider it a victory for his uncompromising antagonism. She would have to let it go through.

The meal turned out worse than she had imagined it could. Dick showed a side of his nature which she had not dreamed he possessed—the side to which Elsa had elluded when she told about their trip home. He talked loudly, interrupted everyone, ate with atrocious manners, fed Ghillie against Jenny's express commands, and flatly contradicted everything that Elsa said. At last Elsa subsided into complete and resigned silence. Pete lashed out once or twice at his son, but Dick took his scoldings with an impudent air which his father did not know how to combat. Jenny watched this performance with an observant eye.

After dinner, when the dishes were about to be washed, Dick came out to put Ghillie's harness on, and take him for his postparandial walk. Jenny said, without raising her voice at all, "No, Dick, not tonight. I'll take him later."

"I'm going to take him now," he said loudly, but she saw that he hesitated, his hands fumbling with the leash.

"Come into the studio with me a minute, Dick," Jenny said. "I want you to help me with something. Back in a sec, Elsa," she called as she and the boy left the room.

Compromise Offer Made to Rail Unions

If Not Accepted All Other Offers Are Withdrawn

C.N.R. President Appears Personally Before Committee

Montreal, Aug. 10 — (CP) — The railways today made a compromise offer to its 124,000 strike-assenting employees, stipulating that if it is not accepted all compromise offers are withdrawn.

"Recognition by railway management of moral obligation to implement the 40-hour week at the appropriate time.

Recognition by the unions in principle, subject to negotiation in detail, of 10 amendments to existing contracts.

Offer Made to Unions

Either (A) a 44-hour basic work week with a 9.1-per-cent increase in hourly rates so as to maintain take-home pay. In regard to monthly-rated clerical employees there will be an understanding that a five-day actual work week may be granted by local arrangement in selected cases where the hours now actually worked are less than 44, on condition that the requirements of the service are protected up to 44 hours per week.

"Or (B) an increase in basic wage rates approximately equivalent in expense to that involved under plan (A). This would average 8 1-2 cents per hour for all employees but it is to be graduated in three steps so as to provide for (1) a maximum hourly or monthly wage increase (2) lesser amounts in specific cases where it is necessary; (A)—to avoid raising the occupational rates still further above those paid in outside industry for comparable work. (B)—to widen the differential between successive positions so as to provide a reasonable incentive for advancement."

The offer was made personally to the full negotiating committees of the two union groups by Donald Gordon, president of the Canadian National Railways, on behalf of himself and W. A. Mather, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The 15 international unions and two Canadian unions have authorized a strike Aug. 22 unless their demands are satisfactorily dealt with.

No Comment Given

There was no comment from union officials following the meeting. The parties will meet again at 4 p.m.

Two conciliation boards originally heard the demands of the men, all connected with the non-running trades. The international unions asked a wage increase of seven cents an hour and a 40-hour week, instead of the present 48-hour week, with no reduction in take-home pay.

The Canadian unions sought the 40-hour week, checkoff of union dues and a 10-cent hourly increase in wages.

Molotov Reported In Peiping by Chinese Paper

Taipei, Formosa, Aug. 10—(AP) —A Chinese nationalist newspaper today reported that Russia's vice-premier, V. M. Molotov, has arrived in Peiping, capital of communist China.

There was no confirmation.

Chinese nationalists and others long have contended that Molotov is directing expansion of communism in the orient on orders from Prime Minister Joseph Stalin.

Heavy detachments of troops and police guarded his route from the airfield to the former imperial hunting park, now the residence of red chairman Mao Tze-Tung. No one was allowed near the park without special permit.

Despite these precautions, the account said, it soon became common knowledge in Peiping that Molotov was conferring with Mao.

Mao made an extended visit to Moscow seven months ago and came away with treaties bearing on Russian-Chinese agreements for mutual aid and dispositions of their border territories.

Posed as Doctor To Get Morphine

Toronto, Aug. 10 — (CP)—Police said Wednesday that Walter Woolnough, 48, posing as a doctor, phoned Toronto General Hospital that he was sending a patient for a morphine injection. A few minutes later Woolnough himself arrived — this time posing as the "patient" — and asked for the injection.

Police, summoned by suspicious attendants, arrested him after he had received a shot of drugs.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Aug. 10 — (CP) — Synopsis: Cooler air moved into northern Ontario from the northwest during the last 24 hours and by this morning it had pushed to just south of Georgian Bay. The leading edge of this new air mass will continue its southward motion across southern regions today bringing with it increasing cloudiness and a few showers or thunderstorms. Friday will be mostly sunny over the majority of regions with afternoon temperatures reaching 75 to 80 in southern Ontario and 65 to 70 in the northen part of the province.

Truman States He is Satisfied With MacArthur as UN Commander

Washington, Aug. 10. (AP)—President Truman said today he is satisfied with what Gen. Douglas MacArthur is doing as American and United Nations commander in the Far East.

He also told a press conference that he had not met anybody of the sort described by MacArthur in a statement last night in which MacArthur said appeasers in Washington were criticizing his recent trip to Formosa.

Truman steered clear of comment on MacArthur's trip and the controversy which has grown around it.

Asked for information on the report which he received yesterday from W. Averell Harriman, his foreign affairs co-ordinator just back from Tokyo, Truman replied:

Harriman had expressed all that could be said on the subject at his meeting with reporters yesterday afternoon. What Harriman told reporters then, the president added, is substantially what he had earlier reported to the President.

Truman was asked what he thought about MacArthur's charge that critics of the latter's meeting with Chiang Kai-Shek in Formosa early last week were persons who have always favored appeasement in Asia.

Truman said he had not met anybody of that sort yet.

Diplomatic authorities expressed hope that international confusion over American policy toward Formosa had been cleared up as a result of Harriman's rush trip to Tokyo.

U.N. ARMY FORCE WILL BE UNDER HOUSE DEBATE

Commons to Decide Where Brigade to Fight

Ottawa, Aug. 10 — (CP)— The forthcoming session of parliament is expected to hear the opposition raise the question of who will decide when and where Canada's new special army forces goes to fight.

It may also learn whether the force, a brigade group of around 5,000 men, will fight beside the Anzacs and British tommies in Korea as part of an unprecedented Commonwealth division.

The prospect of such a division has been raised because Canada, Britain and Australia and New Zealand are raising formations with rough similarities in strength and composition. Officials say Canada hasn't yet been asked to join one.

There is some opposition to that sort of a formation in high places but official reaction seems to be that Canada would accept a role in a Commonwealth division if that appeared to be the best way of doing things.

Commons to Decide

Official circles say the government will make it clear that Canada herself, through parliament, will decide where the force goes.

It is probably the first formation any modern nation has created specifically to back its commitments and obligations to international organizations. But it won't be turned over either to the United Nations or the Atlantic Pact powers for automatic use as those bodies see fit.

The most significant paragraph in Prime Minister St. Laurent's statement Monday was this:

"This brigade. . . will be specially trained and equipped to be available for use in carrying out Canada's obligations under the U.N. charter or the Atlantic Pact. Naturally it will, subject to the approval of parliament, be available for service in Korea as part of the U.N. forces if it can be most effectively used in that way when it is ready for service. The way in which it could be used in the U.N. force is being discussed with the unified command."

Earmarked to Fight

The force will be earmarked to fight aggression and, because the world situation may rapidly develop other aggressions, the government is not pinning itself down to its use in Korea alone.

Cabinet sources say the exact form in which the government will ask parliament for the right to use the force abroad may not be fixed until the eve of the new session. It then will be determined by the existing world situation.

Underprivileged Countries Must be Assisted to 'Put Shame' to Redism Says Martin

Chicago, Aug. 10 — (CP) — Health Minister Martin said today that to put to shame the barren philosophy of communism Canada and the United States must assist the backward countries of the world.

He made the statement in a speech prepared for delivery on "Canada Day" at the first United States International Trade Fair.

Representing Trade Minister Howe at the fair, Mr. Martin said that throughout the world there are vast masses of people hungry for the foods which Canada and the U.S. could produce and in need of other products the two countries could supply.

"There are nations eager to learn our farming and industrial techniques," he said.

"The urgent problem of the world today is to telescope the years, the decades, the centuries even that some nations are lagging behind us. We must do this in common humanity. But we must realize also that in coming to the aid of backward countries and in leading their peoples to a better level of life we are not only helping our neighbor, we are helping ourselves.

"To put to shame the barren philosophy of communism that promises so much that it cannot perform, we must bring to the asistance of people who need it the 'know how' that has brought men and women in our two countries, and in countries like ours, to the highest level of living that mankind has ever known."

The endless resourcefulness of modern competitive enterprise, the tremendous productivity of free men in the atmosphere of freedom could be brought to the attention of people now tempted by communist propaganda or intimidated by communist force.

"You might be interested in knowing," he said, "that in Canada, through outright gifts, relief assistance and loans totalling more than $6,500,000,000 since 1940, we have matched United States contributions during the same period in equal—if not even greater — proportion to our resources by financial assistance similarly designed to help friendly nations recover from their catastrophic wartime losses."

Other assistance was being provided by United States and Canada through United Nations.

"World depressions cannot be quarantined. Our policy is not to fence in our fortune. We want other nations not to envy us but to emulate us. We want them to become better customers for our goods and we want, in our turn, to buy more of theirs."

Mack's Two Older Sons Buy A's

Philadelphia, Aug. 10—(AP) — Connie Mack's two older sons, Roy and Earle, announced today they will buy controlling interest in the Philadelphia Athletics with the financial backing of the Connecticut Life Insurance Company.

Roy and Earle disclosed 10 days ago that they hold options on stock owned by their step-brother, Connie Mack Jr., and the heirs of Benjamin F. and Thomas Shibe, partners with Connie Mack in establishing the club 50 years ago.

Extent of the life insurance firm's participation was not revealed.

Baseball sources here said that they knew of no previous instance in which a life insurance firm invested i na major league baseball franchise.

Connie Mack Sr., will remain as manager of the A's and as a stockhalder. Both Roy and Earle have said they want their father to continue as manager "as long as he wants to."

Says No Reason For Panic-Buying

Ottawa, Aug. 10 (CP) —Government officials said today there should be no reason for panic-buying in Canada.

Commodities of all kinds are in plentiful supply, especially of such products as sugar, coal, automobile tires and textiles.

"Some business men are buying up—hoarding—in anticipation of a shortage," an official stated. "They are doing themselves a disservice. This may force allocations on industry."

There were reports reaching here of a sharp increase in buying of car tires, pushing prices higher. A government official said rubber was in plentiful supply. Even should the supply of natural rubber be cut off, enough synthetic rubber could be produced in Canada to more than meet requirements.

FIRST POLIO CASE

Sarnia, Aug. 10 (CP) —Lambton County's first polio case of the season was reported today. The victim is said to be an 18-months-old boy.

COUNCIL MEMBERS PLAN MEETING WITH PRESIDENT

Malik Will be Asked To Break Deadlock

Lake Success, Aug. 10 (AP)—Security Council members planned a closed, informal meeting today with their Russian President, Jakob Malik, in an effort to persuade him to break his procedural blockade in the United Nations.

If they fail, the regularly-scheduled council meeting this afternoon (3 p.m. EDT) is likely to set off a a flood of anti-communist oratory for the rest of August to match Malik's propaganda blasts.

All delegations except Russia and Yugoslavia — the former wasn't invited, the latter refused to attend— conferred in New York yesterday on the deadlock problem. Sir Gladwyn Jebb of Britain, who will be council president next month, was chairman.

After the closed session, they said that Arne Sunde of Norway, council president in July, had telephoned Malik asking him to meet other delegates for a discussion on procedure in advance of the regular meeting.

Agrees in Principle

Malik agreed—"in principle," the group's statement said.

A United States source said the mood of yesterday's meeting was determined and that the discussion with Malik would be more than just an appeal to him to play ball.

If the closed meeting fails to move Malik, there may be other consultations on a new procedural step—but the speechmaking is certain, the U.S. source said.

"We have lots more to say," the U.S. source said. "If Malik is going to keep on making propaganda speeches, he is going to have to listen to a lot of American speeches, too."

Opening the oratory flood gates cannot halt U.N. military action under way since June. Speechmaking will hold up attempts to force Malik to allow South Korea's representative to take part in council sessions and a vote on a pending U.S. proposal condemning North Korea for its continued disobedience of the U.N. rulings, which Malik contends is illegal.

More verbal exchanges also will hold up further action on Malik's insistence on seating Red China or his resolution to condemn U.N. bombings on North Korean towns.

SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

Toronto, Aug. 10 — (CP) Prof. John McRae, 38, of London, Ont., stabbed in the stomach and chest by a drinking companion July 29, was reported in "fairly satisfactory" condition in hospital today.

Pay in Canada's Special Army Force Better Than in World War II

Ottawa, Aug. 10 (CP)—Veterans serving in Canada's special army force will find their pay a bit better than it was in the Second World War.

Defence Minister Claxton said today men in that force will be paid on the same basis as men in the regular force. This indicated that there will be no special pay for service in Korea or elsewhere.

In the Second World War, a recruit got $1.30 a day and was raised to $1.50 after six months. A corporal got $1.70, a sergeant $2.20, a captain $6.50. There was a subsistence allowance of $1.25 a day for other ranks, $1.70 for officers if they weren't living in barracks and eating army food.

Now the recruit will get $68 a month—pay now is computed on a monthly basis—and $72 once he is trained. A sergeant gets $101, a captain $213. Subsistence allowances range from $54 a month for a new private to $60 for a sergeant and on up.

Married personnel in the new force will get $30 a month if below the rank of officer and $40 if they are officers. In the war, married other ranks got a dependents allowance of $37.20 a month while a lieutenant got $47.20 and a captain $62.20.

U.S. Forces Surge 13 Miles Forward On Chinju Front

New Red Attacks Menace Fighter Base Near Pohang

Tokyo, Aug. 10 — (AP) — United States forces surged ahead 13 miles today and snapped shut an armored trap around 1,000 North Koreans on the Chinju front in deep South Korea.

But to the north erupting red attacks made a new threat against Taegu and imperilled a main American fighter plane base on the Korean east coast near Pohang port.

The southern gains were the greatest of the war for the Americans. Two advancing combat teams in force were almost on the outskirts of Chinju, main red base in the south.

U.S. 8th Army leaders took hasty steps to protect the fighter plane base. It is 8 miles southeast of Pohang on the Sea of Japan 55 miles north of Pusan.

South Koreans Retreat

Two red forces rolled back crumbling South Korean troops there. Hal Boyle Associated Press correspondent at Pohang, said the reds were protected from American naval guns by lofty mountains in some of Korea's most rugged country.

The Pohang-bound communists hammered down from Yongdok, which they retook Thursday, and drove on four miles to the south.

The main threat to the fighter base came from another red force rolling toward it from the mountain village of Kigye, eight miles northwest of Pohang. A North Korean patrol of 30 men commanded the Yongchan-Pohang supply road with machine guns.

Heavy Air Raids

American planes, including 70 B-29s from Japan and Okinawa, plastered the North Koreans. The air force said the B-29s badly crippled northern rail lines with the biggest raid of the war on Wonsan, east coast rail centre north of the 38th parallel.

Eighth Army headquarters said United Nations troops battled aggressively on all fronts to expand gains in the south.

The Allied gains on the south coast were the greatest of the United Nations offensive which jumped off Monday westward from near Masan, South coast port.

First Recruits Go To Training Centres

Ottawa, Aug. 10—(CP) — The first recruits for Canada's new fighting brigade were dispatched to the training centres today as volunteers continued to flock to army recruiting depots to join up for action in Korea or elsewhere.

Unofficial estimates put the total volunteers in the last three days up to noon today at close to 1,200 in Toronto, 800 at Montreal, 500 at Ottawa and hundreds of others at cities in the Maritimes and the west.

'Y' APPOINTMENT

Elk May be Shot In Deer Season Says Minister

Toronto, Aug. 10 — (CP)—The Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries has announced an open season on elk this autumn because it has been found they are harboring an infection of a parasitic disease that it is feared might spread to the deer population.

Elk may be shot during the regular deer season north of the French and Mattawa Rivers, Games Minister Scott said today. Any hunter who has purchased a deer licence may try for an elk by getting a necessary permit from a departmental office.

Nickel Chocolate Bar Moves up To Seven Cents

Last December the wartime price of seven cents was dropped to five. But with the cut in price came a reduction in the size of the bars. Now, with the price up again, there's no change in size. You'll pay seven cents for the small bar from now on.

William Neilson, Ltd., Willards Chocolates, Ltd., and Patterson Chocolates, Ltd., announced the change. They said increasing cost of cocoa beans, cocoa butter and sugar is the reason. They declined to say whether companies in other cities are taking similar action.

Hen-House Life Suits Professor

Professor Tawney received an honorary degree here. In conferring it, the public orator said:

"When his home in London was blitzed and a permit to build could not be obtained, he acquired two henhouses to share with his wife.

"When installed he remarked: 'I never knew that hens lived so luxuriously.'"

Case of Missing Punt Solved

The case of the missing punt has been solved. On Tuesday, Charles Saunders, of 31 Colborne St., reported to city police that his punt, which he keeps at the foot of James St., was missing. "It had been gone," Mr. Saunders said, "since sometime Monday night."

Later, Mr. Saunders found the boat in a marsh, and reported it to the police Wednesday morning. Within two hours after the owner found it, the elusive punt was gone again, and police were notified again of its disappearance.

This time police constable Reid found the boat in the river, with a 15-year-old lad in possession of it. The boy, who lives in the same house as Saunders, was warned to leave other people's property alone, and the punt was returned.

Horse Show Judging One of Many Grandstand Features at the Fair

The Horse Show in front of the grandstand under the flood lights at the Belleville Fair next Tuesday evening will consist of judging the single milk delivery horses, and the bread delivery horses. Substantial donations and cash by merchants, supplemented by cash from the fair board will draw out a large number of horses along with their wagons which will be of interest to all. Mr. Bill Deline is giving $10.00 in merchandise for the first prize milk delivery horses; and Oliphant Electric is giving $10.00 in merchandise for the first prize bread delivery horse.

Wednesday night, the four and six horse tandems will be judged under the flood lights. Among the entries in that class already entered are O'Keefe's Brewery and the Wilson Lumber Company. It is quite probable that an eight-horse tandem will be driven that evening.

Never has there been so much space sold outside for the display of machinery, also an automobile show will be held this year. Every available foot of space in the buildings has been taken for display purposes by the merchants.

The wild life display sponsored by the Provincial Government will be of great interest and of educational value to all. Specimens of local game in this county and area, will be in the booth, such as deer, beaver and other animals of interest; all of which is free to the public.

Never has there been so much to see at the Belleville Fair as this year for the small admission fee at the gate.

C.N.R. Recreational Park And Children's Playground Are Officially Opened

It sounds like a story out of Aesops Fables, or an excerpt taken from Grimms' Fairy Tales. Nevertheless it is true.

A short year ago it was an eight-acre marshy bog. Weeds over-ran it. Stagnant water lay in a near-choked ditch. Tucked away behind bordering residences it was an unsightly piece of what appeared to be worthless land. Even the neighboring children disdained to play cops and robbers, or other games on its weed-covered terrain.

Today it shows definite promise of being one of the finest recreational parks and children's playgrounds in Eastern Ontario.

Thanks to the foresight, initiative and public-spiritedness of a few employees of the Canadian National Railway here, and the willing co-operation of many others, the Canadian National Railway Athletic Association's new park off Station Street near the cenotaph is not only a credit to its originators but to the association and the city as well.

Yesterday the dream of a few park pioneers came to near-realization when high-ranking officials of the C.N.R. political and civic representatives and a cross-section of city life including hundreds of company employees and their families witnessed the official opening of the new recreation park.

Opened by Superintendent

Mr. A. M. Shea, divisional superintendent here prior to declaring the park officially open, said in tribute to those who made the new project possible, "It took courage, spirit and co-operation to make the dream of a few men become a reality. We now have a place of amusement for young and old that is but in its cradle".

He felt assured that the new grounds will receive the full support of the city council and residents of the city as well.

"The lack of parks in the city means a harvest for the undertakers," he said.

"Full co-operation of regional and divisional officials had been forthcoming," Mr. Shea said, adding that this was evident in the presence of many at the opening ceremonies. It also evidenced, he went on the fine spirit of co-operation that exists between management and labor.

"This is your playground and park," he said, "The more you use it, the bigger it will become. Young and old will enjoy its facilities and it is hoped it will further a spirit of tolerance and good will among all that will make them a credit to their community and their country."

Many Officials Present

Among the high-ranking company officials present were Mr. A. R. Wilson, divisional superintendent, St. Thomas, Ont.; S. O. Martin, general superintendent, C.N.R. Express, Toronto; W. C McGonegal, superintendent C.N.R. Express, Toronto; W. J. Rupert, assistant divisional superintendent, Belleville; F. W. Campbell, divisional engineer, Belleville; A. P. Young, divisional signals, St. Thomas, Ont., and Mr. R. H. Menary, assistant divisional engineer, Belleville, who acted as master-of-ceremonies for the opening.

An unscheduled act in the reconstruction of the Royal Bank building this morning showered Front and Campbell Street with bricks rubble, and lots of dust. At 9.30 a.m., or thereabouts, a couple of beams on the upper storey were being moved, when everything let go.

The heavy eavetroughing running along the whole side of the building on Campbell Street fell except for one corner. The huge metal piece swung in an arc towards Front Street, and hung on by the barest of margins at the southwest corner of the structure. Bricks and beams fell, creating a dust that enveloped the whole building and passerby on both streets.

No one was injured, but one unidentified woman who was walking up Campbell Street at the time had her glasses broken by a flying chip. Police constable Paxman, who was standing on the corner when the accident happened, said that he and a young lad immediately ran up Campbell Street to see if the woman had been injured. They also checked on the workmen, who were inside the building.

Caught on Wires

During the course of the metal's unscheduled flight, it caught on several hydro and telephone wires, ripping them and dragging them to the ground. Constable Paxman said that the dust was so thick immediately after the crash that he couldn't see the lad standing next to him.

Reports were that workmen, in trying to lower one huge beam to the inside floor, had slung a rope over a second beam. Just as the first beam touched the ground, the second let go, and caused the shower of bricks. The eavetroughing also pulled some of the bricks from the top of the building ledge down to the ground. Scaffolding erected by workmen on Campbell Street was smashed to matchwood.

Traffic Held Up

Later in the morning, workmen tied three ropes to the hanging piece of tin and attempted to guide it to the ground. Their efforts were held up by guy wires attached to the building, and by a light standard at the corner.

Traffic on both streets was held up as a workman on the top ledge chopped the rest of the trough away from the building. The work was made more difficult by traffic piling up on Front Street despite traffic control by police constables Paxman and Cook. The chopping had to be stopped on one occasion to let traffic go through, and again when the trough had been freed and was hanging by the ropes.

Hydro and telephone men were on the job within a few minutes after the crash to effect repairs to their wires.

Fresh Peaches On Local Market At $1.10 Basket

Fresh peaches made their city market debut today with good quality fruit offered at $1.10 the basket. Red and Shiro plums also put in an appearance selling at $1 the basket and 25 cents the berry box.

Other prices were generally stable with the exception of raspberries. There were no red berries available near noon and the few boxes of blues offered sold at 40 cents each.

Corn was plentiful with prices varying. Good quality ears sold at 40 cents with some offered at 35 cents the dozen. Small ears were quoted at 25 cents.

Tomatoes were plentiful but showed no decrease in prices selling at $1 the basket and 25 cents the box.

Blueberries prices remained unchanged despite the fact there was a marked increase in stocks. The fruit was offered at 50 cents the quart and $2.25 for six quart lots.

Cantelope in mixed sizes moved easily selling at from 25 cents each. Astrachan apples were quoted at 50 cents the basket and 10 cents the box with yellow transparents moving at 45 cents the six-quart basket.

Cauliflower brought 25 cents the head and cabbage sold at from 10 cents. Carrots, beets, radishes and lettuce were offered in the usual five-cent bunch-lots.

MARMORA

Work on Track Now Completed

Most of the work on the race track at Marmora's Community Centre has been completed with satisfactory results. The track has been widened a good deal and levelled and promises to be one of the best on any rural fair grounds in Central Ontario. For the Fall Fair on September 8, a special effort is being made to secure good horses that the races may be the best in the history of the Agricultural Society.

Boy, 9, Saves Young Sister From Drowning

Presence of mind and prompt action on the part of nine-year-old Ronnie Caverley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Caverley, 54 Geddes Street, averted what might have been a drowning tragedy at Consecon Lake on Tuesday.

Ronnie's four-year-old sister, Mary Jane Caverley was playing with a group of children on a raft when, in a scramble, she was pushed into the water.

Seeing his sister bobbing up and down, Ronnie plunged into the water, swam to where she was struggling and brought her safely to shore.

While Ronnie is proud of the fact he rescued his sister, he is also proud of his achievement in bringing her ashore while he "swam one-handed."

IF NOT ACCEPTED

The recommendations of the Conciliation Boards for both groups were: a 44-hour week and wage increases which would not in all cases mean the same pay as a 48-hour week.

The recommendations were accepted by the companies and rejected by union leaders.

Later the railways offered a compromise beyond the Conciliation Boards' recommendations, suggesting a 44-hour week with no reduction in take-home pay.

Classes affected are such as clerks, maintenance men, shop workers, express employees and commercial and railway telegraphers of the companies directly concerned.

MEMBERS OF UNITED NATIONS SHOULD EACH BEAR SHARE OF BURDEN

The military crisis in Korea is another in a series of calculated moves by which the communist masters in the Kremlin hope to enslave the world. Up to now they have been content to wage global war on the ideological and economic level, building and maintaining fifth columns in every country in the world. They have sought the destruction of democracy by using the means of democracy, namely free elections in which Moscow-sponsored candidates have sought positions of authority in all levels of government from the municipal to the federal. They have infiltrated all branches of bureaucracy to such an extent that policy making on a high level has often been tinged with their traitrous influence.

It is significant that the countries in which the secret ballot is still secret, have diagnosed and rooted out this insidious cancer with the surgery of the ballot just when it appeared that all hope for their democratic survival must be abandoned; Italy and France being the best known of these convalescents.

The communists have strived diligently in some labor unions to create the trouble and distrust on which their organization prospers. They have been beaten only since the Second World War. It was only last year that the C.I.O. resolved to clean their vast house of the communist influence. Their bold action has weakened the near-death grip which Moscow's agents have had on other labor organizations, and has weakened the political influence of their many candidates.

In the economic sphere prompt action on the part of the United States, and to a lesser extent, members of the British Commonwealth, has forestalled communist gains. The Marshall Plan for European recovery has been eloquent evidence that the democratic nations are prepared to ward off at any cost the economic catastrophes prepared for the world by communist leaders.

Increasing awareness of the global character of communism — highlighted by the spy trials in Canada; the investigations in the United States; the trials of atomic scientists with communist leanings in Britain and France, and the red conquest of China — has torn away the veil of secrecy so artfully draped by Soviet propaganda, so that now at least the element of surprise is no longer in the enemy's favor.

All these thrusts have been dealt separately to the member nations of the United Nations and the governing body was unable to act in each individual country without usurping some of that country's sovereignty.

But now the communists have struck at the democracies as a whole with a military campaign in Korea. True the battle itself is being waged by puppet troops but the equipment and direction has been furnished by Moscow.

The grim, cold steel of war in Korea brings the death struggle between communism and Christianity out of the realm of ideas and into the theatre of action. At the same time is confronts the United Nations with the task of proving its worth or closing shop.

Out of the Babel that has been the United Nations since its founding there must now come the strong voice of unified command sounding over the marching might of its fifty-nine member nations as they marshal to halt the communist menace to democracy. This is the test of the United Nations.

How this test will be met is not clear as yet although the fighting in Korea has been waging since June 27. The picture is not bright. Of the fifty-nine member nations, only forty-one have answered the call for aid. Of these only the United States, the members of the British Commonwealth, and Thailand, have taken any material action as yet. This can hardly be called united action. And yet if the United Nations is to continue to live its members must rally according to their means to provide for the defence of this newest breach in the armor of the world.

If this fresh communist thrust is not met and repelled with force and dispatch the communist holocaust which has been gaining strength for twenty-five years will be surely unleashed on every nation, united or not. Now is the time for the United Nations to show some union.

BOTTLE-THROWING PESTS

These dangerous pests litter roadways, sidewalks, boulevards and picnic spots with the jagged glass of liquor bottles, thus threatening the tires and the lives of other motorists and the bare feet, knees and hands of little children. Some of them have even smashed their bottles on the metal equipment of playgrounds in this city.

Their is no excuse for their drinking in cars in the first place, and even less for the thoughtless stupidity with which they further endanger the lives and limbs of others.

One could wish for some means of getting at them, before they sneak by, so that they might be sent to the Korean front to toss "Molotov cocktails" (flaming gasoline bottles) at advancing red tanks. That would be justice all around. — Edmonton Journal.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

When you enter the foyer or lobby of most of the big hospitals on this continent, you see on the walls a collection of portraits in oils of a number of dignified gentlemen whose names mean little, and usually nothing at all, to the throngs of citizens who enter and leave the hospitals.

These pictured dignitaries are the wealthy men who, in the past, endowed or helped endow the hospitals. Their portraits in the lobbies are the public acknowledgement of their generosity.

The board of governors of the hospital may keep these portraits so conspicuously hung as an inducement to other wealthy old gentlemen to kick in large bequests in the expectation that their likenesses also will hang in noble company.

But if you sit and watch the traffic in a hospital lobby, you will observe how little interest there is on the part of anybody in the portraits adorning the walls.

It is, actually, a demonstration of the complete absence of interest on the part of the average person in defunct wealth. A living rich man enjoys a certain public attention. But when he goes, even he is not any deader than the public interest in him. That is one of the comic things about worldly wealth, however, worthily acquired.

But there are men whose portraits might adorn the lobbies of hospitals and in which the passing through would take a very sharp and reverent interest. And they are the doctors of revered and beloved memory who toiled in these very hospitals. Physicians, surgeons, research men, yes, and nurses, whose personalities are identified with this hospital in terms of the days, months, years they spent here tirelessly serving.

Most of them did not die rich. Many of the greatest of them died close to penniless. But if their portraits hung there, you would see many an anxious passer-by in that lobby pause to look up at them.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WHAT'S YOUR HURRY

In that gripping description of the raising of Lazarus found in Chapter 11 of the Gospel of John Jesus says to His disciples, "Are there not twelve hours in the day?"

These are significant words. You have no doubt observed in reading the New Testament that Jesus was never flustered, excited, or in a hurry. He kept on the move from the time His ministry began until it ended, with eleven short periods of rest and relaxation indicated. And, of course, He rested every Sabbath day.

But Jesus seemed filled with the realization that His life was planned by God and that His duty was simply to address Himself to the task immediately before Him, and this would lead to something else. He was to change human history in three years. Time would be redated from His birth. Yet this stupendous human revolution, occurring in the matter of a few months, was accompanied by no sense of hurry whatsoever. It was as if Jesus said "There are twelve hours in the day; I will get everything done which needs to be done." And He did.

A generation filling 600,000 hospital beds with mental and nervous patients may well reflect on these words.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

STILL SUFFERING

Morris, Man.—The last time I saw Morris was on a cloudless day in early May from the window of an RCAF observation plane cruising a couple of thousand feet above the town.

Those of us in the plane were looking down on catastrophe, yet it was a strangely serene sight.

The empty town — the tall grain elevators, the frame buildings along the broad main st., the cars and trucks the homes and the shade trees — everything stood up to its neck and was reflected in a calm, dead sea. In a macabre way it was a beautiful sight from up there above the mud and agony.

Today I went back to the town the Red River hit hardest of all in Southern Manitoba. There was no beauty, macabre or otherwise to be seen. Only an awful lot of heartache and bitterness.

From this town of Morris emerges the unpleasant fact that the magnificent generosity of Canada in donating to the Flood Relief Fund is simply not being matched by Manitoba's coalition government. "They have failed miserably," a farmer told me. There is widespread bitterness about the vagueness and double-talk of what Premier D. L. Campbell has called, typically enough, a "reasonably generous" policy.

I talked with small businessmen and farmers today who are in despair for the future, given no positive assurance of relief, and, in many cases, destitute. I found people living in homes still open to the elements and wondering if they will be back to normal before winter comes.

I found little of the feeling of positive, all-out revival that was so noticeable and heartening during the aftermath of the Fraser River Flood.

In The City

Other writers have described the recovery of Winnipeg, itself, as impressive. So it is.

Three months ago I wouldn't have thought the city could clean up its monumental mess in less than a year. Today the casual visitor may drive for miles throughout the town and see no obvious evidence of the great flood.

If you look more closely you can find plenty of scars and in terms of missing tourists and conventions, alone, the wheat city is taking a socking.

Still on the surface, the return to normal is astonishing. In the Norwood district for example a row of 20 odd homes that had been actually built into the emergency dike are cleaned up and seem little the worse for wear. Less than three months ago I'd have wagered that they'd never be lived in again.

When I took my family for a tour of the city last night to show them the hardest hit sections of Winnipeg, I found it hard to impress them with the scenes of tragedy and drama enacted there. I drove them down near the river, only two blocks from Portage and Main, where one of the rare comic incidents of the flood occurred. A bootlegger had refused to leave his stock although his small house was flooded to the eaves and had made a valiant effort to personally consume his wares. Red Cross workers had carted him off by rowboat in a blissful coma. Now there were two men engaged in conversation on the porch. They looked up hastily as we drove by. I presumed that he too, was back at the old stand.

I mention these things because they left me unprepared for Morris. That hamlet some 140 miles to the south, had been one of the first to go under and so it seemed likely the rehabilitation would be even more complete than it was in Winnipeg.

But in Morris I found a sorry mess and a grim outlook for most of the town's 1,200 citizens.

The place looks as if it had recently been hit by a hurricane or under shelling.

At the northern entrance to Morris where you temporarily leave behind the starkly crop-empty fields, a service station building sags drunkenly, ready to fall at any moment. From that point on you see houses and buildings in various degrees of collapse.

The water was up to 16 feet in many of the houses and most of the people of Morris were evacuated for five weeks. The damage this did is almost beyond belief.

I saw one house which had been bolted to a concrete foundation. The water lifted the house and it, in turn, pulled the concrete from the ground. A small pasteurizing plant of cement brick is now simply a heap of rubble. A sturdy brick home has great gaping holes in it, for all the world as if heavy artillery had scored a direct hit.

Many of the houses are jacked-up to keep them erect. Many others—including the home of Morris' first widow of the Second World War—remain as the receding flood left them, gaunt and warped and caked with dried grey silt.

I stopped at one old mansion to inquire the way to the home of the mayor, with whom I had an appointment. An elderly woman was in the yard hoeing stubbornly at the crusted, caked soil. When we had been talking a few minutes she looked up the street with its debris and disarray.

"You mightn't believe it," she said, "but this used to be a right pretty little place."

Black-Eyed Pea Stumps Robot

Washington, Aug. 10 (AP)— A bean-sorting machine in which a television-tube "eye" picks the bad from the good is described in the reclamation bureau's magazine, Reclamation Era. The machine can scan 3,780 beans a minute, and eject any that does not conform to a normal color pattern, the magazine reported. But the so-called black-eyed pea (experts call it a bean, too) has the TV eye stumped. It can't tell the difference between a bad pea's discoloration and the distinctive black eye on a good one, the magazine said.

Edmonton, Alta. — (CP) — Steel girders didn't move as fast to the job when they were building the MacDonald Hotel here 38 years ago as they are moving today toward the hotel's 300-room extension. Joseph Smith had a hand in both jobs. Today he is moving the steel by truck from the railway yard—38 years ago he hauled all of it with horses and oxen.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE "STILL SMALL VOICE"

These are times in which we all like to read comforting messages, full of hope and confidence. I like to read books that seem to feed every part of my nature, and make me anxious to invite others to the feast.

Many years ago Christopher Morley told me about a Philadelphia writer, Logan Pearsall Smith, who wrot quaint, whimsical things which made one feel so pleasant toward the world in general. I believe his first little book was called "Trivia," and he followed this with many others—all delightful. Much of his life, especially the latter part, was spent in England, where he recently died, leaving a beautiful memory for thousands of people to carry about with them.

Commenting upon this writer, an English author said: "We reflect how calm, how scholarly, how nice is Mr. Logan Pearsall Smith: we reflect how salutary, amid the clang and sirens of our age, is this still, small voice." That's almost the whole story of this gentle, fine writer, whose words cannot soon disappear.

How sorely we need a multitude of these still, small voices, to keep us all calm and stalwart, as the world is thrown into its greatest crisis. Nothing is ever bettered by getting into a panicky mood. We need to listen to the still, small voices of our leaders, and give to them our whole support. Each of us has a part to perform. Patience and courage may travel slowly, but they go far. Never must we lose either faith or confidence!

There is that still, small voice within us all that keeps whispering hope to us, telling us not to fear. It is the voice of our better nature—our God voice. We ought to make note of the endless bravery that is illustrated so strikingly in nature, but no regrets, no complaints.

We ought to take heart, and ever keep our chins high, as we look upon the industry of nature, and the way it performs under every circumstance of change and emergency. What an inspiration to us all!

THEY CALL IT INDIGESTION

Not long ago a prominent citizen was hustled into a hospital and before long the curious public was informed that the great man was suffering from "indigestion." He stayed in the hospital quite a while thus indicating that "indigestion" must be a pretty bad ailment.

Well, let's see. Digestion is accomplished by the chemical action of several different fluids aided by muscular contraction and relaxation of the various parts of the digestive tube. The digestive tube commences in the mouth and terminates in the rectum. Most digestion, as such, takes place in the mouth, stomach and small bowel. The large bowel serves as a respository and also as a reservoir for water which is filtered from it in a pure state regardless of the situation within the bowel itself.

Presumably, in indigestion, particularly the "acute" type, there must be a failure of the various fluids, enzymes and other factors concerned in the digestive process—to form or to gain access to the food which is to be digested. Following this, presumably, pain or distress of some degree develops, sufficient in the case of prominent citizens to warrant a prolonged stay in the hospital.

All of which is all right except that it never happens. "Indigestion" is not a diagnosis. Could a person die from "indigestion,"—a real bad case? The doctor who would be stupid enough to try to sign a death certificate indicating "indigestion" as the cause of death—well, he just wouldn't do it. He knows better. It wouldn't go.

It wouldn't "go" because scientifically, there is no such thing.

"Dyspepsia" is a word often used interchangeably with "indigestion." Since pepsin is a ferment manufactured by the stomach, someone a long time ago reasoned that a lack of pepsin production would result in "indigestion" and the term "dyspepsia" seemed to cover the situation rather neatly. However, some unfeeling researchers long ago established the fact that a lack of pepsin did not figure very much in the picture of "indigestion!" As a matter of fact pepsin or any other ferment on enzyme has no established value in the scientific treatment of digestive disorders today.

When a doctor hears that someone has "indigestion" he starts to wonder what the victim actually has the matter with him. Symptoms of digestive difficulty or rather symptoms attributed to "digestive difficulty" may result from ulcers of the stomach or small intestine, gall bladder disease, pancreatic disease, heart disease, certain infections and a host of other things too long to enumerate in this limited space. The term "indigestion" is merely a vague expression of some disorder seemingly centered in the abdomen.

Thousands of persons all over the earth suffer constantly from what they choose to regard as "indigestion." This may be acute or chronic—as their desire may dictate. The mere fact that they mention the word "indigestion" indicates of itself that they do not know what is the matter with themselves.

The only way anyone can find out what actually is the matter, is to undergo an examination at the hands of a physician. In this process an X-ray examination is a "must."

If you are a person who is satisfied that "indigestion" is the answer to your trouble and that all you need is to find the right pill to take when the trouble gets really bothersome, I'm afraid that nothing I can say would influence you very much. But if you have the idea that perhaps there might be something more to it than the term "indigestion," you might write me requesting the booklet titled, "So You Have Indigestion," enclosing 25c in coin and a self-addressed, stamped envelope. If you insist upon enjoying "indigestion" it will do you no harm to know what it is.

First Quinte District Regatta Since 1937 This Saturday Draws Many Trenton, Belleville Entries

Trenton (Special) — The regatta being held at RCAF Station this Saturday will be the first time such an event has taken place on the Bay of Quinte in this district in 13 years. In 1937, at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club regatta, Astra won the Fraser Cup donated by Senator W. A. Fraser.

On Saturday, the air force entry craft will again be competing for the Fraser trophy. There are three classes of entries and several boats from Trenton and Belleville will be competing for top honors in their class.

All races start and finish in front of the seaplane hangar and the regatta gets under way at 2.30 p.m. with a briefing for the crews, and at 3 p.m. the races start. The Senator Fraser Cup will be the prize for the winner of the Class I competition and there will also be cups given to the winner and runner up in addition to the Fraser trophy. The winners of first and second position in the other two classes will also be awarded cups. There will be no handicaps in any class.

The committee in charge of the event is headed by Group Captain R. C. Hawtrey, Squadron Leader T. J. Powell, racing secretary and Squadron Leader P. G. McLaren.

Three Classes

Class I boats will include sloops cutters, yawls and schooners above 20-foot load water line. Class II is international dinghies or equivalent, and Class III will take in comets, snipes and assorted boats. The Fraser Cup race will be over a six and one-half mile course. Starting in front of the seaplane hangar, the boats will sail southwest to the mouth of the Murray Canal and then take a northerly direction toward Trenton and then back to the finish line. The other two classes will be three and one quarter mile races.

At present there are nine craft entered in the Fraser Cup race. Six are from Trenton; Group Captain Hawtrey, Senator Fraser, E. A. Simmons, Grant Rathbun, H. Boulter and A. Leland.

There are two entries from Belleville, R. D. Boyce and Elwood Wickerson and also Frank Harris of Picton.

Many Entries

Several members of the Presqu'ile Yacht Club are entered in the different classes, among them Mr. F. Huycke, Commodore of the club. There are several boats of the Airaquatic Club, RCAF Station, Trenton, entered in classes II and III, Dr. S. W. Hart, Picton will be competing in the international dinghies class along with two Belleville Sea Cadet entries a navy whaler and a navy dinghy and Mr. C. Orser, Trenton is also entered in this class.

Other feature events will be a free-for-all motor boat race but there will be no prize for the winner, and three novelty canoe races during the sail boat races. A cup will be awarded to the canoeist with the most points.

Logan's homer over the left-field fence came with Rank, Gilmour and Allan on bases. Stan Scrutton had already scored in the inning on Allan's single. "Shot" Williford was the big hitter for the Memos with two for four.

Napanee, Aug. 10. (CP)— The Picton-Napanee Central Ontario Baseball League game here last night ended in a 5-5 deadlock after seven innings but officially it was a win for Napanee since Picton turned up for the game with only eight men.

Vern Green and Vic Burtt of Napanee, were taken to Kingston General Hospital with injuries. Green, a second baseman, was badly shaken by Picton first baseman Honey as the latter was tagged out stealing.

Burt tripped over the Honey's leg going into first and sprawled head long. He is reported to have suffered a dislocated shoulder and possible fractured collar bone.

WEDDINGS

PARSONS—SEMPLE

At George Street United Church, Peterborough, where her father is minister, Miss Muriel Winnifred Semple, daughter of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. James Semple, was married on Saturday, August 5, to Mr. Orval Wass Frederick Parsons, B.A., son of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Parsons, of St. Mary's, Ont.

Dr. Semple was the officiating minister, assisted by Dr. F. B. Allnutt, of Toronto, and Dr. S. L. Osborne, principal of O.L.C., Whitby.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. W. W. Semple, of Kitchener. The bride's nephew, four-year-old Bobby, was ring bearer carrying a white square shaped satin cushion trimmed with satin cord, which was made by Mrs. Semple. The occasion was a double ring ceremony and both rings were held onto the cushion with jewelery clips.

The bride's gown was of white lace over blush slipper satin. It was styled with a high neckline with petal point collar, fitted bodice, long sleeves with points over the hands and a circular train. She wore a beaded tiara headdress which held her floor length veil of tulle illusion. Her bouquet was a cascade of white sweetpeas and stephanotis centred with an orchid.

The two bridal attendants were Miss Margaret Semple, of Toronto, sister of the bride, who was dressed in mauve lace over ivory satin, and Mrs. Reginald Edwards, of Belleville, whose gown was of turquoise lace over ivory satin. Both dresses were identical except for the colors. They had a boat neckline with matching lace stole and slight train. Both wore mittens of the same material and their headdresses were Dutch style in matching lace. They carried Colonial nosegays of white and mauve sweetpeas, centred with yellow rosebuds.

John Parsons, of St. Mary's was groomsman and John Jenner of Toronto; William Colcock, Scarboro; Duncan Campbell, of Erieau, Ont.; and John Colby, of Chatham, were ushers. The groomsman and ushers and the rings bearer wore grey flannels and navy jackets.

The bride's mother was dressed in a long gown of navy lace over taffeta with navy accessories and she wore a corsage of yellow roses. The groom's mother's gown was of grey faconne with navy accessories and she wore a corsage of pink roses.

The reception in the Sunday School room was attended by more than 100 guests. The room was decorated with cedar trees and gladioli and grass forming a garden setting.

Donald Baxter, M.P.P., of Bloomfield, Ont., was master of ceremonies. The toast to the bride was proposed by Dr. H. W. Kerfoot, of Smiths Falls.

The couple left for a motor trip, the bride wearing a pink gabardine suit with natural color accessories and a corsage of white Rubrum lilies.

Out-of-town guests were from Belleville, Smiths Falls, Perth, Toronto, St. Mary's, London, Kitchener, Brockville, Altoona, Pa., Kingston, St. Thomas and Mimico.

Women's Institute

PLAINFIELD W.I.

The August meeting of Plainfield Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Clarence Hall with an attendance of 16 adults and seven club girls.

The meeting opened with Miss Shirley Kerr at the piano. Community singing was in charge of Miss Mary Bertrand. Roll Call was well answered by naming "My Favorite Vegetable" and how to cook it. Many new and different ways of serving vegetables was learned.

Business items were few. A couple of "Thank You" cards were read.

Report on Manitoba Flood Relief up to date was $41.15. Mrs. Jack Salmon and Mrs. O. Bertrand were appointed to be in charge of the booth supplies during the playoffs this season.

Decided to put on the relief quilt to be quilted at the home of Mrs. Grant Kerr Tuesday evening August 8th.

The Girls' Club with their leaders Mrs. J. Salmon and Mrs. Violet Elliott then took charge of the meeting.

Misses Marie Reid, Shirley Kerr, Fay Rollins and Joan Kerr put on a skirt "Preparing Supper For Dad." The girls carefully choosing each vegetable used and why. When this was ready, Mrs. Salmon and Mary Bertrand demonstrated how all these vegetables can be cooked in one kettle and time set for each one to cook. When all finished each item was tastefully displayed on one dinner plate and passed around for each one to see. Much credit is due these leaders in their work with the girls, which all enjoy very much.

A vote of thanks, given by Miss Shirley Kerr to Mrs. Hall for her kindness in opening her home to them closed the meeting.

Mrs. Hall and her helpers then served refreshments.

$150,000 FIRE LOSS

No one was injured.

U.S. Armed Forces Have 22,000 Women Prepared for Duty

Washington — (AP) — The Korean crisis found 22,000 American service women —7,000 of them nurses — already in uniform backed up by an estimated 25,000 in the reserves.

The armed forces made no distinction in sex when they called for volunteers and enlistments. If a woman can fit into a specialist grade the services say she's as welcome as a man.

The Women's Army Corps (WAC), which reached a peak wartime strength of 100,000, now has more than 7,000 women in army posts throughout the world. About 1,200 are overseas.

These 7,000 girls in Khaki release about seven infantry battalions for combat duty. In addition, 4,825 WACs are training in organized reserve drills.

4,000 In Uniform

The two-year-old WAF (Women in the Air Force) has 4,000 in uniform. About 200 are overseas, mainly in Germany and Newfoundland.

They are supported by an estimated 3,300 reserves. No WAFs are assigned to flight duty, as the air force believes flying a job better left to men.

The Navy's WAVES claim an active strength of 3,000—sufficient woman-power to release enough sailors to man two battlewagons like the Missouri. About 100 of them are overseas.

In addition, more than 4,000 civilian women are members of the Navy's organized reserve, taking part in all drills except cruises.

The Korean invasion found the Marines with nearly 600 women in their ranks, most of them in Washington, none overseas. An estimated 1,900 skirt-wearing reservists—members of organized marine ground reserve units — are being called to duty along with the men.

The Coast Guard has no SPARS on active duty, but about 250 in its reserve.

Nurses—all with officers' commissions—are found wherever servicemen need medical care. The army had 3,460 on duty June 1, more than 1,000 stationed abroad. About 63,000 army nurses saw service during the Second World War, and 5,140 are standing by in the reserves. The Air Force now has its own nurse corps, 1,100 on active duty and 400 to 500 more in reserve.

More than 2,000 Navy nurses are on active duty at 153 naval stations and hospital ships. Best available estimates place the Navy reserve strength at 5,000. The navy has five women doctors on active duty, one of them aboard a hospital ship.

Another type of service open to the feminine world is the Women's Medical Specialist Corps (WMSC), made up of dieticians and physical and occupational therapists. The Army has 322 in its WMSC. 43 of them overseas, plus 456 in reserve. The Air Force WMSC has 80 active, with less than 50 in reserve.

Parallels Man's Training

The training for women joining the regular services parallels that given men. WAC enlistees between 18 and 34, are given 13 weeks' basic training at Camp Lee, Va. Among other subjects, they now get a course in weapons demonstration, designed to acquaint them with weapons lingo used in army offices.

Camp Lee WACs pack knapsacks and hike off for a week of Bivouac living. Several hundred WACs lived and worked for months under field conditions in the Second World War. The army wants its recruits to be prepared for the same duty.

The WAF takes 175 recruits a month. It sends them to Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex., for indoctrination. The fledgling WAFs don't get up in planes, but they do take aircraft recognition and plenty of physical training and drill.

The WAVES take about 160 recruits a month and send them to Boot Camp at Great Lakes, Ill., for 13 weeks. Here they attend classes and drill with the men on true co-ed fashion. They even "go to sea" for a day on Lake Michigan.

Marine women recruits, taken between 20 and 31, are sent to Parris Island, S.C., where they don the traditional forest green and scarlet Marine uniform for six weeks' boot training.

PERMITTED TO SWAP

Toronto, Aug. 10 — (CP) — Officials of Riverdale Zoo have hit on a solution to the overzealous mating habits of some of their animals. Board of Control Wednesday approved a request that the zoo be permitted to swap its surplus monkeys, deer and wolves for some "rare" animals from the Catskill Game Farm in Upper New York State.

It won't be any consolation to you the next time you buy bacon —but—in the 1800's bacon was so plentiful at one time it was sold to Mississippi steamboat captains to be used as fuel.

Bacon is especially useful as a garnish for small portions of meat or leftovers. Bacon with a single lamb chop or bacon with broiled kidneys, croquettes or even hamburgers makes these dishes more substantial and dressed up.

When buying bacon, look for fat that is white rather than yellowish. There should not be too much lean, but if there is an absence of lean, much of the bacon will simply melt away in liquid fat. Don't buy bacon which feels grainy or shows signs of excessive saltiness indicating that it is old.

If you intend to store the bacon in your refrigerator for any length of time, buy a piece of the whole slab. If you intend to use it within a few days, buy it sliced.

Club style hamburgers are made with bacon wrapped around each portion of meat. In order to have the hamburgers keep their shape, it is best to prepare them for cooking, then place them in the refrigerator to get very cold before broiling.

Club Hamburgers, Smothered Onions

Order 1 pound of beef for grinding and a small piece of marrow, weighing about 2 or 3 ounces, cut from a marrow bone. Force marrow and meat through food chopper once, using a coarse blade in the chopper.

Break meat apart with the fingers. Sprinkle the following over the meat: 1 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons grated onion, 2 tablespoons bread crumbs, 2 tablespoons water and 1 tablespoon catsup.

Mix meat lightly. Don't overmix the meat or it will become too tightly packed and tough.

Form meat into 4 hamburgers. Wrap a piece of bacon around the side of each hamburger. Fasten bacon with toothpicks.

Place hamburgers in refrigerator until needed. Preheat broiler for 10 minutes. Broil hamburgers on one side until brown. Season browned side. Turn and cook other side until brown. Season. If bacon browns too rapidly, lower broiler shelf.

To make smothered onions: Cut enough Spanish onions to fill 3 cups. Place in a saucepan with 3 tablespoons fat. Sprinkle with salt. Cook over a low flame, keeping the pan covered, until onions are tender. Stir frequently. Add 2 tablespoons dry red wine, 1 teaspoon meat extract and 1-4 teaspoon worcestershire sauce. Mix well.

BABY'S CRY IS NOT ALWAYS TEMPER

DISTINGUISH between your baby's cry of pain and cry of temper. The "pain cry" should have instant attention. For the feverish distress due to gas on stomach or bowels or those common digestive upsets, give Baby's Own Tablets at once. Mrs. May Mundy, of Toronto, finds they work every time.

"I am the mother of nine children, three of them prize babies, and Baby's Own Tablets have been my only medicine in raising them to the healthy children they now are. As soon as my children became a little feverish I at once gave them Baby's Own Tablets and in a very short time the fever disappeared and the children were normal again."

Quickly effective. Sweet-tasting — easily crushed to a powder, if desired. No "sleepy" stuff — no dulling effect. Get a package today. Sickness often strikes in the night. 29 cents. Money back if you are not satisfied.

Engagement broken . . gifts returned. . .note explaining

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My dearest friend, who was to be married within two weeks from now, has just broken her engagement. Her wish is to return all gifts given her for her bridal showers and also the many wedding gifts which had already been sent to her. She has asked me to ask you what you think about this, and just how to go about this matter. Thank you for your advice.

A. A.

I am sorry, very sorry, that this shadow has come to your friend's life. . . but I am proud of her for meeting this so-difficult situation straightforwardly and deciding to lift the shadow as much as possible by removing from her life the things that would be symbolic of the engagement that no longer exists. This is a healthy way to do, makes sense, is constructive.

With each gift to be returned, she might write a note worded somewhat like this:

Dear Sallie:

You were kind and generous, as always, to give me such a beautiful shower (or 'wedding') present and I thank you deeply for your goodness. But now, since Bill and I have broken our engagement, by mutual consent, please understand my returning to you the present which was for the engagement that now no longer exists (or 'for the wedding which is not to take place'). You were so thoughtful. . .the crystal centrepiece you chose is so very handsome . . and I thank you again for your friendliness and for the memory I have of your dear thought for

Your devoted friend,
Ruth

Giving a present of food

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Last week we went to the summer cottage of friends of ours; they were very friendly and cordial, and invited us to come over again for some weekend, staying over one or two nights. When we do go I would like to show them my appreciation by bringing a present, preferably something in the line of food. Please, what would you suggest?

Mrs. E. A.

Choose a food or foods that are gaily and attractively packaged so that they give a present-y appearance, albeit most practical. For example, there are now most attractive cans of cooked chickens and other fowls. . . look very gourmet-ish; hams, too, in tins of various sizes and looking very appealing. Or you might take an assortment of tins of sandwich-fillings, minced ham, minced chicken, sardines, tuna-fish, various spreads. Or tins or packages of various kinds of crackers; sweet, bland, salted. Or, usually very welcome to a hostess, various salad dressing ingredients; olive oil, French or Italian, several kinds of vinegar; one or two kinds of mustard; a collection of various kinds of herbs. Or a collection of jars of jams and jellies now very delightfully packaged. Or a combination of jellies and a box of candy and a box of nuts. An attractive and practical idea is to buy a good-looking, colorful container for your food-present, and present it with a merry comment, "Here's for your next picnic, Janet.

Fashion Flashes

COOL AND SMART for city wear during the hot weather is a dress of black pique. The dress is sleeveless. A big fichu collar, marked by bands of delicate cutout work, covers the upper arm. Black patent leather belt.

THREE CHEERS and a tiger for the full length coat of crisp cotton, nice for town or country. Red and white checked cotton makes a nice looking coat with mandarin neckline, white cotton braid frog fastenings and white cotton banding on its easy three-quarters sleeeves.

PACK AWAY a couple of fantasy veils if you anticipate any late afternoon or evening city festivities or activities while on a holiday. Heavy mesh veiling, sprinkled with tiny rhinestones and tied with velvet, looks pretty, is festive, and keeps the hair neat.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

New freedom is always exciting

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young fellow of 18, and in love with a wonderful girl with whom I have been going for about a year. We love each other very much, but her folks are very strict and we never have been allowed to go out together alone, although we may see each other as often as we wish at her home.

Recently, however, she has been allowed to take part in a few social activities, and ever since then it seems as though she doesn't even like me. I have now come to the conclusion that the only reason she ever thought she loved me was because I was the only boy with whom she was allowed to go at the time. I hope you will disagree with me.

G. N.

Dear G.N.:

I can see that you are a very thoughtful young man with a good deal of common sense and insight. You say you hope I will disagree in the idea you have about this girl, but I am afraid that, on the contrary, I am inclined to believe that you have formed a very shrewd opinion in the case.

It is perfectly natural that a girl who has never been allowed to go around normally with boys of her own age should become greatly attached to the only one with whom she was permitted to associate. Now that she is getting her first taste of social life, and becoming acquainted with other young people, it is also only natural that she should be intrigued with her new acquaintances.

The smart thing for you to do is to let her go her own way for awhile and have just as much fun as she can. As the novelty of all these new associations wears off, it is entirely possible that she may remember how happy she was with you as her friend, and resume her friendship with you on the old basis.

Her son's children suffer from neglect

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have a married son who has two girls and a boy, 10, 8 and 5 years old respectively. His wife is out all the time at the movies, leaving the children with her mother, who doesn't care what they do or where they go. They go to school looking like pigs, and now that it's vacation, it is worse.

Do you think these children would be better off in a Home, as my son doesn't take any interest in anything that either his wife or the children do?

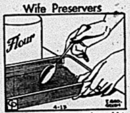
Dear D. G.:

It certainly seems as though these three children would get better care in a Home, and since you are the grandmother on the other side of the family, you have a right to protest the neglect of your grandchildren.

If neither your son nor his wife will listen to you, then I think you might well consult a social agency about the situation, and see what can be done. Perhaps you could get them put in your charge, as the only relative who seems to be at all interested in their welfare.

If you wish to take the matter up with the proper authorities, let me know, and I will be glad to tell you where to make inquiries.

Wife Preservers



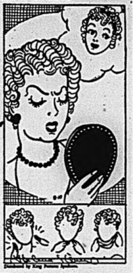
If your gravies have a top layer of fat when thickened, you are using too large a proportion of fat to flour. Use equal amounts of the fat and flour for gravy.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Molding two chins into one

One chin is all any woman needs or has any use for. When a spare appears a woman is inclined to accept the fact that she no longer has that enticing "little girl" look of which she once was proud. She hates that droopy pouch. That it is her own fault only makes matters worse. If she had attended to her diet when the scales first reported those extra ten pounds her profile would still be attractive.



Distributed by King Features Syndicate.

Fat cells don't care where they reside. They may appear any place on the body; let the face remain as is, they can show up first of all south of the jaw line. They aren't wanted, wherever they are. In excess, they are a health menace. Insurance companies do not consider the heavyweight a good risk. Overweight slows one up; the muscles do not get sufficient exercise, youthful lines depart.

Expert facial operators are able to take up the tissue slack that causes the secondary chin. But few of the cash customers are willing to submit to treatments long enough for much to be accomplished. A woman, working on her own can do better. That is, if she perseveres, doesn't lose interest.

If this is your good looks sorrow, make it a practice every night of your life to give battle to it.

Go to a cosmetic counter, purchase a cream of heavy consistency that will offer resistance to the manipulations of the fingers. At the same time buy a bottle of skin tonic or astringent and a chin strap.

Bathe your face with soap and warm water, rinse with warm water, dry with gentle pats. Apply the cream to the neck, doing up and down strokes, then cover the entire facial area.

Placing the fingertips of both hands under the point of the normal chin, press gently toward the ear lobes. Give at least a dozen strokes. Then start on a project of annihilation on the under pouch. Pick up the flesh and roll it between your fingers, using both hands, working outward toward the sides.

During this treatment the muscles must be relaxed. When they are tense, massage is not effective. Keep your head level. The pinching movement will dissolve fat cells, if continued night after night.

While the cream remains on, moisten a piece of gauze with the astringent which should be ice cold. Adjust the chin strap, say your prayers, and go to bed.

In the morning, bathe your face with ice cold water. Wrap a towel around your hands, start patting the neck and continue up to and over your forehead.

ew Jet Fighter Completes Tests uccessfully

Montreal, Aug. 10—(CP)—Can-a's new F-86 sabre jet fighter lane successfully completed its rst flight tests at Dorval airport ere yesterday before Defence inister Claxton and top-ranking ustralian and Canadian air force fficials.

The sleek, stubby-winged plane, e first of 100 ordered by the .C.A.F. for interceptor fighter quadrons, was built by Canadair td. of Montreal. Test pilot for e flight was Capt. A. J. Lilly of ontreal, chief test pilot for Can-adair and veteran of 13 years of ommercial and test flying.

Taking off at 9.55 a.m. EDT the ane circled the airfield at low vel before climbing almost ver-cally to 20,000 feet for perform-nce tests. After 15 minutes, of anking, turning and diving, it lided back to the airstrip for fur-her checks before being handed ver to the R.C.A.F.

The test was made under near-erfect flying conditions and was ronounced a complete success by est pilot Lilly.

"She handled like a dream," he aid. "My only trouble was with y ears popping when she climb-d. That's a lot of airplane."

Following the test flight of the -86, Canada's twin-engine jet ghter, the CF-100 "Canuck," ave a demonstration. The angular lane, painted a shiny black with lver trim was flown here from oronto Tuesday.

Vacation Resort For Cart-Horses

Copenhagen—(CP)— Denmark, which has a reputation as a tourist centre and a vacation land, now has a resort with a difference.

It consists mainly of a large shelter and a wide pasture. The host is a veterinary surgeon and the guests are cart-horses.

The "hotel" was established by an animal welfare association to give the hay-burners a much-needed holiday in the fresh air. The idea was born last summer after considerable publicity was given the story of a Copenhagen carter who was given permission by his employers to take his horse with him into the country on his summer holiday.

Hippopathologists (horse experts) agreed with the carter that city horses need a holiday in the country. Their main ailment is sore feet and a week or so in the grassy meadows can work wonders.

Normal stay at the "hotel" is two weeks. They are weighed on arrival and departure and their health is closely checked by the resident "physician". Their shoes are left outside the main door, as in most hotels, but here it is to prevent them from hurting other "guests" when kicking up their heels. There is also a special wing for tempermental individuals.

Main ingredient is plain grass, but extra vitamins are included.

Dinner Jackets In Powder-Blue

Montreal—(CP)—A few years ago, a man wouldn't be found dead wearing a powder-blue dinner jacket, or a maroon or scarlet one. But times change, and so do men's fashions.

When the white, shawl-collar, double-breasted summer formal jacket made its first appearance some years ago, people scoffed. But the idea caught on.

Today, according to Emile Regal, chairman of the Board of the Montreal Clothing Designers' Club, the powder-blue jacket with tropical cloth trousers in navy blue and a navy tie is not only acceptable, but has become popular.

The maroon, or wine, jacket with navy trousers and a maroon bow, as well as the navy blue jacket and grey flannel trousers, are adding color to summer functions. Comfort is added by the lightweight tropical cloths.

Although the male trend to color appears to be a comparatively new and bold departure from the traditional black, Regal says that, like most fashions, this one is a throwback to a century-old fashion when men wore scarlet and blue tailcoats with gold trim and matching toppers.

He doesn't think we'll get back to that, but he does see a general swing toward more colorful garb.

MINERS MOURN ANTI-LEOPOLD CASUALTY

Fellow workmen in miners' garb carry the coffin of one of three men shot during anti-Leopold riots in Belgium. On the left, a mourner stands to give the clench-fist communist salute as the funeral procession passed by. About 200,000 sympathizers attended the funeral. — Central Press Canadian.

Kenora, Ont. — (CP) — The vacationer's idea of Lake of the Wods in northwestern Ontario is a vast, island-dotted abode of some of Canada's largest and fightingst game fish.

On the lake and along its shores federal status of every description are open to violation. That acounts for the presence of the MP-90, a smartly-kept 30-foot R.C.M.P. patrol boat, and her two-man crew.

Their job is to patrol more than 1,500 square miles of bush-bordered water, broken up by thousands of weirdly-shaped islands, scarred by rock reefs, prone to sudden squalls and high waves.

Shared with Minnesota, Lake of the Woods is a perennial playground for thousands of United States and Canadian tourists who move back and forth across the boundry in planes and boats.

With them into Canada come the complexities of travel permits, monetary exchange and customs regulations, all of interest to the Federal Government.

From the Rainy River at the United States end of Kenora at the Lake's north end, the two R.C.M.P. officers patrol their watery beat. Manned by a specially-trained, boat-wise seaman-constable, the MP-905 also carries Kenora detachment's corporal.

..Weeks-Long Cruises

The MP-905 is fitted with two bunks, a small galley, a washroom and adequate water and gasoline tanks. She is equipped for off-shore duty for a period of weeks.

The crew visits numerous camps during the tourist season. In lodges and fishing camps near the border, tourists who fail to report at Canadian entry ports are occasionally apprehended.

With lake waters abnormally high this year, the policemen watch for speeding boats close inshore. Waves from fast-moving craft causes considerable property damage in high-water areas.

Oddest of all MP-90's duties this summer, her skipper says, is the removal of floating islands from navigable sections of the lake. The islands are huge lumps of floating muskeg, cast adrift from remote banks. MP-90 tows them to shore.

Smuggling and the more serious breaches of federal law are more commonly encountered in the lake's southern extremities, the corporal said.

MP-90's yearly job is finished when the last visitor departs and thin sheets of ice start spreading over the lake. Hauled out of water for the winter, the boat is prepared for the following spring.

SUSPENDS AUDIENCES

Vatican City, Aug. 10 — (Reuters) — Pope Pius will suspend all private audiences during the second half of August while he rests at his summer palace at Castel Gandolfo, the Vatican announced Wednesday.

Audiences will stop between Aug. 13 and Sept. 1, but the Pope will continue to give public audiences in St. Peter's Basilica where, twice a week, he receives up to 50,000 Ho ly-yailregu up to 50,000 Holy-year pilgrims from all over the world.

Russ Parachutists Carried Upward In Air Current

By EDDY GILMORE

Moscow, Aug. 10 — (AP) — The Russian press told Wednesday of two parachutists who jumped up instead of down.

Three jumpers were up in a plane near Minsk. They leaped when the plane was at 2,500 feet.

One sailed slowly down for a normal landing. The other two shot straight up — caught in a huge, upward-moving air current.

The plane followed them into the clouds as they rose to 4,300 feet. One chutist finally came down after 40 minutes. The other was up two hours and landed almost nine miles from his starting point.

His greatest danger, he told the government newspaper Izvestia, came from his chute icing up. He had to keep shaking the straps to get rid of the ice.

Buffalo Still Roam Australian Plains

Sydney, Australia — (CP) — Buffalo hunting, a long dead livelihood on the American plains, is still big business in Australia.

Eric Clissold, who retired from the job a few months ago because his wife thought it too dangerous, says he used to earn nearly $14,000 a year shooting buffalo on the Marrakai Plains, in the northern territory.

He and another hunter used to shoot from 3,000 to 4,000 a year, at from £4 to £5 a hide.

Before the war, Clissold was a farmer who had never shot anything larger than a rabbit. Then in 1939, he teamed up with another hunter and found he was a born rifle shot.

"You use a cut-down .303 and trained horses," he said. "You ride in behind the herd and shoot the bulls near the end of the spine paralyzing them."

"When the run is finished, you go back and kill the sitting bulls.

"If you miss the first time and just wound the bull, he'll turn on you, and that isn't too pleasant."

In 1949, the 35-year-old hunter came to Sidney for a holiday and met the present Mrs. Clissold.

Now he is a retired buffalo hunter.

SOMETHING NEW IN HOME HEATING

This heat accumulator, 140, feet high, marks a revolution in the heating system of London, Eng., The circular tower, a glass-enclosed steel storage cylinder, will use exhaust heat pumped from the huge Battersea power station, on the Thames to give warmth and hot water to the new apartment dwellings. Engineers estimate the system will provide central heating for 10,000 people more cheaply than conventional heating systems. — Central Press Canadian.

Londoner's Roses Win Toronto Show

London — (CP) — It cost Norman Rodgers £4 ($12.40) and 14 gallons of gas to send flowers to Canada, but it was worth it.

Rogers, 75, was informed that his airborne roses won two firsts and a third at a Toronto flower show.

He paid £4 to send the 18 blooms by air, plus the gas to get them to the airport. He also had to complete four invoices and two certificates to keep the Bank of England happy.

"They also wanted a certificate of health—for the roses, not for me—but it would have taken too long. Anyway, they were apparently pretty healthy specimens."

Labor Leaders Protest Gregg As Minister

Windsor, Aug. 10 — (CP)—Appointment of Hon. Milton F. Gregg as Federal Labor Minister has been protested by leaders of the United Automobile Workers (C. I. O.) in Windsor.

In a telegram to Prime Minister St. Laurent, George Burt, Canadian U. A. W. director, said "Mr. Gregg's background in labor matters is completely lacking."

The telegram said there are "a number of outstanding Liberal members who are better qualified" and added that Mr. Gregg's qualifications in other fields are "indisputable."

A public statement by Mr. Burt and three other U. A. W. leaders here said that David Croll, Liberal member for Toronto Spadina, or Health Minister Martin would be "much more qualified by their experience."

It was signed by Mr. Burt, and supported by presidents of the big U. A. W. Windsor locals — Earl Watson of Local 195, Roy England of Local 200 and Webster Cornwall, president of Local 240.

Mr. Gregg previously held the veterans' affairs portfolio.

Pre-Operative Tests Made on Siamese Twins

Melbourne, Aug. 9 (Reuters)—Doctors trying to separate Siamese twin girls born in April have taken a minute sample of their brain matter in a skull operation to determine whether they can be safely parted.

The babies, joined by the tops of their heads, weigh about 14 pounds each. They have been under medical observation since birth.

The twins' father, Erskine Smith of Natone, Tasmania, was told last month that it would take two months of examinations before an attempt could be made to separate them. Surgeons would have to cut through bony structure close to the brain of each child.

The babies, named Kathleen Rose and Lexie Irene, have been bottle-fed on much the same diet as their mother used for her other five children.

They have separate personalities. Kathleen Rose is darker and livelier than Lexie Irene.

Longhand Quicker Than Typewriting for Korean Clerks

By PAUL SETT

New York — (AP) — The Korean language is the only one in the world which has to be typed horizontally and read vertically.

There are Chinese and Japanese typewriters which type those languages both horizontally and vertically. But the only Korean keyboard developed so far insists you type across the page, from right to left, although you read its words up and down.

This information comes from Martin K. Tytell, a 36-year-old New Yorker who can tear apart a typewriter and make it perform in any one of 147 languages and dialects, including Dinka, Sanskrit and Urdu. He has more than 2,000,900 foreign type faces in his shop, and, if you coax him, he'll whip you up a Korean job. But he doesn't recommend it.

"After you get through making one," he complains, "nobody knows how to use it. It'd probably be much faster to write the language in longhand."

Only Half Dozen Made

Tytell guesses there aren't more than a half a dozen Korean typewriters in the world. He made one for the army in 1944. He's glad he never had to use it.

The Chinese language is complicated enough. But Korean uses Chinese ideographic characters, plus a native character called "enmun," plus a combination of the two. Some years ago, Tytell says, a Korean scholar named Dr. Song devised a keyboard which employs, among other things, 42 dead keys. That is, you hit one of them and the carriage doesn't move. In some cases, you have to hit eight or 10 different keys to form one character.

"By the time you get a secretary to learn this, even a Korean secretary," says Tytell, "she'll up and leave you and get married."

Language Differences

You learn a lot about language differences talking to Tytell.

It didn't surprise me to discover how difficult it is to convert an American typewriter to Persian or Arabic since they require different symbols which have to be joined together and written backwards, from right to left. And I wasn't surprised to learn that Siamese is "very beautiful to look at but you can't tell when it's upside down." Once, unknowingly, Tytell made a Siamese keyboard inverted; he couldn't tell the difference.

Many Differences

What did surprise me was that which have the same Latin alphabet in common have so many differences. English and American typewriters differ. It's not just a case of pounds versus dollars. On most of our keyboards, we have just two fractions — the quarter and half. The British have one-eighth, three-eighths, five-eighths and seven-eighths.

A Portuguese keyboard used in Brazil is like an American keyboard except that it has eight type changes and two dead keys used for accents. A Portuguese keyboard in Portugal has 42 type changes.

If somebody asks Tytell for a French typewriter, he has to ask, "French for France or French for the United States?"

In France, the A, Q, W, Z and M are in different positions than they are here. On the top row, you have to shift for the numerals because the acent marks are on the botton of the keys. In this country, a French keyboard is made by renovating the fractions, the commercial "at" and the cents signs and subsituting the grave, acute, circumflex and cedilla symbols.

And then there are the Spanish keyboards. There's the - - - Oh, the heck with it, maybe you have something in the oven.

Magnetic storms are generally ascribed to the passage of earth through vast streams of ions or electrified particles that have been expelled from the sun's surface during a solunar explosion.

Other guests included Frank Follwell, M.P. Hastings South; Elmer Sandercock, M.L.A., Hastings East; Mr. Ken Griffiths, president, Rotary Club; R. A Pringle, city solicitor; Mayor Jack Allin, of Belleville; Arthur McFarland, of the H. J. McFarland Construction Company; Mr. Henry Becker, city Parks Board chairman, and others.

Bleachers Packed

The opening ceremonies took place on a raised dais in front of the new bleachers on the softball diamond. Giving a touch of appropriate color were passenger and freight trains that roared past intermittently during the addresses and other phases of the program. Several hundred children and grown-ups packed the bleachers and baselines of the diamond. Softball games between a pair of CNR "Pee-Wee" teams, and the Stewart-Warner team and a CNR All-Star squad, music, clowns and comedy and a buffet lunch held in Kiwanis Centre at six o'clock, rounded out the program.

A personal letter from Mr. Donald Gordon president of the Canadian National Railways, expressing his regrets at being unable to be present was received by the CNRAA executive. Mr. Gordon, however, forwarded his congratulations and best wishes for success.

Mr. George Foster, CNRAA president, one of the prime movers of the recreation park welcomed his guests." The idea of a recreation park came into being two years ago," he said, "and one year ago actual work was started. In a short time what was a bog has been transformed into the present modern playgrounds and recreation park."

Expresses Appreciation

He expressed his association's appreciation of the efforts of the City Council and others and paid special tribute to the McFarland Construction Company whose bill he said, "was reduced from $1,500 to about $300."

"There has been a definite need of parks in the city for years," Mayor Allin said in a brief address. "This year," he went on, "thanks to combined efforts a number of playgrounds have sprung into being in the city with no additional burden on the taxpayer."

He congratulated the CNRAA and especially President George Foster and Allan Meagher for their untiring efforts in regard to the new park.

Tribute Paid Executive

Tribute to the executive and members of the CNRAA was also paid by Frank Follwell, M.P. He said the spirit of service and co-operation, the motto of the CNR, brought the playgrounds and park into being.

"The CNR," he said, "was the backbone of the industrial life of the city, and one of its most dependable industries. When the railroad is busy everybody is busy," he said.

Elmer Sandercock, MLA, added his congratulations. "Belleville is proud of its children," he said, "and they deserve the best."

"The men who made this park possible are justifiably proud of their efforts as are all citizens of Belleville."

He paid tribute to the McFarland Company for their generous contribution to the CNRAA.

Mr. Menary, chairman of the ceremonies introduced the various speakers and interspersed his introduction with some delightful pieces of humor.

Varied Program

Features of the function from an entertainment point of view were the clever Grant Family:—Billy and Mrs. Grant and Miss Helen Grant, who offered several selections on piano and xylophones. Gail and Gary Tremaine, pupils of Barbara Diment offered song and dance selections and Harold Foote, clown extraordinary offered several humorous stories and imitations.

In a brief post-entertainment address, Arthur McFarland told the assembled crowd that his company was glad to be able to help such a worthy cause and in the future he hoped to be able to do more for Belleville and its children.

Another feature of the ceremonies was the presentation of gifts to Clem Bowler and Harold Foote, members of the CNRAA, who have devoted much of their time to the children's playground. It was divulged that Mr. Foote spent his annual vacation working on the grounds and tangible appreciation of this was shown in the gifts presented by Lorne Bradshaw on behalf of the children. The recipients made suitable replies of appreciation with Mr. Foote saying that "If I have saved one child's life, I have been well repaid for my efforts."

Delicious Luncheon

A delicious buffet luncheon was served to out-of-town guests and others at the Kiwanis Centre at six o'clock. Members of the "Bowler" group of the CNRAA Ladies Auxiliary under Mrs. Harry Boyle supervised the repast. Brief congratulatory addresses were given by Mr. Becker, Mr. Pringle, Mr. Martin, Toronto and Mr. Wilson of St. Thomas, with Mr. Shea entertaining with humorous anecdotes.

Officials of the CNRAA are— Honorary president, A. M. Shea; honorary vice president, W. J. Rupert; president, G. F. Foster; past president, A. G. Meagher; first vice president, H. Drury; second vice president, H. H. Hall; treasurer, H. Robbins; secretary, W. G. Parry; assistant secretary C. E. Finnegan; finance chairman, A. G. Meagher; property chairman, G. F. BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, AUGUST 10, 1950.

Washington, Aug. 10—(CP)—The U.S. Senate Wednesday unanimously ratified and put into effect a 50-year treaty between Canada and the United States to increase the output of power from the Niagara River and safeguard the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls. Under the treaty Ontario and New York State will benefit from the additional power.

Senate ratification, which came on a unanimous voice vote, completed the U.S. action on the treaty. Canada already had done so several weeks ago.

The treaty, calls for fixed minimum flow of water at all seasons and for engineering measures to prevent the coastline from breaking away and flattening out the walls, and to distribute the water evenly. All remaining water may be diverted for power purposes and shared equally by the two countries.

In Ottawa, L. B. Pearson, Canada's external affairs minister, said he was "very pleased" with the Senate's action. "It will enable work to proceed which will be of benefit to both countries," he said.

Senator Joseph Ives (Rep. N.Y.) hailed the treaty in a Senate speech as "an inspiring example of how two friendly countries can solve their common problems."

Senator Herbert H. Lehman (Dem. Lib. N.Y.) called it a wise step by both countries that assures protection of the scenic beauty of Niagara Falls and opens the way for development of "greatly needed additional water power."

No Reduction of Flow

To preserve enough water for scenic purposes the treaty provides that no diversion shall be made for power purposes which will reduce the flow over the falls to less than 100,000 cubic feet a second each day between 8 a.m. and 10 p.m., from April 1 to Sept. 15.

A similar flow must be maintained between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. from Sept. 16 to Oct. 31. At all other times, the flow may be dropped to 50,000 cubic feet a second except when additional water is needed for flushing ice above the falls or through the rapids below.

The treaty allows Canada to divert 49,000 cubic feet of water a second from the river. The U.S. will be allowed to divert 32,500 cubic feet a second. In addition, Canada gets 5,000 cubic feet through drainage into the Great Lakes.

New Power Facilities

The additional water available will make possible the construction of new power facilities at Queenston, Ont.,—present site of the Ontario Hydro Commission's largest plant. Water will be taken, via canal or tunnel, from above the falls to Queenston, five miles downstream, for use in the 310-foot drop there.

Cost of the Ontario Commission's new projects is put at from $150,000,000 to $200,000,000. About twice that amount of money could be spent on the American side of the river in developing more power.

The first power treaty signed between the two countries in 1909 provided for 56,000 cubic feet a second diversion—3,000 cubic feet for Canada and 20,000 for the United States.

Wartime Pact Out

The wartime agreement stepped up the diversion of 86,000 cubic feet, 54,000 for Canada and 32,000 for the United States. At least 8,000 cubic feet of Canada's share went to a Canadian company which sold all its power in the

That wartime pact ends April 15, United States.
1951. The present treaty consolidated gains made in the wartime pact and adds still greater diversion.

Canada's federal government turned over to Ontario its power rights in the Niagara River last March 27. That enabled the provincial government to have the Hydro Commission prepare for the new development.

Bombers Pound North Korea's Rail And Oil Centres

Tokyo, Aug. 10. (AP)—Seventy B-29 Bombers from Japan and Okinawa bases pounded North Korea's rail and oil centre of Wonsan today with the war's most powerful air strike.

Waves of B-29s bombed visually in their mass raids on the Wonsan railroad centre and switching yard, railroad repair shops and the big Chosen (Korean) oil refinery.

The most spectacular damage was at Chosen. A tail gunner on the last B-29 in the second wave that hit Wonsan said the smoke column "pushed up even above our altitude which was more than 15,000 feet."

He could see the column of black smoke when his plane was more than 100 miles from the target.

The third wave had trouble locating their aiming points because of the greasy black pall of smoke over the target.

More than 400 tons of bombs were dropped on three separate Wonsan targets and more than 200 tons were unleashed against other strategic targets in the communist transportation net work north of Parallel 38.

Extensive Damage

Early reports on the record total of 625 tons points to "extensive damage done to the communist war potential," the Far East Air Forces Command announced.

The B-29 returned to the refinery target because previous strikes had failed to knock it out.

The previous high B-29 bomb drop on North Korean targets was 500 tons of bombs. Allied Bombers and Fighters today hit a wide range of military objectives including rail yards, bridges and communications.

American strikes also were made in support of ground action along the 140-mile fighting front.

More Than Enough Men to go Round Bureau Discloses

Ottawa, Aug. 10 (CP) —Girls, it looks as though the time has arrived when you can afford to look over the field before snapping up the first proposal of marriage.

There now are more than enough men to go around, the Bureau of Statistics disclosed Wednesday. It estimated that at June 1 there were 7,030,000 males in Canada compared with 6,790,700 females.

And, the report added, males in most age groups under 80 were greater than the number of females. From 80 upwards there were 88,000 females to 80,500 males.

This was the third successive year that the male population showed a gain over the female population. Prior to 1948, the female population was gaining on the male. The excess of males over females dropped each year from 291,700 at the time of the 1941 census to 222,800 in 1947.

Power Project On Niagara River Starts at Once

Toronto, Aug. 10 (CP)—Construction will start almost at once and a new project to harness the Niagara River and give Ontario an additional 900,000 horsepower of electrical energy.

In the wake of ratification of a Canada-United States treaty by the U.S. Senate yesterday, Ontario officials said work on the $200,000,000 project can begin almost immediately.

By 1953, 200,000 horsepower may be taken from the river. The completed project should handle any new power needs for Ontario until 1956.

Robert H. Saunders, chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, said ratification of the treaty couldn't have come at a better time.

Big Force Ready

The commission had a big labor force coming off such recently-completed developments as the Des Joachims project, on the Ottawa River. The men could be swung immediately onto the new Niagara project .

The treaty provides for additional diversion of water from the river. It was passed by parliament June 14. Negotiations began 2½ years ago.

On the Canadian side, it will mean cutting a new canal from above the Falls to the Queenston area. When completed, the project will double the present power output from the Niagara area.

May Triple Output

On the U.S. side, rebuilding of existing plants may triple the power output.

Mr. Saunders said present power developments in Ontario can cope with anticipated needs until 1953. By then, some power will be available from the new Niagara developments. There will be no additional problems until 1958.

The answer to that problem would lie in the St. Lawrence waterway scheme, now held by the U.S. congress. If work on the waterway could begin in 1951 or 1952, Mr. Saunders said, it could be producing power by 1958.

Seven Injured In Car Collision Near Windsor

Windsor, Ont., Aug. 10 (CP)—Seven persons were injured, at least one of them seriously, in a collision between a truck and an auto nine miles southeast of Windsor Wednesday night. Five persons are in hospital here and two others were released after treatment.

Hospital attendants said the most seriously injured is Patrick Harrington, 79, who lives on a farm at McGregor, near the scene of the crash.

Also in hospital are Harvey Harrington, 34, his two children, Wayne, five, and Charlene, eight and his niece, Mary Lynn Soper, five, of Sarnia. His wife, Mrs. Erma Harrington, 29, and Robert H. McKenzie, 43, of Windsor, were released after treatment.

All suffered lacerations and shock in the collision. Police said both vehicles were wrecked.

The Harrington family, with the Soper girl, were in the automobile. McKenzie was alone in the truck.

Truman Signs Dingell Bill, Helps Anglers

Washington, Aug. 10 (AP) — Wildlife authorities welcomed the final enactment of the Dingell bill today as the best news in years for American fishing enthusiasts.

The bill, jointly sponsored by Representative John Dingell (Dem. Mich.) and Senator Edwin Johnson (Dem. Colo.), earmarks revenue from the federal 10 per cent tax on sale of sports fishing tackle.

Such revenue, estimated at from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 a year, will go back to the States to help them restore and expand game fish resources. President Truman signed the bill into law yesterday.

SITUATION CRITICAL

Dresden, Aug. 10 — (CP) — Residents of this Western Ontario town have been urged to help conserve dwindling water supplies. The water situation is described as critical and drilling operations have failed to discover new sources of water. Dresden now receives its water from artesian wells and in recent weeks the level has been dropping.

Job, Seniority Waiting for Men When They Return

Toronto, Aug. 10 (CP) —Any Toronto Civic employee who joins Canada's new army brigade for United Nations service will have his job and seniority waiting for him when he gets back, Mayor Hiram McCallum said Wednesday night.

Earlier, board of control decided civic employees who enlist would be guaranteed re-employment if they could show the army needed them. A few hours later, Mayor McCallum issued a statement which he said clarified the board's stand.

He said the city administration was disturbed by the need for civil defence in the Toronto area.

"In the case of an emergency our police force, our firefighters, and men experienced in sewage disposal and water supply and in health protection would be our first line of defence.

"These men may be more needed here than abroad, and it was for this reason that the board decided to review each individual application on the basis of discussing these points with the applicant."

The mayor had told the board that the government's request for 5,000 men is not general mobilization. The city would adhere to any regulations approved by the Federal Government, however.

BATS IN BELFRY

Lethbridge, Alta. — (CP) —The old saying about "bats in the belfry" came to life here recently. Roofing contractor Reg. Jones found 24 young bats in a chimney he was repairing. He returned next day and found 18 more.

Three Arrested In Barn Near Stratford

Stratford, Aug. 10 —(CP) — Three men wanted for a $1,300 robbery at a drygoods store in Bonfield, Ont., were arrested Wednesday in a barn at Monkton, 20 miles north of here.

The trio, all from North Bay, were jailed here and held for questioning. Police identified them as George Bissonnette, George Letiem and Joseph Lamure. Their arrest followed discovery near Monkton of part of the Bonfield loot.

Police said three men drove into Kenneth Golightly's garage in Monkton late Tuesday night and tried to steal gasoline. Awakened by their noise, Golightly fired several shots from a revolver. The trio abandoned the car and fled.

Advanced Plan Of Conservation In the Offing

Shetland, Ont., Aug. 10 (CP)—A three-level government partnership to implement "the most advanced plan of conservation America has ever seen" is in the offing, Premier Leslie Frost of Ontario said here Wednesday night.

"I am satisfied we are about to enter into partnership of federal, provincial and municipal governments," the Premier told the 46th annual Shetland picnic.

Premier Frost said the province has been working with the municipalities and the federal government on conservation plans since a special conservation committee of the Ontario House reported on the state of the province's resources.

"We will make our rivers sources of pleasure and prosperity instead of ditches," he said.

RAWDON

Pastor Visits His Former Circuit

Mr. Joblin served on this charge for 12 years and endeared himself to the hearts of many. He is staying with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hoard, for his main stopping place and on Friday he visited Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes; Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thrasher; Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMullen and Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Spencer.

Mr. Joblin has also visited several families at Wellman's for short calls which included, Beckett's, Heagle's, Rainie's and others. At Mount Pleasant he attended Sunday School on Sunday morning and has made several other brief visits. He hopes to meet several others at the garden party on the church lawn.

RAWDON

Pastor Visits His Former Circuit

Rawdon.—The folks on Rawdon circuit are delighted to once again greet a former pastor, Rev. F. G. Joblin of Port Perry, who is holidaying in the neighborhood. Mr. Joblin served on this charge for 12 years and endeared himself to the hearts of many. A note of sadness goes with the visit as his beloved wife passed into higher service this summer and her cheery presence is missed on this occasion.

Mr. Joblin has three sons in the ministry and two daughters, teaching school.

He is staying with Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hoard, for his main stopping place and on Friday he visited Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes; Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thrasher; Monday, Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMullen and Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Spencer.

Mr. Joblin has also visited several families at Wellman's for short calls which included, Beckett's, Heagle's, Rainie's and others. At Mount Pleasant he attended Sunday School on Sunday morning and has made several other brief visits. He hopes to meet several others at the garden party on the church lawn.

On Monday he called at the Currie-Lindenfield's, Oak Lake; also at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sid Demorest, Stirling.

Everyone is delighted to greet their former pastor and staunch friend and are delighted that his health is such that he can enjoy such a nice vacation.

On Monday evening he attended the livestock sale at Hoard's and again met many old time friends. Of course it will be impossible for him to visit at all the homes on the circuit, much as he would have liked to do.

Detroit Wings Shorten Schedule Exhibition Tilts

(By The Canadian Press)

It may seem early—or late—for hockey talk, but Detroit Red Wings don't think so.

The Stanley Cup champions announce that they'll play an abbreviated schedule of 10 exhibition games as a tune-up for the National Hockey League season.

The Wings also meet Indianapolis in Windsor Sept. 28 and in Chatham Oct. 6.

Reason for the shortened exhibition season: The club figures more drill and fewer games will get the team into shape early.

The Ontario Racing Commission announced in Hamilton Wednesday that it has lifted the suspension of racehorse-owner John Stuart. He was suspended at Fort Erie race track last week after an altercation with a steward. Stuart has apologized.

He has also announced his retirement from racing and plans to sell his horses at Hamilton race track Friday. The Stuart stable was highest money winner in Ontario last year.

The Hamilton-Edmonton feud over football players Earl Valiquette and Jack Stewart has been solved. Valiquette said in Hamilton last night he's heading for Edmonton to line up with the Eskimos. Stewart is apparently sticking with the Tiger-Cats, however, despite a Canadian Rugby Union ruling that both players were Edmonton property.

J. H. Hurley of Windsor's Essex Golf Club led scorers in the first day of the London Hunt Club's senior golf tournament yesterday. He put together rounds of 37 for a low gross of 74. The first round saw 84 golfers tee off. The final 18 holes will be played today. In third spot tied with Dr. George Laing of Essex is J. V. Stark of Kitchener Westmount, with a 79. A. R. Wilson of Montreal was second with 76.

Tommy Alison, president of the Canadian Rugby Union, says he is retiring from football after this season. But before he goes he wants to get one thing changed. He said in Toronto that he'd like to see a more uniform lineup of football players when the national anthem is played before each game.

The veteran Cliff (Chappy) Chapman of Toronto stole the show at Thorncliffe raceway yesterday when be became the first driver to pilot three winners in one day during the meet. He had Laurel Spencer, Miss May Richards and Glendale Ace. Keith Waples of Midland scored a double victory with J. L. Van, owned by his father and Victory Hy owned by Stanley Blewett of Indian River.

Australia and Sweden have each named two-man teams for their Davis Cup matches at the Westchester Country Club this weekend. Frank Sedgman and John Bromwich will represent Australia against Lennart Bergelin and Torstern Johansson. Selections were made yesterday at Rye, N.Y.

The Michigan Boxing Commission slapped a two-year suspension and $1,000 fine on fight manager Jack Laken yesterday in Detroit. Laken barged into the ring after a Tuesday night fight, seized the microphone and shouted to the crowd that his man, Sammy Angott, had been "robbed" in an earlier contest.

Alberta took its first win and Ontario its first loss yesterday in the third day's play for the Dominion Cricket championship at Winnipeg.

Scores were: B.C. 148, Ontario 47; Alberta 124 for eight wickets, Manitoba 122, all out. At the half-way-point in the week-long tourney Ontario and B.C. are setting the pace with two wins and one loss each. Alberta and Manitoba have one-and-two records.

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT
(For Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)

New York, Aug. 10 (AP) — Isn't it about time someone spoke sharply to those Giants and told them there's enough trouble sorting out the leaders in the National League without another club trying to crowd into the act?

President Ford Frick has just told all the players in his loop that a hot four-team scrap is in prospect and that they should be careful of their language to umpires the rest of the way lest they get tossed out of a game and hurt their teammates' chances.

Note that he said four teams—not five or six. There obviously isn't room up there for the fifth-place Giants and, besides, they must be playing over their heads.

Perhaps the immediate schedule will take care of the problem.

Tough Task

Having finished at Boston, the effervescent Polo Grounders now face 12 games within 11 days against Brooklyn and the league leading Phillies — eight of them against the Phils. They will have only one day of rest during this period and will have to dig up pitchers for a brace of doubleheaders.

After their terrific pace of the last three weeks Durocher's darlings are overdue for a slump.

But don't undersell the New Yorkers. St. Louis Cardinals will tell you there is a much better than fair ball team in the Polo Grounds again—a team with pitching that can be spectacular and an infield which spins doubleplays when they hurt most.

Future Bright

And it is a team which figures to get better over a span of years. Outside its pitching staff it is just about as young an outfit as the Phils.

Since his great stint in the all-star game Larry Jansen has pitched perhaps the most consistently fine ball in either league.

Al Dark and Eddie Stanky are doing everything expected of them around second base, and more. The two negro infielders, Hank Thompson at third and Monte Irvin at first, have been fielding brilliantly and slugging in the clutches.

Of the outfielders, Whitey Lockman came back from an appendectomy to resume his hitting right where he left off, Bobby Thomson shows signs of snapping out of a season-long slump, and Don Mueller displays an amazing knack for hitting 'em where they aint. Wes Westrum is doing a great job of catching and is crowding the 20 mark in home runs.

Ray Robinson Easily Defeats Charlie Fusari

By JACK HAND

Jersey City, N. J., Aug. 10 (AP) — Jake Lamotta is the next target for Sugar Ray Robinson, now that his fifth welter title defence is safely out of the way. But it won't be easy to arrange.

Robinson never was safer than in the Roosevelt Stadium ring last night against cycling Charlie Fusari. The only time he risked his crown was on the scales at noon.

The lean Harlem slasher had to go back three times before he made 147 pounds after steam baths and rubdowns. From here in he wants to mingle with the middleweights.

George Gainford, Robinson's manager, says he will give the I. B. C. exclusive rights to three Robinson title fights and three fights a year after that if he gets the Lamotta match. There is one gimmick — Robinson wants 20 per cent.

The I. B. C. has offered 15 per cent — and no higher. Lamotta would receive 45 per cent.

What will happen? Chances are Robinson will have to go back to risking his Pennsylvania world middleweight title at Scranton, Pa. Aug. 23 against Jose Basora and over - the - weight welter bouts.

Maybe Sugar Ray will even fight as a welter again. But it's against his own inclinations.

Kind of Weak

"I wasn't exactly tired," said Robinson in his Roosevelt Stadium dressing room after the fight, "but I was kind of weak. If I ever get up to 155 again, it would take a big figure with a lot of naughts behind it to tempt me to reduce to 147 again."

Robinson and Gainford have one ace up their sleeve. That is the National Boxing Association order to Jake to defend against Robinson this fall or lose his crown.

Unless Robinson accepts 15 per cent, the I. B. C. probably will match Lamotta with Laurent Dauthuille of France for a Detroit title fight Sept 13 or Sept. 20.

There was little action in Robinson's outing because Fusari ran for most of the 15 rounds.

You had to bend over backwards to give the Irvington, N. J. blond a single round. Referee Paul Cavalier gave him one and called one even. The AP card scored it 14 for Sugar Ray and one even.

Large Crowd Present

The bout drew a surprisingly large crowd of more than 25,000. Actual receipts probably will top $150,000.

The Damon Runyon Fund, which will receive approximately $50,000, helped draw the fans.

Robinson fought for the legal $1, donating the rest of his 30 per cent of the purse to the fund. Fusari also was to make a donation out of his 25 per cent cut. The co-promoters, Andy Niederreiter and Humbert Fugazy, gave 15 per cent "off the top."

There were no knockdowns in the one-sided contest that amounted to a cat-and-mouse chase with Robinson always pursuing the challenger.

Field of Eight Will Start in $15,000 Stake

Toronto, Aug. 10 — (CP)— A field of eight great Canadian and American horses go after Canada's richest harness racing prize tomorrow — the $15,000 Canadian Cup—feature of the 42-day meet at Toronto's Thorncliffe Rraceway.

The entry list closed yesterday with three top U.S. horses and five of Canada's finest in the running.

A crowd of about 10,000—which would be the largest ever to watch harness racing in Canada—is expected to be on hand when the first of two dashes goes at 3:45 p.m. EDT. The initial dash is one mile and the second, set for 5:20 p.m. is 1 1-16.

The winner, should two horses alternate for the first and second dashes, will be decided on the fastest mile.

The big race was originally scheduled for Aug. 9—Wednesday—but track officials decided to postpone it a couple of days to keep it from clashing with the Hambletonian at Goshen, N.Y. The Friday choice will also give the American horses a chance to get back to Roosevelt Raceway in time to compete in the $50,000 race there Saturday night.

Installed as sentimental favorite for the Canadian Cup—a gold mug valued at about $2,500—is Dr. Stanton, the darling of Canadian harness racing fans. Owned by Linley Fraser, of Forest, Ont., Dr. Stanton has won more than $100,000 in purses and has a record of 2.09 for the mile.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THEY DOOD IT!

Mebbe the worm turned. Mebbe the Falls didn't give a dag-nab. Mebbe the Shoemen from Batawa have shamed Ole Lady Luck into an idea of a law of averages and convinced the fickle old dame that it is time she gave them a break.

In any event, the Heldman crew shook off the one run jinx at Exhibition Park last night and when the hour looked the darkest around the sixth innings, grabbed a new lease of life, and taking advantage of the enemy's somewhat careless chucking about of the ball, garnished with some clutch clouting defeated the hitherto haughty Smiths Falls Royals by a 10-4 count.

* * *

Matters did not look good in those first few chukkers. Gordie Muffit found the platter harder to locate than a blonde in Abyssinia while plate umpire Pat O'Brien, from the Falls, insisted that a whisker's width off the corners of the plate was not close enough to be deemed a strike. The Falls rammed home a pair of counters in the first while Muffit was orienting his sights, added another in the third and after the Shoemen broke the egg in the fifth, tacked on another in the sixth to make the score 4-1.

* * *

Mr. Seaman, a knife-side flinger, who figures that time's awastin' unless he gets three pitches a minute off his chest was doing right well by Knotty Lee's hometown gang (and by the way the estimable Knotty had a ringside seat last night) until the tide-turning southern half of the sixth. Mac Watson smote a mighty double, Acquino rapped a single and "died" stretching it while Watson scored and Mouse Bush drove out a beautiful four-bagger to put the Shoemen breathing down the Falls' necks on the scoreboard. That was it. In the next chukker three clouts and some amateurish volleyballing on the part of the Falls' infield gave the Shoemen four runs and the game was tucked away there and then. They added three more in the eighth off reliefer White who might better have stood in bed, and it was all over but the rooting.

* * *

The Shoemen are still in fifth slot in the loop standing but they need to hoist themselves a notch if they are to get into the charmed playoff circle. They'll need all the victories they can garner from now on "in" if they intend making the payoff foursome. They meet the league leading Kingston Disneys here on Saturday night besides sandwiching in a game against the same team in Kingston Friday.

* * *

ANOTHER ONE

The 6 R. D. squad, league-leading undefeated team of the Belleville District Baseball League tacked another scalp to their extensive string, 17 to be exact, last night when they edged a fighting Point Anne squad 5-4 in the first game of their league semi-finals series. The Pointers had crept to within one run of the leaders when Umpire Don Thomas called the game in the late innings because of darkness.

* * *

We presume, through the fact that the game was called, that it got away to a late start. If such is the case, regardless of which team is to blame, something should be done to prevent a repetition of tardiness in starting. And in playoff games especially. Games can be won and lost in the ninth innings, that has been proven, and it is not fair to either team to be forced to play an abbreviated contest. League officials and umpires should see to it that games are started on scheduled time.

* * *

WHAT HO! THE WHIP!

Fred Atkins, the arrogant Australian, may have his wings clipped on Friday night at the Memorial Arena, when he tangles with Whipper Watson in the main wrestling event. Atkins has been cockier than ever of late and has been doing a lot of crowing over recent victories. In opposing Whipper, even the rough, rugged and capable Atkins will have to watch his step, as Watson is rated, on his ability, experience and record, as one of the top men in the world of wrestling today.

In the semi-final, that mystery man, the Masked Marvel, will get a stern test when he goes against Toar Morgan. The hooded grappler is likewise doing considerable bragging following his initial triumph here last week. Morgan is determined not to allow the mysterious matman to continue his success at Morgan's expense.

Plenty of action is expected of the first match, in which Jack Moore will charge at Warren Bockwinkle.

Cleveland's Larry Doby Goes On Hitting Rampage After Near-Tragic Beaning in July

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

American League pitchers are feeling the after-effects of Larry Doby's near-tragic skulling July 24.

Since Brooklyn's Joe Hatten knocked Doby unconscious with a pitch to the head in an exhibition game at Ebbets Field, no pitcher has been safe from his bludgeoning bat.

In 11 games since the accident the Cleveland Negro outfielder has pounded out nine home runs, driven in 20 runs and batted .462. Doby's home-run output matched his entire output for his first 86 games.

He tried his utmost to give the Indians a sweep of their doubleheader with St. Louis last night. He slammed two home runs and three doubles to drive in five runs. But the best the Tribe could do was to split the two games.

Cleveland won the opener 4-3 with Doby's two homers accounting for all the runs. He belted three doubles, drove in a run and scored twice in the second game but the Indians lost 10-8.

The split caused the third place Indians to lose 1-2 game to the pace-setting Detroit Tigers and runner-up Yankees.

The Tigers downed Chicago White Sox 5-3 to maintain their three-game advantage over the Yankees, who shaded Boston Red Sox 2-1. Detroit leads the Indians by 3 1-2 and the fourth-place Red Sox by seven.

Phils Continue Climb

Philadelphia Phillies continued their dominance in the National League, defeating Brooklyn Dodgers for the second straight day 5-4. The victory protected their five game bulge over Boston Braves who nipped New York Giants 3-2.

The St. Louis Cardinals-Pittsburgh Pirates and Cincinnati-Chicago Cubs games were postponed by rain.

Vic Raschi, veteran Yankee righthander, pitched perfect ball for 6 2-3 innings in posting his 14th victory. An infield single by Billy Goodman with two out in the seventh ended his dream of joining four others who have pitched perfect games since the turn of the century.

An eighth-inning homer by Al Zarilla ruined Raschi's shutout bid, too. Dom DiMaggio got Boston's other hit, a ninth inning single.

Wertz Homers

Vic Wertz' 24th home run with one on in the eighth was the decisive blow in Detroit's victory over Chicago. Fred Hutchinson went all the way for his 13th triumph.

The Phils broke a 4-4 tie in the eighth when Brooklyn's Erv Palica walked Willie Jones, Gran Hamner followed with a double and Mike Goliat scored Jones with a fly to deep left.

Russ Meyer was the winner but he needed help from Jim Konstanty in the eighth. The ace fireman, making his 50th relief appearance, set back the Brooks in the final two innings.

Brantford Sox Drop Back Into Tie for First

(By The Canadian Press)

Form took a beating in the Intercounty Senior League Wednesday. And things are just as confused as ever.

After one brief taste of being all alone on top, Brantford Red Sox dropped back into a tie for first with Waterloo Tigers. Kitchener Legionnaires had their winning streak snapped at six straight by Galt Terriers, and Stratford Nationals pulled out of a slump to down St. Thomas Legion.

The tight race for the last league playoff spot—sixth place—got squeezed a little tighter. Guelph Maple Leafs and Galt each picked up a full game on St. Thomas, leaving the teams only a few percentage points apart.

It remained for ancient Alex Martin to turn in the night's top pitching performance as the Galt righthander blanked Kitchener 2-0 on six hits. A single by Andy Garbas, a walk and an error on a double-play ball gave Galt their first run in the sixth.

Tom Lynett drove one of reliever Don Leville's offerings over the fence in the ninth to give Galt that insurance marker. It was Lynett's third hit of the night, and gave him batting honors for the game.

Guelph Came Through

With Marty Philp and Oscar Judd combining to throw an eight-hitter at Brantford, the Leafs pounded out 12 hits and a 9-4 victory. Trailing 4-2 going into the bottom of the seventh, Guelph came through with seven runs while three Sox pitchers vainly tried to stem the flood.

Leafs got some solid slugging by Walt Jeffries, with three hits, and Nick Ciani, Dick Falk and Chuck Watson with two apiece. Jim Burns walloped a triple and two singles for Sox.

Billy Russ came through with a seven-hitter in Stratford's 11-3 pasting of St. Thomas Legion, and got some fancy support afield as the Nats clicked off four double plays.

Veteran Irish Miskimmons had a field day against Legion hurlers Elmer Cook, Pat McCullough and Jack Weeks, connecting safely five times in five trips. One of his hits was a double. Russ had a shutout going into the seventh, when St. Thomas played two unearned runs. Their third run—in the eighth—was also unearned.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Batting: Bob Elliott, Braves—Doubled twice and accounted for all of Boston's runs as they defeated the New York Giants, 3-2.

Pitching: Vic Raschi, Yankees—Defeated the Boston Red Sox, 2-1, on three hits after retiring first 20 batters to face him.

Swimmers of a dozen nations gathered round the palatial new pool at Wembley, England. It was the day of the Empire Games swimming meet—a day slated for its full share of surprises.

The Canadian swimmers—overlooked by the experts—first scored an upset in the women's events, taking four wins. Next the men's 100 yard free style fell to Canada . . . climaxed by four relay victories. The team of 1934 had swept the board for Canada's first Empire swimming triumph!

Close teamwork has won many firsts for Canadian sportsmen. And sportsmanship, with teamwork, can help you, too—in work and play. Together they keep your scope for opportunity in Canada unlimited.

Barrie Flyers Having Trouble With the Arena

Barrie, Aug. 10 (CP)—Barrie Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" series may have a new home base this season.

Coach Hap Emms, displeased over a proposed contract with the Barrie arena commission, is reported looking for another town that will sponsor Flyers. He has moved the club's equipment from the Barrie arena and was last reported sounding out Collingwood on sponsoring a Junior "A" team.

Club officials say the trouble lies in the commission's demands for rental of the arena on a percentage basis. In other years the club has paid rent at a flat rate. Last year the commission enlarged the arena from 1,400 seats to 4,000 at Emms' request.

Bobby Locke Defeats Mangrum In Playoff

The 72-hole medal chase for 32 top professionals, 16 men amateurs, eight women pros and eight women amateurs, uncovers a pot of gold at the end of a gaudy 10-day rainbow of golf.

Favored in the pros richest tournament, carrying an $11,000 winner's purse, was South Africa's Bobby Locke who yesterday spanked Lloyd Mangrum for top money of $2,500 in the all-American pro meet.

Locke's methodical four-stroke decision over defending champion Mangrum in an 18-hole play-off ended the preliminary phase of the Tam Sweepstake which started a week ago today.

The "world" pro field includes virtually all the Professional Golf Association's top 20 money-winners, excepting Ben Hogan. The international favor rests mainly in British open champion Locke, but two Australians, Ossie Pickworth and Norman Von Nida, also received $1,000 travelling expenses from promoter George S. May to compete.

The hand-picked women's pro field of eight, includes defending champion Babe Zaharias, freshly-crowned as the All-American women's open titlist with a record-breaking 296.

The pro gals divvy up $4,000 with $2,000 going to the winner.

Batawa Bludgeons Blast Blows In Clusters to Whip Royals 10-4 After Trailing at Start

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The Smiths Falls Royals discovered last night in the Exhibition Grounds that it doesn't pay to take anything for granted; that anything can happen in a ball game, and the Batawa Shoemen can clout the pill in the clutches.

Blasting back from a three-run deficit in the top of the sixth, the Shoemen suddenly pounced on the offerings of two Royals pitchers, hurled extra-base clouts into the wild blue yonder, took advantage of some costly Falls errors and trotted home with a 10-4 victory dangling from their belts.

Gordie Muffitt went the route for the Shoemen, albeit a trifle wild at times, and yielded up nine hits, one a homer, while walking seven and whiffing six. He settled down after a palsy-like first innings when he issued three walks and Majec, Falls catcher, blasted out a home run, and let the Royals down with seven scattered blows over the rest of the route.

Scoreless For Four

Seaman, who crashes the Falls line-up only on intermittent occasions found himself in a starting role on the mound for the Falls. Working rapidly he had the Shoemen practically eating out of his hands for four scoreless innings allowing but one hit over that period, while his mates had piled up a neat 4-1 score for him.

Three solid Batawa clouts in the fifth started Seaman slipping on the deck. The Shoemen shoved over a run in this chukker, and in the sixth opened up the heavy artillery. Bush's homer, Watson's double and Aquino's single shoved over two runs to bring the count to 4-3 and life brightened in the pews. Mr. Seaman went to the showers and White came in to relieve him.

He proved just another pitcher, three hits, a walk and two costly Falls errors blazed the way for four Shoemen runs and the game was over then and there as far as the Royals were concerned. Four more clouts rattled off the Batawa bludgeons in the eighth and three runners sauntered across the plate.

Mac Watson's trusty shillalagh tasted plenty of the Royals pitching blood. He smashed out a two-run triple in the eighth and added a double and single for three for four. Mouse Bush connected for a homer and single while Bridgman, Solmes hit safely on two occasions.

Majec, Royals receiver was the white-haired laddie with the hickory for the losers poling out a homer and a triple. Kelleher smashed out a pair.

Tom Poholsky Only a 'Cousin' To The Orioles

(By The Associated Press)

Tom Poholsky 20-year-old star pitcher with Rochester Red Wings, may be a terror to most International League teams but he's a beloved "cousin" to Baltimore Orioles.

The Orioles beat Poholsky for the third time in as many attempts last night, 4-3 in 10 innings. The victory cut the pace-setting Wings' lead over the second-place Orioles to four games.

Poholsky was seeking his 16th victory. Russ Bauers, control specialist, picked up his eighth victory for the Orioles.

The third-place Montreal Royals moved to within 4 1-2 games of the Wings with a 4-3 triumph over Springfield Cubs.

Jersey City Giants took both ends of a doubleheader from Buffalo Bisons, 3-2 and 8-5. Rookie Norm Fox, with help from Red Hardy and George Heller, received credit for the first-game triumph.

Jersey City scored five runs in the eighth inning to pull the nightcap out of the fire. Stan Jok started the fireworks with his 12th homer. Nap Reyes and Mele also homered for the Giants.

Syracuse Chiefs thumped Toronto Maple Leafs 6-2 behind the seven-hit pitching of Bud Byerly who hung up his 13th victory.

Lusty Song Wins Hambletonian In Straight Heats

Goshen, N.Y., Aug. 10 (AP) — Del Miller, a "veteran youth" of the Grand Circuit, found the $75,209 Hambletonian Stakes on his plate, so he just gobbled it up.

Miller got 10 per cent of Lusty Song's $40,537 Hambletonian booty.

Lusty Song, a son of Volomite-Scotch Song, had been beaten twice this year on the half mile tracks by Star's Pride.

So the crowd of 16,942 established Star's Pride and his stablemate, Florican, the 7-5 favorite in the opening mile heat of the Hambletonian.

He took the second heat by a scant neck ahead of Star's Pride. Florican was third in the final heat.

Both heats were clipped off in a snappy 2:02.

"I never thought I had the second heat won. I thought it was a dead heat," Miller said. He knew he had the initial dash won midway down the stretch.

GUELPH SIGNS FOUR

Guelph, Aug. 10 — (CP) — Four members of last year's Ontario champion Porcupine Juveniles will play their hockey for Guelph Biltmores of the O.H.A. Junior "A" this winter, manager Roy Mason announced Wednesday.

Mason, returned from a trip through northern Ontario, said the Biltmores have signed Galbraith, Prentice, Connolly and Blair of the juvenile squad. They will report next month to the Biltmore taining camp.

3,600 PHEASANTS RELEASED

More than 1,800 seven-week-old birds have been released in the wooded areas. An equal number of young chicks is being kept in the brooder houses until they mature enough to be let out, game warden Oscar Mellick said.

He added that an open season on deer in some townships of Lambton county is a distinct possibility.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Expert players make some modifications of lead rules. There is only one time to employ such refinements. It is when you are with an expert partner who knows you are familiar with their use.

Standard choice of leads is tops, longies, shorts. This is the guide for blind leads. When partner has bid a suit, however, first lead the suit partner has bid. It is expected of you.

Thus, if you do not lead the suit your partner has bid, he may assume you are void in his suit. Except that you may first lead a suit of your own if you do not lose control of the lead thereby.

For instance, suppose you have a suit containing both the ace and king at the top. You may first lead the king to show partner you have the ace of that suit. Then lead his suit.

The temptation is often great to establish your own suit. Refrain from doing so without immediate control. It is usually more important to co-operate first with the suit your partner has named.

This rule is not rigid with experts who acquire the ability to determine when an exception should be tried. But until you are in their class you will get better results by sticking to rule.

South is in four spades when you have this west hand:

♥K Q 10 5
♣J 9 5

Your partner in east had bid clubs. What is your opening lead? The first lead from your hand should be the club jack; his suit.

If in your hearts you also held the ace, your first lead would be the king to show partner you had control of that suit. Then you would lead your club jack to give him both kinds of information.

But if you lead your king of hearts from the holding shown here, declarer is likely to take this trick. You have lost an opportunity to lead partner's suit first. It may handcuff your partner.

Methods sporadic keep partners nomadic.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Aug. 10—(AP) — "Hey, how about a full column on my summer theatre tour?"

That's Shelly Winters for you. She doesn't want an item or a few paragraphs. A full column, she says.

Shelley has just returned from eight weeks of touring through the east in "Born Yesterday." She came back with a deflated view of Hollywood.

"This is an ivory tower, this is nothing," she said with a sweep of the arm that took in Hollywood. "This town doesn't know what's happening on the outside. That's where the real people are."

But, she added, switching into high gear: "Movies are still the major source of entertainment for the American people."

Better Than Ever?

Do the people think that movies are better than ever, as the ads claim?

"I don't go for that slogan," she replied. "That implies that movies used to stink."

The bubbly blonde said people were surprised to find her normal. "They said I wasn't a bit like my studio build-up," she remarked. "One fellow asked me 'why are they using Maria Montez's old publicity on you?' "

Shelly said she was really a tourist on the jaunt. She wore an $8.75 sun dress, saw all the scenic attractions, rode in day coaches and talked to the natives.

Capsule Review

"Pretty Baby" is one of the better light comedies of the season. The plot line sounds just like one of those things—a young girl who is believed going to have a baby that doesn't. Still the story is played with such good humor that it is a delight. Hit of the show is Betsy Drake, one of the most intriguing new personalities in recent years. Dennis Morgan, Zachary Scott and Edmund Gwenn support.

HELP DEVELOP JETS

Washington, Aug. 10 — (AP)— The Senate has okayed the idea of using government money to help develop jet airplanes for commercial use. It passed a bill yesterday authorizing the spending of up to $12,500,000 a year on testing and improving new type aircraft, including jets.

C.N.R. All-Stars Defeated by Stewart-Warner

The Stewart-Warner softball team, currently making their playoff bid from fifth place in the A section, cast the only shadow on an otherwise brilliant opening of the CNRAA grounds on Station Street yesterday afternoon, when they downed the CNR All-Stars 6-3 in an exhibition game.

Trailing by one run going into the fifth, the Alemite crew teed off on the slants of Grant Wright who came in to replace Bob Green, to score five runs and wrap up the contest. Bertrim and Rowbotham doubled as the All-Stars committed three errors, to account for all the runs. Vern Carr homered in the sixth for the Alemite's final counter.

The All-Stars put together three singles in the fourth for one run, and Harry Wardhaugh unloaded a towering home run to left field in the seventh with Ronsky on, to wind up the scoring.

Marty Halloran went the first four innings for Alemite walking two, striking out two, and giving up four hits for one run. Harold Dracup walked three, struck out one, and surrendered five hits for two runs in three innings of relief.

Bob Green toiled four scoreless innings for CNR walking four, whiffing six, and allowing only one hit. Grant Wright went two innings of relief giving up three hits for six runs. Roy McMillan mopped up without incident.

Ma was eating her grapefruit diet this morning, saying to pop, William, I had the most intristing dreem about you last nite.

That doesn't serprise me, I'm an intristing fellow, pop said, and ma said, This particuler dreem was exceedingly flattering to you.

Then dont spare me the details, pop said, and ma said, I dreemed you walked up to me like a night in shining armor and with a courtly bow you informed me that you were going to stop smoking rite now in the middle of summer without waiting for New Year's to make your annual resolution.

Did you say it was a dreem or a nightmare? pop said, and ma said, William, I cant tell you how proud I was of you. You explained that the time of year has nothing to do with resolutions when a strong man comes face to face with himself, and that you were the master of your pipe and the captain of your nickoteen. My, William, werds cant express how strong and handsome you looked, she said.

I almost wish I'd been there, pop said, and ma said, You were, William, at least your dreem self was. And my ferst waking thawt was how wonderful it would be if you could show yourself werthy of sutch a dreem, she said.

My dear, do you see this cigar? pop said. And he took one out of his vest pockit and [illegible]

Reports Indicate Red China About To Absorb Tibet

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The amazing care and long-range planning which Moscow always has devoted to communism's world-revolution is strikingly illustrated by current indications that red China is about to absorb Tibet.

Tibet, "roof of the world," perched in lofty isolation on the Himalayan Plateau and dwelling in centuries long past! What possible use can Bolshevism have for that primitive land?

True, Tibet bulges into China on the north and into India on the south, and this gives rise to the question of whether it has strategic value militarily. It has some, but it isn't great for practical purposes. Much more to the point is its mineral wealth, believed to be great.

However, it strikes me that communism is more interested in the country's spiritual wealth than in minerals. Tibet is the cradle of Chinese Buddhism, which has a strong hold on many followers. There also are many Buddhists in India and other Asiatic countries.

The communists have been trying to gain control of the religious heads in Tibet for a long time. But the reds must do more than get control of the 16-year-old ruler, Dalai Lama, and his immediate advisers. Communism will have to be forced on the Buddhist monks who comprise one-quarter of the country's entire male population.

So occupation of Tibet might facilitate the acceptance of communism by the aloof Buddhist element. Theoretically that would give Moscow and Peiping an important influence with followers of this religion, both in China and in neighboring countries.

Actually, of course, the hermit kingdom, as Tibet is called, formerly was a part of China. It withdrew at the time of Dr. Sun Yat Sen's revolution and set itself up as an independent country. Peiping now proposes to bring Tibet back into the fold, but has been moving circumspectly so as not to give offence to Buddhists.

The Gentle Heart

By Kay Hamilton

Safe in the privacy of the studio Jenny said, "Now, Dick, I suppose you know why I am not letting you take Ghillie out tonight."

He did not answer, but his eyes lowered, and he had the grace to redden After a moment, Jenny said, in a perfectly conversational tone. "You've been hurt, Dick. I know. But because you've been hurt is no excuse for you to kick Ghillie."

His eyes widened in instant denial. "I didn't! I wouldn't do any such thing!"

"No. I'm sure you wouldn't," Jenny admitted. "Because he's smaller than you are. He's helpless against you, really But have you ever considered how helpless Pete and Elsa are?"

His frown was her answer. "Try to see their side of it for a minute. They wouldn't hurt you, any more than you would kick Ghillie. But does that give you the right to hurt them all the time? When they can't retaliate?"

He scuffed one foot against the other, then blurted out. "They do not want me. They're mad because they have to take me."

"How do you know?" Jenny demanded.

"Well—well, why wouldn't they be?"

"Would you be?" Jenny asked. Then, suddenly, she saw what she must do. She said, "Perhaps I'm betraying a confidence, Dick, but I know you'll not repeat this. Pete and Elsa have always wanted children. It was the one grief of their married life that they had none."

"Pete had me!"

"No, he didn't," Jenny told him. "He sent money for your expenses, but he hardly ever got to see you. Why, he didn't even know you were going to be born when your mother got the divorce."

Dick looked up sharply. "He didn't?" This was news to him, and Jenny realized that of course his mother would not have told him that.

Jenny left it at that. "Suppose you go up and do your homework now," she suggested. "You can come down again later."

"But Ghillie," he pleaded.

"No,' she said firmly. "I'll take Ghillie tonight." She went toward the kitchen, called back, "Thanks for helping me, Dick." That, she reflected, should save his face as far as his parents were concerned. They need never know of that brief interview in the studio.

He was subdued when he came down at eight o'clock. Ghillie greeted him happily but Dick only patted the old scottie on the head and sat down in a corner of the room. He had very little to say, and his presence lent an obvious constraint to the conversation of Pete and Elsa. Despite Jenny's valiant efforts, the evening dwindled and died.

When the guests had gone, Dick turned to her and said defiantly. "See? They don't like me! They freeze up when I come into the room."

Jenny was tired. "They like you all right," she said wearily, "but they're wary of getting rebuffed every time they make a move toward you."

"You mean, they think I try to slap 'em down?" he said incredulously.

"You and nobody else," she told him. "It's up to you to make a friendly move, Dick."

He waved his arms helplessly. "But how could it? What can I—"

Jenny yawned. "Pete's been working awfully hard on that room of yours, Dick," she said. "Why don't you run over there after school tomorrow and tell him how nice it is Maybe give him a hand. Pete isn't awfully mechanical, you know."

"Sure. Sure, I will," he said. And suddenly he looked a bewildered small boy again, not a difficult adolescent at all. Jenny weakened.

"It's late," she said doubtfully, "but if you want to take Ghillie out for his bedtime walk—"

"Do I!" Boy and dog vanished toward the kitchen in one animated streak, and Jenny set about closing up for the night.

"If I had an independent income, and knew a little about protocol," she said to herself, "I could go in for the diplomatic corps. But," she added wryly, passing a hand across her forehead, "I don't think my poor brain could stand it!"

The leaves lay thickly on the Mayhew lawn and Jenny, in an old tweed skirt and sweater, was raking them up and burning them in a large bonfire on the drive. The smoky haze of other fires filled the air and the sun was warm upon her shoulders. She should have been happy—it was the sort of day which had always given her intense pleasure—but she was not happy today.

The house had seemed unbearably empty with Nat and Brent in New York and Dick at school, so she had left it for the out-of-doors. Ghillie had scuffled happily through the leaves for a while, then had gone to nap in his doghouse. When Faith came out, similarly garbed, to rake her own lawn, she welcomed the sight of her.

"Isn't it lovely today?" Faith called. But there was no buoyancy in her voice.

"Beautiful! Where's Mother Owen?"

"Gone to Westport for the day to visit some friends."

They worked in silence for a while, then Faith came through the hedge and sat down on the grass, hugging her knees. "I don't know what to do, Jenny," she said at last. "I wish you'd tell me what you think."

"About what?"

"About Mother Owen. She's got Max and me so jittery that even when we do get a moment together, we're snapping at each other."

"Why, what has she done?" Jenny demanded.

Faith thought for a moment. "It's hard to describe, because it has been so gradual. But she has taken to hinting now that she might sell her home and come and live with me. If she hadn't always been so lovely to me, if I weren't so fond of her, I'd be better able to cope with her now. I can't say, 'No, I don't want you. I'm going to marry Max.' She would be dreadfully hurt. But if she does do it, it means that Max and I couldn't—Oh, don't you see?"

"OFTEN BECAME SO DIZZY COULD HARDLY DO MY WORK"

Woman Tells of Trouble With Stomach Disorders, Bilious Spells. Everything Would Turn Black. Got Headaches, Backache, Pains in Limbs and Joints. Now Praises Syntona For Quick Relief.

"I could hardly do my work because my condition was so bad, but thanks to Syntona I am feeling fine again," said Mrs. Mary E. Scott, 218 Horton Street, London, Ontario, in a recent report.

"I often became nervous, sick and dizzy. I was afraid I would fall. I'd have a sick feeling in my stomach, become short of breath, and dark spots floated before my eyes. It was an awful feeling.

"Rheumatic pains set in my limbs and joints and I was troubled with backache and frequent splitting headaches.

"Reading about Syntona and the good it was doing for other people here in town, I got some and I've never had anything to help me the way this medicine has. It helped my digestion almost from the first day or so and since then I've been improving so that I no longer have spells of gas in my stomach, sour acid risings, or those awful sick, dizzy spells. Headaches and the other pains are now relieved and my nerves are calmed down so that I can get more sound, restful sleep and I feel more like working during the day.

"I can certainly advise anyone who feels like I did to get Syntona without delay."

Why not let this pure Herbal Medicine help you as it has so many other sufferers? It is pleasant to take and results are quickly felt.

Rail Heads Direct Appeal to Unions

Leaders Requested To Call Off Strike Set for Aug. 22

Organizational Work Being Carried Out For Strike

Montreal, Aug. 11 — (CP) — The presidents of Canada's major railroads today directed a personal appeal to top union leaders to call off their strike action.

The appeal was made in a joint telegram to Frank H. Hall, chairman of the negotiating committee for 15 International unions, with a copy to A. R. Mosher, committee chairman for two Canadian unions also affected by the strike call for Aug. 22.

The telegram said that in view of the emergency of the impending strike — which would affect 124,000 workers in the non-running trades—"We take this means of replying to your letter of Aug. 10."

In his letter, made public today, Mr. Hall in rejecting the "final offer" of the presidents, said "We can find no acceptable contribution to a solution" to the situation.

Meanwhile, the unions began organizational work for the strike and made public directives to members and officials to make the strike 100 per cent effective.

reach understanding on maintenance of "essential services" and protection of railway property in event of a strike by the 124,000 non-operating employees. The strike would be one for increased wages and better working hours.

Announcement of union rejection was made in a statement authorized by the railway presidents following a late-afternoon meeting yesterday.

The statement said:-

"We have been informed by leaders of the two union groups involved in the current labor dispute that the final proposal of the railways put before them. . . are unacceptable to the negotiating committees.

"The union representatives gave no indication that they were prepared to recede in any degree from the full demands of a 40-hour week and an additional wage increase of seven and 10 cents per hour.

"In these circumstances the railways have no alternative but to prepare for strike action by the employees and appropriate announcements and arrangements will be made at once."

Unions Not Talking

On the other hand, union leaders had little to say. Frank Hall, representing 15 International Brotherhoods involved in the dispute, had only a terse "no comment" to offer. An earlier statement by A. A. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor and representative of the two Canadian unions, indicated the carrier's offer was not acceptable.

The railways take-it-or-leave-it offer was made at a morning meeting and Donald Gordon, Canadian National Railways president, said the compromise proposal was not intended as a bargaining point.

In broad lines, the railways' offer was: A 44-hour week with a 9.1 per cent increase in hourly rates so as to maintain take-home pay—or an average basic increase of 8½ cents an hour for the present 48-hour week, approximately equivalent in expenses to the 44-hour week offer.

The unions demanded the 40-hour week, plus increases of seven and 10 cents an hour with no reduction in take-home pay.

Polio Cases Scarce in Canada This Season

(By The Canadian Press)

Poliomyelitis is comparatively scarce in Canada this year. Health authorities don't know why, except that the crippling paralysis of polio comes in cycles and this apparently is an off-year.

A Canadian Press survey shows about 115 cases throughout Canada, compared with some 880 at this date last year. In all of 1949, there were 2,437 cases, including 175 that proved fatal. So far this year only five polio deaths have been recorded.

Dr. Gordon Bates, general director of the Health League of Canada, reiterated that polio — whose origin is a mystery — can best be fought by application of "the general laws of common sense in the field of public health."

This includes use of good water, pasteurized milk and carefully-washed fruits and vegetables. Garbage should be kept covered. Flies and other disease-carrying insects should be curbed. Toilet facilities should be spotless.

Dr. Bates urged in an interview that Canadians not get "panicky" about polio because "there's not much you can do anyway." Many diseases take a far greater toll. He quoted from a survey showing that, during a full-scale epidemic, the individual's chance of contracting polio is one in 1,500. The odds are 7,500 to 1 against being paralyzed; 30,000 to 1 against death from polio.

Man and Woman Shot and Killed, Assailant Hurt

Reed City, Mich., Aug. 11 — (AP) — A man and a woman were shot and killed from ambush here last night and their elderly assailant is near death from a self-inflicted shotgun wound in the head.

Slain were Mrs. Donna Poling and Ray Nehmer, both 33.

Shortly afterward 65-year-old William Dempke, a neighbor, was found critically wounded in a nearby field. His 20-gauge shotgun lay beside him. Four shells had been fired.

Police said they were mystified as to the cause of the shootings.

Two other persons, including Mrs Poling's son, Donald, 15, and her husband, Roy, 45, were injured. A second woman escaped harm.

Mrs. Poling and Nehmer were shot shortly before midnight as they left a taxicab with Poling and Nehmer's divorced wife Daisy at the Nehmer residence in town.

Police said Dempke, apparently crazed, had evidently lain in wait at the house. As the two couples left the cab after a downtown visit, Dempke opened fire, police said.

CABINET MEETING CALLED

London, Aug. 11 (Reuters) — Prime Minister Attlee today called a cabinet meeting at short notice—two weeks earlier than he planned—to discuss pay increases for the armed forces.

Attlee, it was understood, called the meeting after reading a private report by Defence Minister Emanuel Shinwell, who has said that service pay must be increased to attract more recruits.

ANTI-COMMUNISTS OF U.N. WILL TRY TO OUT-TALK REDS

Britain Takes Up Oratorial Ball

Lake Success, Aug. 11. (AP)—Britain's Sir Gladwyn Jebb was scheduled to pick up the oratorical ball today in western attempts to counter the Russian-imposed stalemate on Security Council consideration of the Korean question.

With the west unable to persuade Russian President Jakob A. Malik in both private and public meetings yesterday to lift his blockade, the Council went into the second meeting (at 3 p.m. E.D.T.) of a campaign to out-talk Malik.

The word war was opened yesterday by United States delegate Warren Austin with a 3,000-word, gloves-off attack. It called the Russian backed North Korean government a "zombie government" and blamed the Soviet Union for the North Koreans' attack on the U.N.-sponsored South Korean regime.

Malik said he would answer Austin's charges at length. He was expected to wind up today's meeting with his speech, to give it wide circulation—without an immediate answer—during the week-end recess.

Malik Acknowledges Statement

Austin charged the North Koreans were using Russian-made tanks and guns. Malik, replying briefly, acknowledging the Soviet Union had furnished supplies to the North Koreans but claimed these were sold to them before Russian occupation troops withdrew from Korea in 1948.

Later he said flatly, to a protest by the U.S. and Cuba, that he would not rule on the right of the South Korean representative to sit in the meeting. His statement left the Council still in the procedural tangle which has blocked further decisive action on the Korean question since he became Council president August 1.

Prince Baudouin Becomes Ruler Of Belgium

Brussels, Aug. 11 (AP)—Crown Prince Baudouin today became ruler of all the Belgians in the place of his father, King Leopold III.

He took the oath as Prince Royal in Parliament, where several hours earlier the Senate and Chamber of Deputies in joint session had given final approval to the bill transferring Leopold's Royal Powers to his 19-year-old son. The final vote was 349 in favor with eight abstentions.

This was the final act in a royal drama that began with Leopold's banishment in 1945 for his action in surrendering to the invading German armies in the Second World War.

Belleville Churchman Dies

An entire city mourns today the passing of one of its most illustrious citizens, the Rt. Rev. Monsignor J. F. Nicholson, beloved priest of the Parish of St. Michael the Archangel. The late Monsignor who passed away on Thursday was beloved by all with whom he came in contact, especially his comrades of the First World War with whom he served with gallantry and courage. People of all religious denominations mark with profound sorrow and regret the passing of one who was a sincere friend to all.

Monsignor J. F. Nicholson Dies in Hotel Dieu, Kingston, In Failing Health For Months

The Right Reverend Monsignor James Francis Nicholson, P.A., V.G., P.P., M.C., beloved priest of the Parish of St. Michael the Archangel, and former Vicar General of the Archdiocese of Kingston died in the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston, on Thursday afternoon. The late Monsignor was in his 62nd year.

Born in Kingston on October 28, 1888, the son of the late Thomas Nicholson and Mrs. Nicholson, the 61-year-old prelate passed away after a lingering illness, the after-effects of severe gassing received while serving overseas with the Canadian Army during the First World War.

The funeral and burial services will be held here on Monday August 14th., when Pontifical High Mass will be celebrated at 10 a.m. by His Grace, Archbishop O'Sullivan of Kingston.

An entire city will mourn his passing. For the late Monsignor was one who was the beloved of many and who enjoyed the highest esteem and respect of those beyond his denominational sphere.

Vital Part of Community

He was something more than a parish priest. He was a vital part of the religious and community life of this city. He took an active interest in matters beyond the perimeter of his ecclesiastical activities, that had to do with the well-being of the city in which he resided.

Everybody called Monsignor Nicholson "friend." He had a cheery word of greeting for all with whom he came in contact regardless of color, race or creed. Religious beliefs were no barriers to friendships to this tolerant open-minded warm-hearted priest of the Church.

War veterans of the city and district, with whom he remained in almost constant contact will miss Monsignor Nicholson. He served with them in the first Great War where he lived with them, fought with them, talked with them in their own language, and above all, understood them.

Monsignor Nicholson was an active member of Branch 99 of the Canadian Legion and a charter member of branch 201 of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans.

ARMS PRODUCTION WILL TAKE 6 P.C. OF STEEL OUTPUT

Will Not Interfere With Civilian Economy

Washington, Aug. 11 (AP) — United States military leaders expect that even with the new rearmament program the "take" of steel for arms production will be no more than five or six per cent of the country's total output. The military's slice of steel production now is about four per cent.

A munitions board official used this figure today to underline his expressed belief it will be possible to produce the war weapons asked for in President Truman's $10,500,000,000 supplemental military request to Congress without any serious blow to the civilian economy.

The estimate on steel requirements represent the first survey made by the munitions board of probable requirements under the rearmament program.

The board also expects it will be able to carry on the Korean war and go ahead with the rearmament program without digging into the country's stockpile strategic materials, which the munitions board has been building up for several years.

The ammunition being sent to the Korean front are coming either from available equipment or being turned out in new production (an example is the 3.5-inch bazooka)—but none of the raw material for their manufacture comes from the strategic stockpile.

Putting Away Things

Under the storing-for-a-rainy-day program, military is putting away the things which it thinks might be scarce should an all-out global war come.

Currently, there are 71 items on the list—things such as the basic metals tin, tungsten, copper, manganese, chrome; minerals such as asbestos, mica and talc; rubber and rope fiber; drugs and oils.

In making surveys and carrying on negotiations, Hubert Howard, chairman of the munitions board, has recently made tours to Europe and Canada.

He returned last Wednesday from talks in Ottawa with Canadian officials. The talks there were understood to have involved plans for purchasing parts of equipment, but not any buying of large amounts of complete items or weapons.

The munitions board is finding it hard to convince some business men that the Second World War days of all-out mobilization of industry and fountains of contracts are not back, that this is still a limited mobilization.

ADVERTISING INCREASES

New York, Aug. 11 (AP)—The 100 leading advertisers in the United States last year spent $203,548,999 in newspaper advertising, an increase of 45.1 per cent over the 1948 figure. The figures were reported today by the Bureau of Advertising of the American Publishers Association.

Churchill Urges Creation of Unified European Army to Defend the West

Strasbourg, France, Aug. 11—(AP)—Winston Churchill urged today immediate creation of a unified European army to defend the west against Russia. He said the west still has a breathing space of about two years which could be used to prevent a third world war.

Britain's wartime prime minister introduced a formal motion to the European consultative assembly—lower house of the unofficial parliament for a united western Europe—asking for such an army "subject to proper democratic control."

He said the most effective deterrent to war is United States superiority in atomic weapons plus Russia's success in building an empire without committing herself to war.

Churchill slapped down arguments that rearming west Germany might incite the Soviets to a preventive war by saying such action would in no way change the "long calculated designs" of Russia.

Referring to the breathing space he said the west still has, Churchill said:

"If we use this (time) wisely and well and do not waste it as we have already wasted so much, we may still greatly increase the deterrents against a major Russian communist aggression."

He said that only by building up a "trustworthy system of defence" would the west have a chance of "final settlement by negotiations with the Soviet on the basis of strength and not of our weakness."

Churchill did not spell out exactly how the proposed European army would be organized but presumably he wants member governments to merge their national armies. This would go far beyond what is now contemplated under the North Atlantic Pact

Important Supply Point Taken After Surprise Attack

Yanks Erase All But One Naktong River Bridgehead

Tokyo, Aug. 12 — (Saturday) — (AP) — Red troops last night seized the important port of Pohang on the east coast and fought virtually to the edge of the U.S. airbase to the southeast.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters meanwhile announced that all communist bridgeheads but one across the Naktong River on the western front had been erased by American units.

The Eighth Army, announcing the fall of Pohang, said the city was in flames as Americans withdrew after a savage night battle. Pohang is 65 air miles north of the main U.S. supply port of Pusan.

Battle For Airfield

Small U.S. forces battled in the early morning darkness to save the air field, which is on a split about six miles southeast of Pohang.

U.S. tanks and more infantry were pushing up to the rescue of the airfield.

Pohang, second only to Pusan itself as a supply port, fell to a surprise red drive through undefended mountains while the Americans were rolling back the enemy on the extreme southern end of the Korean front.

About 6,000 of the enemy, with artillery fire support from across the river, are trying to break out eastward at the Changnyong area bridgehead. If they make it they will cut off Taegu from Pusan, 55 miles to the southwest. The headquarters summary said heavy fighting was continuing in this area.

Reds Still In Trap

On the southern front, approximately 1,000 enemy troops battled in a desperate attempt to break out of a trap in the coastal hills southwest of Chinju and about 45 miles or so west of Pusan.

Marines completed the capture of Kosong, south coast port of 50,000 population 20 miles southeast of Chinju.

The situation was grave on the eastern part of the front in the Pohang area. A spokesman at Eighth Army headquarters in Korea announced the fall of Pohang. He said that by 10 p.m. Friday (8 p.m. EDT) there were no friendly troops inside the city.

The U.S. air strip to the southeast was fighting for its life. The communists brought up artillery within range. Fighter planes blasted the attacking enemy with rockets and machine-gun fire. The fighters left the air field for safety elsewhere through the night.

Red guerrillas were only 1½ miles from the field.

Bloody Street Battle

Inside the flaming port a bloody street battle raged. A tough mountain-climbing North Korean force struck Pohang after scaling the lofty peaks to the west of the town.

Before dusk American plans flew off the field on 10-minute sorties to make rocket and machine run attacks on the reds. Communist guerrillas were close enough to fire on the field with small arms.

At the other end of the allied battleline, the Eighth Army reported that North Koreans were abandoning their Chinju base near the south coast before the allied offensive that began Sunday.

Reports of the reds Chinju pullback came as U.S. troops occupied high ground immediately east of the city Friday afternoon.

Plumbing Fixtures Increased 10 P.C.

Toronto, Aug. 11 — (CP) — Price increases of up to 10 per cent on bathtubs, sinks, toilets and other plumbing fixtures are being put into effect this week, a spokesman for a major manufacturer said Thursday night.

He declined to be quoted directly or to have the company identified for publication.

The price boosts are a "readjustment" based on the cost of tin, iron, enamel and other materials used in manufacture of plumbing fixtures, he said. It was likely that other companies would take similar action.

The spokesman said an arrangement has been made whereby builders — until Aug. 15—may buy fixtures at old prices for use in buildings for which contracts were let prior to the decision to boost prices.

Meanwhile, it was learned that some contractors, believing the federal government may impose price controls similar to those in effect during the Second World War, are buying up big amounts of plumbing equipment. Some dealers have adopted quota systems in an effort to curb this "speculation."

4,400 Volunteer For War Service

Ottawa, Aug. 10 — (CP) — More than 4,400 men have volunteered for Canada's new fighting brigade and 1,324 of them so far have been accepted or are going through documentation, Army Headquarters announced today.

The Army said 4,400 had volunteered across the country up to last night for the special fighting brigade to be trained for action in Korea or elsewhere under the United Nations banner.

Many of the accepted applicants have been given a few days to complete personal affairs before "signing on the dotted line" and being dispatched to training centres.

But many already were on their way to the camps where they will train with units of Canada's regular active army and already "a sizeable number is in uniform."

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Aug. 11 (CP) Synopsis: Frost occurred last night in some areas of Northern Ontario. White River reported a temperature of 30 early this morning. Over the entire province the weather has turned cooler. Scattered showers and thundershowers were reported last night and early this morning in western Lake Erie region as the cooler air continued its southward motion.

Skies are expected to clear today over Southern Ontario. On Saturday skies will be sunny throughout Ontario with temperatures remaining on the cool side.

BASS TRANSFERRED TO OTHER LAKES

It seems that black bass have had their housing problems, too. But unlike a lot of humans, there is a solution for them. Recently Department of Lands and Forests officials placed trap-nets in certain lakes, where the bass are small in size due to overcrowding. The officials remove sufficient fish to leave the lakes properly stocked and transferred them to more suitable waters. Some 700 bass were transferred in this way from Loon Lake, Bangor township, to Baptiste Lake and the Madawaska River.

Grotto, 172½ Front St.

The car driven by Taylor was making a left turn from Coleman St. and had to stop at the intersection while waiting for another car coming from the opposite direction. The taxi could not stop in time to avoid the collision. The Taylor vehicle was damaged on the left rear fender and the left side of the trunk lid. Taxi damage was on the right front fender and headlight and the right half of the grill. Police constable Parker investigated.

Forty Youngsters Enjoying Healthful Exercises, Fun At Camp at Roblin's Lake

"Yes, he did, Bill. I saw him."

And forty young bronzed-bodied boys between 7 and 13 milled around in good-natured argument at the end of a softball game on the spacious field of the Kiwanis Club Fresh Air Camp at Roblin's Mills, Ameliasburg.

The game was a climax to ten glorious days of outdoor life for these younsters, most of them underprivileged, at the Salvation Army-operated camp.

Tomorrow, they reluctantly leave the scene of ten days of healthy recreation, wholesome food, activities dear to the heart of a boy, health-giving sunshine, and excellent supervision.

The camp is under the direction of Major Herbert Honeychurch and Mrs. Honeychurch of the Salvation Army here.

In an interview at the camp yesterday, the genial major told the Ontario Intelligencer that his proteges' behavious had been excellent during the camp period. "We had a few problems, but none was serious," he smiled.

Takes Personal Interest

Major Honeychurch takes a personal interest in each of his youthful charges. Each boy undergoes a personal inteview with the major who studies the boy's problems, if he has any, and in some cases undertakes to visit the boy's parents. His interest in his young friends does not end with the camp period.

Major Honeychurch has acquired the services of efficient camp counsellors. Included are Don Taylor and Bill Pacey who supervise the older boys, while Mary Townsend, Mary Cannons and Margaret Stebbings look after the interests of the smaller lads. The kitchen staff is composed of Mrs. Mason, cook, Mrs. J. Green and Mrs. Barclay. Mrs. G. Reid will join the counsellor staff during the ten-day period for the girls which starts next Monday.

Up Early in Morning

The boys hop from their cots at sharp 7.30 each morning and attend flag-raising ceremonies at 8. They're ready for breakfast at 8.15. Between 9 and 10 a.m. comes the work period, when they clean up their rooms, make their beds, tidy up everything in general and help with the dishwashing.

Special daily awards are made to each room in the camp house for general deportment, behavior at the table etc. At the close of the camp period an honor award will be made to the boy who was outstanding in his camp behavior.

There is no partiality shown. Each boy, no matter who, must do his share of camp duties. "I find this is a splendid aid to discipline," Major Honeychurch said.

After the camp work is done the boys attend a devotional period which is followed by handicraft sessions. Here they are taught to make many useful articles.

Swim in Morning

Then they dash away for a swim at 11 o'clock and come back at noon ready for dinner. After dinner comes another rest period when the boys go to their rooms and relax for an hour.

Then to the baseball diamond for softball. Four teams, named by the boys the "Cockroaches, Ants, Bedbugs and Dumbells" competed in a league over the camp period and provided many exciting games.

Comes another swim period followed by hiking trips, soccer and other sports. A short rest precedes the evening meal and later the boys attend movies, a campfire session and a sing-song. Then light refreshments of chocolate milk, a sandwich and cookies, and so to bed.

The young campers eat good wholesome food selected for growing boys' requirements. For breakfast they have cooked cereal, toast, various fruits and juices and plenty of milk. The menu varies of course, but yesterday the boys lunched on tasty stew with potatoes and vegetables, milk or soft drinks. For supper they had cold meats, salads, bread, fruit and milk.

Leave Camp Saturday

Tomorrow, as was said before, the boys will reluctantly bid farewell to the place where they have enjoyed a health-giving ten days. On Monday the ten-day camp session for girls will start.

There is no charge to these youngsters' parents. Everything is free thanks to the kind offices of the Kiwanis Club and the efficient supervision and interest of Major and Mrs. Honeychurch and their staff of capable assistants.

The beneficial effects of ten days at the Kiwanis-Salvation Army camp at Roblins Mills is plainly evident in the healthy tanned bodies, and clear eyes of these boys. Appreciation of the opportunity to enjoy the benefits of the camp was noted yesterday in their attitude towards the supervisory staff and counsellors. Both enjoy an out-and-out popularity with their charges. The boys were obedient to the letter, and their admiration for Major Honeychurch and his staff was very evident in their actions, and general behavior.

The possibility that Belleville someday will have a summer theatre such as there is in Kingston and Peterborough at the present time, is growing stronger every year.

Hopes for such a theatre were raised considerably with word that Joan Maraskas, daughter of the late Mr. M. Maraskas and sister of Louis Maraskas of this city, plans to return to the city in a few years following extensive training on Broadway and in summer stock.

Miss Maraskas is currently the assistant director and producer of the North Shore Players, Beverly, Massachusetts. This Cape Cod summer theatre is one of two in the United States to feature a stage and screen stars in summer presentations.

In addition to her production duties Miss Maraskas has found time to appear in a number of supporting roles this season. She played alongside Paulette Goddard in "Caesar and Cleopatra," and had the lead feminine supporting role in "Born Yesterday," starring Shelley Winters. Next week she will have a featured supporting role in "Harvey" which will star Burgess Meredith.

Brian Aherne is slated to appear with the North Shore Players in "Dear Brutus" and Tallulah Bankhead will star in a new play. Miss Maraskas has a part in both of these attractions.

Miss Maraskas was born and educated in Belleville and began her stage career by appearing in B. C. I. plays. She went on to Queen's University and later did radio work with Lorne Green's Radio Workshop.

She was a teacher at the Workshop for a brief time, after which she went to New York. In New York she has been directing juvenile actors and actresses in the winter. This past spring her pupils presented a program in Carnegie Hall.

Miss Maraskas has also appeared in experimental productions in New York receiving some very flattering reviews.

Following the summer season with the North Shore Players she plans to return to her teaching in New York. Ultimately she would like to establish a summer company in Belleville.

LATE MRS. JANIE HAINES

The funeral of the late Mrs. Janie Haines of Point Anne, was held from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral home to Point Anne United Church on Thursday afternoon, where the service was conducted by the Rev. Huge Muskie Caught at Bradley Bay

Campbellford, Aug. 11.—Mr. Charles Inglefield, of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, may hold the season's record 'lunge catch, with the 31-pounder he pulled out of Bradley Bay, a few miles south of Campbellford, on Wednesday evening.

The fish measured 46 1-2 inches in length and 22 1-2 inches in girth. It was taken on a jointed pikie minnow, and was landed after a struggle of some 20 minutes. Mr. Fred Hendricks, at whose cottage the visitor was staying, came out to give assistance when he saw the trouble Mr. Inglefield was having. Between the two men they managed to get the fish into the boat.

Mr. Inglefield sent the 'lunge to a firm in Toronto, to be mounted, and is anxiously waiting to get it back to Pittsburgh where his friends will have to believe his fish story.

Forty Youngsters Enjoying Healthful Exercises, Fun At Camp at Roblin's Lake

"Yes, he did, [illegible] him."

And forty yo[illegible]onzed-bodied boys between [illegible] and 13 milled around in good-natured argument at the end of a softball game on the spacious field of the Kiwanis Club Fresh Air Camp at Roblin's Mills, Ameliasburg.

The game was a climax to ten glorious days of outdoor life for these younsters, most of them underprivileged, at the Salvation Army-operated camp.

Tomorrow, they reluctantly leave the scene of ten days of healthy recreation, wholesome food, activities dear to the heart of a boy, health-giving sunshine, and excellent supervision.

The camp is under the direction of Major Herbert Honeychurch and Mrs. Honeychurch of the Salvation Army here.

In an interview at the camp yesterday, the genial major told the Ontario Intelligencer that his proteges' behaviour had been excellent during the camp period. "We had a few problems, but none was serious," he smiled.

Takes Personal Interest

Major Honeychurch takes a personal interest in each of his youthful charges. Each boy undergoes a personal inteview with the major who studies the boy's problems, if he has any, and in some cases undertakes to visit the boy's parents. His interest in his young friends does not end with the camp period.

Major Honeychurch has acquired the services of efficient camp counsellors. Included are Don Taylor and Bill Pacey who supervise the older boys, while Mary Townsend, Mary Cannons and Margaret Stebbings look after the interests of the smaller lads. The kitchen staff is composed of Mrs. Mason, cook, Mrs. J. Green and Mrs. Barclay. Mrs. G. Reid will join the counsellor staff during the ten-day period for the girls which starts next Monday.

Up Early in Morning

The boys hop from their cots at sharp 7.30 each morning and attend flag-raising ceremonies at 8. They're ready for breakfast at 8.15. Between 9 and 10 a.m. comes the work period, when they clean up their rooms, make their beds, tidy up everything in general and help with the dishwashing.

Special daily awards are made to each room in the camp house for general deportment, behavior at the table etc. At the close of the camp period an honor award will be made to the boy who was outstanding in his camp behavior.

There is no partiality shown. Each boy, no matter who, must do his share of camp duties. "I find this is a splendid aid to discipline," Major Honeychurch said.

After the camp work is done the boys attend a devotional period which is followed by handicraft sessions. Here they are taught to make many useful articles.

Swim in Morning

Then they dash away for a swim at 11 o'clock and come back at noon ready for dinner. After dinner comes another rest period when the boys go to their rooms and relax for an hour.

Then to the baseball diamond for softball. Four teams, named by the boys the "Cockroaches, Ants, Bedbugs and Dumbells" competed in a league over the camp period and provided many exciting games.

Comes another swim period followed by hiking trips, soccer and other sports. A short rest precedes the evening meal and later the boys attend movies, a campfire session and a sing-song. Then light refreshments of chocolate milk, a sandwich and cookies, and so to bed.

The young campers eat good wholesome food selected for growing boys' requirements. For breakfast they have cooked cereal, toast, various fruits and juices and plenty of milk. The menu varies of course, but yesterday the boys lunched on tasty stew with potatoes and vegetables, milk or soft drinks. For supper they had cold meats, salads, bread, fruit and milk.

Leave Camp Saturday

Tomorrow, as was said before, the boys will reluctantly bid farewell to the place where they have enjoyed a health-giving ten days. On Monday the ten-day camp session for girls will start.

There is no charge to these youngsters' parents. Everything is free thanks to the kind offices of the Kiwanis Club and the efficient supervision and interest of Major and Mrs. Honeychurch and their staff of capable assistants.

The beneficial effects of ten days at the Kiwanis-Salvation Army camp at Roblins Mills is plainly evident in the healthy tanned bodies, and clear eyes of these boys. Appreciation of the opportunity to enjoy the benefits of the camp was noted yesterday in their attitude towards the supervisory staff and counsellors. Both enjoy an out-and-out popularity with their charges. The boys were obedient to the letter, and their admiration for Major Honeychurch and his staff was very evident in their actions, and general behavior.

The possibility that Belleville someday will have a summer theatre such as there is in Kingston and Peterborough at the present time, is growing stronger every year.

Hopes for such a theatre were raised considerably with word that Joan Maraskas, daughter of the late Mr. M. Maraskas and sister of Louis Maraskas of this city, plans to return to the city in a few years following extensive training on Broadway and in summer stock.

Miss Maraskas is currently the assistant director and producer of the North Shore Players, Beverly, Massachusetts. This Cape Cod summer theatre is one of two in the United States to feature a stage and screen stars in summer presentations.

In addition to her production duties Miss Maraskas has found time to appear in a number of supporting roles this season. She played alongside Paulette Goddard in "Caesar and Cleopatra," and had the lead feminine supporting role in "Born Yesterday," starring Shelley Winters. Next week she will have a featured supporting role in "Harvey" which will star Burgess Meredith.

Brian Aherne is slated to appear with the North Shore Players in "Dear Brutus" and Tallulah Bankhead will star in a new play. Miss Maraskas has a part in both of these attractions.

Miss Maraskas was born and educated in Belleville and began her stage career by appearing in B. C. I. plays. She went on to Queen's University and later did radio work with Lorne Green's Radio Workshop.

She was a teacher at the Workshop for a brief time, after which she went to New York. In New York she has been directing juvenile actors and actresses in the winter. This past spring her pupils presented a program in Carnegie Hall.

Miss Maraskas has also appeared in experimental productions in New York receiving some very flattering reviews.

Following the summer season with the North Shore Players she plans to return to her teaching in New York. Ultimately she would like to establish a summer company in Belleville.

LATE MRS. JANIE HAINES

The funeral of the late Mrs. Janie Haines of Point Anne, was held from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral home to Point Anne United Church on Thursday afternoon, where the service was conducted by the Rev. Oscar Wagar, who also conducted the last rites at the graveside in Newburgh cemetery. During the service Mrs Insley sang a solo.

Huge Muskie Caught at Bradley Bay

Campbellford, Aug. 11.—Mr. Charles Inglefield, of Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, may hold the season's record 'lunge catch, with the 31-pounder he pulled out of Bradley Bay, a few miles south of Campbellford, on Wednesday evening.

The fish measured 46 1-2 inches in length and 22 1-2 inches in girth. It was taken on a jointed pikie minnow, and was landed after a struggle of some 20 minutes. Mr. Fred Hendricks, at whose cottage the visitor was staying, came out to give assistance when he saw the trouble Mr. Inglefield was having. Between the two men they managed to get the fish into the boat.

Mr. Inglefield sent the 'lunge to a firm in Toronto, to be mounted, and is anxiously waiting to get it back to Pittsburgh where his friends will have to believe his fish story.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Aug. 11 (CP)—Prices eased slightly in some key stocks in mid-day trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Mild selling appeared in base metals but industrials held firm. Volume for the first three hours was 995,000 shares, about 57,000 shares more than yesterday's similar period.

Industrials were mixed in dealings but gains still outnumbered losses. Aluminum gained $2 at $79 and Dominion Bridge gained 7/8 at 45 1/8. Key stocks like Ford A, which reached a new high for the year yesterday, C. P. R. and Brazilian dipped fractionally.

Major issues in base metals dipped and the index of representative stocks showed a decline after reaching a 13-year high in the two previous sessions. Consolidated Smelters dropped 1-4 at 111. Noranda and Hudson Bay also dipped.

Golds gained in a handful of issues but the overall picture was one of fractional losses. Some seniors were ahead fractions, Kerr-Addison adding 1-8 at 16.

Western oils were somewhat lower. Supertest Common and Preferred were the exceptions.

Creamery butter production, the Bureau of Statistics reported Thursday, totalled 36,420,000 lbs., compared with last year's 38,010,000. This decline brought the seven-month total for 1950 to 155,294,000 pounds, down from last year's 161,011,000.

Margarine production, however, gained from 5,525,000 lbs. in July, 1949, to 5,891,000. Output in the seven months climbed from 38,756,000 to 54,928,000.

Robert M. Carmichael Retires After 48 Years of Service

The big locomitve eased to a stop at the Canadian National Railways station yesterday afternoon. To the many passengers aboard the crack train, Belleville was just another stop or a terminus.

But to Engineer Robert M. Carmichael, 290 Charles Street it was the end of not only the Toronto-Belleville run, but of 48 years service on the railroad.

As he stepped from his engine for the last time, he was greeted by Mrs. Carmichael and son, J. W. Carmichael, Ottawa, Divisional Superintendent A. M. Shae, company officials and a large group of personal friends.

There was probably a lump in the throat of Engineer Carmichael as he bade a silent farewell to his train for he had spent 38 years of his term of duty in the passenger service.

Born in Belleville, August 28, 1885, a son of the late W. R. Carmichael, well-known city druggist of those days, Mr. Carmichael heard the call of his country at an early age. He enlisted in the 3rd Canadian Mounted Rifles, and served in the Boer War under Colonel Williams.

Entered Service in 1902

Returning from South Africa, he entered the service of the Grand Trunk at Sarnia in 1902 as a locomotive fireman and in 1905 was promoted to engineer. In 1907 he became associated with the Canadian Pacific Railway on the north shore of Lake Superior, remaining there until 1911 when he joined the Canadian Northern Railway's construction crew and upon completion of this term of duty went into the passenger service.

Mr. Carmichael had the honor of taking the frist engine over the Canadian Northern Railway bridge in south Belleville over which the C.P.R. now operates. He has been in passenger service since 1912 working out of Trenton to Ottawa. In 1920 he moved to Ottawa, running between the Capital City and North Bay, Ottawa and Montreal and later Ottawa to Belleville, after the amalgamation, on the Canadian National.

Served 23 Years

He served 23 years on the General committee of adjustment of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers with W. B. West, Winnipeg, general chairman of the Canadian Northern Railway. Later he became a charter member of the Canadian Association of Railway Enginemen, being, as he puts it, a "firm believer in a Canadian organization for Canadians."

What is he going to do now? If you visit his summer camp in the northern part of the county, you will likely see him at his favorite sport of fishing.

Young farmers from four counties, Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Northumberland will be out in full force to take part in an outstanding program of events.

Livestock judging; homemaking club exhibits and demonstrations by the girls Home Garden Clubs and Belleville Calf Club will feature the day's program.

In the evening the young farmers will be the guests of the Belleville Creameries, Trenton Dairies, Trent Valley Creameries and Glen Roy Creamery at a banquet.

The Northern Electric Company has donated a mantel radio-receiver to the outstanding junior in the boys' section and also a radio to the outstanding participant in the girls' section. The Esquire for Men has presented merchandise to the boy scoring the highest aggregate number of points in the entire competition.

The St. John Ambulance Brigade will be on the grounds at all times and will be able to give first aid to anyone injured.

The parking space in the centre of the Fair Grounds is easily accessible from the Catherine St. gate, along with other improved parking facilities, and will be able to take care of the cars that arrive at the Fair.

Large Channel Cat Gives Fishermen 9-Hour Battle

Campbellford, Aug. 11 — Two men, William Archer of Akron, Ohio, owner of the Blue Roof Cabin summer resort on Bradley Bay south of Campbellford, and Ted Cottrell of Hillman, Michigan, had the thrill of their lives on Wednesday, when they hooked a 14-pound channel cat at 9.45 a. m. while fishing in the bay. The huge fish refused to be boated, and would not break water. The men played the fish until their motor ran out of gas, and they had to shout to passing boats to get a new supply.

At dinner time, boats put out from shore with sandwiches and cigarettes, as news of the marathon spread fast, and people came from near and far to watch.

In the middle of the afternoon, a third man had to go out to take over the duties of handling the motor, because Mr. Archer by this time was played out.

Finally at a few minutes before 7 p. m. the men manoeuvred the fish in near the shore, where it was gaffed and pulled into the boat. All during the fight which lasted for more than nine hours, the fish had not broken water.

The story of the nine - hour battle is hard to believe, but it was witnessed by scores of persons in cottages and dozens more in boats, who came out to watch the struggle. This time, the men have the fish to prove their story.

Mr. Cottrell landed a 15-pound muskie at the same spot last Tuesday, but it did not tow the boat around, as did the channel cat.

Numerous channel cats have been caught in these water, but so far this one is believed to hold the record for putting up the longest battle.

New Food Store For Belleville Shows Progress

People in Belleville responsible for the family food shopping will be vitally interested in the progress of the new Dominion Master Market on Victoria Avenue. At the present time, only a few small details remain to be done to the exterior of the building. The attractive front of the store has been completed in light cream macotta with the name "Dominion" carried out in maroon.

Work on the free parking area adjoining the store is progressing and when completed will be capable of accommodating upwards of 250 cars per day.

Inside the building, which measures 60' x 113', plastering has been finished and the hardwood floors laid. Work of installing the specially designed fixtures will soon commence.

Some of the highlights of the interior design of this new Dominion Master Market will include broad aisles that will make it convenient for the shopper to move a bundle-buggie about freely. Lighting will be by rows of fluorescent tubes placed close to the ceiling. These will spread a pleasant, glare-free light throughout all sections of the store.

Another feature which promises Dominion Master Market shoppers additional convenience is the shelf arrangement. All shelving is of the easy-to-reach type which was specially designed in Dominion Stores' construction shops after exhaustive research.

In bringing to the shoppers of Belleville an up-to-the-minute shopping centre, great emphasis has been placed on refrigeration for proper protection of perishables. Various units ranging from the giant walk-in box for meats to the smaller size for cheese and dairy products will be used. This specialized equipment assures the shopper freshness and quality right to the moment of purchase.

Through the use of a battery of check-out desks, each equipped with a modern electric cash register, Dominion Stores is planning for fast, efficient service which again will be a great boon to hurried housewives. — Advt.

Percentage of Passes in BCI Departmental Examination Sets Record Says Principal

(The following are the comments of Mr. G. E. Currie, Principal of the Belleville Collegiate Institute, on the Upper School examination results published elsewhere in this issue.)

"In the recent Upper School Departmental examinations results of the Belleville Collegiate, B. C. I. students passed in 340 papers of a total of 375 papers written. This represents a 90.7 per cent pass which, perhaps, is the highest in the history of the school.

"Records over the past six years show a steady increase in the per cent pass from the 78 per cent in 1945 to 83 per cent in 1949 and then a jump to over ninety per cent this year.

"The students concerned, as well as their teachers and the Board of Education are to be highly complimented on this outstanding showing.

The following five students stood highest:—

1st: Miss Joan Allen wrote ten papers and obtained seven firsts, one second, one third, and one credit;

2nd: Joel Mazer wrote nine papers, obtaining six firsts, two seconds, and one third;

3rd: Elspeth Wishart wrote nine papers obtaining five firsts, three seconds and one third;

Miss Patricia Smith and David Lawrence each wrote nine papers obtaining five firsts, two seconds, and two credits.

"While the proficiency of the best students in this year's class did not attain as many firsts as other classes of the past five years, at the same time the standing of the class as a whole was much higher.

"Thirty-two candidates completed their senior matriculation, qualifying them for the honor graduation diploma and entrance to university, normal school, and training schools for nurses. Of this number, twenty-four candidates completed their full requirements in one year.

"It was noticeable this year, as in former years, that the highest standings in most cases were obtained by those students who took the full Upper School course in one year.

"In most cases where students obtained standing in one or two subjects they were either taking Middle School work and only starting on Upper School work, or else in the preceding year they had completed Upper School except for these subjects and were taking them this year along with the Special Commercial course."

MONSIGNOR NICHOLSON

The death of Monsignor J. F. Nicholson, Parish Priest of the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, is a great loss to the city and district generally. Ever since his arrival here twenty years ago he has made a host of friends of every class and creed in the community. His thoughtfulness for others, and great generosity of nature earned for him the respect and love of his parishioners, and others who were privileged to know him well.

Monsignor Nicholson was what is known as a "Man's man." He was never happier than when associating with war veterans in their periodical get-togethers. Despite his position in church affairs, he had the rare faculty of being on even terms with all those with whom he came in contact. He loved people and this inspired in return, a desire to be his friend and to follow his counsel when it was sought.

Despite years of ill health, Monsignor Nicholson carried on his multiple duties uncomplainingly with no thought of burdening others with his own personal problems. Instead he borrowed of his own frail strength to give comfort and consolation to others in distress, or to lend support to some organization he felt worthy of assistance. Such was the calibre of the man.

Monsignor Nicholson served his country and his church well. For gallantry in the field during World War One he won the Military Cross, and it might be added that this honor was not lightly bestowed. The war also exacted its price as it did with so many others, and as a result his health eventually broke down, and was the prime cause of his untimely death. His rise to a position of eminence and responsibility in the affairs of his church is testimony of his ability in his field of life endeavor. Here again the rewards are given only to those who will endow their work with honor and graciousness, plus an executive ability to get things done. These qualities of leadership are not the heritage of every man. The Monsignor had them in full measure.

No tribute to Monsignor Nicholson would be complete without mention of his great love for children. He was at his best when in their company. His understanding manner enabled him to win their trust and affection. The passing of this fine gentleman will be felt by hundreds of young people with a deep sense of personal loss.

Now his work is o'er, but the memory of him will linger long in this community of which he was such a vital part. This city has gained much for his having lived here and his friendship enriched the lives of all who knew and loved him best. Their sense of loss can, perhaps, be expressed best in those lines Lord Tennyson composed so eloquently . . .

"But O for the touch of a vanish'd hand,
And the sound of a voice that is still!"

AN INVESTMENT IN HUMAN HAPPINESS

The official opening of the C.N.R.A.A. Grounds on Station Street Wednesday afternoon marked another milestone in the development of recreational facilities in the city. It also opened a new chapter in the relationship of busy men to community welfare.

The new recreational area, bounded on the north by the C.N.R. tracks, on the west by Cannifton Road, and on the south by Station Street, has, literally, been created out of nothing. Today, there stands on what was once an unsightly breeding ground of insect pests, and a partial swamp, a flat, well-tended athletic field serving the children and adults, railroad employees, and citizens of Belleville from a large area in the northeast end of the city.

Those responsible for the establishment of this playground are to be congratulated. An undertaking of this kind has, as its only reward, the satisfaction of a job well done. The labor, energy and money spent in its construction are investments in human happiness and well-being.

Within the past few years, the growing tendency to realize community responsibility for the recreation of youth has resulted in the construction of several children's parks throughout the city. The new Canadian National Railway Athletic Association Recreation Park is the result of association spirit that mushroomed from a few to many and which was motivated by the desire to provide recreation, and playground facilities for children and adults and those of its communal environs.

The unselfish giving of time, money and effort to the construction of this park by members of the Association and other employees of the railway is a tribute to their public-spiritedness. The park will always be a tangible reminder to those who follow, of the foresight and initiative of those who conceived it, and brought it into being.

Their example is worthy of emulation.

THEY FAKED MERMAIDS

The Chinese were always very clever at stitching together fake animals. They were particularly good at building mermaids. Many a sailor came back from the East with a "genuine mermaid" skin — really, of course, the body of a monkey and the tail of a large fish cleverly joined together. These fakes were so well known to European scientists that when the first specimens of the remarkable duck-billed platypus came to England there was a frenzied hunt for stitches before the existence of a real beaked and web-footed furred animal was officially recognized. — Brandon Sun.

MAN AND BOY

I hope no boy will see in me
What in a man no boy should see,
Or hear from me, at work or play,
The speech no grown-up man should say.

I hope I never shall destroy
The admiration of a boy,
Or ever let him learn from me
How small and weak a man can be.

Boy's pride in men I'd like to keep
By never being mean or cheap.
I'd hate to think I was the first
To show him manhood at its worst.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

At this season of the year, multitudes of people are exposed to the dangers of matrimony. During the summer, more engagements are contracted than at any other time. It is the custom of The Packsack to utter a few words of wisdom, if not of warning, during the holiday season.

If you are going to be so ill-advised as to select a mate for life in the unreal and theatrical atmosphere of summer, there are certain broad, basic principles the observation of which will safeguard you to the extent that anybody can be safeguarded in such a pickle.

The first of these is: never marry a first-born or a last-born child of a family. Both have been hopelessly, irretrievably spoiled.

If he or she was the first-born a sense of importance is ingrained right into the fibre. The first-born always wears an air of authority. What a child learns in its earliest formative years becomes the foundation of its character. Jealousy is also a characteristic of the first-born. The seeds of jealousy sown in a first-born, when the next member of the family came along, are great big seeds like those of a melon. All through life they stand ready to flourish into beautiful bright green verdure on the slightest excuse.

The last-born of a family is almost worse. Where the first-born was spoiled by the excessive welcome received, and by the sense of importance acquired in the first couple of years of life, the last-born was spoiled by being kept a baby as long as possible. A last born child really never grows up. It is spoiled by a mother who pampers it and tries to keep it young in order to use up all the clothes of the earliest members of the family. Its older brothers and sisters treat it like an infant all its days. If it is not spoiled by pampering, it is spoiled by being overwhelmed. Many a last-born child never learns to talk. It never had a chance.

Therefore, if you must become engaged, pick somebody right out of the middle of a fairly large litter. They have been kicked around. They are well broken in.

Gasoline Stations In N.J. Re-open For Business

Trenton, N.J., Aug. 11—(AP)—Leaders of New Jersey Gasoline Retailers, who shut down their stations Tuesday in a price war, agreed Thursday night to reopen for business immediately.

Governor Alfred E. Driscoll announced that an agreement to end the three-day shutdown was reached after a three-hour conference between state officials and executive members of the N.J. Gasoline Retailers Association.

John Dressler, association president, said he would recommend to the 3,000 members of his organization that they reopen their stations immediately and return to the standard prices in effect before the start of the gasoline price war which dropped rates as much as four cents a gallon.

More than half of the filling stations in the state have been shut since the Retailers' Association voted last Tuesday to close in protest against the price cutting.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

THOUGHTS WHILE SHAVING

Maybe I'm all kerflumixed, but it seems to me the people who are hoarding things are plain nuts . . . For one thing, they're jacking up prices on themselves and, for another, they're acting as if they had never heard of the atom bomb . . . As I see it, about the only thing worth hoarding these days is a pair of running shoes.

That's what I told the guy who does the purchasing for my night club a couple of days ago. He came to see me and said we ought to buy a lot of Scotch — that it was tough to get during the last war and figured to be even tougher during the next . . . I told him to relax, to go along as per usual.

Here's how I figure it . . . If the connivers in the Kremlin decide it isn't smart to shoot it out with us, our boats will continue to cross the Atlantic and we'll get all the Scotch we want . . . if they do fight us, chances are we'll give 'em the full atomic treatment and they'll return the favor by hitting back at our big cities . . . Well, one of the first towns to get it will be New York, and the day a blockbuster hits Times Square, what am I going to do with a lot of Scotch? Not even the waiters — let alone the customers — will show up at my joint . . . That is, if there's any joint left.

Incidentally, the dames who are buying those extra pairs of nylons ought to have their scatter-brains examined . . . If we have to start running for the hills, what makes them think anybody is going to stop to look at their legs . . . ?

Speaking of blood, sweat and more blood, a movie producer recently told me that most of the gangster pictures are giving a bad account of themselves at the box office. He said his studio had made a study of the flickers it had produced in the past five years, categorizing them under two headings: the "upbeats" (which inspire and elevate), and the "downbeats" (which leave the spectator feeling grim and gritty) . . . He said the figures proved that the public prefers love-'em-ups to shoot-'em-ups — that a kiss in the dark invariably outgrows a stab in the back . . . Well I hope he pays attention to his own statistics. I'm plenty tired of the one about the batter-and-yegg man named "Duke" . . .

On August 19th, Bernard M. Baruch is going to celebrate his 80th birthday, and I guess a good part of the country will celebrate it with him . . . Newspapers from Nome to Nigeria will review the heady history of the gent who got our country off the hook in two world wars, and whose recent emergency - control program is so downright forthright.

I phoned my old boss the other day and told him that Eleanor and I would like to throw a birthday shindig for him at our place in Mt. Kisco . . . Mr. B. said he'd rather we didn't — that this was not the time for "monkey-business as usual."

Come to think of it, there's no one around the President who has had a dime's worth of experience in getting a nation ready for war . . . Bernie is about the only man we have with any know-how in this department, and it's my hunch that somewhere along the line Harry S.— who has been playing his cards smart and tough lately — is going to kiss and make up with Old Silvertop . . . After all, when the body politic is sick, it's a good idea to send for the doctor who put it on its feet before.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

FOOD

Is there a single subject, in all the realm of fact and fiction, that so hovers forever about us, as does the one of food? We think of it methodically. Even when we think we do not need it some urge or person is sure to remind us, and out for food we go!

The wise dietitians, and many a health doctor repeatedly advise us, and tell us we all eat too much, especially the worker in the city at his desk or bench. And what a variety of foods to select from and how many of them are disguised from their early birth! At all eating places you are almost sure to find some sort of meat on the menu, yet many of the world's most famous and outstanding athletes have never tasted meat. And there is the forever youthful George Bernard Shaw, climbing toward a hundred in age, who thrives on daily dishes of vegetables.

Charles Lamb once wrote of a man who said that "one cannot have a pure mind who refuses apple-dumplings!" Even Lamb confessed that he grew weary of mere vegetables, though he did say: "Only I stick to asparagus, which still seems to inspire gentle thoughts."

The owner of a pet dog or a highly touted race horse doesn't do any fooling about the sort of food that he furnishes it. It's the most carefully selected and balanced to a T. But he will pay little attention to his own eating habits. There is no subject upon which so many people are ignorant as the sort of food that their bodies need and ought to have. The right food for many would revolutionize their lives.

I asked a friend recently, as we viewed his fine looking dog, how many times a day he fed it, and he said, "Only once." I recall that I lived one entire year when a student in college, upon one meal a day—not through choice, however—yet I seemed none the worse for it and thrived quite well, indeed.

Not only should we learn what kind of food is the best for us, but how much of it we ought to eat. We ought to be smart enough to decide—but how few we are, or have the will to so order? The fit and alert eat little—and intelligently—and live long!

Malik's Tactics Serve Propaganda Purposes of Reds

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Long continuance of Russia's obstructive tactics in the United Nations might have the ultimate result of breaking the peace organization wide open.

The two blocs—communism and democracy—then would go their separate ways. That would give the finishing touch to the two worlds which, in effect, we already have.

The present Soviet filibuster for propaganda purposes certainly adds nothing to world unity. On the contrary, it is emphasizing —as it is intended to do—the differences between the two ideological blocks.

Surely history has produced few other such astonishing exhibitions as daily have been revolving about Soviet delegate Jakob Malik while he has conducted his Kremlin-directed filibuster. This whole affair would be absurd if it didn't have such grim potentialities.

Not So Childish

The Malik tactics at first blush seem like school-boy stuff—and in a sense they are. Yet the manner in which they are employed by the shrewd Soviet representative makes for the propaganda which Russia wants to spread throughout the world—and especially in Asia.

That propaganda is this: imperialist United States and her allies are seeking conquest in the Far East. A prime example is the United States' aggression against little North Korea which now is battling for its life. And the capitalists are plotting against other helpless peoples.

You and I know that such charges are pure bunk. The U.N. members know its bunk, because they have charged North Korea with aggression and have called for U.N. countries to give military aid to the South Koreans.

Moreover, the Moscow allegations can't fool great Asiatic leaders like Prime Minister Nehru of India. As a matter of fact the Indian delegation in the U.N., has voted with the western countries to try to spike Malik's manoeuvres, and has been attending the parleys of the western countries.

The Big Lie

Still, while such leaders may not be misled, there are untold millions of Asiatic peoples who might be. They are the ones Moscow seeks to impress, and the U.N. makes a wonderful sounding board for Malik. His bitter charges rebound and reach the ears of Asia through the red leaders in the various countries.

Meantime, of course, Malik's tactics are hamstringing important activities of the peace organization. Indeed, if the Russian crusade of obstruction continues it may result in breaking the U.N. wide open. Observers believe the next meeting of the General Assembly in September is likely to give an indication of whether the organization can weather the storm.

Current indications don't encourage optimism for betterment. The Security Council members held a closed-door caucus yesterday at which an appeal was made to Malik to stop his obstruction. He was reported to have been "more stiff than ever", and the appeal failed.

So the unbelievable fight continues—and none can say when or how it will end. Indications are, however, that non-communist members will peel their gloves off and give Malik some two-fisted responses.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis, or treatment will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letter should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address: Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

BIOPSY

A biopsy is an inspection of tissue taken from a living body. The inspection may be made immediately or postponed depending upon the urgency of the circumstances. A microscopic examination of the removed tissue is the most important element of the procedure.

It is often impossible to estimate the nature of a "growth" without a biopsy. A benign tumor may feel and look just like a malignant tumor, very often. Ordinarily, in biopsy of tissues lying close to the surface of the body, a very minor surgical procedure is required which may be done under local anesthesia. Once in a while general anesthesia is preferred in order to avoid distortion of the tissues as viewed through the microscope. Distortion may result from the swelling of the tissues incident to the injection of the anesthetic. In most instances the suspicious tissue can be "bocked off" at some little distance by injecting the anesthetic into nerve pathways, thus avoiding injection directly into the suspicious area.

The advantage of a biopsy can perhaps best be illustrated in tumors—such as breast tumors. The patient with a suspicious "lump" in the breast is prepared for an operation to remove every vestige of cancer. The operation commences with a biopsy, in which through a very small incision a small piece of the suspicious tissue is removed and subjected to an immediate examination by a pathologist. During the few minutes delay required by the examination, the patient is not further disturbed. If the tissue is pronounced "benign," a very minor operation is the result. If malignant, a more extensive procedure aimed at complete removal of the cancer-bearing tissue follows.

If the tissue is benign, the patient is saved a perhaps mutilating operation. If the tissue is malignant, no time is lost in immediately instituting the proper treatment.

Biopsies are not totally confined to the determination of absence of cancer. It does not follow that anyone who is to have a biopsy is under suspicion of having cancer. The diagnosis of many diseases other than cancer may be established by biopsy.

Not all biopsies require an incision through the skin. Biopsy specimens may be obtained from the various body cavities without incision and often without the need of even local anesthesia.

A modern method of obtaining biopsy specimens from body cavities requires no more than a gentle scraping of the surface tissues to obtain cells which are transferred to a glass slide and inspected by an expert pathologist.

Internal organs such as the liver and spleen may be biopsied by a painless procedure in which a hollow needle is inserted through the skin and overlying tissues into the substance of the organ. When the needle is removed it will contain a cylindrical plug of tissue, sufficient for microscopic examination.

The marrow of bones may thus be removed in minute quantity by inserting a needle through the outer hard shell of bone. Various diseases of the blood and blood-forming organs may thus be diagnosed.

There are two points I want to emphasize in connection with biopsies. First, the entire purpose and value of a biopsy is determined by what takes place in the mind of the pathologist who views the tissues through his microscope. Apart from this the entire procedure is valueless. Every recognized hospital is attended by a certified specialist in pathology who is competent to pass reliable judgment upon what he sees. It has always seemed unjust to me, that too often the patient is unaware of the services of the pathologist and unaware of the tremendous training he must have.

The second point is that no patient need blanch or swoon when the doctor mentions "biopsy," or suggests removing a bit of tissue for examination. Many diseases other than cancer are diagnosed by biopsy—a great many.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Foot Exercises

Do you have a booklet on foot exercises? I haven't just fallen arches but have had flat feet all my life. (Mrs. A. H. I.)

Answer—No. Send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope for booklet Care of the Feet. Walking, dancing, running are best exercises for feet.

Heat Generator

Why is it that our two year old baby sleeps with only one light baby blanket over her, while my husband and I, sleeping in the same room need 2 or 3 winter blankets over us to keep warm? (Mrs. W. K.)

Answer—Baby's internal combustion generates relatively more heat than adult's and has relatively less surface area for cooling the body. It sounds as though you let the baby sleep in comfort rather than piling covers on the poor kid as so many dumb parents do.

Bow Legs

Is it possible to correct bow legs? The boy is 8 years old. (J. B. A.)

Answer—Only by surgery in a person over five years of age.

Horsing Around

Saw an article where the herb called horsetail will bring down high blood pressure. I'll be grateful gor your advice. (L. M.)

Answer—Equisetum, horsetail, gun-bright scouring rush. It is a feeble diuretic (increases kidney function), but as for any effect on high bloods pressure—horse feathers.

Leave it to Webster

I have taken your advice with advantage for ten years. Now let me offer you some advice, to wit, there is no such word as Preventative in the English language. You used it in your letter to me yesterday. (G. H.)

Answer—Thank you. May I pass the information along to N. Webster? He uses it in his book.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE DEEPER REASON

A young man some time ago made an amusing complaint to his wife. "My dear," he said, "there is something the matter with that clothes closet in which I hang my clothes. I think there must be dampness there for my suits are shrinking in a most alarming fashion."

His wife laughed heartily and told the joke to his family and friends, who got a good laugh out of it also. There was nothing the matter, of course, with the clothes closet; the truth was that the young man was beginning to take on weight. His clothes were not shrinking; he was expanding.

Preachers have been pointing out for centuries that people are usually to blame for most of the trouble in which they find themselves. Novels, plays, huge volumes of essays have been written and sermons without number delivered laboring the point that if we want to discover a reason for our mistakes, we had better start looking on the inside of our hearts. Don't blame them on others. Maeterlinck said, "Nothing ever happens to a man that is not of the nature of himself."

If your clothes begin to shrink, don't blame it on the clothes closet. There is a deeper reason—much deeper. So there is for most other annoying circumstances, mistakes, and troubles which assail us.

Deceased was educated in Trenton where he resided all his life and was a member of St. George's Anglican Church. The late Mr. Howard was a veteran of World War I, and a member of Trenton Branch 110, Canadian Legion.

His fellow canal workers will be the pallbearers and the Trenton Canadian Legion Branch will form a guard of honor. In the absence of Rev. A. S. McConnell, who is away on vacation, Rev. F. Beazer, Carrying Place will be the officiating clergyman.

Two Injured In Car Collision At Intersection

Trenton—(Special)— Two persons were slightly injured in a two car collision at the intersection of Wilkins and Film Streets yesterday morning. Police estimate that $200 damage was caused to each of the cars.

Mrs. Violet Cleary, 35 Alfred Street, a passenger in one of the cars involved in the crash which was driven by her husband R. E. Cleary, received a two-inch cut on her forehead that required stitches.

Robert Lawson, 17, of 23 Terrance Street, driver of the other car suffered a cut on the right side of the abdomen that also required stitches. There was no doctor available in Trenton at the time, as some are on vacation, others were at Belleville Hospital and the rest were out on calls. Consequently, both Mrs. Cleary and Lawson had to be taken to Belleville for medical attention.

According to police, Lawson who was driving west on Wilkins Street, turned on to Film Street and into the path of an approaching car driven by Mr. Cleary who was proceeding south on Film Street.

MONSIGNOR

Educated in Kingston

The late Monsignor's education was received in St. Mary's Separate School and Regiopolis College, Kingston, Ontario.

After completing his theological course in the Grand Seminary, Montreal, he was the first priest to be ordained by the late Archbishop Sprait of Kingston. He received Holy Orders on July 16th, 1912, in St. Mary's Cathedral, Kingston.

After a few months spent in the Cathedral, the young priest served for a time at Frankford and Prescott respectively—being associated with the late Monsignor John Masterson, V.G., in the latter place.

After the outbreak of the First World War (1914-1918) the then Father Nicholson, enlisted as a chaplain. He was commissioned with the honorary rank of captain according to the document signed by order of the Governor-General, the Duke of Devonshire, on November 7th, 1916, and he went overseas the following February. At the front he was attached to the Eighth Brigade, Canadian Mounted Rifles, and won the Military Cross at Amiens for gallantry and devotion to duty. He was wounded during heavy artillery and machine gun fire.

Returns Home

Shortly after returning to Canada in 1919, he was appointed to the principalship of Regiopolis College, Kingston, where for eleven years he labored most successfully.

In 1923, His Grace, the late Archbishop Spratt, named him Vicar General of Kingston Archdiocese. Upon the appointment of that Archbishop's successor in October 1929, the dignity was confirmed by the late Archbishop M. J. O'Brien. Since the appointment of the Most Reverend J. A. O'Sullivan, the present head of the Archdiocese, the late Monsignor served in the same position.

Reverend Charles J. Killeen, who had been pastor of St. Michael's Parish in this city for some nineteen years, died on June 7th, 1930, and he was succeeded by Father Nicholson on September 7th, 1930.

Festive Occasion

Tuesday evening, October 21, 1930, was a festive occasion for the new parish priest, for he entertained Most Reverend Andrea Cassulo-Apostolic Delegate to Canada, several bishops, priests and prominent laymen of many faiths, at a banquet in St. Michael's Academy. There were about 500 present marking the dedication of the newly constructed academy which had been laid in ruins by a disastrous fire on January 20, 1928.

Easter Sunday, 1931, brought a new honor to Father Nicholson for a magnificent Ostensoreum, to be used at Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament, was presented to him by his admiring parishioners. He was henceforth to be called "Monsignor" for he had been raised to the rank of Domestic Prelate by His Holiness, Pope Pius XI.

On Wednesday, September 29, 1937, Monsignor commemorated his Silver Jubilee of Ordination to the priesthood. It was also the 100th anniversary of the erection of the first stone church of the parish. His Grace, the late Archbishop O'Brien of Kingston, and many scores of priests graced the occasion, which was marked by a Solemn High Mass, celebrated by the Jubilarian, and a banquet and presentation in the Academy.

Observe Gradual Decline

Monsignor, so active and popular at civic or military gatherings showed signs of failing health some three years ago. As the months progressed his friends were saddened to observe a gradual decline until the evening of November 15th last, he suffered a seizure in the parish house after returning from the regular meeting of the Knights of Columbus. He was rushed to the Hotel Dieu in Kingston, where he remained for three weeks. His beloved Belleville drew him back like a magnet and he wished to be here among those whom he loved. Christmas Midnight Mass loomed up in his mind and he hoped to greet the people as he had so often done. This privilege was denied him and he spent the remaining time in the confinement of his room. He finally left the parish for the last time at the end of last March, and his condition steadily grew worse in the Hotel Dieu, Kingston.

Loved and Respected

Monsignor Nicholson leaves behind him the love and respect of his sorrowing parishioners whose sentiments are shared by the citizens in general. Monsignor was kind and generous to a fault and the many improvements in the parish testify that he had its welfare at heart.

The establishment of a complete High School course will be a lasting monument to him. The erection of beautiful St. Michael's convent in 1941, and the renovation of the old building on John St. to serve as headquarters of the third, fourth and fifth forms of the High School department, ae examples of his solicitude for the cause of education.

The beautiful grounds in the vicinity of the Church—the embellishment of the interior of the edifice itself were a few of his many achievements.

Monsignor's friends were legion The smallest child and those from the humblest of ranks founr easy access to his gracious presence. The former officers of the regiments in which he served during the First World War were frequent visitors at the Rectory. The Apostolic Delegate to Canada, Most Reverend Ildebrando Antoniutti, honored him on frequent occasions by making a friendly call. The late Cardinal Villeneuve of Quebec paid him the signal honor of spending some time in Belleville and officiating at a special Mass on October 18th., 1943.

Favored by Cardinal

Culminating all was the extraordinary favor extended by His Eminence James Cardinal McGuigan, who came to Belleville on March 26, 1946, to celebrate his first Mass as Cardinal, in the Province of Ontario. Monsignor and his parishioners were privileged to honor the Cardinal several hours before he was received in his Episcopal city of Toronto.

On April 13th, 1947, His Grace J. A. O'Sullivan, presided at the investiture of Monsignor as a Protonotary-Apostolic. This was a fitting culmination of the many honors received during his useful life. This new honor gave him the privilege of using Pontifical Insignia. His Grace, on this occasion, rendered fitting tribute to the useful career that this new protonotary had rendered in the service of the Church.

WHITE TERNS SEEN

St. Thomas, Aug. 11 (CP) — Hundreds of white terns, similar in appearance to gulls, have been gathering this week at nearby Port Stanley. A rough count put the number at about 1,000. Yesterday the birds left as suddenly as they had arrived.

CHURCHILL

Churchill's motion said such a European force should act in full co-operation with the United States and Canada in support of the United Nations Security Council.

Churchill demanded the prompt creation of "a real offensive front in Europe."

"The United States and Britain must send large forces to the continent, and France must revive its army," Churchill declared, calling on the countries of the West to do their share in protecting civilization.

The Conservative leader said that the whole West is "in great danger" with the "freedom and civilization of Western Europe under the shadow of Soviet aggression."

"Committees have been set up which have been talking ever since," he said. "Conferences have been held with high officials and statesmen. A pretentious facade has been displayed by the governments responsible for our safety."

"But in actual fact," he said, "apart from the establishment of an American bomber base in Britain, nothing has been done to protect our people."

Churchill complained that his warnings to the West in the past had fallen on unheeding ears, or were used to sustain the false accusation by the East of warmongering.

"Now, however, suddenly the lightning flash in Korea and the spreading conflagration which has followed it has roused the whole free world to keen and vehement realization of its dangers; and many measures are now proposed which, if they had been taken two years ago, would at least have yielded some fruit."

Churchill warned against depending too much on the West's combined superiority in steel and other materials.

"Most of this might be the prize of the aggressor, if we were struck down."

Replying to statements by French leaders that France does not want to have to be liberated again, Churchill said:

"After a period of Russian communist occupation there would not be much left to liberate. The systematic liquidation of all elements hostile to communism would leave little which could be recognized by the rescuers of the survivors."

He welcomed the presence of German delegates in the Assembly, but added that they "should have been here a year ago."

GETS HOT, TOO —

Eight basic tests which determine a motorist's driving aptitude are given with the equipment shown here in the interior of the Labatt mobile safe driving unit which will be seen at Belleville Fair next week. More than 75,000 Canadians have taken these free tests, which include a strength grip, reaction time, vision tests and night driving tests. Find out how you rate as a driver when the safety unit is at the fair grounds.

Italian fishermen carry the fight directly to their quarry. Recent reports describe fishermen equipped with diving suits and underwear guns battling for their catch.

The aqueous warriors would have to be quick on the draw if they ever ran into American swordfish. Strangely, though their swords can rip right through some boat bottoms, the adult swordfish have no teeth.

The flesh of the swordfish is rich but rather crumbly. The best section is called "centre cut" swordfish. Absence of bones, head or tail, as ordinarily purchased, makes the fish practically wasteless.

To balance the somewhat dry flavor of swordfish, serve it with a tangy butter sauce. The butter may be melted, or merely softened and combined with lemon juice and capers before it is spread on the fish.

Broil swordfish steaks on one side only. Finish the cooking by baking in the oven compartment above the broiler. If you use an electric range with top and bottom heat, simply switch off the top heat after the fish is browned and turn on the bottom side.

There are advantages to broiling fish on one side only. Fish cooked in this manner doesn't have to be turned during cooking. (Some slices of delicate fish break when turned to be broiled on both sides.) The danger of sputtering fat is minimized. Finally the fish will be less dry if only one side is exposed to a direct flame.

This method of broiling may be used with halibut, cod or any other large slices of fish that are hard to handle.

Broiled Swordfish, Caper Butter

Order 4 swordfish steaks weighing about 6 ounces each and cut 1-2 inch thick. Place in a solution of 1 cup of water in which 2 tablespoons salt have been dissolved. Let fish remain in salt water 3 minutes—no longer. Remove.

Preheat broiler at 550 degrees. Brush fish on both sides with oil. Sprinkle lightly with paprika. Place fish on a shallow pan. Put under broiler flame until fish is browned on one side. Transfer pan to baking section of oven and bake 5-8 minutes more or until flakes are tender when pierced with a fork. Remove fish to serving plates with wide spatula.

Melt 1-4 cup butter. Add juice of 1-4 lemon. Add 1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley and 2 tablespoons drained caper. (Capers are put up in small bottles, packed in vinegar.) Pour caper butter over fish just before serving.

WEDDINGS

ROBINSON—LOVE

(From Calgary Herald)

Linking interest in Calgary and Edmonton was a recent mid-summer wedding ceremony solemnized in Central United Church, when Miss Pauline Margaret Love, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Love, of Edmonton, became the bride of Mr. Harvey Scott Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Robinson, of Calgary.

Dr. D. McKeen Reid read the marriage service at the candle-lit nuptials amid a setting of summer-shaded peonies and fern.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a wedding gown of ivory satin fashioned with a sculptured bodice with long sleeves ending in lily-points at her wrists, and a long cascading skirt. Misting over her gown was a full-length veil which was held in place by a beaded tiara, and she carried an arm bouquet of dark red roses, white carnations and fern.

The bridegroom's sisters, Miss Helen Clair Robinson and Miss Jane Anne Robinson, attended the bride, wearing similar gowns of yellow taffeta accented by green gloves. Completing their ensembles were headbands of yellow Sweetheart roses and green carnations and rainbow colored bouquets.

The groomsman was Mr. Harvey Clare, and ushering the guests to their places were Mr. Donald Kennedy and Mr. Randy Brerton. Traditional nuptial music was played by Mrs. Phyllis Chapman Clarke, and the soloist was Jean Patterson Edwards, who sang "Because" and "Ave Maria".

Following the wedding service, a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents, 1103 Colbourne Crescent, when the bridal couple and their parents received the guests. Mr. M. L. Irwin proposed the toast to the bride, and the best man proposed the toast to the bridesmaids.

Mr. and Mrs. Robinson spent their honeymoon at Banff and Lake Louise, and have now taken up residence in Calgary. The bride's going-away ensemble was a tailored suit of hunter's green complemented with white accessories.

The bridegroom is a graduate in geology from the University of Alberta and is affiliated with the Kappa Sigma fraternity.

Mrs. W. E. Robinson, mother of the bridegroom, was Helen Ketcheson, formerly of Belleville.

SCHRIEDER—BRODIE

A quiet, but pretty wedding was solemnized at the rectory of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, by the Rev. Father J. F. Buckley, when Dorothy Helen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brodie, of Belleville, became the bride of Stanley Francis Schrieder, son of Mrs. Francis Schrieder of Belleville, and the late Mr. Schrieder.

The bride was becomingly gowned in a floor-length dress of white nylon sheer with insets of lace, matching white lace picture hat, elbow-length gloves, with corsage of red roses and orchids.

Miss Catharine Schrieder, of Belleville, attended the bride, wearing a floor length gown of blue net over taffeta with white hat, and gloves, and corsage of tea roses.

Mr. Jack McCabe, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held on the lawn at the bride's home, the rooms of which were tastefully decorated with pink and white summer flowers. The bride's mother, gowned in navy blue sheer with navy and white accessories, assisted by the bridegroom's sister, who wore beige with white accessories, received the guests.

For the bridal trip to Fort Erie, Crystal Beach, Buffalo and Niagara, the bride chose a powder blue dress with white accessories. Upon their return, they will reside in Belleville.

Sunday School Lesson of the Week

Civilization Has Its Chance

By ROY L. SMITH

A Christian doctrine has obscured a great moral fact, an accident that has occurred many times during the last two thousand years.

For a variety of reasons of varying value John the Baptist has been presented by Christianity as the forerunner of Jesus whose work was completed when he had introduced the young man of Nazareth as "the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world."

As a matter of fact, however, the desert prophet was a great preacher in his own right — so great that Jesus Himself said that he was the greatest prophet who had ever been born.

A Prophet from the Desert

It is an amazing fact, but a fact nevertheless, that less than ten books have been written about John the Baptist in the English language in the last 200 years, yet in Jesus' day he created a great furore, and if it had [illegible] been for Jesus, he would have undoubtedly been listed as one of the greatest of all prophets.

His personality presents one of the most interesting psychological studies in all the Scripture. Born of elderly parents, an only child, made peculiar by the religious vows his parents imposed upon him, living at one of the most critical periods of history, fleeing to the desert as a boy of about 12 years of age and eking out a Spartan existence there for 20 years, he returned to civilization with a thunderous demand that the nation should repent of its sins because God was about to take a hand in the affairs of men.

> The Sunday School lesson for August 20: "John, a Preacher of Repentance," Luke 3:1-22; 7:18-28; Matthew 14:1-12.

There is some reason to believe [illegible] his popularity may have been greater even than that of Jesus, for hundreds of thousands seem to have heard him preach and Josephus, the greatest of the Jewish historians, declared that his martyrdom was the undoing of Herod the Tetrarch.

Yet concerning his personal life almost nothing is known, and not one of his sermons was ever preserved or committed to writing. The only intimation of what he said, or of what his message consisted, has been preserved in the New Testament because of his unique relationship to Jesus.

The World Must Be Different

The basic message of the desert prophet was a simple one. "The Kingdom of Heaven is at hand," he shouted, and his voice was thundered up and down the valley of the Jordon until it awakened all of the ancient East.

John preached to a world which held itself in great esteem. The services at the Temple were elaborate, lavish, and crowded. At no time in all its long and troubled history had the little land enjoyed greater economic prosperity. The king upon the throne in Jerusalem was called "the Great," and enjoyed great favor at the hands of Caesar far away in Rome.

Yet here came a prophet out of the wilderness declaring that the world would have to be different if it ever hoped to enjoy the favor of God. It would have to initiate justice, purge itself of evil, and deal gently and kindly with the poor and the helpless.

Where Real Reforms Begin

Nations, like individuals, will never come into favor with God until they are willing to admit to themselves that they are in need of God.

Capitalism, democracy, Christianity as it is today preached—all these will have to come to God in the spirit of penitence if they are ever to enjoy the goodwill of God.

It is impossible for modern men of a devout mind to laugh off depressions, poverty in the midst of plenty, unequal opportunities, class discrimination, and others of our modern sins. The evils inherent in the communist system are intolerable to a man who believes in the divinity of humanity and the sanctity of the individual.

But there are a few beams in the eye of capitalism which ought to be eliminated, and also a few planks in the eye of democracy which must be cast out.

This War on the Reds

No well informed person can be blind to the terror that is communism. If it should spread over all the earth and take all nations captive, the life of the individual would be swallowed up in the life of the mass, and human personality would lose all its sacred significance.

The most effective war on communism, however, is not to be waged by imprisoning communists but by liberating those who have been enslaved through the miscarriages of capitalism.

The most convincing evidence we can offer to the hard-pressed nations of the world will be a more sincere friendship, a more gracious attitude, and a more respectful treatment.

In this kind of warfare ~~factories in~~ foreign lands, capital invested in foreign enterprises, vast plantations under alien control, and a long list of other enterprises become our missionaries.

This seems to be another one of those hours in human history when God seems about to take a hand again in human affairs. Perhaps some national repentance might be of great value to us just now.

Russian Gives Impression Britain And France Would be Pushovers

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Aug. 10 — (CP) — It looks as if Russia thinks Britain and France would be pushovers in any major war.

That, at least, is one conclusion to be drawn from a recent conversation between Russian propagandist Ilya Ehrenburg, sometimes called the Socrates of Soviet journalism, and Richard Crossman, left-wing Labor member of the British House of Commons.

The conversation took place at a luncheon party arranged by mutual friends during Ehrenburg's visit to London to speak at a Trafalgar Square "peace" rally. It was conducted in French, through an interpreter, and there are two versions of what was said.

Speaking in the Commons later, Crossman quoted Ehrenburg as saying Britain and France are physically and morally incapable of waging war.

"I am quite convinced that nothing I said to Ehrenburg had any effect at all," Crossman said in his Commons speech. "That's why I felt singularly depressed by the conversation."

In a 600-word letter published in The Times and the Manchester Guardian, Ehrenburg denied everything. What he did say, he wrote, was "that in my opinion the British people were not capable of aggression."

Crossman took up the cudgels again. He said there could be no doubt Ehrenburg used the words attributed to him. Anyway, any conflict between east and west would be described by Soviet propaganda as a war of aggression.

"What is vital," wrote the British M. P., "is that Soviet policy should not be based on similar misapprehensions about British morale."

The stocky, white - haired Ehrenburg had a rough passage on his British visit. Reporters who attended his one press conference here wrote sarcastically of his performance, saying his answers to direct questions seldom bore any relevance to the subject matter.

Ehrenburg also drew a reprimand from British playwright J. B. Priestley who, like Crossman, once was an ardent supporter of Russia. In reply to criticisms of Priestley's recently - changing attitude made by Ehrenburg at the Trafalgar Square rally, the British writer said:

"If Mister Ehrenburg and his colleagues are really afire with a crusading spirit, let them get up in Moscow, preferably when its peace-loving government is parading more armed men, tanks and war-planes for an afternoon show than we could muster for a war, and show some fiery crusading there."

Profit-Hungry Promoters Blamed For Rough Play

(By The Canadian Press)

Radio Moscow is telling Russian listeners that football in the United States is so "murderous" that players in Ann Arbor, Mich. "are often carried from the football field straight to the cemetery."

Ann Arbor is the home of University of Michigan, which turns out top football teams but scarcely as tough as the Moscow commentator pictures them.

The broadcast, picked up by American Monitors in Washington, blamed profit-hungry promoters for the "murderous" play. It said they are trying to build up big crowds by "turning every football match into a fight."

The broadcast also put a "barbarous" label on other American sports contests and concluded that it's all part of a dark plot.

The aim, the broadcast said, is to stir up the "bestial instincts" in American youths and get them ready for the new world war "about which the Wall Street bosses are dreaming."

On football, the broadcast had this to say:

"Football players are forced obediently to carry out the orders of their bosses under the threat of unemployment. For the men who treat sport as a money-making proposition people's health and lives are of no concern."

Joe Herbert, a shifty colt owned by William F. Herbert, of London, equalled the Canadian record for two-year-old trotters when he won the second race at Toronto's Thorncliffe raceway Thursday.

Joe Herbert paced the mile in 2.15 equalling the mark which Jim Lee established at Glencoe, Ont., in 1939. The record applies to half-mile tracks.

The track has been worked into lightning fast condition in preparation for today's contest for the $15,000 Canadian Cup Stake for pacers.

Last year's finish in the senior golf tournament of the London Hunt Club was reversed Thursday.

A. R. Wilson of Montreal Summerlea put together rounds of 76 and 78 for a 154 to take the title won last year by Dr. George Laing, of Windsor Essex. Dr. Laing, the defending Canadian senior's champion, had two rounds of 79 for a 158 to place second.

British Columbia and Ontario remained in a first-place tie in the Dominion cricket championships at Winnipeg Thursday.

The tied teams have three wins and one loss each at the end of four days of play. Manitoba and Alberta have three losses and a win each.

Numerous entries will take part in an international invitation swimming meet, sanctioned by the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association, to be held at the Laurentian Mountain resort of Ste. Marguerite, Aug. 12.

Pat Fink of Ottawa, Gieselle Contant and Charlotte Dion of Quebec City, Beverley Suitcliffe of Toronto, June Taylor of St. Catharines, Ont., Therese Brisson and Jean Orser of Montreal and Marjorie Cochand of Ste. Marguerite have already filed entries.

Sammy Snead, at present top money earner among United States Golf professionals, will take part in the Canadian Open Golf championship at Montreal Aug. 24-27.

He won the Dominion's top golf tournament in 1938, 1940 and 1941.

Sports Roundup

(For Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)

New York, Aug. 11 —(AP) — Every year about this time, the top tennis figures in the United States grow morose and suspicious of their fellow men. The amateur star who is worth his salt feels that every man's hand is against him and that his chances of obtaining justice are slight indeed.

The explanation is simple. It is Davis Cup picking time. Tennis authorities are on the verge of naming a four-man team to defend the International Trophy at Forest Hills N.Y., late this month, and the players all know that the authorities are capricious, biased and just plain pig-headed.

"What's the use of trying?" More than one tiger of the courts has muttered to this writer. "They'll pick the guys they like to play bridge with."

Cochell Cooked

The maddest player at the moment seems to be Earl Cochell, the scrappy little West Coast player who wasn't even named on the squad of 11 players asked to try out for the American side.

By the time the challenge round starts Aug. 25, the seven discards from the current deck will be just as sore as Earl is now. It happens every year, and not alone in this country.

Probably the maddest player ever not chosen to play was Frankie Parker in 1946. He, however, had the tremendous advantage of having gone all the way to Australia to receive the bad news. Billy Sidwell is understood to be running a near-record fever at having been left off this year's Australian team.

Tested Players

A cup captain is prone to go along with those players who have proved themselves in conflict. Ted Schroeder has played on the last four cup teams and has yet to swallow defeat, so man would seem justified in sticking with him.

But the other boys swear that Ted has gone 'way back in the last 12 months and they are convinced it is time for a new deal and new faces.

They are skeptical about Budge Patty, too. They frankly don't understand how he happened to win the recent Wimbledon title. They don't think he is that good, and they look forward to a crack at him.

After Patty's return from London, the first of the "outsiders" to collide with the handsome Wimbledon king was Jim Brink, a husky southpaw from Seattle who in the last few years has scared the pants off several favorites in the national championships.

Jim belted Patty out of the Newport event, two sets to one. This doesn't necessarily mean that Patty will not play on the cup team, but it means that the selectors have an additional headache to contend with and that the boys who are demanding a major operation on the cup forces have been provided with new fuel.

Pros Grumble After First Round Is Rained Out

Chicago, Aug. 11 — (AP) — Rumblings of a walk-out in the Tam O'Shanter Golf Tournament had subsided today among some of the big-shot pros who, after second thought, decided against shunning $49,000 in prize money.

A sundown rain storm yesterday caught Bobby Locke, Jack Burke, Jr., Jimmy Demaret and Cary Middlecoff among those still on the course.

Promotor George S. May ruled that all scores earlier posted in the first round of his "world" gold championship be cancelled in accordance with his printed regulations governing play.

Twenty-eight pros already had finished their opening shot for a $11,000 first prize.

Jimmy Demaret, even par through 15 holes before the storm struck, thought it all was unfair to the others who had finished their rounds. Promoter May told him if he didn't like it he could withdraw.

"I wouldn't play in the Tam if a million dollars was the prize," Demaret said later.

He soon found, however, that although some colleagues agreed with him, they would not be stampeded out of the meet.

Ended in Calm

So, after a flurry of words, everything apparently ended in a calm and Demaret was expected to remain among those present.

The most unruffled player was South Africa's Bobby Locke who pocketed $2,500 Wednesday by winning the All-American pro's meet in a play-off with Lloyd Mangrum.

When the rain came, Locke had driven from the 18th tee and his ball rested only 135 yards from the green. He left it there and came in. A par on the final hole would have given him a 70.

"I inspected the 18th green," Locke said. "The water had made it treacherous. You would have to be inside 12 feet of the cup or you would need three putts. Mr. May did the right thing."

Mangrum, after posting a fat 78, was happy to be getting another change.

However, May's decision cancelled excellent rounds of three-under-par 73 for Babe Zaharias and Patty Berg in the women's "World" pro sideshow. It also wiped out a brilliant 68 by Wilford Wehrle and 69 by Frank Stranahan in the "World" men's amateur.

Brewers Rout Ramsay Paints By 20-6 Count

An expected pitched battle between Ramsay Paints and Brewers Warehouse failed to materialize last evening as the Brewers scored ten runs on four hits in the first four innings and then went on to rout the Paintmen 20-6 for one of the most lopsided wins of the season.

The Painters, edged out 8-7 by the Brewers in their first meeting were expected to give the suds dispensers a tough time. The opposition was just overwhelmed.

Absence of Ramsay's two starting pitchers Jack Reid and Bunk Young put Painters in the pot to start with, but Frank Baldwin, who did start, received little support for his fine efforts on the mound.

Brewers scored their first run in the top of the 1st inning as a result of an error. Another error in the second gave them three more while a single run in the third was also the result of a miscue. Three walks, a single by Don Locke, and a home run by Harold Reid accounted for five runs in the fourth and that was the ball game.

Lyle Wannamaker, who made the picture catch of the season in centre field in the third inning to rob John Hurrie of a sure home run, came in to relieve Frank Baldwin in the fourth with two away and forced Halsey to fly out to centrefield to end the inning.

Two singles, three walks, and three passed balls netted Brewers three more tallies in the sixth. John Hurrie connected for a home run to spark a five run seventh inning. Jack Scanlan came in to pitch for Ramsay's in the eighth with an error, a walk, and a single letting in two runs. He blanked Brewers in the ninth.

Ramsays' scored three in the second, and one each in the sixth seventh, and ninth.

Bob Green went all the way on the firing line for Brewers walking five, striking out 10, and giving up three scattered hits for six runs as he coasted to the win.

Brewers Warehouse: Barriage lf; Wood ss; Locke 1b; Goyer c; Hurrie rf; Reid 3b; Halsey cf; Henn 2b Green p. Rex Young batted for Henn in 7th, and Harold Wannamaker went in to play second base.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"SO IT COULDN'T BE DONE!"

We have never subscribed to magic, black or otherwise, nor miracles, although we have seen incidents on sports fields that perhaps could have been placed under these headings. And we have yet to see elves, sprites and beautiful fairies dancing in a wood-fringed glade, or a fairy godmother waving a magic wand over a Cinderella.

* * *

However, something approaching magic has taken place in the city within the last year. A mythical wand waved over a piece of near-useless terrain in the north-eastern part of the city, has transformed it into what will be in the not-too-distant future one of the best-equipped playgrounds and recreation parks in this part of Ontario.

* * *

The wand of initiative, foresight and energy waved by a few courageous members of the Canadian National Railways Athletic Association, backed with the co-operation of fellow members and other employees with a generous helping of assistance from the "top brass" down, has resulted in this marvelous transformation.

* * *

A year ago we accompanied President George Foster of the CNRAA, Past President A. G. Meagher, and Mr. Henry Drury on a tour of what appeared to us to be a reasonable facsimile of the Malayan jungle, minus its thickly-foliaged undergrowth and wild animals. It was marshy bog situated off Station Street near the Cenotaph. Grass-tufted hummocks of earth dotted the terrain like huge goose pimples. Long matted grass formed a mushy carpet underfoot. A weed-choked creek bed, spotted with pools of stagnant water was apparent at the eastern border. It was an unhealthy-appearing piece of land, the answer to the mosquitos' and other insects' housing question. An eyesore to the surrounding area, if ever there was one.

* * *

On Wednesday we paid a second visit to this marshy bog, and the reportorial optics nearly popped out of their sockets. Instead of the weed-choked mosquito-infested piece of land, we saw a well-planned children's playground and recreational park. Truly, over the short space of a year this magical wand had wrought a complete transformation.

* * *

It took courage and sheer guts to "take on" such a venture. The CNRAA had no funds of any account to go ahead with the work. But this fact did not daunt such stout hearts as those of George Foster and his executive. They took off their coats, rolled up their sleeves, gritted their teeth and went to work. Perhaps it was the sheer effrontery of the group. Or perhaps the seeming impossibility of the enormous job that lay ahead. Gradually the idea caught on. After a few weeks or was it months, when the toddlingbaby began to show signs of healthy growth, others became interested. President Foster and his merry men "sold the idea" not only to their fellow employees but to the "brass" as well.

* * *

"Bride and Building" lent a hand. "Tom, Dick and Harry," rear rank privates in the CNRRA rallied to the cause and assisted with the labor. Harry Foote spent his vacation working on the children's playground project. The H. J. McFarland Construction sent bulldozers and trucks. Tons of fill began to pour into the field. A bridge was built. Clay- and sand-mixed bottoms were placed on the children's playground and on the main softball diamond. The field underwent one of the most strenuous face-liftings any piece of Mother Earth in this city has been subjected to.

* * *

Time went on, and slowly the project began to take form. At the moment, the "upper third" of the park boasts a modern softball diamond complete with backstop and sturdy bleachers. In the centre section there is a volleyball court. But the most popular spot in the park is the children's playground situated at the southern area. Children romp on the clay-packed ground. They frolic in sun-protected sandpits. Slides of various sizes entertain the younger tots, as do the swings. There is a small kitchen and a refreshment booth.

* * *

Attractive Miss Verna Fox, sun-browned supervisor from Toronto told us Wednesday that the playgrounds average 182 children daily. There are 275 kiddies on the roll. At one time 260 youngsters frolicked to their hearts' content under her watchful eyes. There is a softball league composed of seven teams of youngsters, five of them boys' squads. There must have been over 500 kiddies there on Wednesday, and when the Coca Cola representatives arrived with 500 free "cokes" there was a mad rush for the drinks. Miss Fox' efficiency as a supervisor evidenced itself at this point. In less than a few seconds she brought order out of the temporary kiddie chaos, and all was well.

* * *

Then of course there is that pair of sterling kiddie champions, Harold Foote and Clem Bowler. These two gentlemen have worked themselves dizzy at times in an effort to make life a pleasant round of fun and recreation for the children of not only the employees of the CNR but those of the surrounding district as well. They thoroughly deserve all the splendid tributes paid them at the official opening ceremonies on Wednesday.

* * *

As Divisional Superintendent A. M. Shea said in his remarks "the park is yet in the cradle stage." Present plans call for a modern clubhouse complete with cafeteria. Later the entire park will be fenced. The upper third, adjacent to the tracks will be readied to include an up-to-date baseball diamond as well as one for softball. Bleachers will be extended along the baselines. There is no doubt that these things will be completed. Any executive and body of men who can transform a muddy, boggy piece of useless terrain into a modern athletic field, will not be daunted by such trifles.

Phils' Jim Konstanty Appears Most Important Single Factor In Phillies' Surge to Top

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Jim Konstanty, the Phils' rubber-armed reliefer, looks to be the most important single factor in the National League race.

Bespectacled Jim marched from the bullpen in five of the Phils' last seven games, missing only two in a week.

When he replaced Bob Miller in the eighth inning of last night's 6-5 win over the Giants, he made his 51st appearance in the Phils' 108 games this season.

Singles by Gran Hamner and Andy Seminick and a game-losing error by centre-fielder Bobby Thomson gave Konstanty his ninth victory in the 10th inning last night. More important, it boosted the Phils' lead to six games over Boston Braves.

Bubba Church gave way in the first inning to Miller who yielded another pair in the fourth and one in the eighth. The Phils clawed Larry Jansen for five runs and 10 hits in his seven innings. Hamner and Mike Goliat both hit homers off Larry. Dave Koslo was the 10th-inning victim.

The important Boston-Brooklyn series opened with a 4-3 victory for the Dodgers. Gil Hodges and Roy Campanella hit consecutive homers in the fourth. The triumph slipped Brooklyn into third place, three percentage points ahead of idle St. Louis.

Umpire Clears Bench

Umpire Lou Jorda cleared the Boston bench in the fourth after the Braves protested a ball to Hodges. He chased manager Billy Southworth and Gene Mauch. Then he ordered all but two coaches, trainer and the bat boy from the bench. All but Southworth and Mauch were to be allowed to return if necessary.

Hodges' stab of Sam Jethroe's liner started a game-ending double play that ruined a ninth-inning Boston threat. Earlier Jethroe hit his 12th homer.

Break Losing Streak

Pittsburgh broke a 10-game losing streak by blasting Chicago 7-4. Ralph Kiner, Wally Westlake and Clyde McCullough hit homers as the Cubs dropped into a seventh-place tie with idle Cincinnati. Kiner's homer was his 31st.

Picking on the second division clubs proved risky business in the American League. Only second-place Cleveland, a 5-4 winner over St. Louis. got away with it. The tribe squeezed home with Bob Lemon hitting two doubles to back up his 18th victory.

Detroit added 1-2 game to its lead, now measuring 3 1-2 But the Tigers missed a chance after whipping Chicago 10-6. They were held to a 1-1 tie in the second game, called by darkness in the seventh.

Art Houtteman took the opener for his 14th victory. The second game, a playoff of a 7-7 tie April 30, ended all even with two out and a man on in the Chicago seventh.

Philadelphia Athletics dropped New York into third place, defeating the Yanks 5-3 win in their series opener.

Boston ran into trouble with fifth-place Washington. The Senators won the opener 11-2 and the Red Sox took the second 4-3.

Watson, Atkins Ready For Fray

The popular and talented Whipper Billy Watson will be one of the headliners in tonight's wrestling feature at the Memorial Arena. His opponent will be the rugged, roaring Fred Atkins of Australia, and if Whipper succeeds in defeating the rock-ribbed Aussie, Watson's popularity will be even further increased.

For, while Atkins is a good wrestler, with a terrific physique, his bragging of his own prowess and ridiculing of his opponents' ability has brought him ill-will from many quarters. One thing is certain however. Flinty Fred's rantings and ravings won't disturb the canny, capable Whipper. What's more—Whip would rather have his say with drop kicks, flying tackles and the like.

Toar Morgan will have the task of testing the latest mystery man to invade the wrestling scene, the Masked Marvel.

Guelph Leafs Still in Cellar Of Intercounty

(By The Canadian Press)

Rolly Chalifoux walked a batter at the wrong time last night and it cost him a shut-out. But it didn't stop his Stratford Nationals from licking the Guelph Maple Leafs 5-1.

Chalifoux walked the batter with the bases loaded in the eighth and forced in first baseman Walt Jeffries with Guelph's only run.

It left Leafs still in the cellar of the Senior Intercounty League.

Nationals pounced on Guelph's Harrison Fisher for four hits and three runs in the fourth and a total of eight hits in the seven innings he worked. Fisher walked six batters.

In St. Catharines, the Canadian All-Stars defeated the United States All-Stars 3-2 in a Niagara District Senior League benefit game played for Gord Clark, playing manager of St. Catharines Stags who fractured an ankle a month ago.

League officials said they hope the All-Star game will become an annual affair.

The Stratford-Guelph game was the only scheduled fixture of the Senior Intercounty League which has seen league records toppling all season.

League statistics released today show playing manager Alex Kvasnak of Waterloo has set a record for hits. He's connected for 68 hits—and an average of .384—so far this season. That's two hits more than Vern Kaiser of Galt made last season.

A New High

Bill McCarthy of St. Thomas has hit 14 doubles, a new high. Stan Lipka of Brantford, with 13, held the former record.

Clarence Groat of St. Thomas has drawn 43 bases on balls, another league record.

Right behind Kvasnak in the batting race is Rosen of Galt, hitting .379 with 25 hits in 66 trips. Beggs of Kitchener has had 10 hits in 27 trips for .370 and McCarthy of St. Thomas is hitting .329 with 55 hits in 167 times at bat.

The statistics include games played last Monday.

Leading the pitchers are George Pette of Guelph with five wins and a loss and Bill Gibbs of Brantford with eight wins and two losses. Tommy White of London and Joe Yosurak of Waterloo have the most wins—nine each. White has lost four and Yosurak, five.

Behind Gibbs in the race are Schnurr of Kitchener, with seven and two; Richardson of Stratford with five and two and Bricker of Waterloo with seven and three.

Bunny Wadsworth Misses the 'Fun' Of Pre-War Rugby

Toronto, —(CP) — Big Bunny Wadsworth says football isn't nearly as much fun as it used to be.

A broker with a Toronto firm who spearheaded the most powerful line in Canadian football for Ottawa Rough Riders before the Second World War, Wadsworth admits that today's linemen probably know more about the fundamentals than the Riders did in his day. But look at the fun they're missing.

As an example, he told an interviewer of a satisfactory afternoon 12 years ago when the Riders played Toronto Argonauts for the interprovincial union title. Argos, paced by the long punts of big Bob Isbister, blasted Ottawa out of the park—but that isn't the point.

From his middle-wing position, Bunny noticed that Clary Burt, an Argo middle, was using his elbows rather freely. Casually, he moved in opposite Burt on a line play.

"It just happened that one of my elbows brushed Clary's face," Wadsworth recalled. "The next time I saw Clary he was running around with his jaw very slightly dislocated."

Went Unnoticed

By the time Burt recovered his powers of speech, play had moved on. The officials hadn't seen a thing.

"A little while later I was carrying the ball. As I glanced up, I saw Clary Burt's fist coming. It was coming from so far back, I could hardly see it. It conked me right on the end of the nose."

The officials missed that one too, but they stood Wadsworth back on his feet and it only took 10 minutes or so for his vision to clear.

"Then I saw Clary Burt," Wadsworth said, with evident enjoyment.

"I started a punch away back in the bleachers at the east end. And by a strange coincidence Clary ran into it with his nose."

Time was called while Burt was removed to a hospital to have a broken nose repaired.

"But it was all in fun," chuckled stockbroker Wadsworth. "I think I even sent him flowers."

Lee Turns in Twelfth Victory For Montreal

(By The Associated Press)

Ronnie Lee, 21-year-old left-hander with Montreal continues to show plenty of moxie.

He turned in his 12th victory of the season and his 10th in a relief role last night as the Royals edged Springfield Cubs 5-4, in 10 innings.

The victory enabled the Royals to tie the Baltimore Orioles for second place. The Orioles bowed 8-5 to the league-leading Rochester Red Wings.

Jersey City's fourth place Giants nicked the last place Buffalo Bisons 5-4 on pitcher Tommy West's ninth-inning homer. The victory was the Giants 18th in 22 meetings over the Bisons.

West limited the Bisons to five hits but two were home runs by Gene Markland and Harry Minor.

Syracuse Chiefs beat Toronto Maple Leafs 2-1 with Eddie Blake turning in a three hitter to post his ninth victory. Johnny Mayo stole home in the fourth inning for the lone Toronto run.

WOMAN SAVES LIVES OF MEN TRAPPED IN FLAMING COUPE

Miss Cecilia Folkard, of Renfrew, Ont., rescues trio after automobile crashes into tree

1. Three men from Ohio were driving in a coupe over a little-travelled Frontenac county road. Their mission—to find a summer cottage — might easily have ended in tragedy . . . for their car suddenly hit a washout on the narrow road. Out of control, it rolled over three times, crashed into a tree and burst into flames!

2. Miss Folkard, old age pensions investigator for the Renfrew district, was driving behind the Ohio car when the accident happened. Snatching a fire extinguisher from her own car, she ran to the blazing, smashed coupe. In a few seconds she had put the fire out — but the car doors were jammed. The men were still trapped inside!

3. Racing back to her car, Miss Folkard took a tire iron from the trunk and ran back to the wreck. It took cool nerves, great determination as well as physical strength to try open one of the doors and then release the men. We hope to express the thanks of these men . . . and the praise of every thinking Canadian . . . by presenting Miss Cecilia Folkard with The Dow Award.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Each Horse Sense rule is made up of the fewest possible words. Each rule covers its subject adequately. Read nothing into it that does not appear there. As in the case of an opening lead.

The order of choice of leads is tops, longies, shorts; don't lead a suit bid by opponents; against a suit contract, don't lead away from an ace or a king.

This is the briefest rule in the world to blanket this subject. It tells you what not to do. It tells you the choice from what is left. Combine the information to handle any situation.

Notice the third part of this rule. In advising not to lead away from an ace or a king it specifically refers to a suit contract. Therefore, such a lead is not objected to, at a no-trump contract.

South is in three no-trump when west holds this hand:

♥J 8
♦8 7 5
♣K 10 5 3 2

West does not have a sequence. Nor has he a combination of ace and king of the same suit. So, he has no top card lead. This means he should next look for the second choice, a long suit lead.

Against a no-trump contract rule does not object to leading away from an ace or a king. Therefore, he starts with the opening lead of club trey. When leading from a long suit, lead the fourth best.

Such a lead would not be advisable against a suit contract. It might prevent the club trick from taking a trick. If unable to stand up until the third round the club king may be ruffed.

Even against no-trump an expert player tries to avoid leading away from a king if he has less than five cards in that suit. But he is not always able to wait for such a holding.

With no better lead, therefore, he will try to establish his suit with a king in it. Quick timing of the suit may be important.

Movie Column

(By BOB THOMAS)

Hollywood, Aug. 11 — (AP) — When I saw Fred Astaire perform a movie number that would make an Olympic star wheeze I asked him how he does it.

He shrugged. "A dance like that can be pretty tiring. But once you get into it, you forget yourself and just dance. It's fun."

Fred, who is about at the half-century mark, doesn't seem weary in three pictures in a row. But he'll take a rest after he finishes "Royal Wedding" and follow his race horses until early 1951, when he'll do "Belle of New York" with Vera-Ellen.

"Royal Wedding" somewhat resembles his own career. It concerns a brother-sister dance team. They go to London and the sister falls in love with a Briton. But Fred said that is as close as the movies will ever come to his life story. He continues to nix a film biography.

"I think most musical biographies are ridiculous," he said. "It would be awful to do your own life story. In the first place, it would sound like bragging and saying 'This is what I accomplished.' And somewhere along the line, you would have to fictionize, and that would be terrible.

"I have a stock answer for anyone who suggests I do 'The Astaire Story' — No picture could have so many race track scenes."

Capsule Review.

"Fancy Pants" is another merry romp for Mr. Robert Hope, as he is billed in the picture. Nothing has been spared for the sake of laughs and it one of his better efforts. The plot is based on "Ruggles of Red Gap," although the resemblance is hard to notice. Posing as a Briton, Hope goes West as a butler for a frontier family. It's gag upon gag with generally good results. Lucille Ball is co-starred in this raucous

Little Benny's Note Book

I was sitting on our frunt steps feeling hungry, and pop came up walking fast like he always does when he comes home late without telefoning ma ferst to tell her not to worry, and I thawt, Oh boy, will he be releeved when I tell him ma aint even home yet. And I said, G, pop, you're late, and he said, I know it, and the werst of it is, I didn't telefone your mother before I left the office.

That makes her madder than just being late. I said, and pop said, I knew it, but I'm what's known as a victim of circumstances. I knew I'd just have time to catch the next bus if I didn't wait to make it, but I just managed to make it, but it was the very werst bus I could possibly of cawt, because it got stalled half way home and didn't get started again for 20 minutes, he said.

Oh well, pop, dont worry, I said, and pop said, I've been worrying for half an hour, blast it to blistering blazes. Now I know what Shakebeer meant when he spoke of suffering the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune.

Well dont worry anyways, I said, and pop said, Are you trying to be a silly little Polly Anna?

Aw G, pop, heck, holey smokes, talk about slings and arrows, I said, and pop said, Okay, your allowance is on again. Now we're both releeved, though still slitely under the influence of shock, if you know what I mean, he said.

Which I did.

Motor Vehicles Being Produced At High Rate

Ottawa, Aug. 11 — (CP) — If you still can't get that new car, it isn't because automobile manufacturers aren't trying.

Factory shipments of Canadian-made motor vehicles, which have climbed at a rapid rate in recent months, took another sharp jump in June to a total of 41,383, the Bureau of Statistics reported Thursday.

This was the second highest monthly figure on record and compared with 35,281 units in May, 30,096 in June last year and the record monthly total of 41,901 units in April, 1929.

The June figure raised the aggregate for the first six months of this year to 191,765, the largest half-yearly total in the history of the industry. The previous half-yearly peak was 188,381 units in 1929.

But all those cars delivered from the factories in June were not sold in Canada. A total of 33,092 were shipped for sale in this country that month and 176,500 in the half-yearly period, compared with 27,183 in June last year and 125,262 in June this year against 2,913 and in the six months totalled 15,265 compared with 14,853.

Navy and Marine Planes Rack up Heavy Damage

Tokyo, Aug. 11 — (AP)—The United States Seventh Fleet reported today that navy and marine planes racked up impressive damage tolls against North Korean communications, troops and military installations in two days of hard-hitting attacks.

A summary of operations, released by Vice Admiral Arthur D. Struble, said factories and warehouses in the Inchon (Seoul's Port) area of South Korea on the Yellow Sea bore the brunt of the strikes. Metal works factories, warehouses and transportation assembly plants there were hit with 500 and 1,000-pound bombs.

Other navy planes ranged northward to the Waegwan area of the central front on ground troops support missions. Near the town of Yosu, an attacking pilot bowled a bomb into a railroad tunnel where a North Korean train had stopped to avoid bombardment.

The carrier-based naval fliers ranged as far north as Seoul, fallen capital of the South Korean Republic. A direct hit was scored on a bridge there with a 1,000-pound bomb.

Marines flying from aircraft carriers made ground - support missions where American troops and army units battled around Chinju. Pilots reported a heavy toll of communist infantry forces and installations.

As the navy flying power was directed at the reds, air force officials issued further reports on B-29 strikes Wednesday in North Korea. They said the big bombers left fires burning that sent flames up more than 3,000 feet at Wonsan, 80 miles north of the 38th parallel.

The target there was the Chosen (Korean) oil refinery, a prime producer of petroleum products needed by the communist war machine.

Manitoba's P.C. Leader Resigns From Government

Winnipeg, Aug. 11 — (CP) — Errick Willis, provincial leader of the progressive conservative party, Thursday resigned as Works Minister in Manitoba's coalition government.

In a press statement, Mr. Willis accused premier Douglas L. Campbell of "indecision and delay" and repeated resistance to progressive and reasonable changes in government policy."

The resignation, effective Aug. 19, was delivered about noon to Mr. Campbell, whose liberal-progressive party dominates the coalition administration.

Mr. Willis said it was a personal withdrawal from the coalition and that the question of the progressive conservative party's participation in the coalition would be decided at a provincial convention to be held in Brandon, in October.

Mr. Willis has been Works Minister in the coalition since its formation by John Bracken in 1940, and deputy premier since 1948.

At Odds With Premier

It was learned that he has been at odds with the premier over the appointments of new ministers to the provincial cabinet.

Party standing in the 57-seat Manitoba legislature, with two seats vacant, is:

Coalition: liberal-progressive, 28, progressive conservative 9, others 3 Total 42

Opposition: C.C.F. 7, others 6. Total 13.

Mr. Willis in his statement said he resigned from the cabinet "because I feel the premier's attitude toward our provincial policies is steadily undermining public confidence in our government."

He said he is not in opposition to the coalition form of government for provincial affairs "but proper leadership is the first essential of any form of government."

London Diesel Factory Ready To Operate

London, Ont., Aug. 11.(CP)—This city and Canada got a new $13,000,000 industry today.

It is General Motors Diesel, Ltd., which will make locomotives for Canadian railways, and the figure $13,000,000 gives only a faint idea of it.

For very shortly it will be producing one Diesel unit every two days, worth from $100,00 to $200,000 each, and later on it aims at one every day. That adds up to probably a minimum of $20,000,000 each year.

The materials needed are not all available in London, and so the industry offers a chance to any Canadian manufacturer or community to get in its bids on orders; with Western Ontario towns and cities in a favored spot.

The site, just outside London, was farmland 11 months ago. It has some 200,000 square feet of working space on a 210-acre site and will employ about 1,000 persons.

General Motors executives chose London because, with about 100,000 people ,it is neither too large nor too small.

The new plant, already at work, but officially opened today, will go to work on orders from the Canadian Pacific railway. In October it will start on a $2,500,000 order for the Canadian National Railways.

The London Free Press today published a 60-page edition, half of it devoted to the new plant, and last night Arthur Ford, editor-in-chief, entertained at dinner company executives, representative citizens and visiting newspapermen.

The Diesel locomotive comes in everything from stubby switches to streamlined jobs for passenger trains, and consists of a Diesel engine, an electric generator, control apparatus, traction motors, locomotive body and trucks.

The Gentle Heart

By Kay Hamilton

Jenny nodded. She did see. She said, "Perhaps it's just talk. She hasn't seen you for so long, and she has been so lonely for Ken. Can't you remind her tactfully that all her friends are in Illinois, that it would mean starting over again socially if she moved here, and that it's a hard thing to do at her age?"

"No," Faith said bluntly, "I can't. And neither could you. You just can't say such things to her. She would realize at once that you didn't want her—that I don't want her." She leaned her head on her folded arms, her back bowed in a curve of despair. Her voice came up to Jenny, muffled and hopeless. "She has talked so much to Max about Ken and me and how happy we were, that he's become downright formal with me. If I didn't know him so well, I'd think he was jealous. She's spoiling everything between us."

Jenny had no idea of how to cope with the situation confronting Faith now, and so she said nothing. Faith said, after a long silence, "I suppose we had better break it off, Max and I. It wouldn't work out anyhow. Not now."

Jenny was indignant. The tone of voice, the hopeless attitude, were reminiscent of the days when Faith had immured herself in her home, grieving for her dead husband. Days which Jenny had thought were safely past now. But she could see how easy it would be for Faith to slip back into her former unhappiness.

She said, "Faith, snap out of it! You're just being a worm—you're not even trying to make a fight for Max. Think how distressing this must be for him."

"I have thought of it, but I don't see any way out without hurting Mother Owen."

"Then," Jenny took a deep breath, "then you'll just have to hurt her. Be as gentle as you can but try and make her understand."

She went back to her own garden, raking determinedly away at the leaves, and Jenny worked on her own side of the hedge. They did not speak again, but Jenny's thoughts were busy with Faith's problem. She thought, as she set a match to one of her bonfires that it would be a wonderful thing if she could have dumped all her problems on top of the leaf pile to be consumed by the fire and blown away by the wind.

There were so many problems these days—problems which she had never dreamed she would have to face. And they had all come at once, it seemed. There was Diane. Jenny had not seen her since she returned to Fred and the little house on Trevelyan Road. But Diane had called her sisters frequently and had talked to both of them on the telephone. She sounded busy, and gay, and very social. Not happy, Jenny said now to herself, but then Diane seldom did. Perhaps this sort of thing meant happiness to her.

She was working spasmodically now for Pruitt's Agency. She had had calls for all sorts of modeling. Once she had been photographed with a handsome male model, arriving at the theatre, in what was to be an ad for furs. Once she had posed, on a sand dune in Long Island, for a windswept picture which would appear in one of the fashion magazines this winter. The bright sun, somewhat assisted by powerful floodlights gave the photograph a summery look, but Diane had shivered in the sharp October wind, and Jenny had worried for fear she would catch a severe cold. She had been particularly successful posing for artists. Her warm coloring and sympathetic attitude toward their work made her much in demand.

Well, this was the sort of life she had wanted. It was unfortunate that it should also include so many dinner parties in New York, cocktails at swanky bars with admiring men, late gatherings of noisy conviviality at Tyson's house. Fred went with her, but Jenny knew he must have been bored and tired because Diane said, petulantly, "Fred always wants to go home so early!"

And there was Natalie. Thinking about her and Gary, Jenny had pretty well pieced together what had happened. Natalie's new success, her prospects for increased earnings, were exciting to her, and she had undoubtedly spoken of this to Gary. But Gary had a stiff-necked pride. He loved Natalie—Jenny had not the slightest doubt of this — but because he earned less than she did, he would never ask her to marry him. His work was important and he was young. The time would come, Jenny realized, when he might very well surpass in salary anything which Natalie could ever hope to earn at her work. But until that time came, he would not speak.

But Natalie, too, had her pride. She would never throw herself at Gary even if she did love him. And Jenny was not too sure whether Natalie did love him. Natalie had reserve; she would never confide her love for him if it did exist. Jenny sighed and hoped that her stay in New York would help Natalie—give her something else to think about, give her, possibly, some new emotional interest.

And there was the Torres family. Three unhappy people who would have to make decided adjustments before they could settle down as a harmonious whole. Jenny suspected that Pete was not hurrying too much with his work on Dick's room—an unconscious protest against having to take the boy and all the problems he would present, into his home. Dick could not help but sense this, she knew, and his defensive attitude against his father would be strengthened. While Elsa, although she seemed to have more of a sensible outlook, was hampered by Dick's prejudice against her.

Oh, it was all so tangled. And so needless, really.

Her thoughts had come full circle of her own home. She said to herself slowly "And then, there's Brent."

Brent. She had looked forward to his return from Maine, and when Natalie had let him rent part of the studio Jenny had anticipated a happy time for the three of them. But that was before he had caught her in his arms the day he got the Bell Agency job. That was before she had known what was in her own heart.

She thought now, He's like one of the family, and that's the trouble. That's the way he thinks of me. I have no romantic meaning for him. I'm more of a sister than anything else. How can I make him see me as a woman—a woman made for loving and being loved?

Ghillie came out of his doghouse, yawning and stretching. "What big teeth you have Grandma!" Jenny said to him, but he paid no attention to her. Suddenly he began to trot toward the front walk, and Jenny wheeled to see who was coming.

It was Brent, back from New York. How tall he looked! Her thoughts were as short and uneven as her breathing, and she stood motionless, watching him as he came across the lawn toward her.

"Hi, Jenny!" he called. And then he stopped. His back was toward the late afternoon sun, and he stood shock still. She could not make out the exact expression which flitted across his face, but when he spoke his voice was thick with some strange emotion.

"How sweet you look!" he said. That was all, but Jenny's heart gave a great bound. He put his hands on her shoulders and bent to kiss her. "Miss me?" he asked.

"Yes," she answered. But all her heart was in that one word; all her heart was on her lips when he kissed her.

"Why wouldn't a chicken be just as good?" Jenny demanded. She was snuggled in front of the fireplace while Natalie sat, relaxed and tired, in the wing chair. "Turkeys are ridiculously high. We really can't afford one!"

"Oh, bother!" Natalie exclaimed. "It wouldn't be Thanksgiving without one, and you know it. You get a turkey, Jen, and I'll pay for the difference. My treat." She lapsed into one of the silences which overtook her more and more often lately.

The November night was chilly and the wood fire felt good. "I'm glad tomorrow's Sunday," Jenny said, changing the subject. "I'm going to church with the Owens, Nat, but I'll be home in plenty of time."

Tomorrow was more than just a Sunday, she thought now. It was the first time she and Natalie had been invited to Diane's for Sunday dinner — for any meal, in fact. Fred was to call for them at one.

"Fred says Mrs. Henlo is a good cook," she added. "I wonder what sort of meal we would have had if Di had prepared it?"

"Canned chicken, canned sweet potatoes, canned peas, ice cream and bakery cake," Natalie said promptly, and they both laughed. But neither of them felt too much like laughing, really. Jenny knew that their thoughts were running parallel, wondering how the new arrangement at the Barbour's had worked out; wondering why they had heard so little from their sister since her return to her husband; wondering why Fred, the few times they had seen him, had looked so grim and forebearing.

"We didn't accomplish much on our reformation program when we had her here, did we?" Natalie asked suddenly. "And now that she's doing so well in New York, I don't supose there's anything we can do."

Jenny did not answer Natalie's rhetorical question of what they could do about Diane. She was thinking there was little one could do at any time. Interfering in other people's lives, trying to change their characters of their temperaments, was a thankless business and a foolish one, she decided. She glanced up at her sister and surprised a look of active discontent on her mobile face.

What now? Hadn't the work been doing well? Natalie seldom spoke of it lately, yet she had seemed to be working steadily and had sold some more of her designs without any trouble. Was it Gary? He still came over occasionally, but his visits had a reluctant quality, as if he had not wanted to come but had been driven to their house by something stronger than himself. Natalie always treated him coolly and he soon went away again.

But she was not cool with Brent, Jenny added to herself, her heart heavy with the knowledge. With Brent she was all animation, her brown eyes sparkling, her dimple flashing. With Brent she talked by the hour, discussing his work or her own; gossiping about fellow artists; making plans for the season ahead.

And Brent loved it. He was a companionable sort of man, anyhow, and liked people. He had known Natalie since she was a teen-ager, first getting interested in the world of art where her father was so well known and respected. He had encouraged her, watched her first steps in the designing field, rejoiced with her at her first sale. Not like Gary, who begrudged her her success because he could not match it with his own.

It was natural that Natalie should have turned to Brent, natural that he should have become her constant companion. Not only did they work together long hours in the studio, but they went with the same group when they were in New York, attended the same parties, talked the same language.

"Why so silent " Natalie asked suddenly, and Jenny was startled.

Vienna, Austria, Aug. 11 (AP)—Mrs. Robert A. Vogeler said yesterday she will return to the United States in September to make a personal appeal to President Truman for help in obtaining her husband's release from a Hungarian prison. Vogeler, 39, an executive of the International Telephone & Telegraph Company, was sentenced by a Hungarian court last February to 15 years' imprisonment on charges of espionage and sabotage.

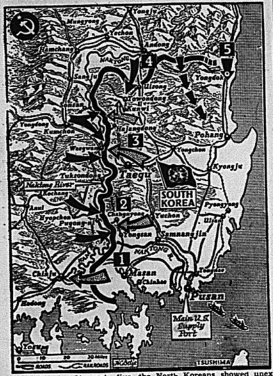
UNION HEADS REJECT APPEAL TO END STRIKE

YANKS GAIN IN SOUTH, LOSE IN NORTH



Outflanking Yongdok, five, the North Koreans showed unexpected strength to capture Pohang, second most important port in Allied hands. In the southern front, 1, U.S. forces pushed ahead, are threatening the red hold on Chinju. On the central front, 2 and 3, the red bridgeheads across the Naktong river have been erased, according to a report from Gen. MacArthur's headquarters.—Central Press Canadian.

U.S. Reinforcements Rushed To Naktong River Front As Red Pressure Increases

Tokyo, Aug. 12 — (CP) — American reinforcements rushed to choke off a new communist flank threat along the Naktong river today as communist pressure mounted in the centre of the Korean battle line.

Units of the army's 25th Division rolled northwards from the southern front where a five-day attack drove to within two miles of red-held Chinju. They hit an unknown number of North Koreans swinging around the embattled 24th Division.

The battle for Pohang, eastern anchor of the Allied line, was quieter tonight. Allied forces still held the vital airfield six miles southeast of that port town and American planes were using it.

Far to the north, B-29s from Okinawa and Japan plastered Najin, North Korean port city only 17 miles from Russian territory. Striking through clouds.

Pohang itself appeared to be half in red hands and half a flaming "no man's" land. Correspondent Leif Erickson reported from Eighth Army headquarters that American officers were confident of holding the airfield and recapturing Pohang.

Max Desfor, Associated Press photographer, reported from Pohang that American tanks led a South Korean patrol into the centre of the city without drawing serious fire.

29,441 Dwelling Units Completed In Five Months

Ottawa, Aug. 12 (CP)—The construction gangs have been working on more houses this year than last, but they haven't as many of them ready for occupancy.

The bureau of statistics reported Friday that 29,441 dwelling units were completed in Canada during the first five months of this year, a drop of 3,000 from last year's corresponding figure.

At the end of May there were 58,130 units in various stages of construction, compared with 53,533 a year ago.

On the other hand starts were made on 30,084 units, compared with 29,671. Quebec led the field here with a total of 11,588 starts in the five-month period as against 8,486 in the corresponding period last year.

A total of 9,306 new dwellings were begun in the five months compared with 11,291 in 1949.

The other provinces follow with last year's corresponding figure in brackets: British Columbia 2,724 (3,446); Manitoba 954 (1,385); Saskatchewan 690 (775); Nova Scotia 612 (761); Prince Edward Island 34 (44).

More houses were completed in Quebec this year than in the first five months of 1949. But in Ontario it was another story where only 9,925 units were completed in the five months compared with 11,605. Quebec's total was 9,934 against 8,768.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Aug. 12 (CP)—Synopsis: Unseasonably cool weather covers Ontario today. Skies are mainly sunny except for a band of clouds entering far north regions in advance of another outbreak of cool air from Hudson Bay.

This new outbreak of cool air will bring cloudy and cooler weather to most of Northern Ontario Sunday. Over Southern Ontario sunny skies should boost Sunday afternoon temperatures to near the 80-mark.

NEW BOUNDARY FOR N. CANADA IS ADVOCATED

Would Take Territory From Four Provinces

Montreal, Aug. 12 (CP)—A new boundary for northern Canada which would take territory from Quebec, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, is advocated by Dr. Trevor Lloyd, a governor of the Arctic Institute of North America and an authority on Arctic geography.

Dr. Lloyd, Welsh-born professor of geography and chairman of the geography department, Dartmouth College, made the statement in a recent interview. He now is giving an Arctic course—physical, cultural and political—at McGill University's geography summer school at Standstead College, in Quebec's eastern townships.

Dr. Lloyd called for better administration and greater expenditures in the north on grounds that the Canadian Arctic has been neglected, until recently, for 20 years and is the most backward of all Arctic territory.

He has given more than 10 years' close study to the Canadian Arctic, taught and supervised geography school classes in Manitoba and organized the first geographical bureau of the Federal Department of Mines and Resources.

He has made comparable on-the-spot studies of this country's Arctic with Lapland and Greenland where he spent a year as Canadian consul.

For the last seven years, he has been writing and rewriting a well-documented book on the Canadian Arctic in which he charged the Canadian government was guilty of mismanagement of the north.

Book Revised

The book has undergone considerable revision and probably will not be published—although it has considerable historical value—as the government has, in the last three years, developed the north both for defence and natural resources.

The geographer's conception of the new north is that of a wide territory distinguished from the rest of Canada by such factors as isolation, climate, surface relief, lack of communications, absence of agricultural development and sparsity of settlement.

He sees the area best treated as one administrative unit with Churchill, Man., as its capital.

His suggestion is that the present boundary of northern Canada be reviewed and that a new line of demarcation be drawn from the northern limit of James Bay to coincide with the 55th parallel of latitude to include the port of Churchill, Ungava and Fitzgerald in northern Alberta.

The four provinces affected would not lose administration of their northern territory irretrievably but only for a stated period of perhaps 25 years. He feels it highly probable that all four provinces would stand to gain by the arrangement.

Egypt's Refusal to Support U.N. Believed Due to Peeved King Farouk

Stanley Swinston, former Associated Press Chief of Bureau in Cairo, filed the following dispatch upon his arrival in Tokyo by air from Egypt. He had been unable to file the story because of censorship in Egypt.

By STANLEY SWINTON

Tokyo, Aug. 12. (AP)—There is a widespread but unconfirmed belief among many well-placed Egyptians that Egypt's decision not to help the United Nations in Korea resulted from the direct command of King Farouk.

These sources say the monarch's prime reason was his peeve over American press criticism of his private life.

Even so, the decision is reported to have come only after a bitter secret cabinet session during which five ministers supported the U.N. Korean policy if only on moral grounds.

Prime Minister Nahas Pasha led the 10-minister majority which supported a policy of abstaining from all U.N. voting on Korea.

This was followed by an interpretation in some quarters that the action was a signal for a pro-Russian campaign in Egypt. The Foreign Minister, Salah Eddin Bey, put an official damper on this, however, at two press conferences.

He announced Egypt's belief that North Korea was the aggressor in Korea. But he did not change Egypt's U.N. position although he is reported to have wanted to.

The government's statement that it is not pro-Russian gained further weight when Egypt cast her Security Council vote against admission of communist China to the U.N.

CANADIAN VISITORS INVADE CHICAGO

People swimming at the Chicago lakefront have come to the conclusion that Canadian geese like the Windy City as a vacation resort. A flight of 30 birds from Canada landed on the lake and immediately "took over." The group of geese shown here waddle along the shore, much to the delight of a youngster. The geese refused to comment on their eventual destination. — Central Press Canadian.

Girl is Killed In Train-Car Crash at Chatham

Chatham, Aug. 12 — (CP) — Thirteen-year-old Geraldine Johnston was instantly killed early Friday in a train-car crash 10 miles south of here.

Her two sisters, Margaret and Shirley, and three youths were injured, and are all in serious condition in hospital.

Their injuries are: Shirley Johnston, 15, severe shock, lacerations and head injuries; Margaret Johnston, 9, possible chest injuries and lacerations; Kenneth Hearn, bruises and shock; William Boismier, 20, lacerations, fractured arm; David Graham, 17, concussion.

Driver of the car was David Graham.

Police said the group was apparently heading home from a dance at Erieau. It is thought they met a west-bound Chesapeake and Ohio freight train and swerved to avoid a collision, striking an iron signal standard.

Globe Turned Down in Second Application

Toronto, Aug. 12 —(CP)— The Ontario Labor Relations Board Friday turned down a second application by the Globe Printing Company for review of a board decision certifying the Toronto Newspaper Guild (C.I.O.) as bargaining agent for circulation department employees of the Globe and Mail.

The Guild was certified by the board last July 20. The board Aug. 1 refused an application by the company for review of its decision. In turning down the second application, made Aug. 8, Board Chairman P. M. Draper said "the board does not intend to take any further action in this matter."

The company contended that a "substantial number" of employees had repudiated the Guild shortly before the board's hearing of the Guild's original application.

Speech-Making Marathon Resumes On Monday

Lake Success, Aug. 12 (AP)—The Security Council — still snarled up over procedure on the Korean question — wound up its second week of squabbling yesterday, with Russia getting in the last word. The speech-making marathon resumes Monday.

Jakob Malik, as president, gave himself the floor yesterday, as Russia's delegate, to attack the United States in a speech designed to close out the council business for the weekend without danger of an immediate reply.

It followed a statement of Sir Gladwyn Jebb, chief British delegate, that communist Imperialism wants to swallow up all Asia and must be stopped.

The non-communist group campaign of trying to out-talk Malik was carried on by Jebb after the council failed to get Malik to make a ruling on seating the South Korean representative at the council table.

Malik tried vainly to make the council submit to him by voting on his proposal to seat both North and South Korean representatives — and red China — before the Council can consider anything further on the Korean question.

Jebb said that "repulsed in Europe, it is now clear that the dark forces of communist imperialism are concentrating on the kill in Asia."

He termed Malik's claim that the fighting in Korea is only civil war "patent nonsense."

Malik charged the U. S. built up the South Korean army to invade North Korea, gave it supplies, and provoked an attack with guarantees from Gen. MacArthur that the South Koreans would get help from him.

He called Austin's charges that Russia provided the North Koreans with their armament "unfounded dirty slanders."

Malik charged that all Security Council actions taken in his absence on the Korean conflict were illegal and that other members of the Council were "gullible" to accept "the crude falsifications of the U. S., a legend for simpletons" on how the North Koreans invaded.

SURVEY SHOWS HOARDER MAY BE LEFT HOLDING BAG

No Shortage Unless Panic-Buying Starts

Ottawa, Aug. 12—(CP) — The hoarder, whose activities lead to shortages of goods, higher prices and unpopular controls, is back at work in Canada much to the disgust of leading government, business and consumer association officials.

In retirement since the disappearance of wartime shortages, the hoarder again is at work in some sections of the country.

But a Canadian press survey yesterday indicated the hoarder may be left holding the bag this time.

Government, business and consumer association officials agreed there is no shortage of supplies of any kind and none is likely to develop unless there is excessive buying. In fact, the supply of some products was so good price drops were likely.

The officials condemned panic-buying and hoarding as "selfish, exceedingly foolish and unpatriotic." It tended to disrupt the whole economy of the country if carried too far.

J. H. Brace, chairman of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said "people who hoard must realize they are doing the country and themselves a real disservice since they will inevitably force prices up and make it necessary to institute an arbitrary and complicated system of controls. . ."

Spokesmen for major consumer industries with head offices in Montreal said that in many cases there is an oversupply of so-called scarce goods. Bargain sales later in the year should produce lower prices.

Can't Impose Controls

A government official said there are no shortages.

The government now has not the power to reimpose the price and rationing controls in effect during the war and post-war years. That power has returned to the provinces. But the federal government could reimpose the controls by declaring that a national emergency exists and that such controls is warranted.

Mrs. F. E. Wright of Port Credit, Ont., president of the 12,000-member Canadian Association of Consumers, appealed to women to give the lead in refraining from panic-buying and hoarding. She said:

"There are no real shortages nor likely to be in this country unless the thoughtless, ignorant and selfish begin hoarding, creating artificial shortages, inflationary prices and all that these may bring."

D. B. Mansur, president of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, said the hoarder could throw the construction industry into an "awful mess." There were sufficient building supplies now to go around if everyone bought only what they needed. But supply pipelines could be emptied through unecessary buying.

SET UP CAMPS

Prague, Aug. 12—(Reuters) — The Czech government has announced the setting up of labor camps where security offenders can be sent for periods up to two years. They will do paid work and receive "moral, political and professional education."

North Korean Port City of Najin Blasted with 500 Tons of Bombs

Tokyo, Aug. 12 — (AP) — A powerful force of B-29s, striking within 17 miles of Rusian territory, blasted the North Korean port City of Najin today with 500 tons of bombs.

It was the northernmost blow American forces have struck in the Korean war.

The raid carried American bombers to within 110 miles of Vladivostok. Najin is just 17 miles from a junction of the borders of North Korea, Manchuria and Russia's Maritime territory.

The superforts came in from sea in formation through a heavy overcast and bombed by radar.

Pilots, returning to their bases in Japan and Okinawa, said they could not see the results of their attack on the east coast port city and railway centre.

The raid was carried out at noon, the day after naval patrol bombers set 10 enemy ships afire off the North Korean coast.

While allied planes raked and bombed red communications and troops almost unchallenged Friday, American fliers reported finding an increased number of enemy planes.

No Sign of Break In Deadlock Between Parties

Govt. Taking No Action Until Cabinet Meeting on Tuesday

Montreal, Aug. 12 — (CP) — With a country-wide strike against Canadian railways set for Aug. 22 there isn't a sign of a break in the deadlock between union and management.

Latest development in the major labor fight was the rejection by union leaders representing 124,000 non-operating railway employees of an appeal by the presidents of Canada's two major railways.

Donald Gordon, president of the government-owned Canadian National Railways, and W. A. Mather, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, asked the union heads yesterday to rescind the Aug. 22 strike call and "thus enable calm judgment to be exercised in regard to the situation as it now stands."

Frank H. Hall, chairman of the negotiating committee for 15 international unions, said the telegram from the presidents had been received and he was advising them "There is nothing more than can be done." A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor and head of the two Canadian unions involved in the wage-hour dispute, also rejected the appeal.

Letter Released

The rejection followed release of a letter in which Mr. Hall accused the companies of delaying tactics in the face of union demands made 14 months ago.

The workers asked reduction of the 48-hour-week to 40 with no reduction in take-home pay, and an hourly wage increase of seven and 10 cents — seven cents for the international unions.

Final company offer was a 44-hour-week with no loss of take-home pay; or an 8½-cent-an-hour increase and continued 48-hour-week. The railroads accepted the 40-hour week only as a "moral obligation" to be put into effect "at the appropriate time."

Hope Strike Averted

While both sides were meeting yesterday to reach understanding on protection of railway property and maintenance of "essential services" during the impending tieup, there were reports from Ottawa that the government, hoping the strike would still be averted by negotiation, was going to keep its hands off at least until Tuesday when the federal cabinet meets.

All passenger, freight, express, inland and coastal shipping and ferry services of the railways would be brought to a standstill by a strike.

SHIFT TO NON-VIOLENCE

New Delhi, India, Aug 12 (AP) — Deputy Prime Minister Sardar Vallabbhai Panel told parliament yesterday that he had seen a secret communist party circular ordering a shift to non-violence in order to conserve red strength for future violent overthrow of India's government. He said this was not due to a change of heart among communist leaders but to the success of government policy against them.

Missing Teacher May be Victim Of Foul Play

Toronto, Aug. 12 — (CP) — A missing Toronto high school teacher was hunted today by squads of city and provincial police combing the area between Toronto and Lake Simcoe, 65 miles to the north.

They feared that 38-year-old Alfred P. A. Greene was the victim of foul play. His blood-spattered automobile was found abandoned early Wednesday in east-central Rosedale ravine.

That is the only trace found of Greene since he left his summer home at Atherley, a Lake Simcoe village, last Saturday. He was bound for Toronto and was believed carrying about $200 cash.

Fuel was added to the foul play theory by the discovery of Greene's empty wallet in the front seat of his car. A pair of broken spectacles lay nearby and a haversack, its contents strewn about, was in the back seat.

Police believed Green may have picked up a hitch-hiker on his way to Toronto and was robbed. They are searching highways on the route in case his body was ditched there. A search of Greene's Toronto home gave no indication that he had returned, and no trace was found of the missing man in the ravine near his car.

Provincial police, attempting to inform Mrs. Greene of her husband's disappearance, could not locate her at first. She was reported last night to be staying with friends at Atherley. Her two children were with her.

Greene is a lecturer in public speaking at Toronto's Danforth Technical School. He is a graduate of the University of Toronto, and taught in Cornwall, Ont., for some time after his graduation.

Firemen Rescue Three Persons In Ottawa Fire

Ottawa, Aug. 12 — (CP)—Fire threatened a three-storey apartment building at Booth and Somerset Streets in the west-central section of the city Friday night, but firemen rescued three persons and none of the 50 persons threatened was injured.

Rescued by firemen on ladders were Mrs. Albert Belair and her 18-year-old daughter, Marguerite. Mrs. Annette Sutcliffe was carried out of her smoke-filled apartment.

The fire was believed to have started in a wooden shed adjacent to the building, which also housed the Royal Bank of Canada and the Larmac Tile Co., neither of which was damaged.

Most of the tenants were able to return to their homes. Extent of the damage or cause of the blaze were not immediately known.

200 LOADS OF FILL WILL BE REQUIRED TO LEVEL GROUNDS

Board of Education last night decided that in order to complete the job of levelling the field on the collegiate grounds, 200 loads of fill would be required, and appropriated $300 for that purpose. It had been thought previously that no fill would be needed, but a misinterpretation of the words "mean level" in the contract resulted in the requirement of the fill. It was found that the "mean level" specified in the tender was not the same as the "mean level" as found by the contractor when he began to get the field in shape.

PREMIER LESLIE FROST WILL FORMALLY OPEN PR. CHARLES SCHOOL

Although it has not been confirmed by letter, the Board of Education understands that Premier Leslie Frost will be in Belleville October 17 to officially open the new Prince Charles public school

Lawrence Kells, secretary of the Board, told members last night that he had been in telephone conversation with the premier and that Mr. Frost had agreed to be here on that afternoon. Plans for the ceremony have not been arranged as yet. Early confirmation by letter is expected.

Little Change In Market Prices

Early morning raspberry prices of 45 cents and 40 cents took a midmorning five cent jump on the farmers' market. Relatively few of the red berries were offered, and what quantities were shown moved slowly. Blueberries remained steady at $2.25 for six quarts.

Several vendors offered red astrakan apples this morning, with prices at 50 cents for a six quart basket, 15 cents a berry box, 50 cents for half a peck. Smaller varieties of the apples were priced at 75 cents for a small peck.

Corn moved at 35 cents and 40 cents per dozen; tomatoes stayed at the old price of 25 cents per box and $1 for a basket. Montmorency cherries, with fewer offered this week than last, were priced at $1.40 for six quarts.

Vegetables on the whole remained at the same level. H. J. McFarland Co. Explains Reason For Not Tendering

(Editor's note;—The following letter received from the H. J. McFarland Construction Company is self-explanatory. It explains why the McFarland Company did not submit a tender for the new school. Company officials feel that in view of the controversy raised following the submission of tenders early in the year, that the general public should be informed of the company's position in the matter.)

Mr. L. A. Kells,
Secretary-Treasurer Administrator,
Board of Education,
Belleville, Ontario.

Dear Mr. Kells,-

This letter will acknowledge the recent call for new tenders for the East Belleville Public School. We very much regret the fact that we cannot see our way clear to tender at this time for several reasons.

In the first place, we have been concerned about the public controversy which our original tender created. It was an embarrassment to us and we are quite certain that it must have been considerable embarrassment to the Board of Education, as well as the City Council, which had taken the position that a contract of this kind should be awarded to the lowest tender. On that occasion, of course, the lowest tender happened to be our own.

We notice, further, that the same architect is being employed. Since we understood that this architect advised your Board that he would not take responsibility of supervising our work it seems useless to force our tender on him under the circumstances.

We might say further that we have always been prepared to proceed with the contract on the basis of our original tender, as long as it was outstanding. We realize, of course, that this second call releases and cancels all tenders resulting from the original invitation.

In addition to the foregoing, we have been fortunate this summer in being awarded an amount of work in excess of any previous year of our operations. Therefore, our facilities will be taxed to their utmost to conclude this work under the terms of the particular contract and it would, therefore, be unwise to undertake further work at this time.

We trust that this will explain our position, and, in order that the taxpaying citizen of the City of Belleville, will also understand, we are taking the liberty to send a copy of this letter to the press, requesting its publication.

We appreciate the relationship which we have enjoyed with the different public institutions in the City of Belleville. We are now a substantial taxpayer in your City and hope that this relationship may continue. In concluding, we wish to express our thanks for the consideration which has been given to us and hope that the successful contractor may have every success in his undertaking.

H. J. McFarland Construction Co. Limited.

Clara Frederick,
Secretary-Treasurer.

Bd. of Education Reserves Decision On New Public School Contract, Meeting With City Council Planned

On the second calling of tenders for the new public school in the Parkwood Heights area, the number of bids was cut in half last night. On the first call, eight firms bid on the school, and on this call, only four bids were registered at the Board of Education meeting last night.

The four submitting bids were T. A. Andre and Sons, Kingston, Bradford-Hoshal Ltd., Port Hope, Eastwood Construction, Peterborough, and St. Lawrence Contracting Co. Ltd, a local firm.

An expected tender from McFarland Construction Co. of Picton failed to materialize. That company, in a letter to the Board of Education, said that they did not wish to bid this time because of the controversy that surrounded their initial bid. McFarland's stated, in part, that the calling of the first tender was "an embarrassment to us and we are quite certain that it must have been considerable embarrassment to the Board of Education, as well as to the City Council."

Same Architect Retained

Remarking that the same architect had been retained for the job, the company said, "Since we understand that this architect advised your Board that he would not take the responsibility of supervising our work it seems useless to force our tender on him under the circumstances." A copy of the letter, in full, is being sent to the press, McFarland's said. (Editor's note: Text of the letter appears elsewhere on this page.)

Two of the tenders were so close that the Board reserved decision last night, pending a future meeting with City Council to discuss the matter. Members of the Board said that this time they wanted to make no mistakes about the awarding of the contract, and hence wished to meet with Council first.

Only snag in the proceedings is that with the recent increase in plumbing fixtures, which will make up a considerable part of the contract, members feel that the contract should be awarded before August 15 in order to escape the increase.

Special Committee

Immediately after last night's meeting several Board members attempted to interview Mayor H. J. Allin to get his views on how the contract should be awarded. On a motion made by Mr. A. L. Burke and seconded by Fred Symons, three members of the Board were appointed to a special committee to deal with City Council on the matter. They were Enos David, Arnold Campbell and Harold Seldon.

Mr. Seldon expressed amazement "at the low prices quoted" by the tendering firms. Chairman Enos David agreed that some of the firms had "sharpened their pencils since the first call for tenders."

Considerable argument centred around whether or not the Board was bound to accept a local contract even if an outside tender proved to be lower. Mr. Seldon said, "Council has made it clear that we must simply seize on the lowest tender, regardless of anything else."

Face Problem

Board members said last night that the problem they faced was whether to award the contract in a more local manner at what might prove to be a higher price, or to award the contract out of town and risk being centured for it.

After the first tenders were called, some members said, they were approached by several working men in town who pleaded with them to award the contract locally so that they (the workers) would have a job to go to. Yet, they said, City Council was dissatisfied with their efforts the first time, and they hesitated to make any definite decision until Council could confer with them.

THOMPSON FUNERAL HOME

A FUNERAL HOME should be what the name implies, but that is not always the case. We BELIEVE our funeral home is truly a funeral home. We give that personal attention.

Recently, a family, when making funeral arrangements, were deciding whether to have the funeral from their home or the funeral home. After meeting our Mr. and Mrs. Davison, who are in charge, they, without hesitation, decided on the funeral home.

Then, too, our chapel has many advantages, including air-conditioning. Ample parking space is another feature we offer.

Government Will Demand Extension Training Period

London, Aug. 12 — (Reuters)— The government's main purpose in recalling parliament for a defence debate Sept. 12 is to demand extension of the period of compulsory military service from 18 months to two years, it was reported today.

The lengthy cabinet meeting yesterday, which preceded announcement of the recall, also was understood to have agreed on increases in pay for the armed forces.

This would not require parliamentary approval, whereas any lengthening of the conscription period would.

Political observers today deduced from the unusual duration of the cabinet meeting — it lasted more than three hours — that the proposal to increase the period of military service met with opposition from some cabinet members.

Some observers here also considered the possibility the government might introduce a special autumn budget to make a start on the recently-announced £3,400,000,000 ($10,472,000,000) rearmament program.

Others discounted this possibility because the money would not be spent until after the end of the current financial year.

A Lard Pail Goes Raspberrying

(By John Gould in Christian Science Monitor)

The wild raspberries this year have been extra good, and I've gone up each day to accumulate my portion in a lard pail. I mention the lard pail thus specifically because I think a lot of people will be glad to know at least one is still in use at berrying time—although a lot of other equally fine people may not know just what I'm talking about. These other people might be able to explain the difference between esotric disintegration and unclear fission, if any, but as far as they are concerned a lard pail is nothing much.

As a matter of fact, the lard pail, except for a few old fogies like me, has pretty much petered out. In the days of simpler things, they used to render the leaf portions of a fetched hog and deliver the shortening thus gained to customers in a small tin pail fitted with a cover and wire handle. After the lard had gone it culinary way the pails were used for a number of things, including berry picking.

In Several Sizes

The pails came in several sizes but the three-pound and the five-pound had more uses. The bigger ones, say a ten-pound, with a piece of wax paper under the cover, was a traditional cookie can on the pantry shelf.

Then they made lunch buckets. Up in Canada, tourists can still see little Marie and Telesphore going to school with their lunches in lard pails, Canada still ratatining some of the antique goodness. The Canadian pails are red, with a maple leaf recumbent as a trademark.

Perhaps the first time the adaptability of a lard pail was made clear to me was one summer as a boy when I got a job and worked out. The first day, I carried my lunch in a pasteboard box, for some unremembered reason that was probably satisfactory at the time.

When noontime came we sat in a circle under an oak and gave our attention to the nutriment provided. The other boys and men opened their lard pails, laid the piece of pie on the cover to one side, and held the pails between their knees, while they ate. At once I observed the superiority of the lard pail to a shoe box. I could not hold the box between my knees without crushing the mocha cake into the beef sandwiches.

When we finished eating the others jumped up and scouted into the nearby woods to fill their pails with blackberries—and there I was with a shoebox. It had no bail to loop through my belt, or to hang on one throng of suspenders, leaving both hands free to gather. I had to hold the box in the flat of one hand, and the noon hour was up before I had half a mess.

The next day I carried my dinner in a lard pail like a human being.

Becoming scarcer

Since patent shortenings and disposable packages were invented the lard pail has been less prominent. Marketing has changed, and modern housewives look upon five whole pounds of lard at once as quite an investment. You can still get lard pails, now and then, but some country housewives probably pick them up more for the pail than the lard. That's a good idea.

However, it's for a berry pail we are considering the utensil, for which it's ideally constructed. You might not think it, but there has to be a design to a berry pail. It has to hang just right from your belt, and it mustn't be too big. You always have a milk pail sitting on a stump to dump into, so the picking pail isn't for quantity. Some people might suppose that any pot from the kitchen would serve. But only a lard pail will really hang right, and swing right as you wallow over slash piles and keep the berries safely in place.

I'm not talking about cultivated berries, you know—I'm talking about the wild ones you have to go out and fight for in the puckerbrush—the only real berries when the showdown comes. You can climb over and through a mare's nest of pine limbs with a lard pail of berries dangling at your belt and never lose one berry. I know because I've done it. Almost anything else will upside-down on you at the first fern-brake and make you sorry.

Something to Cry About

People who wouldn't cry over a whole carload of spilt milk will go all to pieces when they upset a choice collection of succulent raspberries into a copse of hardhack and cleaverwort. An uncle of mine had that happen once, out of a cream measure, and all he did for the rest of the afternoon was sit on the stump and keep saying, "I hate me, I hate me." He was mad at another uncle who appropriated his favorite lard pail that morning, and they scarcely spoke for years.

A lard pail has an aesthetic value, too, when it is heaped up. Berries look nicer in a lard pail than anything else. I don't know why; they just do. I have proved it every day, twice a day, now for a week.

Except the first day. Everybody was going down to pick peas. I planted them, hoed them, and got them up to that point and thought I could change work. So I went raspberrying with some little baskets because I couldn't find my lard pail. That night we had green peas, new Rose potatoes, and wild strawberry shortcake, and I groused because somebody stole my pail.

"Somebody stole my pail," I said and I was tush-tushed. Then I found it hanging on a rafter nail where I had put away some popcorn seed.

Since then I've been up twice a day and filled it. We freeze some, and preserve some, and eat the rest. So I know that you can't pick berries in anything but a lard pail. This may not be world-shaking information, but as I say, there will be those who will be glad to hear it. They know they know.

Belleville is to be the first stop on a two-week Canadian tour for Dr. Toyohiko Kagawa, outstanding Japanese Christian leader. The Ministerial Association, under co-chairmen Rev. F. R. Harback and Archdeacon Arthur Smith, arranged for Dr. Kagawa's presence here August 16. A joint service of worship will be held in Bridge St. United Church at 8 p. m. that night.

Dr. Kagawa has had a colorful career. As early as 1940, the Japanese government arrested him for anti-war statements. When the government bowed to public opinion and released him, it was on the condition that Dr. Kagawa retire from public life. He refused.

Again, in 1943, he was arrested for opposing the war. The leader of 400,000 Christians in Japan, Dr. Kagawa realized then that anything he might do to annoy the government might be taken out upon his followers, so he restricted his activities. Now, in the postwar period, Dr. Kagawa is one of communism's foremost enemies in Japan.

Dr. Kagawa's Canadian tour starts in Belleville, and continues until August 31, with stops in Ottawa, Montreal, Stratford, Kitchener, St. Catharines, Winnipeg, Orillia, Peterborough, Toronto, Hamilton and Windsor.

Shy Pika Wary of Hunters

High in the Rocky Mountains there lives the shy little pika, an animal that is seldom seen even by experienced trappers. It lives in rock slides and the color of its fur blends so well with the weathered rocks that even the experienced eye is hard put to distinguish it, writes J.H.B. in The Lethbridge Herald.

The first pika I saw was at Jasper. I was with a naturalist friend who was on a collecting trip, and one day we were climbing up the side of a mountain when we came to a rock slide. It had been a hard climb and we sat down to rest and have a smoke. While we were resting we were startled by a sharp squeaking cry—a little "eek, eek," coming from the depths of the rocks at our feet. In a moment my friend was all ears and eyes.

"Sh-h," he said. "It is a pika—a rock rabbit. Keep perfectly still and we may be able to see it."

Only a Squeak

Now, I had never seen a pika, so I didn't know what to watch for, but I imitated my friend, who was intently peering at the rocks just below us. For a long time we sat thus, but the occasional squeak seemed to be as distant as ever. Suddenly a sharp loud "eek, eek" coming from where my fiend sat caused me to turn to him in wonder, half-expecting to see a 'pika' devouring him alive. Much to my astonishment I saw that my friend was imitating the animal's call. As I watched he pressed his lips against the back of his hand, and drawing in his breath sharply, produced the identical "eek, eek" that we had first heard. Immediately an answering squeak came. For a few minutes the calls and answers passed back and forth; then, suddenly, the answering squeak was sharp and clear. Gesturing with his free hand my friend, his eyes shining with excitement, pointed to the rocks just below. Following his pointing fingers, my eyes saw nothing but the drabness of the rock. I was just about to give up when a slight movement on a rock almost at my feet sudenly resolved itself into a little animal.

As soon as my eyes focused properly I saw that this animal blended perfectly with its background. It was a small rabbit-like animal about six inches long, with short rounded ears and no tail. Its fur was quite long, brownish grey grizzled with black on the back and side, with whitish under the neck and on the belly. It was very nervous. The head moved continuously, and the long whiskers vibrated in harmony with the twitching nose.

Fleeting Shadow

Suddenly, like a fleeting shadow, it was gone.

The next pika I saw was at Waterton Lakes many years later. I was on a collecting trip and we had permission to collect small animal specimens in the park. I had heard that pikas occurred in that area and I was hoping that I would be able to collect one.

One day I was collecting near Wall Lake when I heard the never-to-be-forgotten squeak of the pika coming from a nearby rock slide. Making my way carefully to the slide, I sat down to watch and wait. For a long time the tantalizing "eek, eek" seemed to be as distant as ever. I was about to give up my vigil when my eyes caught a lightning-fast scurry across a nearby rock. In a moment I was all eyes, then wraith-like, a pika materialized in the shadow of a rock. Slowly, cautiously, I raised my cocked gun and taking careful aim gently squeezed the trigger. I had collected my first pika.

That night I made the pika up into a scientific skin. It was an adult male nearly seven inches long. It was such a delicate animal that it had to be handled with care. The white skin was paper thin, while the long pelage was the most beautiful I had ever seen. I have handled chinchillas, the animal whose softness of fur makes them of fabulous worth, but to my mind the fur of the pika is their equal if not their superior, for the long silk-like hair is as soft as thistledown. I am sure that women would almost sell their souls for a cloak of such wondrous softness and beauty. It is a wonder that someone hasn't started to raise them for their fur.

Scientifically the pika is Ochotona princeps and belongs to the Lagomorpha order, which also includes the rabbits and hares. So you see its other name "rock rabbit", is really legitimate because it is a form of rabbit.

The pika is common in the Old World but only three species are found in the New World, and all of these are truly western, for they are found only in western North America from Alaska to southern California. Sometimes this animal is called the "coney" as well as "rock rabbit" and "pika", but pika is the preferred name. Incidentally, pika is the name applied to this animal by the Tunguses—a tribe living in northwestern Siberia, where pikas abound.

The next time you are in the mountains, be sure to visit the nearest rockslide; maybe you, too, will see the shy little pika.

August Day

In the quiet dawn of an August day
When silence enfolds the morning gray,
When shadows lie on the sand-strewn strand,
And dews lie damp o'er the meadow land,
Then in the hush of the waking earth
Silently waiting the day's re-birth,
A spirit comes the heart to cheer,
And the presence of God seems very near.

Then over the sunlit harvest fields
Where August her golden treasure yields,
Is heard the harvester's lusty song
As he drives his sturdy team along,
And the binder's hum seems a song of praise
To God for the wealth of harvest days—
For He alone sends sun and rain
That the earth may bud and bloom again.

O August days with your wealth of gold,
Your fruit and flowers and gifts untold,
Your quiet dawns and your moonlit nights;
Your noontide's old and rare delights.
Ah soon! too soon! you are drifting by,
I check a tear and a rising sigh—
Your magic power o'er my heart holds sway
For I was born on an August day!

To Visit Norway In Search of Son

London,—(Reuters)—Two London women, mother and daughter, plan to motor into northern Norway far beyond the Arctic Circle in search of their son and brother who disappeared in 1943 during a British midget submarine attack on the German battleship Tirpitz.

Lieutenant H. Henty-Creer piloted one of the three little vessels which penetrated the barrier nets in Kaa Fjord, lair of the German warship, seven years ago. He was reported missing from the operation.

His 26-year-old sister Deirdre and his mother will drive north, taking turns at the wheel of their car, to find people who might have news of the daring Britons, who might know if one of them survived, and what might have happened to him.

Mrs. Henty-Creer has never given up hope because her son said "I will come home again."

Deirdre is a well-known London artist and has exhibited paintings at the Royal Academy.

The Henty-Creer family motto is, "While I breathe I hope; while I hope I breathe."

BELLEVILLE'S 1950 FAIR OPENS MONDAY

On Monday the gates of Belleville Fair Grounds will be opened for this city's 102nd annual fair. For the next four days, hte leather-lunged voices of side show barkers will mingle with the familiar noises of the farmyard in this rural-urban get-together that is one of Ontario's oldest institutions — the annual fall fair.

It is, perhaps, taking liberties with the seasons to refer to an exhibition being held in the sweltering heat of mid-August as a fall fair. However, Belleville enjoys the distinction of having one of the earliest fairs in the province, and experience in the past has shown that more people attend night performances in August than in the chilly evenings of early September when fall fairs are usually held.

A new attendance record was set in 1949, and taking into consideration the larger number of exhibitors already entered in most classes, and the outstanding entertainment attractions, it will be no surprise if even more people pass through the gates this year.

These annual agricultural fairs are a show window for the products of both field and factory. Both farmers and townspeople can learn a great deal by attending such a fair. The livestock and produce competitions give farmers a real goal to aim at by encouraging better breeding and growing methods. At the same time, manufacturers have an opportunity to advertise their wares to the people in the district served by the fair.

Belleville fair is one of the largest agricultural fairs in this section of the province and has many features that are not shown at smaller fairs, which all help to make it a fair deluxe from a rural viewpoint. Although the livestock buildings are not as centrally located as they might be, they are a distinct advantage over most smaller centres where the livestock has to be housed in the open.

Probably most farmers who attend the fair will spend as much time visiting and exchanging ideas as they will in examining the exhibits. This is a fine thing, too, as it is always a good idea to get the other person's point of view. There is no better time to discuss a new method or machine than right after it has been demonstrated.

The events at the fair grounds next week will be typical of all fall fairs even if they are on a larger scale and with a few extras thrown in. Rural fair goers may spend more time among the produce and livestock exhibits than urbanites, but the chances are they will spend an equal amount of time on other forms of entertainment. Each display or attraction has its own importance to the individual, just as every fair has its own individual significance in the locality it serves.

CAMPAIGN FOR COMMUNITY IMPROVEMENT

Recently in the village of Stirling, the Rev. A. E. Baker preached a sermon that the whole district might well take to heart. The message, which was inspired by a citizen's letter, asked residents of the village to put a "stir" in Stirling by improving the looks and courtesies of the area.

Proposals put forth by the minister included cleaning and replacing windows, painting, fixing street lights, reforestation, weed cutting, better and more road signs, road repairs, letter boxes, tourist accommodation improvement. Cultural improvements suggested were a horticultural society, a music festival, a club for girls. In all, thirty proposed types of improvement were put forth, and Mr. Baker said this did not by any means exhaust the field.

Citizenship is made up of a great many qualities, not the least of which is a feeling of pride for one's own surroundings. It is this feeling, coupled with a desire to do something worthwhile, that may have inspired the Stirling "stir." At any rate, such a campaign is in itself a thing to be proud of, because it shows that there are people in the community whose ambitions do not end with their day's work.

The recognition of the fact that one's community needs improvements is an easy matter. Any person can say, and most do, that this or that is needed, and that the authorities should get busy on it right away. It is this type who shies like a horse from an electric fence when the work is started, and boasts about the results when the chores are over.

The implementation of such a program is not always so easy. It is hard to instill a feeling of civic pride in those who resist it, and to Mr. Baker and his friends, we extend our wishes for good fortune in the venture. And we urge the people of the district to keep their eyes on Stirling. A lesson in initiative is never insulting — the reward for civic initiative is honest pride.

THE HARDER WAY

It's easy to be bitter and it's easy to be mean.
Without study, even children learn to swear.
For the manners not admired little practice is required
But it always calls for courage to be fair.

It's easy to be selfish. Little children have the trait
And their parents have to teach them how to share.
Worth is never lightly gained;
heart and mind must both be trained.
To be honest one for honesty must care.

It takes patience to be gentle.
It takes courage to be true.
It takes self-control and practice to be strong.
We become, it's plain to see,
what we've willed ourselves to be,
For the right way's always harder than the wrong.

RAISING THE DEAD

An English minister has recently written a book telling fellow ministers how to prepare their sermons and how more effectively to present the gospel. His book bears the significant title "Thirty Minutes to Raise the Dead."

The parsons come in for a good share of criticism in every generation, and those of us who wear the cloth know only too well that we deserve, probably, more criticism than we get. But that does not alter the fact that the pew is equally culpable with the pulpit because religious standards are not higher, religious work not more vigorous, and religious enterprises not more successful.

The apostolic church which grew by leaps and bounds 2,000 years ago was made up of a few groups of very humble people. With the exception of the original apostles we know almost nothing about big names and outstanding leaders among these. The church in its most virous period of growth advanced more through the efforts of the laity than through the efforts of the clergy.

"Thirty Minutes to Raise the Dead." That's a task which many ministers confront every Sunday morning. If you happen to be one of the corpses, do what you can to help along a resurrection Get behind your minister and the projects of your church.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

No month of the year is better suited to listening in the night than August. Listening in the night is a game that nature lovers have played since time began. And many a person blind and deaf to nature has become acquainted with the sheer sport to be found in the awareness of wild nature through listening to the tumult to be heard on a quiet August night.

Man is so noisy a creature, makes so much and surrounds himself with so much racket, that it is a revelation to him to be himself utterly silent and to hear the myriad sounds of the other characters who have their squatters' rights on this planet.

Listening in the night is literally a game. Expert field naturalists who play it can sit silent for an hour or even two hours. Half an hour is good enough for an amateur. On cottage verandah, or on some country side road to which you have driven for the occasion, you and your fellow players sit in deliberate silence for an agreed period of time.

No notes other than mental motes are to be taken. At the end of the agreed period of stillness, during which the players have strained their ears into the darkness, they each prepare a written list of things they heard: the familiar things, such as the grinding of crickets and katydids, the low mellow trill of toad, the tiny barks and banjo notes of frogs, as well as the wilder music, such as the yap of fox or the whicker of raccoon: In a week or so, and even now, the call notes of the first migrant birds heading south can be detected in the moonlit sky overhead. It takes the experts to identify them.

But as many as forty different sounds of nature can be listed on an August night by a skilled player. The comparison of notes, the argument and discussion, as the players sit about before bed time,, is a much more amusing post mortem than that which generally follows an evening of bridge or canasta.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

YEARS TO COME

Morris, Man.—The Mayor of Morris and also the MLA for the district (Independent - Conservative), is a slight, craggy-faced man named Harry Shewman, who is an insurance agent and auctioneer by profession and who has given as much as any man in the 1950 Red River floods.

A newspaperman of my acquaintance in Winnipeg who chronicled the drowning of Morris in early May told me: "The flood aged a lot of men, but none any more than Harry Shewman. He was a one-man crusade."

Mayor Shewman is one of the many in this beaten little town still living under wretched conditions. In some respects, they are more wretched now than during the flood. There was a curious aspect of elation and purpose when the battle was joined. The real sobering time of trial came when the water receded.

The modest Shewman two-storey frame house is propped up on blocks. Planks serve as a flooring inside. They will until one of the district's overworked carpenters is available. Says Mrs. Shewman: "Most of us are just camping in the shell of our homes. We haven't doors or furniture or refrigerators. I'm afraid it's going to be a long time before we're back to normal."

Mayor Shewman, himself, thinks it may be years before the town recovers fully from the disaster. In some business lines there is a temporary boom, but more than 83,000 acres of land in the municipality is unseeded. Without a harvest the economy of Morris simply breaks down.

Outside Help

Mayor Shewman, like his neighbors, speaks with bitterness about the "lack of leadership" from the provincial government.

"We stood alone down here, when the flood began," he said angrily. "The premier and his cabinet stalled and gave out false assurances and did nothing at all until Winnipeg itself was threatened. We might forgive that—even the lack of planning for evacution of people and cattle—but we can't forgive the way they've acted since the flood ended.

"We people in the Red River Valley were deeply touched that the rest of Canada should come so quickly and generously to our aid. We're ashamed that our leaders in Winnipeg didn't match them.

"Nothing at all is being done to relieve the distress of the farm people," he went on. "Not much more is being done for the small businesses. Here in Morris we're all living from day to day, hand to mouth, in the ruins you see about you and with no assurances from the government for our future."

The picture is not nearly so uncertain for those who do not farm or for those who do not operate shops or businesses.

The government's plan for repairing homes (to a maximum of $3,000) seems to be operating as efficiently as the number of appraisers and carpenters will allow. I have met nobody here who feels they will be better off than or even as well off as they were before the flood (not unusual in the case of the Fraser Valley flood victims), but most people seem to feel that the plan is adequate.

The spending of the more than $8,000,000 of the fund itself is widely acclaimed. This money is being used to replace furniture and personal effects. The word I heard used most frequently to describe this is "generous." Many of the people in Morris, learning that I write for papers across the country, asked me to pass on their thanks to those unknown friends who gave them a hand out of the muck.

The Losers

A typical case is that of Cliff Mitchell, owner and operator of Mitchell's General Store, which means groceries and dry goods.

While the water seeped into his store Mitchell and his wife piled as much of the stock as they could on the tops of counters, then evacuated with the rest of the town.

When they returned they found that the rising water had tipped the counters. Everything was ruined, including their living quarters in the rear of the store.

"We lost $8000 in stock and a thousand in fixtures," Mitchell says.

"I made a claim, but they said they couldn't help me. Might, they said, it there was anything left over. from the public fund.

"The wholesale companies are giving me credit. I guess I'm back in business. But God knows how long it'll take to get even again".

A few doors down the street from Mitchell's shop is the town's false-fronted movie house. The seats, mildewing and covered with silt, are stacked outside. They were a pre-flood investment. Morris does not expects its Saturday night movie this winter.

A business man who has had help is Leroy Anderson, whose restaurant, Andy's Snack Bar, was a complete casualty. Now Anderson operates a small kiosk with an open counter facing on the town's main drag, selling hot dogs and soft drinks.

"I guess they were as fair as they could be," Andy said vaguely when I talked to him. "Gave me $1900 for my stock and equipment and another $1340 for the building. But, of course, you can't open a restaurant with that kind of money.

"I was born here, want to stay. I dunno. Maybe I could go into some other kind of business."

Picture of Life Among The Penguins

(By Col. Niall Rankin in London Calling).

One of the most surprising things about penguins in general is that, at the beginning of the breeding season, no individual appears to know the sex of any other penguin it may meet.

Everything is very happy-go-lucky. The females usually arrive at the breeding place first, and take up their position near an old nest. The males come along later, and it is only by watching the reaction which occurs when one of them drops a pebble at the foot of another that he can discover the sex of his new acquaintance.

If it happens to be another male, then the little gift, so carefully and politely given, is ignored, or even scorned; if however, it proves to be a lady, then the little offering is received with tremendous excitement, bowing, and hissing. The Springtime quest is ended, and straight away nest building starts. It seems a remarkable simple method of selecting a wife.

There are six different kinds of penguins found in the Antarctic, but two of these can be seen only in the very farthest south. The Emperor penguin, the largest of them, is one of the most remarkable birds in the world.

Imagine a bird which weighs over 80 pounds laying its egg in midwinter in complete and utter darkness and in a temperature of over 100 degrees of frost. For a long time, nobody could understand why this should be; then it was realized that if the little chick were hatched at the normal time (that is, midsummer), owing to its long period of development it would not have reached a state by the time the fearful Winter blizzards began when it would have a reasonable chance of survival. By laying the egg in midwinter, the small chick can be protected, and then have the whole summer for growth.

The other penguin which is not found in South Georgia is the Adelie, but its habits are much the same as any of the other small species.

The second-largest penguin in the world, the King penguin, has about half-a-dozen colonies spread round the island, and I spent a great deal of time amongst them. This bird, standing three feet high and weighing 40 pounds, clothed in a blue-black coat with brilliant orange ear patches and with a waistcoat that fades from orange through green into the finest white satin, is something that just takes your breath away. Some 4,000 of these ladies sitting on their eggs drawn up like a regiment on a barrack square, is something I shall never forget.

I said "sitting on their eggs," but that is not strictly correct, because the King penguin stands balancing the point of its egg on the top of its feet, afterwards lowering a retractable fold of skin over the top in order to hold it against the warmth of its stomach.

Into this little compartment the chick is also fitted when it is hatched—until such time, of course, as it gets too big to go in. It is this snug little pocket which also protects the baby Emperor from the ghastly cold which surrounds it.

Later on, the chicks are packed off to a communal nursery in the charge of certain adult birds which have been detailed to act as nursemaids. Both parents then go off to fish, but it is not to their own hungry youngsters that they hand the food on their return; the very first open mouth that offers itself gets it. This would appear to present a highly advanced social system.

The King penguin strongly resents your going inside the breeding area, although his natural inquisitiveness will bring him right up to you if you remain on the outskirts, and he will probably come and nibble your trousers to see what they are. But if you want to go amongst the incubating birds it is just as well to carry a stick.

The large penguins seem reluctant to jab you with their beaks (even so, you can get a very nasty stab), because their beaks are long and slender, and hence, I imagine, more easily injured. The smaller species, on the other hand, have short, thick bills, and never hesitate to make good use of them. The big King penguin can give you a most unpleasant knock with his arm, and there is one rather comic aspect of this: the bird seems to find difficulty in hitting with one arm at a time. The chances are, therefore, that while you are getting beaten up on one side, the bird's unfortunate neighbor is also catching it on the other side. This leads to endless rows, and I have been the unwitting cause of a succession of battles travelling across the breadth of the colony, one bird after another beating its neighbor because of an unprovoked assault by the individual on its other side.

BRUSH YOUR TEETH AND SEE YOUR DENTIST

One of the slogans that sold carloads of glorified soap to the gullible Yankee public with the approval of the dentists in the days when Uncle Sam winked at false claims has virtually disappeared from the literature of the dentifrice business: "A clean tooth never decays." It seems that the unpaid agents of the dentifrice makers — the dentists themselves—ultimately realized that the public had heard, if the dentists themselves had not heard, the still small voice that asked, in the silent intervals when the dentists paused to draw breath, how come the most brushed teeth in the world, the teeth of the gullible Yankees, are most subject to decay? Is it that the teeth of other people are cleaner than ours, notwithstanding all the noise we make about brushing ours?

To the best of my knowledge the teeth of people in England are as bad or possibly worse than the teeth of people in America— I have been unable to find any precise tabulation of comparable groups, but from casual observation I have gained the impression that English teeth are a cut below American teeth. I didn't live long enough in England to acquire even a fair idea of the state (I'd say status, but, heck. everybody knows I'm not scientific) of the tooth brushing business there. I did live long enough on Tristan da Cunha to observe (1) that nobody brushed his teeth and (2) that everybody had good sound teeth free from cavities—and on request I'll refer any dentist who provides stamped self-addressed envelope, to the dentist who examined a good many men, women and children and found no cavities.

The revised slogan is something like this: "Brush your teeth after each meal and see your dentist twice a year."

That's better, boys. At next decennial revision do get up your courage and advise people honestly, like this:

"Toothbrush or no toothbrush, if you want to save your teeth have 'em inspected, cleaned scaled and/or polished and treated if necessary, by your dentist, at least twice a year."

According to a recent poll or survey more than half of the 96 men and women over 21 in the United States have not had their teeth inspected by the dentist in the last two years, and of these poor geeks who still believe a "clean tooth never decays" have not had dental care in more than four years. Four million of the 45 million have never even visited a dentist.

No, it is not enough just to drop the discredited hokum that "a clean tooth never decays." The dental rpofession owes it to the world to tell the simple truth about preservation of the teeth, so far as present knowledge warrants, and without any nonsense about brushing. The simple truth is this—and I promise to print here any sincere statement any reputable dentist or group of dentists may submit to refute mine, and to publish or keep confidential the identity of the dentist or dentists as be, she or they may wish:

(1) Soundness and freedom from decay of the teeth depend fundamentally on nutrition in infancy, childhood, youth and adulthood.

(2) Only by periodic inspection, cleaning and if necessary treatment by your dentist can you preserve your teeth as long as you live.

Knuckleheads who may feel disposed to dismiss what I say about preservation of the teeth as the maunderings of a person of low breeding—sometimes I do wish I had never confessed my antipathy to the bathtub, even my own individual tub—should try to understand that I do not believe brushing the teeth with any ordinary dentifrice you like does any harm. If the silly business makes you feel superior to persons who do not brush theirs, keep right on spending your spare change and your spare time that way—no loss to the world in that.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Vitamins and Cataract

Please advise definite amounts of vitamins daily that might [illegible] cataract. (Mrs. R. R. R.)

Answer—Insufficient daily intake of vitamin D may account for cataract in young and middle-aged persons in the early stages of osteomalacia which is manifest only by vague pains in back and limbs. Insufficient daily intake of riboflavin (vitamin [illegible] has apparently caused cataract in animals, and an optimal daily ration (three or four times as much as the normal daily requirement) of riboflavin has apparently arrested or cleared up the cataract in some instances. I do not know whether this applies to cataract in man, but it can do no harm in any case to try it out for a few months. Optimal daily ration of vitamin D would be 5000 units. Optimal daily ration of riboflavin would be 10 milligrams (approximately one-sixth of a grain.)

Calcium for Headache

I took calcium and D for leg cramps as suggested in your pamphlet. Had suffered with the cramps several nights in the week, but within a week they stopped and did not occur. Also I obtained blessed relief from headaches which I have had over many years with only a few days between attacks. (Mrs. O. [illegible])

Answer—Pamphlet Why [illegible] Headache? On written request [illegible] clipping) if you inclose [illegible] self-addressed envelope.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

EARTH

Earth, how dear to us you are—you, our mother, source of all life and beauty. Fragrant and productive is every atom of your soil, every chemical element constantly in movement to feed the trees, flowers, beasts, birds, and man. Every blade of grass is a witness to the ever-changing panorama of your numberless creations.

The cool wind is a whisper from your heart of warmth. And gushing from this heart of yours are the colors of the rainbow, distibuted in flowers and in magic array. Perfect in arrangement and design. Each a friend to man. Whether wild or cultivated, these flowers remain your children, and they join mankind in paying reverence to your fertility and mystic might.

We tread your colorful carpet, Earth, and are inspired to look up to the heavens, where the stars sleep out their long night And by day we watch the clouds, above you, being painted in strokes across the blue sky, as a master painter would—if but only he knew the secret. It was upon your breast that Richard Jefferies wrote "The Story of My Heart."

Nothing is [illegible] you, O Earth! There are [illegible] upon every footfall. [illegible] genius in every manifestation [illegible] it the tiniest flower or a mighty oak or hemlock. Where did your knowledge come from that enabled you to paint the pansies which smile at me from the little vase upon my writing desk? Who taught you their design and perfect balance of color?

I roam about you, Earth, and keep being arrested by new discoveries, I who have known you for so long, and yet but a child in knowledge of you. Said a great admirer of yours, "All things that are beautiful are found by chance, like everything that is good." And so we keep learning about you each day of our life. You are the one great teacher we can trust, for everything upon your surface is revealed in plain speech.

Every roadside is a revelation. Every stone upon your surface has a story to tell, and every geologist is an interpreter as well as student. We are all debtors to you, our homestead and our final bed of rest.

WEDDINGS

GRANDISON—GYURE

Gladioli shading from shell pink to deep coral in white baskets, with white moire bows decorating the pews formed an effective setting for a wedding in Knox Presbyterian Church, Oshawa, on Saturday afternoon, when Marlene (Joan) Gyure, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Gyure, of Oshawa, was united in marriage with James Blair Grandison, of Oshawa, son of Mrs. George Grandison and the late Mr. Grandison of Musselburg, Scotland.

The Rev. Charles Steinmetz, minister of First Hungarian Presbyterian Church, Toronto, performed the three o'clock ceremony. Mr. David Jenkins presided at the organ and accompanied Mr. Steve Karney, of Hamilton, who sang "The Lord's Prayer" preceding the ceremony and "Because" during the signing of the register.

Presented in marriage by her father, the bride was robed in heavy white satin fashioned with a molded bodice pointed at the front and richly gathered skirt which flowed into a long cathedral train. A heart shaped neckline highlighted the bodice, and the long sheath sleeves were pointed over the hand and fastened with tiny satin buttons. A pearl coronet crested her full length veil of embroidered tulle illusion. She wore a double strand of pearls, with rhinestones and pearl earrings, and carried a cascade of red roses with sprays of white heather sent by air from Scotland by the bridegroom's mother.

Mrs. Glenford Mulligan was matron of honor wearing forget-me-not blue embossed taffeta designed with long basque bodice buttoned at the back and very full skirt accented at the hipline with flared peplums. The bodice was made with a bertha neckline and long mittens complemented the short cap sleeves. She wore a headdress of matching flowers and carried a cascade of sunburst yellow roses and gladioli tips with matching satin ribbon ties.

The bridesmaids were Miss Grace Tobos and Miss Betty Betz, of Hamilton, Miss Violet Majoros, Miss Helen Kababik and Miss Kay Dobos, of Oshawa. They chose similarly styled gowns of corsage pink faille fashioned with fitted bodices and billowing skirts. They wore elbow length mittens and flower headdresses to match their dresses and they carried cascades of pink roses with gladioli tips shading from palest pink to deep rose with blue satin ribbon ties. All the attendants wore the bride's gift, strands of moonstone beads with rhinestones to match their gowns.

The flower girls were Miss Elvira Kovacs of Hamilton, and Miss Cheryl Mooney of Oshawa, wearing long pink frocks with matching flower headdresses, and carried nosegays of carnations and sweetpeas with tulle florets in pastel shades They, too, wore the bride's gift, a sterling silver band bracelet.

Mr. William McLeese, Oshawa, was best man for his cousin. The ushers were Mr. Leslie Bodo, of Hamilton, Mr. Norman Kalnay, of Belleville; Mr. Alex Yamber, Mr. Bert Majoros and Mr. Leslie Kababik, of Oshawa.

The reception was held in the Piccadilly Room of Hotel Genosha. To receive the guests the bride's mother wore a dress of sky blue crepe with a navy blue and white straw hat, white accessories, and a feathered corsage of white roses. Mrs. Tom English, of Toronto, aunt of the bridegroom, who assisted was wearing grey crepe with guipure lace trimming, a small hat of black coque feathers, and deep pink roses in a corsage.

A three-tier wedding cake in a setting of pink and white tulle centred the bride's table, which was illuminated with white tapers in crystal candelabra. The Rev. Steinmetz offered grace and later, as toastmaster, proposed a toast to the bride which was responded to by the bridegroom. The toast to the bride's attendants was proposed by Mr. William McLeese. Good wishes were expressed by Mr. Alex. Grandison, uncle of the bridegroom, and by Mr. Steve Karney, Sr.

During the reception a congratulatory cable was received from the bridegroom's mother in Scotland, also several cables from other members of the bridegroom's family and relatives both in Scotland and England.

In the evening the guests were entertained at the Hungarian Hall, Albany Street, where an orchestra furnished music for dancing. Following the bride's dance, a traditional Hungarian custom, lunch was served and the newly wedded couple left by motor for Toronto going on later to visit Niagara Falls and points in the United States. For travelling the bride chose a blue eyelet dress with navy accessories and a corsage of summer flowers. On their return they will reside in Oshawa.

The bridegroom presented the best man and ushers with personal gifts.

Guests were present from Toronto, Hamilton, Port Hope, Belleville and Oshawa.

British Dolls Are Versatile

London (CP)—British doll manufacturers are producing a variety of animated dolls which should capture their share of export dollars.

One model, the "crawling baby" with a clockwork motor, can be made to crawl along the floor. Made with a warm, flesh color, it is accompanied with patterns for extra clothes.

A talking doll, named "Baby Lou," is a lifelike model, with skin that can be bathed and powdered. "Lou" will probably be sounding off nearly all the time, as she sobs when pinched, cries when spanked and coos when cuddled.

One of the top designs incorporates an ingenious sound-track which reproduces a human voice. With a repertoire of singing, speaking, laughing and gurgling, it can say "mummy, pick me up" and various other phrases. It has even been made to sing a Spanish nursery rhyme.

Want Baby Asleep? Don't Rock, Spank

Val d'Or, Que., (CP)—Indians at Great Lake Mistassini, in northern Quebec, put their children to sleep by spanking them, says R.C.M.P. Constable Paul Champagne.

Const. Champagne, who recently visited the Indians, said that children are propped up in their papoose carriers while an older brother spanks them gently with a paddle.

British Fashions For Fall And Winter Curved, Feminine

London, Aug. 12 — (Reuters)— Slender, Patrician lines dominate London's autumn and winter styles, giving a most attractive general silhouette.

Curves are moulded, shoulders are natural or rounded, and waists well-defined.

This soft and feminine outline —with such womanly adjuncts as capes and muffs — is enhanced by materials which have at last overcome wartime stingency. There are deep-pile wools, authentic Scots plaids and velours for day wear, rich brocades, faille and tulle for evening, with a touch of velvet for all occasions.

Contrasting fabrics are used in abundance. Perhaps first in popularity are the reversible fabrics woven together. These double-sided wool weaves supply the maximum of warmth with the minimum of weight.

Shorter Skirts

Skirts are still growing shorter. Lengths average 14 to 15 inches from the floor.

Capes have reappeared and several London houses are featuring them for both day and evening wear. Deep-pile wool and velour are used for day, the capes falling in straight and simple lines from the shoulders.

Velvet and a shiny facecloth (the old-time broadcloth) are used for evening capes and coats.

One of these, with such loose sleeves that it looked like a cape, was made from the new reversible velvet, and had a distinctly Victorian flavor. A bold braid design was superimposed, the braid in turn outlined in cut steel and gun-metal sequins.

With an eye on the American market, the British couturiers have increased their production of simple day dresses. And, taking a leaf out of the Parisian book, many of these little dresses are carried out in black. They are shown in both crepe and wool, cut on extremely simple lines.

Town Coats in Velvet

Town coats for autumn and winter are largely in velvet. They are built on close-fitting lines, either pinched in at the natural waist line or tapering from neck to hem in a princess silhouette. Collars are small.

Jackets take the limelight in the British suit picture. Skirts are simple, tapering to the hem without pleats or slits, which the designers regard as unnecessary with the shorter skirt.

Cocktail suits follow the trend of the tailor-mades. The skirts, still slim, preserve the narrow front look, with pleats or slight flares concentrated in the back. Revers and pockets are all-important.

Attractive Suit

One of the best winter suits was shown by Mattli. It was fashioned from otterburn tweed with a soft beaver collar framing the face, and a box-pleated basque held snugly at the natural waist line by a dark brown leather belt fastened with a bronze carved buckle. The skirt, with darted top, had three matching bronze buttons centre front.

One of the most unusual and striking evening dresses was produced by Norman Hartnell, in colors reminiscent of a Siamese cat. The blue satin of the bodice and skirt — the glorious blue of the cat's eyes — shimmered through a cloud of tulle in shades ranging from pale cream to deep brown.

While black is predominant for all occasions, there are many autumn tints, ranging through brick and orange to rust, red rust and ginger. Greens, next in popularity, are sombre and muted. Little brown is used. For evening there is white, grey, lilac and a golden copper.

INDUSTRY COMING BACK

Frankfurt, Aug. 12—The German plastics industry, which went virtually out of business at the end of the war, is slowly but steadily increasing its output. In the war year of 1943 the whole of Germany produced 250,000 tons of plastic materials a year. In 1949 production in West Germany alone amounted to only 57,000 to 67,000 tons, a spokesman of the West German plastics industry said. This year's production may be 10,000 tons higher.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean Love Galloway

A real good feed of fish and chips — nothing in the food world could bring us more pleasure than that. Dropping in at the local fish and chips store the other noon hour to satisfy an inner longing, we were drawn into a lively discussion by fish and chippers as to what they would do with $60,000.

This question was brought up by news that an old lady had been found dead in her house with $60,000 cash rolled up in a bureau drawer. . . "Say, if I had $60,000 I'd be enjoying myself at the ocean" . . . to which the fish man added, "if I had all that money, I wouldn't stay in the same place 10 minutes—I'd travel around and see places."

Another customer, a man in his late sixties, shabbily dressed, but smacking his lips at the taste of fresh, sizzling fish, turned around from his cubicle to say, "Do you know what I'd do, if I found I had $60,000?" The rest of us leaned forward. "I'd just lie right down and die, I would."

A reader has sent us this poem by W. Tudor Davies. It is entiled Woman

She's an angel in truth, a demon in fiction;

A woman's the greatest of all contradiction.

But she'll tackle a husband as big as a house.

She'll take him for better, she'll take him for worse;

And when he is well and can get out of bed,

She's faithful, deceitful, keen-sighted and blind;

She'll make him her hero, her ruler, her clown.

You fancy she's this but you find she is that,

For she'll play like a kitten and fight like a cat.

In the morning she will, in the evening she won't,

And you're always expecting she will, but she won't.

At church on Sunday the minister told this story. In Harlem, an elder of the church was calling on one of the colored members. Purpose of his visit was in this case, to collect donations. After he had taken a good deal of time explaining to Sam that he should come across, the elder, as a last resort, pleaded, "Now, Sam, you know de Lord needs your money." To which Sam nodded his head in agreement, replying, "yas, sah, Ah knows de Lord needs mah money . . . But He ain't pressin' me like de other creditors."

In the corner grocery the other day a mother and her two-year-old son were in a dither about what they wanted most for supper. Admiring his bright little eyes and chubby countenance, the grocer reached up, picked up a lovely ripe banana and held it out to the youngster. The little one grabbed the banana, grasping it with all his might.

"Now, what do you say, Jimmy?" chipped in the mother. "I say, skin it."

Four are Killed By Freak Cyclone Near Calgary

Stony Indian Reserve, Alta., Aug. 12 — (CP) — Four Indians were killed and seven others injured yesterday when a freak cyclone smashed this southwestern Alberta Indian reservation.

A dark, funnel-shaped cloud swept through the area, about 44 miles west of Calgary, uprooting trees, demolishing log houses and ripping tents from their moorings.

Six Indian log houses, three of them occupied, were smashed. The four dead — including a woman and two children — were found in an area of about 50 square feet, nothing remaining of their log homes except the floor.

Persons in tents nearby escaped injury, primarily because the light dwellings were swept away and not smashed by the twisting winds.

The cyclone wreaked havoc over an area of only three square miles. Rescuers attempting to reach the scene of the destruction were hampered by tree-blocked roads.

The victims were Lazarus Dixon, Mrs. Peter Ear, an infant, and five-year-old daughter of Alex Ear. The seven injured were taken to Morley Indian hospital, four miles from the reservation.

Child Expected At Clarence House At Anytime

London. Aug. 12 — (AP) — The simple notice, which will tell a waiting commonwealth that Princess Elizabeth has given birth to her second child, has not yet been posted on the gate of Clarence House.

Hushed crowds ae waiting outside the historic home of Elizabeth and her husband, Prince Philip, for the birth which Buckingham spokesmen said "is expected any day."

The new baby will automatically be third in line for the throne —after Elizabeth and her son, Prince Charles, who was born Nov. 14, 1948.

The princess remains in excellent health, say court officials. She keeps up with her correspondence and until Wednesday took daily walks in the grounds of Clarence House.

Sir William Gilliatt, the doctor who will deliver the baby, visited Elizabeth again today.

Both Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip are said to hope it's a girl.

Mayor Jackson Asks Government To Mediate Strike

Hamilton, Aug. 12 (CP)—Mayor Lloyd D. Jackson who yesterday invited the Ontario government to mediate the city's strike of 1,000 civic employees said he is hopeful of finding a solution.

The Mayor said he has no intention of trying to break the strike but he has been assured by the Ontario government that an attempt will be made to mediate.

Police Chief A. J. Chamberlain said he has no fear of an outbreak of violence because the strikers have the won sympathy of the citizens of any violence might alienate their support.

Hamilton's 2,000 residents were beginning to feel the lack of public services tied up by the strike. Street cleaners and garbage men have downed their tools.

The Hamilton Civic Employees Union, however, last night gave members permission to dig graves in city cemeteries.

The union is seeking a 40-hour week instead of 44, a ten-cent hourly wage increase to $1.10 and one extra statutory holiday.

Some 350 tons of garbage and refuse has collected in the streets since the men walked out Thursday and is accumulating at the rate of about 90 tons a day.

Peterborough, Ont., Aug. 12—(CP) —Troubles come in batches for six-year-old Linda Hewitt. In February, her home burned forcing Linda and her family into zero weather in the middle of the night. Executive Officers of Belleville Fair

ROLLINS BLEECKER DENYES

The strength of any organization lies in the ability of its executive. If this in an indication then the 1950 edition of the Belleville Fair which gets under way on Monday should be an outstanding success. Pictured above are three of the men who are guiding the current destinies of the Belleville Agricultural Society and upon whose shoulders falls the brunt of the work. From left to right are President Harry Rollins, Treasurer Ben Bleecker and Secretary Erle Denyes.

Eleven Boats of Toronto Power Squadron Refuel at Trenton On Their Way to Home Port

Trenton (Special) —On their way back to Toronto after a two week cruise up the Trent Canal to Burleigh Falls, 11 boats of the Toronto Power Squadron refuelled at Trenton dock Friday afternoon. The squadron spent the night at Presqu'ile and left early this morning for their home port —Toronto.

"We will be glad to get Presqu'ile behind us because the water is usually pretty choppy over there," said R. Y. Reid, who is in charge of the cruise. "With good weather we should be back in Toronto Saturday night."

Highlight of the cruise according to Mr. Reid was the civic reception at Peterborough. "The council and Chamber of Commerce certainly went all out and provided every convenience from refreshments and groceries to a gas truck to refuel the boats."

After being extended a welcome on behalf of the city by acting Mayor Adam Sands, the 25 members of the cruise were taken aboard Leo Dorffman's 45 foot cruiser for a cruise on Stony Lake and the reception wound up with a dinner at Irwin Lodge.

Mr. Reid said that the cruise as originally planned was to have been to Lake Simcoe, but due to a series of breakdowns on the Peg III, "which put a crimp in the trip," the squadron turned back at Burleigh Falls. Fifteen boats left Toronto when the cruise started two weeks ago today, but four boats dropped off due to weather before the squadron arrived at Trenton on their way up the Trent system.

Sold on Cruise

Captain of the cruise "Reff" Reid is really sold on a holiday cruise aboard a small power craft "Where else?" he asks "can you have a holiday for three people with all the conveniences of a high class summer resort, plus a change of scenery every day, for less than $200." Since no answer was necessary as the question was in effect a statement of fact, the conversation switched to fishing.

Instead of trying to pass off a thrilling yarn about the big one they did not land out Campbellford way, Mr. Reid admitted the trip was a flop as far as angling was concerned. "Everyone else on the river was catching fish but us," he said rather ruefully. "But we did see some fine ones caught, from other boats."

The aim of Canadian Power Squadrons is to promote "common sense safety practices on the water." Canadian squadrons are patterned after their American counterparts and there are four on Lake Ontario and four more on Lake Erie. The two-week cruise is an annual holiday affair when members and their families climb aboard the family power craft and weigh anchor for a water vacation free from reservation worries.

This year there was an added feature to the cruise for two members. For Mr. and Mrs. Jim Gartshore it was their honeymoon cruise. Since they were married about four months ago, Jim and his very attractive bride have spent every spare hour getting their craft in shape for the cruise. In fact they were so anxious to get everything ship shape they forgot to name their boat. They overcame this oversight by calling it "The No Name."

Sport Briefs

Trenton (Special) — Three Trenton entries in the OASA playoffs go into action this coming week at Bayshore Park and Trenton-Cobourg rivalry should be running high by this time next week.

On Wednesday, the Chevrolets, Trenton's intermediate OASA entry start their series with Cobourg and on Friday night, MacDonald Hardware meet Cobourg's representatives in the junior O.A.S.A. playdowns. Spotless Cleaners wind up a week of outstanding softball features on Saturday night when they meet the Cobourg ladies in the opening game of their Provincial Women's Softball Union playoffs.

Except for a few exhibition games, Trenton softball fans have stayed away from Bayshore Park in large numbers all season, so it is hoped that larger crowds will be on hand to support the home town teams in the playoffs.

The Industrial League has started using Chevrolet pitchers and the result is that Harry Farr and Ernie Curtis have put a stop to the scoring sprees that have been the most outstanding features of Industrial League games all season. Wednesday night Harry Farr, hurled Hinde and Dauch to a three run, two hit victory as the papermen shut out Benedict Proctor. Farr's feat was almost matched by Free who went the route for the Silvermen giving up only five hits and collecting the Silvermen's only two hits.

Recreation Director Jack Dean reports that his junior ORFU rugby practices are being well attended and several boys from Belleville are turning out for the Tuesday and Thursday night practices at Bain Park. Jack says he hopes to have some information this week about a proposed junior ORFU league in this district.

Downs Coulter Workers to Vote On Union Selection

Trenton—(Special) — Employees of Downs Coulter textile plant will vote on Tuesday to decide whether they are in favor of the A. F. of L. textile union remaining as their certified bargaining agent or whether they prefer the CIO textile union.

W. D. Mathers, Registrar of the Ontario Labor Relations Board will supervise the vote and campaign leaflets of both CIO and A.F. of L. unions have been circulated among the workers this week.

It is expected that all workers who went out on strike December 28, 1949, under the local 105, U.T. W.A., A.F. of L., will be eligible to vote.

On April 10, 92 workers decided to return to work, and the CIO has been attempting to organize these workers. A.F. of L union members who did not return to work, and George Beckett, eastern Ontario organizer and Val Bjaranson, Ontario director of A.F. of L. textile union have been passing out pamphlets this week at the entrance to the plant.

Labor Protests CBC's Handling Of Strike News

Ottawa, Aug. 12 — (CP) — Percy Bengough, president of the Trades and Labor Congress, has protested the CBC's handling of Canadian Railway strike news on its Trans-Canada network National News Bulletin Thursday night.

In a letter to A. D. Dunton, said the news bulletin was "simply a propaganda broadcast in favor of railway management." Only the views of the management on the railway dispute were given.

Mr. Dunton and Ernest Bushnell the director-general of progamming for the CBC, now are away on holidays and could not be reached for comment.

Saying that he was speaking for officers and members of the T.L. C., which has a membership of about 480,000 Mr. Bengough stated:

"In reporting the outcome of a meeting between the elected negotiating committee of the Standard Railway Unions and the presidents of the two major railways in Montreal yeserday, the CBC told its listeners that the threatened srike on the railways now was inevitable.

"The broadcast did this very effectively by only saying that the union committee had turned down the final offer of the railways and that a meeting to settle details of maintenance and protection of property would be convened today (Friday).

Did Not Indicate

"The broadcast did not indicate that the so-called final offer of the railways contained almost nothing new and that the second alternative was merely a request to the workers to maintain the statue quo, and therefore that the unions were not turning down anything really new.

"The broadcast did not stress the fact that further negotiations are possible through the Department of Labor, and that these may yet avert a strike.

"The moral lecture delivered by President Gordon of the C.N.R. to the union committee, which could not have been better phrased or timed to exhort his employees to take drastic action, was played up on the broadcast.

"No attempt was made to indicate the views of the workers or to suggest that they too, as citizens of Canada and part owners of the Canadian National Railways have consistently taken a responsible position, and have obeyed and been guided by the laws governing industrial disputes and their settlement to the letter.

"Frankly, the National News Bulletin was not a news broadcast in so far as this particular item was concerned It was simply a propaganda broadcast in favor of the railway management."

Churchill May Have Talked Self Into Another Job

By DeWITT MACKENZIE

(Associated Press News Analyst)

Versatile Winston Churchill may have talked himself inadvertently into another job which will rival his historic leadership of Britain during the last war.

The famous statesman yesterday introduced a formal motion in the European Consultative Assembly at Strasbourg for a unified European army — "subject to proper democratic control" — to defend the west against Russia. He didn't say so, but such a historic development naturally would call for a director of supreme capabilities and possessing the confidence of the whole western world.

Who could fill that place? Two days earlier Paul Reynaud, former French premier, gave the Assembly more than a hint of what is in some minds. He said that what Europe needs is a single defence minister. Then pointing dramatically to Churchill, a few seats away, Reynaud added:

"It would not be necessary to look beyond this assembly to find him."

Capabilities Unlimited

Churchill has the leadership necessary to hold together and get co-operation from a group of countries which are jealous of their prerogatives. His gift of leadership has struck me as something of an anomaly.

When I first started watching Churchill at close range more than 30 years ago he was a good deal of a lone wolf politically. As a member of Parliament he exercized his great gift of oratory and debate rather indiscriminately against his colleagues.

Churchill's opponents frankly were afraid of his clever, caustic tongue, although they admired his capabilities. He held various ministerial posts with distinction. Surely he could be Prime Minister — if he had the gift of leadership.

Then came the Second World War, and in the emergency Churchill disclosed a leadership which has recorded his name in history. So now it perhaps isn't strange to find the European Consultative Assembly — Lower House of the unofficial Parliament for a United Western Europe — hearing him mentioned in connection with the projected army.

Quick Change

A highly - controversial aspect of this army proposal is that West Germany be rearmed as an essential for defence against an attack from the east. This idea is a reversal of the mighty oaths the allies took at the end of the war that Germany shouldn't be allowed to rearm. France has been particularly hostile to it, and Germany herself has viewed the project with disfavor. German political chiefs haven't forgotten how the military clique took over power in days gone by.

So it is of more than passing interest that West German delegates should have been present in the Assembly when Churchill spoke and that he should have welcomed them. He went further, and asked the Assembly to "assure our German friends that we shall hold their safety and freedom as sacred as our own."

That speech might strike a note which would make Reynaud's suggestion come true.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

AMERICAN EGRET

Great aucks are birds of the past and ivory-billed woodpeckers are on the wane. Passenger pigeons were killed off to grace the tables of epicures and are now extinct; American egrets were slaughtered that their plumes might deck the heads of wealthy women, and their numbers diminished until there were fewer than fifty left.

At breeding time, these magnificent white herons, which used to flourish in Florida and the Southern States, acquired on the back some fifty plumes that fell like a bridal train for a foot or more beyond the tail. Just after the eggs hatched, plume hunters used to invade the territory, shooting the adults and leaving the young to starve. At first it did not seem to matter — the supply was supposed to be endless. This ruthless destruction continued until it was almost, but not quite, too late. A law prohibiting the use of these plumes went through in 1911, followed by the Migratory Bird Treaty of 1918. For some years, the few remaining pairs in Florida were jealously guarded, until miraculously the grand white birds, nearly as large as great blue herons, began to increase, and extended their territory, pushing their way gradually farther north.

Seeking quiet pools bordered with trees, American egrets build loose nests of twigs to form a platform in the branches or on tops of bushes high above the water. A family of about four young herons is raised largely on fish. They may be distinguished from other large, all-white birds by having yellow bills and black legs and feet. When reports began to come in that birds answering this description, and with a wing spread of approximately seven feet, had been seen in Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, and Ohio, bird watchers became excited. But members of the heron family have the habit of wandering for a while instead of flying directly south after the breeding season. Therefore dates were carefully checked. Finally it was definitely established that American egrets were nesting in the northern states.

Now, for some 15 seasons, they are being found in several provinces of Canada. Flocks of 14 or 18 have been seen in Quebec near Granby and in marshes along the Richelieu, and there are authentic reports that "at least 9" have remained in New Brunswick from April until November, having nested at Grand Manan, near St. John, and some other coastal spots. It seems certain that American egrets are moving into Canada.

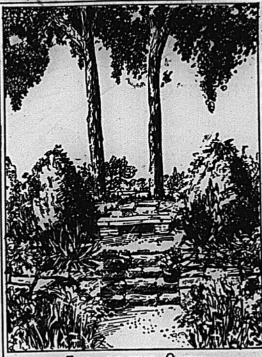
TERMINATING THE GARDEN PATH



~ END OF THE PATH ~

Locating the house on a suburban lot of fair size always permits the development of axial lines to tie in with the floor plan of the house. Two trees bounding the property line might be made a focal center with a path leading to the garden and centered upon a rear terrace or porch.

Opportunities for interesting treatment always exist and the home builder should always consider the house in relation to the property. In the sketch indicated orugh stone steps lead up to a small terrace and seat which is flanked by twin elm trees.

A little imagination can create lovely effect with small expense. It is possible to have a rustic arbor or summer house to accent the end of a vista flanked with suitable planting. This will give a year round effect and will repay the effort involved.

Says Advertising Raises Living Standard of All

Regina, Aug. 11 (CP) —Advertising has raised the living standard of every person in North America, W. E. McCartney of Brampton, Ont., Thursday told delegates to the annual convention of the Saskatchewan Division, Canadian Weekly Newspapers' Association.

Mr. McCartney, managing editor of C.W.N.A., traced the history of newspaper advertising.

"It had been only in the past 25 years that advertising has gained a strong foothold in our country," he said. Canadian weeklies attracted a greater percentage of national advertising than their counterparts in the United States.

He challenged delegates to be more prompt and efficient in dealings with national advertisers.

"Only about two-thirds of C.W.N.A. membership co-operates with national advertisers in the proper manner," he said. "It is time we tightened up our membership standards."

"The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation seeks co-operation with the daily and weekly press" C. E. L'Ami of Winnipeg, editor of the CBC Times, told delegates.

"About 15 years ago, there were dark warnings that radio would supersede the press but today everyone admits the two are complimentary," he said.

Bus Operators Defy Seizure Of Transit System

St. Louis, Aug. 11 (AP)—Some streetcar and bus operators defied state seizure of the St. Louis Transit System and disrupted public transportation here early today.

Fifty-six of the city's street car and bus lines were operating and 11 bus lines were out of service.

Service during the early morning hours was "only about 50 percent of normal," the St. Louis Public Service Company reported.

Union leaders were trying to get all the men back to work.

There was no violence, but union leaders reported "some of our men are being intimidated by a wildcat element."

The transit system was seized last night by Governor Forrest Smith five minutes before a midnight deadline set for a shutdown by the Electrical Street Railway and Motor Coach Employees' Division 788 (A.F.L.).

The transportation dispute arose over the company's rejection of a retroactive wage recommendation of a public panel hearing. The panel said the company should grant a seven-cent hourly increase retroactive to last Jan. 1.

Margaret Bradford, Windsor, Mail-Order Miss Canada of '50

Burlington, Aug. 11 (CP) —A blue-eyed blonde soprano from Windsor, Ont., Thursday night won the mail-order Miss Canada contest of 1950.

She's 20-year-old Margaret Bradford, a 111-pound singer who wants to use her $1,000 prize money to go to Rome and continue her music studies.

There were no runners-up chosen in the contest.

Miss Bradford was selected from among five finalists who were chosen from submitted photographs and questionnaires by a group of judges whose names have not been disclosed. Promoters of the contest said there were from 30 to 40 original contestants.

Finals of the contest were held in a night club at this Lake Ontario resort near Hamilton.

The other finalists were: Deltra Eamon, Biggar, Sask., Jean Stoneham, Ottawa; and Doris Swan and Susan Crawford of Toronto.

The contestants were judged on the basis of beauty, personality, education, health and talent. There was a bathing suit parade in the afternoon followed by a talent contest at night.

Miss Bradford will also be eligible to enter the Miss America beauty contest in September.

She lives at the Young Women's Christian Association residence in Windsor. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Bradford, live in London.

She has appeared on radio and concert programs in London and Windsor and studied music at the Detroit and Toronto Conser-

Avon Jewellers Score 10-5 Win Over Crawfords

Avon Jewellers, generous to a fault in giving away ball games in the early part of the season, upped the ante last evening and retained a 10-5 decision over Crawford Metals in a Commercial Softball League B game at the Alemite Field.

Trailing by one run after the first inning the Jewellers came up with a big five run second frame and were never headed. Singles by McBride, Arch Bellis, and B. McTaggart, with walks to Ethler, Roy Reid and Miller did the damage.

They added three more in the third on singles by McBride and Miller, a walk to Ethler and two errors. They finished with single runs in the fifth and seventh.

A walk to Speigel and a double by Bill Pappas in the first frame gave Crawford's a short-lived lead. Two errors and two singles counted the "Scrappers" another run in the fourth with no one away and the bases loaded, but pitcher McBride settled down forcing Ketcheson and Dudley to pop up in the infield, and striking out Speigel with no further damage being done. A walk to Lally, a double by Buick and a 2 base error by left fielder accounted for two more tallies in the seventh. The Scrappers collected their final run in the ninth. A neat double play by Avon choked off a threatened rally.

Faulkner Goes Route

Faulkner went all the way in a losing cause for Crawfords, walking nine, striking out five and being nicked for eight hits and 10 runs.

Jack McBride started for Avon and in four innings struck out five, walked one, and gave up four hits for two runs to claim the win. Arch Bellis toiled five innings in relief walking three, whiffing two and scattering three hits for three runs.

Lineup:—

Avon Jewellers: B. McTaggart 2b; Cowan c; Connell cf; McBride 1b, p; Ethler ss; W. McTaggart lf; R. Reid 3b, replaced by Ford in 7th; Miller, A. Bellis, 1b, p.

Crawford Metals: Ketcheson ss Speigel 1b; Dudley c; Pappas cf; Lally 2b; Delaney rf, replaced by Buick in 3rd; Taylor 3b; Milligan lf; Faulkner p.

6 R.D. Suffers First Defeat In 18 Starts

Suffering their first defeat in eighteen starts, the powerful No. 6 Repair Depot team of the Belleville District Baseball League dropped the second game of their semi-finals playoff series last night to an upsurging Point Anne squad. The score was 7-6.

The third and deciding game is scheduled for the Sixardee diamond on Monday night starting at 6.15

Youthful Bill Strahan went the route for the Pointers and going into the eighth held a 7-2 lead. The air laddies came back strong in their bid for victory and shoved over four runs to come within striking distance. But Strahan settled down and in a superlative pitching effort struck out the side in the ninth.

Ellis toiled on the mound for the losers and was touched for ten hits.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

'TWAS EVER THUS!

All the humor in the world is not confined to gagmen, radio and stage comedians or the Milton Berles of video. And there is quite a lot left over from the masters of the written humorous word.

Some of the original quips, many of which are good for laughs stem from that unpredictable group of the genus homo sapiens called sports fandom.

* * *

Take an ordinary sports fan, not the too-rabid kind, a Joe that will submit meekly to the little lady's tirade after sneaking upstairs bootless with a slight list to starboard and then port, with not a word of rebuttal (hic).

Take him to a ball game or a hockey match, and listen to the gems of humor? that will sometimes drip from his lips especially if his coke-bottle is spiked with a few drops of S. R. D.

* * *

Occasionally fans of opposing teams after venting their verbal spleen on officials or opposing players will turn on one another in an exchange of humor-tinged repartee.

* * *

Take for instance that game at the Stewart Warner field last summer when, tiring of listening to a ten-minute harangue from a gentleman of the opposing fan faction, an irate lady shrilled:

"Aw g'wan withya. You got enough mouth to take three sets of teeth."

Then there's the one quipped by the feminine fan of a neighboring village who informed a gentleman sitting nearby who had been shouting encouragement to the opposing team, that if someone gave him a brain, he would still have one.

* * *

The other night at the Belleville Cubs-Cannifton baseball game while the Cannifton right-fielder was chasing the towering home run that blasted off the bat of Elder Neilson, a Cub player sallied from the bench to the galloping fielder, "Keep on going, bub, you'll be home in three minutes."

* * *

And many a humorous gem is born to "blush" unheard by the fans and "waste its sweetness on the diamond air" when umpire and player clash in brief but to-the-point verbal combat.

Umpire Max Schindler tells this one:

"I remember one time I'm working on the bases at Trenton and I had to call a real close play at first base. I called an out and the runner promptly blew a fuse. He whirls on me and screams: 'Why you dirty so-and-so, I was safe a foot.'

"I promptly told him that for calling me this name he was out of the game, and while he was still fuming I added that if he'd called me a clean so-and-so I'd have let him stay in. Well, sir, I don't think anything more about it, but the very next day if I don't get the same guy on a close play on the bases. When I make the call he just turns around and, in a tone just as sarcastic and forceful as the day before, says: 'Why you nice clean so-and-so', and he lets me have the same term as the first time.

"What could I do? I had to live up to my promise of the day before and not run him out."

* * *

Art. Passerella, the major league umps tells this one. He was handling some of the Spring training games in which the Red Sox took part and the first time Ted Williams comes to bat he calls the first pitch a ball. Williams looked nice and contented. Then the next pitch he calls a ball and Ted just smiles. But the next one comes down the centre and Passarella yells 'strike'. With that Williams just drops his bat and strolls back to the dugout, sits down and plants his feet up in a nice restful attitude.

"Naturally the ump goes over to the dugout and asks what's up, and Williams replies nothing but that he's out. When Passarella tells him that he knows very well there was only one strike called on him, Williams replies very innocently:

" 'I know that, but before the game they told me that any time you were umpiring I'd have two strikes on me when I come to the plate. So that one you just called puts me out.' "

CHANGE OF TIME!

The Commercial Softball League executive has announced that beginning Monday, August 14, all games in both the A and B sections will commence at 6:30 p. m. instead of at 6:45 as formerly. The shortening daylight hours have made the move necessary. Teams unable to field nine men within fifteen minutes of the scheduled starting time will forfeit the game.

The regular schedule of the league now has just three weeks to run with the playoffs slated to start the first week in September. The first four teams in each section will hook up in a two-out-of-three elimination round with the winners meeting for the league titles over a three-out-of-five or four-of-seven route to be determined at the next executive meeting.

LAID OVER

The scheduled Central Ontario Baseball League game between Batawa and Kingston scheduled for the Fair Grounds tonight has been postponed due to Belleville Fair activities. There will be no baseball played in Exhibition Park next week except next Saturday night, and there is a possibility of that game being called off.

Vern Bickford's No-Hitter May be Spark to Ignite Another Flag Fire in Boston

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Vern Bickford's non-run, no-hitter, first in the majors since 1948, may be the spark to ignite another pennant fire in Boston.

No longer do the Braves field customers chant that old refrain about "Spahn, Sain and a day of rain." Their '48 pennant formula is outdated.

Bickford, once No. 3 man behind Johnny Sain and Warren Spahn, can hold his own with the best, giving Billy Southworth a strong 1-2-3 pitching punch.

Five games behind the league-leading Phillies, the persistent Braves have a good chance to make the grade. After they finish with the dazed Brooklyn Dodgers tomorrow, they move into Philadelphia for two vital games.

Walking only four, the 29-year-old Bickford allowed but one to reach second base.

Brooklyn, whose Rex Barney pitched the last no-hitter against New York, Sept. 9, 1948, was the victim.

Carrying a 7-0 lead into the ninth, Bickford wavered momentarily. He walked pinch-hitter Jim Russell. After retiring Pee Wee Reese, he walked Gene Hermanski, sending Russell to second base. But Duke Snider rapped a double play ball to shortstop Buddy Kerr to end the game.

The Braves clipped a full game off the Phils' lead when New York's Sal Maglie knocked off the pace-setters 3-1. Al Dark's two-run homer and an inning of wildness by soldier Curt Simmons gave the Giants their 18th triumph in their last 21 games.

Blackwell Wins

Chicago defeated Pittsburgh 3-1. The Pirates who just broke a 10-game slump Thursday, scored their lone run on Danny O'Connell's homer.

Everybody fattened up on the second-division clubs in the American except Detroit and Boston. The Tigers were held to a split at St. Louis and lost ground all around.

Dizzy Trout bested Ned Garver for a 4-3 Detroit victory in the opener when Don Lenhardt dropped a throw on a possible double play ball in the 10th inning.

Outfielder Ken Wood cut down two consecutive runners at the plate in the second game, won by the Browns 2-1. Although he held St. Louis to five hits, Hank Borowy lost his first start as a Tiger.

Cleveland moved to within three games of Detroit by shoving across two runs in the ninth to edge Chicago 3-2.

Joe DiMaggio rode the bench and his sub, Cliff Mapes, hit a seventh-inning homer that gave New York a 7-6 edge over Philadelphia. The Yankee clipper was benched by Manager Casey Stengel who said he was "dead tired." DiMaggio has missed many games because of injuries but this was his first benching.

Cuban Sandalio Consuegra stopped Boston with six hits to give Washington a 5-2 triumph.

Dr. Stanton Wins Canadian Cup And First Money

Toronto, Aug. 12—(CP)— Dr. Stanton, nine-year-old bay gelding that cost Lindy Fraser of Forest, Ont., $500 four years ago and developed into the greatest money winner for a gelding pacer on the North American continent, won the $15,000 Canadian Cup Friday—by a flip of a coin.

The gelding that "looked like a truck horse" to Fraser when he first saw it, ended the two-heat race in a tie with Linda's Boy, owned by Mrs. William J. Tillner of Warsaw, N.Y., and driven by Lorne Tolhurst of Tillsonburg, Ont. Dr. Stanton won the first with Linda's Boy fourth. Their positions were reversed in the second heat.

Officials of the Thorncliffe Raceway, sponsors of the 42-day harness racing meet which ends August 19, decided to toss a coin to determine the winner. Mrs. Tillner called it heads—the half dollar landed tails on the paddock grass and the $2,500 cup went to Fraser, veteran of 30 years' driving on Canadian and American tracks.

The $15,000 purse was the largest in the history of the sport in Canada and a crowd of about 10,000 saw the event.

The winning owners each received $3,437.50 and it brought Dr. Stanton's lifetime earnings to $118,600.

Went to Post Favorite

Dr. Stanton went to the post at 6-to-5 odds in the one-mile first heat. He was far back for a half mile, made his move on the last turn and won going away in a blazing stretch drive. The Diplomat, owned by the Pineridge Stables of London, Ont., was second, a nose ahead of Royal Man, owned by Ed Cobb of Washington Court House, O., and driven by Bill Rouse.

Dr. Stanton's time for the mile was 2.06 2-5 far off his two-minute flat record, but Fraser said he was "coasting" at the finish.

The gelding was a prohibitive 1-to-3 favorite for the second dash over 1 1-16 miles with Linda's Boy at 7-2. It was Oro G. Herbert, owned by William H. Herbert and son of London, Ont., Linda's Boy and Dr. Stanton for the first half but positions changed quickly on the final bend.

The three were bunched on the rail and at the finish it was the American-owned horse by half a length in front of the Diplomat which charged up on the outside. Sam Hy, owned by Wes Litt of Stratford, Ont., and driven by Harold Wellwood, was third by a neck over Dr. Stanton.

Sedgman Beaten In Five Sets by Swedish Player

Rye, N.Y., Aug. 12 (AP) —The Australians suffered a shock when their youthful Davis Cup tennis ace, Frank Sedgman, took a five set beating from Sweden's Lennart Bergelin in the opening match of the inter-zone finals yesterday. But they haven't too much to worry about.

When the challenge round opens against the United States August 25 at Forest Hills, L.I., the down under netters probably will be back at their old stand. Fortunately for them, the Swedes have only one Bergelin.

Torsten Johansson, the No. 2 player for the European zone champions, was far out of his depth when he faced John Bromwich, the old master of the Aussie team, in the second of yesterday's matches and went down 6-2, 6-3, 6-0.

This, coming after Bergelin's thrilling 2-6, 6-2, 7-5, 1-6, 6-3 upset of Sedgman, returned things to their proper perspective

Bromwich and Sedgman, who come from the best doubles-playing country in the tennis world, are 5-2 favorites to defeat Bergelin and Sven Davidsson in Today's four-man event.

At the intermission yesterday Bergelin was leading Sedgman two sets to one. Then it rained for an hour.

Sedgman came out wearing spikes after the downpour but but Bergelin stuck with his rubber-soled sneakers. Within minutes, the sure-footed Aussie raced through the fourth set at 6-1 to square the match. Bergelin, meantime, was slipping about like a latter day Sonja Henie, but he was thinking.

When the count in games reached 2-1 against him in the final set and he had just lost his service, he shucked the offending sneakers and his socks, dug in with his toes and began giving Sedgman what for.

It was a barefoot rout. Sedgman was virtually helpless against the onslaught, and he won only one more game as Bergelin ran it out.

Bergelin thought he played much better barefoot.

Peterborough In Second-Place Tie With Athletics

(By The Canadian Press)

Owen Sound Crescents are all alone on top of the Ontario Senior Lacrosse Association series again today.

The Crescents vanquished their nearest challengers, St. Catharines Athletics, in convincing 21-6 style Friday night. It gave Crescents a full game lead over St. Kitts and Peterborough Petes, who defeated Brampton Excelsiors to move into a second-place tie with the Athletics.

Owen Sound were ahead all the way, with St. Catharines' usual late kick coming too little and too late to do anything. Doug Gillespie played a fine two-way game for the Crescents with one goal and seven assists.

Top goal-scorers were Jack Mason with five, and Rusty Slater with four for the winners. High-scoring Jimmy McMahan had two for Athletics.

Peterborough edged out Excelsiors 5-4 in the lowest-scoring game of the year. It was clean and close throughout, with Arn Dugan, league scoring leader, potting a pair for the winners.

Kitchener Kept In Flag Race By Don Lavelle

(By The Canadian Press)

Husky Don Lavelle, a kid from Canisius College, is just about the hottest thing in the Intercounty Senior League right now.

His fancy twirling is probably the main reason for Kitchener Legionnaires' recent winning streak, which has seen them take seven of their last eight contests. Number seven was chalked up last night when they set down Guelph Leafs with a 4-1 defeat.

Lavelle tossed a four-hitter at Leafs, whiffing seven and giving up three walks. The loss put a blacker tinge to Leafs' playoff hopes—the tailenders now are 2 1-2 games out of sixth place and a playoff birth.

Leaf ace George Patte was the victim of some shoddy fielding support, with six Guelph errors giving Legionnaires three unearned runs. Buddy Heximer and Russ Doherty, with two hits apiece, led the Kitchener batsmen.

Meanwhile big Jim Bagby, given plenty of rest, pitched and batted Galt Terriers to a 4-0 win over Joe Yosurak and Waterloo Tigers. Bagby was the whole show, twirling a neat three hitter and smacking a double and two singles.

It started out as strictly a pitchers' game, with Yosurak and Bagby combining to throw goose-eggs at each other for the first six innings. Then Yosurak cracked, Galt scoring twice in the 7th when they sandwiched two singles between a pair of walks.

Terriers counted twice in the ninth off Marve Meyers, third Tiger pitcher. Both were unearned.

Take Full Game Lead

Meanwhile Brantford Red Sox took a full game lead over the Tigers atop the league race by scoring a 6-1 victory over St. Thomas Legion. Alf Gavey whiffed 12 St. Thomas batters but was in constant trouble with eight walks.

Jim Burns and Gene Patton paced a 13-hit Sox batting attack with three safeties each, one of Burns' being a triple. Hits by Stan Lipka and Chico Monje plated the first Brantford run in the second, and Gavey singled home the winner in the fourth.

London Majors came through with four runs in the top of the 10th for an 8-4 decision over Stratford Nats. The Majors pulled the game right out of the fire after trailing 3-1, and 4-3 before tying it up with a singleton in the ninth.

Timber Dahlberg's long homer over the right-field fence was the big blow of the extra inning. Ab Cummins was on first at the time.

At Welland, Cam Pickard's double to left and a single to deep short in the eighth inning gave Welland Stokes-Thermoid the run that broke a 2-2 deadlock and enabled them to retain first place in the Niagara Senior Baseball League.

Johnny Maldovan, Welland's starting moundsman, retired with a sore arm after five innings. He was succeeded by Bill Buntrock but the win went to Danny Patakfalvi, lefthander, who went to Buntrock's relief in the seventh.

Oshawa Merchants of the Viaduct Major League got a fine six hit pitching job from Tony DeLaurentis to score a 6-0 win over West York. The win moved Oshawa into the National Baseball Congress Toronto and district final.

A Weekly Peek At The Soccer Picture

BY ELDEE

On Monday East York United visited the city and pipped the local Bay of Quinte All-Star squad by two goals to nothing. The visitors come from a very sports and recreation conscious community and were a grand crowd. Stan Wardlow, the East York Recreation Director was in charge of the party. He apparently has done great work for soccer in his district as he tells us that East York run three teams in Toronto Leagues, Senior, Junior and Juvenile, also he has soccer introduced in the public schools and has a league going in the Collegiate.

Bill Wilson the club treasurer has been connected with the club for over thirty years. Another soccer personality with the team was coach Don Cameron, who has only been in Canada a matter of months. Although he has seen younger days he turned out for the visitors. He is an old professional having played for Huddersfield town of the English First Division and for quite a few Scottish teams.

The Bay of Quinte F.A. executive have announced that the final of the Belleville Merchants Charity Cup will be played at the Fairgrounds in Belleville on the afternoon of Saturday Aug. 26th. The finalists are Trenton Flyers and Batawa. Frank Follwell M.P. has kindly consented to be at the game to present the cup to the winning team. Admission will be 35c and all proceeds will go to the Injured Players Fund.

The semifinals of the Trenton Challenge Cup will be played on Monday, August 21st. At Bain Memorial Park in Trenton Belleville United will hook up with Trenton Merchants and in the other tilt Flyers play Batawa at the Air Force Station.

In the Bay of Quinte League Trenton Vets hook up at Trenton on Monday whilst on the same day Flyers entertain Belleville United. On Thursday Batawa play hosts to R.D. Belleville United get back to Eastern Ontario League business on Saturday when Vimy Signals of Kingston are the visitors. A win for the local lads could possibly take them out of the league cellar on goal average. The standing in the Eastern Ontario League to date is:

Kingston United	5	5	0	0	24	8	10
Peterborough U.E.W.	7	3	2	2	28	20	8

Sports Roundup

By GAYLE TALBOT
(For Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)

New York, Aug. 12. (AP)—It will be a wonder if no more than hard words are exchanged when Cleveland Indians make their next visit to Fenway Park in Boston, Aug. 27.

The Red Sox, from manager Steve O'Neill down to the youngest rookie, are boiling over that recent unhappy incident at Cleveland when Steve was presented at home plate with a pair of toy binoculars, a caustic allusion to his charge the Indians were employing spy glasses to steal opposing teams' signals.

The Red Sox are fond of their new manager. Some of them, it is learned, insisted on going over and "cleaning out" the Cleveland dressing room when they learned of the trick that had been played on O'Neill, but were dissuaded.

Manager Lou Boudreau of Cleveland, they say, was almost as angry as O'Neill over the incident. So were pitcher Bob Lemon and other Indian players who became attached to big Steve who helped coach them last season.

King Phil

New York Yankees will tell you that their little shortstop, Phil Rizzuto, is the greatest baseball player in the game today.

Not the "most valuable", but the best.

Says coach Bill Dickey: "You can't explain exactly what Phil means to the Yankees. You've got to be on the club with him to appreciate what a take-charge little guy he is."

Says manager Casey Stengel. "Phil's at his very peak right now—better than he ever was before, which was plenty good. Tell me anything he can't do. He's even greater hitting second than he was leading off."

"I've always said that, next to Honus Wagner, Frankie Crosetti was the best shortstop I ever saw," he said. "But now I'll have to move that boy up into second place. I hate to admit it, but he can do things that Crosetti couldn't do."

The Solunar Tables--Their Origin

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT
(Noted sportsman, author and creator of Solunar Tables)

Five years ago, when the Solunar Tables feature was first syndicated in the newspapers of the United States and Canada, we wrote several news stories explaining the tables and their uses.

This has been done periodically since then. Evidently a great many people are becoming interested in the Solunar Tables as time goes on and we receive letters from them, asking for further information. Recently letters of this sort have been coming in every week.

Of course, these letters have all been answered. However, a great many people do not like to write letters. Feeling that there must be others who do not understand how the Solunar Tables can serve to direct them each day to the best fishing or shooting which that day has to offer, this, in brief, will tell them and you what should be known about them.

No Mystery

There is nothing new or mysterious about the Solunar Tables. Indians, market hunters, commercial fishermen, etc. — people whose livelihood depends upon fishing and shooting — have been using a rough approximation of this system for more than one hundred years.

Before the Solunar Tables came into being, the rule of approximation was "moon up — moon down." In other words, those old timers had learned that when the moon was approximately overhead or underfoot were the daily times when wildlife was most active.

This rule-of-thumb is a trifle too loose to be completely satisfactory. Years of observation and study have shown that the sun, too, plays its part. That accounts for the name — Sol-lunar, sun and moon.

Actually the Solunar Tables are simply the application of modern science to an old rule of fish lore. So much for their origin.

Four Periods Daily

When the Solunar Tables were first published sixteen years ago, only two Solunar Periods per day were listed. However, it became increasingly evident that there were two additional periods of activity each day which came along about midway between the two published periods.

These two intermediate periods are of somewhat shorter duration. Thus, they are known as "minor periods" whereas the longer times of activity are called "major periods." Don't be misled by the word "minor." Often the best fishing of the day is to be had during one of these shorter periods. The designation is made only because of the difference in duration and it does not mean variation in intensity.

Contrary to the ideas of many, who refer to the Solunar Tables as "fish books" or "fish calendars," the schedule does not apply only to fish. Instead, it is every bit as useful to the hunter as it is to the fisherman. All wildlife is active during the Solunar Periods.

Nature has arranged this behavior schedule for all living creatures so that it works out exceedingly well. When a Solunar period of activity arrives, all living things come out of hiding and move about, usually in search of food.

Find Prey More Easily

Predatory animals and fish can find their prey more easily then as these smaller creatures are out of their hiding places, also in search of food. Thus, fish will come to your lure more readily at these times. Upland game will leave the heavy cover and the briar tangles and move into the more open feeding cover, affording you good shooting.

Remember that game fish find the majority of their food in the shallows where these smaller creatures live. Thus, during the Solunar Periods it is better to fish along the shore lines, across the shallow flats and over the rocky bars and reefs. Comparatively few of the game fish remain in deep water during Solunar Periods because there is little or no food for them in such places.

The major Solunar Periods begin approximately at the times shown in the Solunar Tables and they last anywhere from an hour to three hours thereafter, depending on weather and water conditions. Minor Solunar Periods also begin approximately at the times listed and last anywhere from forty-five minutes to an hour and a half.

You know, just as well as we do, that you do not find good fishing or good shooting every day. Too many things happen in nature to permit absolute uniformity of behavior on the part of wildlife. Adverse temperatures, which may be too high or too low, unfavorable water conditions, approaching storms — these and many other things will upset the schedule completely.

But this you can depend upon: if you make it a point to keep track of the times of the daily Solunar Periods, you will find the best in sport that each day has to offer.

First No-Hitter In Majors Since September, 1948

Boston, Aug. 12 (AP) —Vern Bickford, sphinx-faced Boston Braves' righthander who two years ago was on the threshhold of the door to the minors because he lacked control, today had his name written indelibly in baseball's record books by way of a no-hit no-run victory.

Brooklyn Dodgers were the victims of the 30-year-old Bickford as he whipped them 7-0 and moved within five games of the league - leading Philadelphia Phillies.

Only four of the Brooks reached base, all on walks, as he registered his 14th victory of the campaign his third over the Dodgers, while completing his 18th game in 27 starts.

The no-hitters was the first in the majors since Brooklyn's Rex Barney whipped New York 2-0 the night of Sept. 9, 1948, and the first at Braves field since Jim Tobin, he of the fluttering knuckleball, did it against the Dodgers, also 2-0, April 27, 1944.

Pounding the game-ending ball presented him by first baseman Earl Torgeson, Bick told admiring teammates and baseball writers:

"All I wanted was the game. 'Course I knew I had a no-hitter going, even though no one would say anything about it.

"I didn't think much about racking up one until the ninth and then I almost lost it but there were no butterflies here" pointing at his stomach.

"I used my usual stuff —fast ball, curve and slider, but it broke good all night."

Chimed catcher Walker Cooper "you said it, Vern, a cinch behind the plate, beautiful pitching." Coop should know as he caught Lon Warneke's 2-0 no hitter for the Cardinals against the Cincinnati Reds in 1941.

When a reporter reminded Bickford "how about your next game, Johnny Vander Meer did it twice in succession," the pitcher murmured: "Nuts, you so and so, just let me pitch a win so we can keep going, that's all."

Canada's Paddling Classic Set For Mooney's Bay

Ottawa, Aug. 12 — (CP) — Canada's paddling classic is set for today at nearby Mooney's Bay, permanent site for the Canadian Canoe Association championship regatta.

Some 400 paddlers will compete for individual and team honors in 21 events, largest entry in the history of the Association which got its start in Brockville, Ont., 50 years ago.

Seventeen clubs are entered in the day-and-a-half program. Montreal tops the list with four. There will be three from Toronto and two from Ottawa. Three other Ontario clubs — Sudbury, Gananoque and Carleton Place — and Quebec, Winnipeg, Halifax and Three Rivers, Que., also will be represented.

Toronto Island Canoe Club is expected to be the team to beat. The Torontonians won the C.C.A. "burgee" last year.

Halifax Mic-Mac Canoe Club is entering the regatta for the first time. Its hopes are pinned on 18-year-old Henry Mosher who will compete in the junior singles event.

Seventeen championship events will be run off today, with four long-distance races — the 10,000-meter events—to be held Sunday morning.

Gossip From The Courts of The District

BY "DIG"

Last weekend the Quinte Tennis Club lost temporarily the services of that grand sportsman Dan Cowley. Dan who was this year's chairman of the tennis committee has been despatched to join the 426 Thunderbird Squadron of the RCAF on the airlift from the United States to Japan. Dan's face will be certainly missed at the tennis courts and we presume that he will also be missed somewhat in hockey circles this winter. All sportsmen will join in wishing him 'Bon Voyage' and a speedy and safe return.

On August 20th the Bay of Quinte Tennis League are intending to run a tennis tournament at the Quinte courts. Entry will be limited to member teams of the league or on invitation from the League. Men's and Mixed doubles events will be run and contestants enter as pairs. Suitable trophies will be given to winners and runners up and also a consolation award to the winners of a competition amongst those knocked out in the first round of the main competition. Entry fee is 50c per person, per event, and entries should be in the hands of Betty Monteith, the League secreary, by next Tuesday.

The League schedule is drawing to a close after which the clubs will meet in a knock out competition for a trophy generously donated by Corby Distilleries. The line up for this competition should be available from the League executive in time for this column next week.

It has been decided to extend the unofficial League Intermediate has been very well received by the future League champions and the schedule. Apparently this event League executive have decided on the extension.

All tennis fans of the district will sympathise with Ken Haynes of Point Anne in his recent bereavement.

LaMotta to Meet Dauthuille in Detroit Sept. 13

New York, Aug. 12 (AP) — Middleweight champion Jake La Motta probably will defend his title against Laurent Dauthuille at Detroit's Olympia Sept. 13.

Nick Londes, matchmaker of the International Boxing Club's Detroit branch, met both parties yesterday. He scheduled conferences today and tomorrow.

According to Londes, La Motta wants a $60,000 guarantee. The champ also wants Dauthuille's handlers to post $20,000 in cash as guarantee of a return bout in case he loses the crown.

With Detroit Tigers at home during most of September, Londes probably will stage the show indoors at the Olympia (capacity 18,000). There's a chance of getting Briggs Stadium for Sept. 22, but that appears to be a remote possibility.

Dauthuille holds a 10-round decision win over La Motta, scored at Montreal, Feb. 21, 1949, a few months before Jake became champion.

Phillies End Agreement With Toronto Leafs

The pace-setting Philadelphia Phillies of the National League have announced termination of a working agreement with Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League—and no one seems to mind.

Bob Carpenter, Phils president, said the decision was mutually agreed upon, adding that Philadelphia intends to arrange a hook-up with another triple-A club.

Toronto is in seventh place and some fans have indicated disappointment this season at the failure of the National Leaguers to come through with worthwhile aid.

Bermuda's touring cricket team is still unbeaten.

The squad defeated Brantford Friday, scoring 154 runs for nine wickets, then getting the side out for 47.

The victory was added to decisions over Monteal, Ottawa, Peterborough and Oakville, all in easy fashion. The Bermudians will be in London Friday, then to Buffalo, St. Catharines and Hamilton.

Contracts for two championship fights were signed in New York Friday.

Willie Pep of Hartford, Conn., world featherweight king, signed to defend his crown against Sandy Saddler of New York, former champion, in the New York Yankee Stadium Friday, Sept. 8.

The other signing made official Ray Robinson's defence of his Pennsylvania middleweight title against Jose Basora at Scranton, Aug. 25. The date was changed from Aug. 23.

John Stuart put his 15 horses on sale in Hamilton Friday and bought 14 of them himself.

Stuart had reserve bids on all his horses offered for auction. Only buyer to make a bid higher than Stuart's reserved one was William Chris of Kitchener, Ont., who paid $2,100 for Sunny Ship.

Ontario and British Columbia meet today to determine the cricket tournament championship at Winnipeg.

Both teams have won four games. Ontario Friday won a low-scoring game by five wickets and one run from Alberta. Final scores were Alberta 32, Ontario 33 for five.

The other game was close. After Manitoba made 97, B.C. came from four runs behind as the last man went in to end with 98 and one wicket to fall.

Manitoba and Alberta will also play off today for third spot.

Daintry Chisholm of Royal Montreal won the Quebec Women's golf championship in Montreal Friday, defeating Mrs. G. Pyke of the same club, 3 and 2.

L. J. H. Gunn of Toronto has been elected president of the Canadian Cricket Association, meeting in Winnipeg. He succeeds W. E. N. Bell, Mathew Dodds is new secretary-treasurer.

Bob Paffrath, halfback with Ottawa Roughriders last year, is reported to be driving to Edmonton to try out with the Eskimos of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Atkins Pinned the Whip But, Alas, He Forgot to Untangle His Tootsies

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

Fred Atkins, the Australian bulldozer who walks like a man discovered a new quirk in life at Memorial Arena last night.

He found out that the bloke who said something about "you can't win if yuh put yuh foot in it" knew whereof he was chattering.

For that is exactly what Ferocious Freddie did much to the amusement of the howling faithful and the sighing gratitude of one Whipper Billy Watson.

Of course Referee Bunny Dunlop the rotund arbiter who calls the calls and strikes, mostly strikes when Atkins is at bat, aided and abeted the handsome pride of East York to no end.

"And he pulled. . ."

In fact he yanked out several handfuls of the Austrylian hair in an effort to separate Ferocious Fred from his Watsonian prey at times and at others bounced a pudgy fist off the Australian noggin.

Atkins brushed aside these punitive efforts especially in the third stanza when he had the Whip at his mercy and Dunlop nearly whacky from his kitchen-sink methods.

In fact the estimable Bunny who has to stretch his neck like a turkey gobbler in order to get a glimpse of what is happening south of his equatorial region, nearly presented Atkins with the match.

For that matter he did. But changed his mind when the faithful screamed blue murder and Dunlop took a deep breath and for the first time in months saw his feet and what was going on as far as wrestling was concerned.

There he saw a prostrate Whipper flatter than a reporter's wallet on Monday morning groaning under the weight of the snarling Atkins. Bunny promptly tapped out the three signals symbolic of victory and then when he attempted to remove a cigar butt from his left eye noticed one of Atkins' feet entangled in the ropes.

Now Bunny is an opportunist. He knew that something was wrong. It had to be for the Whipper was getting the worst of it. He leaped to his feet, grabbed Atkins, shook a pudgy fist under the Austrylian snoot and said, "Sorry, mate, you lose." He heaved the Watson right flipper in the air in token of victory and the fight was on.

Atkins, who up to this point was chuckling to himself at the gullibility of referees in general and Dunlop in particular, suddenly reversed to his familiar snarling truculent self. He ripped at the Whip and the Whip snapped back. Dunlop intervened and minus mustard, assumed the role of the human hot dog between the sandwiching torsos of the Whip and the Bloke.

It was a good show and at long last the faithful were rewarded at seeing defeat pinned on the leering Atkins. At that he had the best of matters throughout the bout and at times took on both Watson and Dunlop, doing a fair job of it at that.

Montreal Royals Back in Fight In Int. League

By The Associated Press

The never-say-die Montreal Royals are back in the thick of the International League pennant race, 3 1-2 games behind Rochester.

The Royals edged Syracuse 2-1 last night to move up. Clyde King bested lefty Jim Prendergast. Each gave up six hits, but Prendergast contributed to his own defeat, committing an error that allowed Montreal to pick up a first-inning run. In contrast, King drove home what proved to be the winning tally in the fifth inning.

Buffalo handed Baltimore a setback in its fight for second place by sweeping a doubleheader from the Orioles, 7-6, 8-7. The twin losses left Baltimore two games behind Montreal.

Springfield also won a doubleheader, downing Toronto 3-2 and 16-0. The Cubs scored 10 runs in the seventh inning in the nightcap Ed Oswald smacked a two-run homer for Toronto in the first game.

JUST A BROTHER

Six U.S. tourists, mouths agape watched while a pert chamber of commerce receptionist filled out a form for a pair of newlyweds, then leaned over the counter and kissed the groom.

Tin Pan Alley in London Not New York Says Crooner

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Aug. 12 (CP) —People who think that tin pan alley is a street in New York should brush up on their geography says song publisher Charlie Forsythe.

The truth is, contends Canadian-born Charlie, it's in London.

This is Charlie's way of saying that he thinks the boulevard where popular songs are born is Denmark Street, a narrow alley in London's Tottenham Court Road district.

"Britain has a tin pan alley, a very big tin pan alley," said Forsythe, going strong on the BBC as a crooner and comedian. "My own opinion is that we've got some of the best song writers in the world, if people only knew it."

But nobody ever hears of British songsmiths—because Britain lacks North American "know-how" in song-plugging and publicity.

Forsythe, a native of London, Ont., who grew up around Woodstock and Paris, Ont., admits that as a song publisher he has an ax to grind. But in case you think he plugs Denmark Street for purely personal reasons, he notes that his own office is in Soho Street.

He says that since he went into the publishing business two years ago he hasn't touched an American tune.

"Maybe we haven't got a Berlin or a Gershwin, but we've got some boys who can really knock a number together."

Asked to name his top five in the British Isles, Forsythe selected Tommy Connor (Wedding of Lili Marlene), Art Noel (Sally), Michael Carr (South of the Border), Tolchard Evans (Barcelona, Lady from Spain) and Harry Parr-Davis (Pedro The Fisherman).

Carr also is co-author of the lyrics for the Harry Lime theme in the movie "The Third Man."

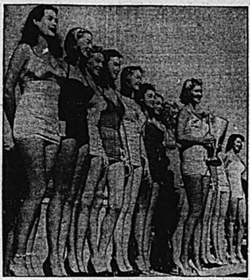
He did "Dinner for One, Please James" and collaborated on "Hang Out Your Washing on the Siegfried Line."

Some hits published over here by Forsythe include "A Kiss and a Rose" and "Heart of Loch Lomond."

Forsythe came to Britain in 1934 as part of a song-and-dance team, and decided to stay. His wife, Addie Seamon of New York formed part of the act and still appears with him on a weekly BBC program.

TWO COMMIES EXECUTED

Taipei, Formosa, Aug. 11 (AP) —Two persons, members of an abortive community - inspired plot to overthrow the Chinese Nationalists on Formosa, were executed today. They were Wang Cheng-Chih, 27 and Lt.-Col. Lin Chich Sen, 31. Both served under Lt.-Gen Wu Shih, who was put to death June 10 on charges of plotting to deliver Formosa to the Chinese communists by staging a reovlt.



AT THE CAPITOL—Beauties on parade! Lola Albright is judged the loveliest of these luscious lovelies in "Beauty on Parade", Columbia's behind-the-scenes story of beauty contests at the Capitol Theatre Monday. On the same program "Lost Boundaries" starring Beatrice Pearson and Mel Turner. Both hits are first Belleville showings.

AT THE McCARTHY — Gale Storm joins comedian Donald O'Connor for song and dance numbers in Universal-International's Technicolor outdoor-comedy, "Curtain Call at Cactus Creek", closing today at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre, also starring Walter Brennan, Vincent Price and Eve Arden.

AT THE BELLE—Alan Ladd has the title role in Paramount's blazing action drama, "After Midnight". Wanda Hendrix shares the romantic interest, and Francis Lederer is featured.

Ma as looking at pop's paper while he was finishing his coffee this morning, and she said, My, William, I've got news for you. It seems they're holding an old fashion Charleston contest on the Stitz roof tonite, for charity, she said.

Did you say that's news for me? pop said, and ma said, But of course. There was a time when you and I won prizes galore, dancing the Charleston together. We were the best Charelston dancers in our set, bp far and away, she said.

Yee gods, that takes me back a way, pop sai,d and ma said, Now William, it's not so far back. Anyway, why should we dig up the musty details of actual time? We're just as young as our actions, so as long as we do what the young do, we're young too. And that's just the point, William. There are 2 cattegories in this Charleston contest, one for the present generation, and the other for veterans who used to dance it when it ferst came out. In other werds, you and I, she said.

For Peet sake, I beleeve you're serious, pop said, and ma said, Well naturelly. Those youngsters struggling to learn the steps will be put to shame by our professional style. Everybody will be shouting, "Ring out the new, ring in the old," she said.

Everybody but us, pop said. You better telefone to the army and navy outlet stores and tell them to send around a gigolo to escort you to the affair, he said.

The Stock Market Can be Less A Gamble if Good Judgment Used

(Canadian Press Business Editor)

Current large dividend payments by International Paper Company and General Motors draw attention to a few things about the stock market which sometimes are not understood by people at large.

There is still an inclination to regard the market as a mysterious dark place into which you plunge your hand and perhaps bring out a fortune, and perhaps get it cut off.

Well, there is a bit of that element, but the market's principal function isn't mysterious.

Take International Paper and General Motors.

Nobody, of course, knew exactly what these companies were going to do. But any one could have kept track of their financial statements, their earnings, got a good idea of their standing and judged that they would do something. A lot of people did that.

No Mystery

In essence there has been nothing mysterious about the fact that International Paper and General Motors are prosperous companies. That applies to many other soundly-managed companies, and the person who wants to reap a reward might well look around.

Perhaps you haven't time. There is no real substitute to your taking a reasonable amount of time and thought; but whether or not you have time, it is a good thing to consult an investment dealer whom you can trust, whose business it is to watch all those things.

Don't think, however, that he is going to deliver you a fortune just like that. If he knew that much he would be such a millionaire that he probably would not bother with you, but he can bring an intelligent view to bear on your investment wishes or problems.

If you want to play it safe, he can tell you how to play it relatively safe. If you want to take a little more of a chance in the hope of bigger returns, he can advise you on that. Probably he will advise a balanced program: A good degree of safety and a limited amount of speculation. It will depend on your circumstances.

Another point not always understood is this: The value of a stock in relation to the dividends it is paying or is likely to pay. If, as was so much the case in the late '20s, you see a stock selling beyond a price justified by its dividends or its prospective dividends, then stay away from it.

The Gambling Spirit

The lottery element of the market arises from the something-for-nothing impulse. Some one tells you such and such a hole-in-the-ground has discovered virtually pure gold. You didn't know anything about the property, you don't even ask, you just rush out and shove your money in—you have the easy-money urge.

Perhaps you may get as much fun out of losing your money that way as any other — but, thousands to one, you will surely lose it.

Many restrictions have been put around market operations to protect people from suffering from their own gullibility, and to keep it what it essentially is, a real trading place like a store, where you can buy and sell, and where, if you use good judgment, you may make a reasonable profit or even a glamorous one.

FROST AT WHITE RIVER

White River, Ont., Aug. 11. (CP)—The temperature last night fell to 30 degrees above zero in this village 160 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie. Weather office officials, however, said there was nothing unusual about the drop. It is a rare month when frost is not recorded at White River.

Religious Sect Convinced War Is Coming Again to Norway

Oslo, Aug. 11 — (Reuters)—A religious sect in southwest Norway is convinced that war is coming again to Norway in the near future and is making preparations accordingly.

Sect members have stored large quantities of food in the mountains above the Sirdal Valley.

When the time is at hand, they say, they will retreat into the mountains because it is written in the Bible: "Escape to the mountains, lest thou be consumed."

The sect, known as Manasseh and reported to have several hundred members in southwestern Norway, was formed in 1844 by William Muller.

In Sweden, the same sect goes under the name of Ephraim, another Biblical character, related to Manasseh.

Little is known about the sect. The local police stumbled unawares upon their "evacuation" plans. Reports of abnormally large stores of rationed foods led the police to raid some mountain farms near Sirdal. They found large quantities of food of all kinds, much of it still rationed.

There also were considerable quantities of such unrationed goods as dried peas, tinned fish and other tinned food.

Inquiries have revealed that the food constituted emergency rations for the men of Manasseh who intended to obey the injunction of the Bible and flee into the high mountains in time of destruction.

The Manasseh sect expects to live to see the millenium — "if only our faith is strong enough," a member explained. "First there will be the destruction, then the time of the great reckoning, and then the millenium."

This member was not sure whether women and children would be allowed to take part in the escape. He personally hoped to take his wife and five children but he also had an Old Testament quotation to cover the possibility of being parted from them: "There shall be enmity between tribe and house."

Stolen Papers Found

Folkestone, England, Aug. 11 (Reuters) —Secret papers on atomic research stolen from a train Wednesday, have been recovered here. A man was detained.

Scotland Yard detectives and American Intelligence officers co-operated in a 48-hour country wide hunt for the papers lost by Frank Greenlees, a supply ministry official, on his way to a research establishment in the north of England.

He left the papers in a case in his railroad compartment while he walked along the corridor of the train. When he returned three minutes later the papers were gone.

The Gentle Heart

By Kay Hamilton

"I was just wondering why you were?" she countered. And then stopped, aghast. They had never fenced like this before. Was the old easy frankness to disappear between them?

Natalie said, "How are the Torres getting along?" and Jenny, although she answered at once, knew that Natalie's thoughts had not been on the Torres at all.

"Not too well," she said sadly. "Dick is very apt to run in here for a cookie and a talk when he gets home from school. I think he rather dreads going home, and has to nerve himself up to the point of going."

"That's bad, because I think Elsa is trying hard. Perhaps," Natalie added, "she'd succeed if she didn't try so hard. So long as he senses what an effort she is making to like him, he can't help but realize that she doesn't actually like him at all. But if she could be more casual aboutit, he might think she really meant it."

"I know what you mean, but I don't imagine Elsa can do it that way. She's an intense sort of person Did you see that Chinese brocade housecoat she made for Faith? It's handsome."

Natalie paused a moment, then confessed. "I'm having her make me a dress, Jenny. It's going to be a lovely thing. I don't suppose I should have spent the money. The material alone cost a horrible amount, but I couldn't resist it. That new copper shade, and beautifully simple."

Jenny caught her breath. "It ought to be stunning on you, Nat! Why didn't you tell me?"

"I had a guilty feeling about spending so much on one dress, I guess."

"Well, why shouldn't you, if you feel like it? It's your money," Jenny protested. But almost at once she remembered something Brent had said, not two weeks before. He had been standing in this very room watching the flickering light of the fire as it touched Natalie's smooth skin and dark hair. "You should wear copper tones," he had said with conviction. "Copper and gold. Not many people have the life to carry them off well, but you have, Nat, and they would do something for you."

That was two weeks ago, and already Natalie was having a copper-colored dress made. Did Bent's opinion mean so much to her that she was willing to spend more than shes hould? Did she want to look lovely in his eyes? The pain which shot through Jenny was so sudden and so swift that she gasped. With a swift movement she rose to her feet, disguising the gasp as a grunt of effort. "I'm off to bed," she said. "Will you lock up, Nat?"

She rose the next morning feeling as if she had not slept at all. This new thought which had crept into her brain last night had made her unbearably restless. What if Natalie, feeling rejected by Gary, had turned to Brent? What if Brent should grow to love her? What if they married and wanted to live here? The questions pounded at her until she felt bruised and sore.

She had not dreamed that she could be jealous of one she loved. Perhaps, she thought wearily, getting dressed for church, It was because this concerned not one, but two whom she loved—Natalie and Brent. It was bad enough that Brent should think of her in such a sisterly capacity. But if he should love her sister, if he should want to marry her and come to live in the same house, it would be more than she could stand.

"But what could I do?" this question, above all, came back to her again and again. She had no training; she had no career except that of homemaking. If she did leave, if she did get a job somewhere, it would be too much like a declaration of her love—they would surely understand why she was going. Yet she knew she could not stay under those circumstances.

She sat through the church service without hearing a word that was said She tried to calm herself, to pray. But the pain was too new and too strong to combat. Mrs. Owen sat between her and Faith and addressed comments to her at intervals. Afterward, Jenny had not the faintest idea of what had been said, or what she had answered. She kept her eyes down and her white-gloved hands tensely folded

When the service was over, someone halted Faith to speak to her about some committee work. Jenny and Mrs. Owen walked slowly down the aisle, nodding to acquaintances, and waited for her in the vestibule.

"Faith is a dear girl," Mrs. Owen said with possessive complacency.

"Yes," Jenny agreed. Then recklessly, she added, "But she has been so unhappy. It isn't right for such a young person to live with grief for so long. I hope she marries again."

Mrs. Owen's indrawn breath sounded sharply in Jenny's ears, but she did not regret her speech. "Marry again! Why, my dear, she couldn't! She was Ken's heart and soul!"

"I know she was. But time does heal these wounds, and we have all been so pleased to see Faith completely back to normal again. She was desperately unhappy for so long that we all worried about her. She's too young to stay a widow all her life."

"I did!" Mrs. Owen bristled visibly. "I lost my husband when I was a very young woman and I never had the slightest wish to marry again. Never!"

"But you had Kenneth," Jenny reminded her softly. "Your life wasn't completely empty. You had him to raise, to work for, to live for. Faith has no one."

Mrs. Owen was only slightly mollified. "I realize that it's wrong for one to live alone like this," she admitted. "That's why I have considered sacrificing my own comfort, and coming here to live with her. I think she needs someone."

Jenny took a deep breath. "But not you," she said flatly. It was very hard for her to be so rude, and particularly to an older woman. It went against all her training. Still, Faith's life and happines were at stake, and now that Jenny had forced the issue she was not going to retreat.

"Not you, Mrs. Owen," she repeated. "No mother-in-law, not even a mother, can take the place of a husband or a child. You know that's true. And Faith, if she were to marry again, could have both, you know. She could have a really full life, instead of the half-life she has now."

Mrs. Owen had turned an alarming shade of purple, but Faith rejoined them at that moment, and she did not answer. She made a point however, of sitting as far as possible from Jenny on the back seat of the car; of pointedly ignoring her few remarks, and spoke only to Faith.

Jenny thanked Faith for the lift and walked across the lawn to her home. Well, she had certainly put her foot in it this time! Mrs. Owen would never forgive her but that did not bother Jenny unduly. What did worry her was the thought that perhaps now Mrs. Owen's eyes would be opened to the romance between Max and Faith. She hoped she had not done Faith a bad turn.

The little house which Fred and Diane had bought when they married was spick and span. The wedding silver shone, the windows glistened, the curtains were starched and spotless. Jenny could not help but compare it with the few times she had seen it since Diane's marriage. Her sister had never urged them to visit her in her new home, perhaps because she realized that the contrast between their own carless housekeeping ways and Jenny's meticulous ones would be too apparent. She had always seemed to prefer visiting in her old home, and the other two girls had been willing to have it that way. Now Jenny understood why.

Mrs. Henlo was an efficient housekeeper, and beamed under Jenny's praise. "It's kind of you to tell me," she said. "I know what a fine housekeeper you are yourself, Miss Mayhew. At least, I've always heard so."

Jenny thought, a homemaker. Yes, this is my one talent, and it had always satisfied me before. Now, suddenly, I want to be beautiful like Diane, or brilliantly gifted like Nat. Perhaps then Brent would see me as I want him to see me. As it is, I seem to melt into my background like some small shy animal! She thought it angrily, and then was shocked at her anger. Why must everyone she saw or heard these days come back to Brent and her relationship to him? Would she never escape it?

The dinner was delicious, and Diane presided graciously at her own table, yet their was no feeling of care in the air. Fred tried his best to unbend. He was genuinely fond of his sisters-in-law, but it was obvious that he found it difficult to seem light-hearted. And Diane had a forced note in her laughter, a too solicitous air for their comfort.

It struck Jenny that almost everything Diane said was connected with her new work. "Mr. Pruitt told me the other day - -" "Henry Tyler, the artist, you know - - - -"

"The artist, you know!" Jenny snorted inwardly. As if the daughters of Jerome Mayhew would not know who Henry Tyler was! Where had Diane got this artificial manner? Was it part of the job of being a model? And was it something she couldn't drop with her job, but had to carry over into her personal life?

She glanced swiftly at Fred, and saw new, deep indentations at the corners of his mouth. He was looking years older lately, anyhow. But these were the marks of continual forbearance, continual control. She said to Diane, "You can come off it now, Di. We do know an artist or two. We're your sisters, remember?" and was rewarded by Diane's indignant look.

"Don't be coarse Jenny. As I was saying, Henry Tyler told me that it was years since he had had a blond model who wasn't insipid looking. He said my beauty had a glowing quality, and that if he could only get it onto canvas, he would surely be immortal." She tossed her head slightly and stared at Jenny as if to say, "There! What do you think of that?"

But Jenny was unimpressed. she said casually, "I remember him well. He always was the rankest flatterer. You know, Dad used to call him Pretty-Please-Painter. I suppose he got that way doing portraits of so many dowagers. Probably more than half his success is due to his ability to make every woman feel she's a raving beauty."

"Jenny!" Diane was too furious to say more for a moment. Then she added in a rush, "What a catty thing to say! He had no need to flatter me! I'm no dowager, and I wasn't buying a portrait from him. He had hired me! If he said that, of course he meant it!"

"Oh, probably he did," Jenny admitted lightly. "Although there's no doubt that by this time saying that sort of thing is a habit with him."

Natalie said something soothing and Fred leaped into the breach. The rest of the meal was undisturbed by friction but after dinner Diane took Jenny aside with a determined air.

"What's the matter with you, Jen?" she demanded. "Why do you have this down for me? What has got into you?"

Jenny sighed. She was getting in bad with everyone today, it seemed. First Mrs. Owen, now Diane. But the uncompromisingly honest side of her would not be held back. She said now, "Tell me, Diane, do you expect to be dead in twenty years?"

Diane drew away from her sister with an angry gasp. "What a horrid thing to say! Of course not!"

"Well, then," Jenny pursued the subject ruthlessly, "do you honestly expect to be as beautiful in twenty years as you are now?"

Diane's smooth brows drew together slightly. "What do you mean?"

"I mean that nobody at forty-three is as beautiful as she was at twenty-three. And if you have done nothing in those twenty years with your mind and your personality, you're going to be very unhappy, having to sit around listening to the men say the same old things to a new crop of young and beautiful girls. They won't be saying them to you anymore."

Diane paled, and her lips trembled. 'How can you talk like this to me? I thought you loved me. I thought - - -"

"You haven't thought at all," Jenny said quietly, "except about yourself, for so long that you've forgotten how to think about anybody else. Do you ever think about Fred? You didn't say one word this noon about him or his work. Just what does Fred mean to you, Di?"

KOREAN TOWN CAUGHT BETWEEN TWO FIRES

Looking almost like a painting executed to illustrate the horror of war, this photo shows the smoldering ruins and rubble of an unidentified Korean town in the battle zone between Andong and Yechon. Furious fighting between communist troops and the advancing American and South Korean forces almost completely destroyed what had once been a peaceful, happy town. — Central Press Canadian.

SNIPER HUNT WITH A HAPPY ENDING

Looking for snipers, a truckload of U.S. and South Korean troops enter a village, top photo. Hearing a noise they quickly jump from their trucks prepared for the worst. Their sniper turned out to be a frightened pig, above, who probably was the guest of honor on the dinner menu that evening. — Central Press Canadian.

Chicago's Catacomb Railway

The catacomb railway system of the Chicago Tunnel Company, which lugs upward of 600,000 tons of packaged freight yearly through a fifty-two mile maze of warrens forty feet beneath the bustle of Chicago's Loop, is the only common carrier of its kind in the world reports the New York Herald-Tribune.

A sort of subterranean delivery boy and janitor, the miniature railway has served one of the busiest downtown areas on earth for almost fifty years. Yet during this period relatively few of the millions who trod the Loop sidewalk and streets have been aware of the existence of this underfoot railway. For when it comes to poking above ground, Chicago Tunnel Company trains have all the reticence of an earthworm.

The Chicago freight tunnels are an integral part of the city's scheme for collecting and delivering the less-than-carload lots of package freight leaving or entering the city by railroad. The Chicago tunnel trains move the freight from shipper to the outgoing railroad terminal, move it from incoming terminal to the consignee and handle the various transshipments which require movement from, say, the terminal of an Eastern Railroad to that of a railroad going West, or vice versa. The tunnel system includes four freight stations by which general shippers may gain access to the tunnel services. Freight delivered by truck to these four stations is loaded into the tiny tunnel train cars which in turn are lowered by elevator to the tunnel tracks and waiting diminutive engines. The tunnel system connects directly with all of Chicago's railroad freight terminals and the tunnels.

In addition to the 600,000 tons of packaged freight moved annually, the tunnel system handles and waste materials from the city's 120,000 carloads of coal, cinders basements. Another 70,000 carloads of mud and excavated materials that follow in the wake of the endless construction in a big city are also handled each year.

While the tunnel system is a fast means of moving packaged freight about the downtown area, probably one of its greatest benefits is the relief it provides for Chicaga's terrific traffic congestion. For despite the competitive inroads made during the rise of the trucking industry, the tunnel system still handles a volume of traffic that would require at least 5,000 trucks above ground daily.

Five-Year-Old Child Drowned At Wellington

Wellington, Ont., (Staff)—Missing nearly sixteen hours, five-year-old Andrew Burke, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Burke of this village was found drowned off a harbor dock here near midnight, Friday.

The body of the boy was found by one of a group of search parties that scoured the village and district all afternoon after he was reported missing.

Chief of Police Earl Marvin and Ralph MacDonald headed a grappling group that dragged the inner harbor near the former brick plant at the eastern outskirts of the village. In a final effort, MacDonald located the body a few feet off the dock in ten feet of water, a few minutes before midnight.

The boy had wandered from his home, a few yards from where his body was discovered, in the morning. He was seen by workmen playing on the dock shortly after 9 a.m. When he did not return by twelve o'clock, his parents sent out an alarm. Search parties were organized and the village combed.

Dr. R. S. Thompson, coroner, said that he believed the body had been in the water some twelve hours.

Series of Misfortunes

The tragedy climaxed a series of misfortunes for the Burke family. Last year, their modest winter-cottage home was gutted by fire while the family was absent. Later Mrs. Burke was rushed to hospital for an appendectomy and no sooner had she recovered than her husband underwent a similar operation. He is a laborer.

The drowning is the sixth to have occurred in the deep water off the brick plant dock over a period of years. Several near-drownings have occurred there and on one occasion a village boy scout was given a high scout award for saving the life of an elderly man.

Life-saving equipment is available, but apparently no one saw the Burke boy in the water on Friday.

BUS DRIVERS END STRIKE

St. Louis, Aug. 14 — (AP) — St. Louis bus drivers and street car operators ended their three-day strike for higher wages early today. Governor Forrest Smith ordered state seizure of the transit system Thursday under a law which bans strikes against public utilities. Despite pleas of union leaders to stay on the job, the drivers were out 24 hours after the state took over.

VILLAGE UNDER WATER

Patna, Bihar, India, Aug. 14 — (Reuters) — The River Sone, tributary of the Ganges, has swamped the entire town of Bihta, 26 miles west of Patna, and its airfield, said reports received here last night. More than 100 villages along the Sone's eastern bank were also under water.

THE WEATHER

Fine summer weather is reported again today across most of Ontario. Skies are clouding over north of Lake Superior and rain with some thunderstorm activity is reported from the Rainy River and Thunder Bay districts this morning.

Increasing cloudiness followed by showers and scattered thundershowers will spread across far northern regions of Ontario today and Tuesday. Elsewhere over the province skies will be mainly sunny with afternoon temperatures near the 80-mark today and Tuesday.

Crowds Gather On Farm Hoping To See Miracle

Necedah, Wis., Aug. 14 (AP) This tiny community was beginning to fill up today with people who hope to see a miracle tomorrow.

Their hopes centred on a grove of trees on a farm near here where Mrs. Anna Van Hoof, 40-year-old mother of seven children, said she would have her seventh vision of the blessed Virgin Mary.

Despite efforts by Roman Catholic dignitaries to discourage a large turnout, between 50,000 and 100,000 persons are expected to jam the Van Hoof farm grounds at the appointed time—high noon tomorrow.

MAY CONTRIBUTE TO SCHEMES

London, Aug. 14—(CP)—The treasury announced today that Canadian citizens living in the United Kingdom may contribute to government social insurance schemes in Canada. The only restriction is that persons with sterling bank accounts are expected to pay any such premiums out of their foreign-currency assets rather than by remitting them in sterling from the United Kingdom.

DEPRIVED OF CITIZENSHIP

London, Aug. 14 — (Reuters)— All Turkish communists will be deprived of citizenship, Ankara radio reported yesterday. The broadcast said the decision was announced by Justice Minister Halil Ozuruk. He added that a commission was preparing the legal foundation for the step.

Gadget Liquifies Helium, Shows How Cold it Can Really Get

The National Research Council has installed new equipment which will get it just about that cold.

"That cold," is absolute zero — about 460 degrees below, fahrenheit—and the equipment is a gadget called the Collins Helium Cryostat, manufactured at the Research and Engineering Laboratories of Arthur D. Little, Inc., in Cambridge, Mass.

The reason it gets so cold is that the gadget liquifies helium, one of the hardest of all gases to liquify. The temperature in this process goes down to 456 below—just four degrees short of absolute zero.

The equipment, according to an N.R.C. announcement "provides a readily-available source of very low temperatures for the study of chemical and physical reactions." This apparently means that at the low temperatures, lab experiments work better because they are not disturbed by "thermal agitation" or room temperatures.

"When matter is so cold that the molecules almost stop moving, many strange properties appear," the announcement said. "If an electric current is started in a metal ring, it will continue to flow indefinitely, with the ring showing no electrical resistance.

"Liquid helium at low temperatures has no viscosity at all, so that if a beaker of it is set to

MISSING TEACHER BELIEVED SEEN AFTER CAR FOUND

Two Girls Say They Saw Man in Cafe

Toronto, Aug. 14 — (CP) — Two girls said today they talked to Alfred P. Greene, missing Toronto teacher, the day after his bloodstained automobile was found abandoned in east-central Rosedale ravine.

The 38-year-old high school teacher and Mrs. Beatrice Reason, 31, former night-school pupil of Greene's vanished about the same time last Tuesday night. Bloodstains in the car suggested to police that they might both have been slain, possibly by someone bent on stealing the $200 Greene was thought to be carrying in his wallet.

The girls who claim to have seen Greene Wednesday afternoon are employees of a weekly newspaper for which Greene had worked as a part-time collector.

Not Made Public

The girls, whose names were not made public, said they saw Greene eating in a restaurant on Yonge Street in North Toronto. Both talked to him. They said he was alone at the time.

They mentioned that he was without spectacles. This puzzled police, for Greene's wife told them Greene could barely see without spectacles.

A broken pair of glasses, identified as Greene's, were found in the abandoned car, along with Greene's torn wallet, a haversack and a shaving outfit and toothbrush.

Positive of Identification

The girls said they had worked in a newspaper office with Greene and were positive of their identification. They volunteered their information to the police after reading that Greene was missing.

Police also learned that the attractive Mrs. Reason, whose fourth husband is a bricklayer, had been planning to return to her native Australia. She came to Canada from London, England, where she was a barmaid when she was married to Frank Reason.

Greene left his wife and four children at a Lake Simcoe summer cottage at 7:15 p.m. last Tuesday saying he was driving the 75 miles to Toronto to meet an insurance agent.

Police, questioning Greene's friends, discovered that Mrs. Reason had also vanished.

During the weekend police said they learned Greene and Mrs. Raeson had planned to go away together last Aug. 1 but had revised their plans. They also learned that Mrs. Reason had visited a doctor to obtain sedative tablets. She complained that they were not strong enough. When the doctor declined to give her stronger pills she had accused him of suspecting she was contemplating suicide.

Frank Reason, husband of the missing woman, said she telephoned him Tuesday night to say she had decided to run away with a married man. She left a farewall note which Reason turned over to the police.

Mrs. Reason was once a night-school pupil of Greene's at Danforth Technical School. She later took English lessons from him at home.

Proposes West European Governments Discuss at Once Formation of Unified Army

Strasbourg, France, Aug. 14 — (AP)— Constantin Tsaldaris formally proposed today that Western European governments begin immediate negotiations for a unified army.

He asked the European Council's Consultative Assembly to entrust its president, Paul-Henri Spaak of Belgium, with carrying out the first preliminary series.

Tsaldaris, former Greek premier, urged the Assembly to "start the machinery in motion" for creation of the army proposed by Winston Churchill before the Assembly last Friday. Spaak endorsed the plan and the Assembly speedily approved it. Churchill, Britain's wartime prime minister, had warned there is "not a day to lose" for Western Europe to arm itself against Soviet aggression.

Spaak would be asked to adopt whatever procedure he judged best to enlist the support of the heads of National Parliament. The parliamentary leaders in turn would be asked to put pressure on their respective governments to carry out Churchill's proposal.

The parliamentary leaders would demand:

1. Immediate negotiations between the various western European governments to adopt necessary measures for creating a unified European army.
2. Special sessions of parliament, if necessary, to back up the proposal.
3. Drafting of a convention, subject to quick ratification by parliaments, setting up the statutes of a European defence ministry.

Tsaldaris said both Spaak and Churchill had expressed interest in his proposal. The Greek leader added that it would be a short-cut to immediate creation of an European army.

High-Ranking Churchmen, Citizens of All Walks Attend Funeral of Monsignor Nicholson

The late Right Reverend Monsignor J. F. Nicholson, former Vicar General of the Archdiocese of Kingston, left his beloved church and parish of St. Michael the Archangel for the last time today.

The late high-ranking churchman passed away in the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Kingston on Thursday last following a lingering illness.

Sorrowing thousands of the parish, the city and district paid a final reverent tribute to the memory of the late Monsignor at one of the largest funerals held in this city.

Pontifical high requiem mass was celebrated by the Most Rev. J. A. O'Sullivan, Archbishop of Kingston. The clergy assisting the Archbishop were the Rt. Rev. J. T. Hanley, V.G., assistant priest; Very Rev. L. B. Garvin, V.F., and Rev. J. V. Meagher, deacons of honor. The Rev. J. J. Shannon was the deacon and the Rev. J. W. Callaghan, sub-deacon of the mass. The sermon was preached by the Rt. Rev. Monsignor E. M. Leacey, D.P., Napanee.

Archbishop O'Sullivan officiated at the graveside rites in St. James Cemetery where the Monsignor was laid to rest. He was interred beside his predecessor, the late Rev. Charles J. Killeen, former parish priest, who passed away in June, 1930.

Eloquent Tribute

In eloquent sermonal tribute to the late parish priest Monsignor Leacey said "we are here not to praise the Monsignor, but to bury him among everything he loved in this parish, all that is left is a kindly memory."

"The last 40 years have passed in a happy time. He was always my superior, I never forgot that. He gave a kindly government to all in what to do to make this diocese a better place for the prelates who will follow after him.

"For 40 years," Monsignor Leacey said "the monsignor strode up and down this grand old diocese until came the full blush of summer. Then there was thrust out a cold hand, which touched monsignor on the shoulder and a voice said, 'Come with me to the Judgment seat of God."

When the purple of the Apostolic Protonotary was bestowed upon him, how proud he was of that honor. He was a Pope's man, a Bishop's man, filling the House of God with his presence.

"All that is left to do now," Msgr. Leacey said, "and we must never forget it, is that every time we pass by the place where monsignor is laid to rest, to pause a moment and say 'Eternal Rest and may perpetual light shine upon you'."

Filled with Charity

"Monsignor was filled with the charity of Jesus Christ. He was a man who, never in his life said an unkindly word about anyone. He was the chief supporter of his bishop no matter who he was or whence he came. His hospitality was never duplicated. He had a tender kind quality that only comes from a heart-filled with the charity of the Master."

U.S. DETERMINED TO FIGHT WAR TO CONCLUSION

Will Even Risk Soviet Intervention

Washington, Aug. 14—(AP) — The United States has given Russia a new and unmistakable token of its determination to fight the Korean war even at the risk of open Soviet intervention.

A mission of American air force superfortresses, in a strike on a North Korean city, dropped more than 500 tons of bombs so close to Russian Siberia—17 miles —that the distant rumble of the attack probably was heard across the border.

This weekend bombing mission to the North Korean port city of Najin was one of the most daring and delicate operations of the war.

The difference between putting bombs down on a North Korean target or, through accident and error in navigation, having them fall on Soviet territory was a matter of about five minutes flying time.

But there was an even greater calculated risk. How would Russia react to the appearance of American planes, bomber and armed for combat, so close to her doorstep?

There was this to remember: April 8, before there was any shooting war anywhere and in a different part of the world, four Russian fighters shot down a U.S. navy patrol plane over the waters of the open Baltic. The attack occurred more than 30 miles from the nearest Russian territory, in an area supposedly free to sea or air navigation by any country, and was made when the U.S. was at war with no one.

More Action Expected

Moscow let it be known that more action of the same kind could be expected if foreign planes got too close to its iron curtain.

Whatever the reason, there was no indication that Soviet air force reacted to the Najin mission. Information received here said nothing of the sighting by the bomber mission of non-American aircraft.

All operations in the Korean war presumably are carried by direction or approval of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's far eastern command. It in turn received its broad strategic directives from the joint chiefs of staffs here which is geared to the over-all policy defined at London and may be assumed the decision to carry the air war to the edge of Russian territory has the sanction of the top policy-shapers.

Najin is a rail centre and port town through which North Korean supplies and reinforcements have been moving. During recent weeks, the enemy has been moving men and material southward along this coastline in a series of short-water hops, using small coastal steamer and other craft and moving usually by night.

EXPECTING CHILD

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 14 (AP) —Singer Rudy Vallee said yesterday that he and his wife, the former Eleanor Norris, are expecting a child "early next spring." Vallee is here to fulfill a week's engagement at the Lake Club.

U.S. Book Tells You What to Do In Case of Another A-Bomb Blast

Washington, Aug. 14 (AP) — Five years after the explosion of the first atomic bomb, the United States government has come out with some specific instructions on what to do if one hits your city.

They are contained in a big book "The Effects of Atomic Weapons" released during the weekend by the Atomic Energy Commission.

The book has some down-to-earth section on what a citizen should do in the event of an explosion.

Here are some tips:

The first thing to remember is that if a bomb goes off, the burst will be about 100 times as bright as the sun.

Don't worry about recognizing it. One A.E.C. official, in discussing an atomic explosion, told reporters: "If you are not dead already, you will recognize it when it has gone off."

If you're caught out in the open, with no shelter of any kind within a step or two, drop instantly to the ground, and curl up so as to shade your bare arms hands, neck and face. Hold that position for at least 10 seconds.

This will not protect you from atomic "rays"—if they reach your area—but it may save you from a disabling burn from the Underwater Bridges Thrust Across Naktong R.

U.S. Counter-Attack Shoves One Division Back a Mile

Tokyo, Aug. 15 (Tuesday) — Thrusting underwater bridges across the Naktong River, the North Korean Reds probed today for an imminent drive on Taegu by an estimated 60,000 men on this fifth anniversary of Korea's liberation from Japan.

A summary issued early today by Gen. MacArthur's Tokyo headquarters placed the threat near Waegan, 12 miles northwest of Taegu, main forward American base on the central front of South Korea.

There, it said, the Reds were believed to have completed a second underwater bridge. Such stone and log crossings are sunk about a foot below the surface to escape detection from the air.

Twenty-three miles south of Taegu, the United States 24th infantry division counter-attacked and shoved the red 4th division back 1,000 yards to a mile. MacArthur's summary, however, said the enemy still was moving reinforcements to the river's east bank in that sector southwest of Changnyong.

It is believed to be the effective mass drawn from 15 divisions—150,000 men—the communists had shoved up to the long, curling battleline. And it greatly outnumbers anything the allies have to oppose them.

Expected Momentarily

A red attack down the Taejon-Taegu mountain valley corridor was expected momentarily. Tuesday is the fifth anniversary of the liberation of Korea from Japan. Such anniversaries are likely occasions in Oriental reckoning for demonstrations of strength.

As the North Korean thousands assembled west of the Naktong River, American troops recaptured muddy slopes on the allied eastern side of the stream

Atlantic Salmon May be Reared In Ont. Waters

Toronto, Aug. 14 — (CP) — Lands Department officials are hopeful that the Atlantic salmon, a victim of encroaching civilization in Ontario, may make a comeback in the province.

An intensive investigation of waters suitable for propagation of the fish — once plentiful in Lake Ontario — is being made by the department.

District biologists are checking areas where salmon was planted in a program started in 1938. These districts include Lake Simcoe, Big Clear Lake, Frontenac County; Lake Penage, near Sudbury; Wilmot Creek, Durham County; Lake Temagami; Fisher Lake, Ontario county; The Rouge River, near Toronto, and Trout Lake, in Nipissing district.

Four Arrested For Refusing To Obey Police

Val d'Or, Que., Aug. 14 (CP) —Police Saturday arrested four Baptists, holding a street meeting in this northwestern Quebec mining centre, when they refused to obey police orders to keep moving.

The four are Ernie McWilliams and Murray Heron of nearby Noranda, Que., Howard Killack, and Miss Alyn Hall from Hamilton, Ont.

All four were taken to police headquarters and spent the night in jail. They were freed Sunday on bail of $50 each.

They will appear before recorder J. Louis Baillargeon on a charge of illegal assembly when the magistrate returns from a trip. Date of their appearance has not yet been set.

Previously, a group of Baptists took a jail term when convicted on similar charges rather than pay fines.

Elizabeth Pays Visit to Palace To See Parents

London, Aug. 14 — (AP) — Princess Elizabeth, expecting a second baby any day now, played with her son, Prince Charles, on the lawn of Clarence House today.

After 15 minutes with the little prince, who is 21 months old today, the princess retired into her four-storey home.

The King arrived at Balmoral, Scotland, for his annual grouse-hunting trip. Arrangements were made to telephone him of the new baby's arrival. The Queen remained in London.

Yesterday Princess Elizabeth left home to lunch with the King and Queen. This surprised the crowds who had been waiting outside for word on the new baby.

With her husband, Prince Philip, at the wheel of their new green Rolls Royce, the Princess drove the short distance from Clarence House to Buckingham Palace.

Only a few bystanders saw the royal couple leave, but word spread fast and when Princess Elizabeth returned to Clarence House early in the afternoon, thousands stood cheering in the sun-lit Mall.

The Princess waved cheerfully. She was dressed in a summer frock and appeared in high spirits.

A few hours earlier she had been visited by Sir William Gilliatt and Sir John Weir, her physicians. Buckingham Palace said it was a routine check.

The King left London to go to the royal residence at Balmoral Castle in Scotland shortly after the Princess had visited Buckingham Palace.

The Queen decided to remain in London. Princess Margaret went to Scotland a few days ago to visit friends.

The King and Queen previously had cancelled their annual summer visit to Balmoral to await the birth of Princess Elizabeth's second child.

POLICE CIRCLES COMPARATIVELY QUIET DURING WEEKEND

Police circles were comparatively quiet over the weekend with neither the city police nor provincial police headquarters reporting motor accidents and only matters of routine nature being investigated.

Highway traffic over the weekend was heavy particularly on No. 2 with cars at times running almost bumper to bumper. However, there were no accidents reported and the same was true in the city where not as much as a scratched fender was reported.

GLAD PLANT NEARLY FIVE FEET HIGH

With the flower show as one of the highlights of the Belleville Fair which gets underway today it would naturally be expected that the best flowers in the city would be on exhibit there. But there is one king-sized gladioli in the city which will not be seen at the exhibition flower show.

The gladioli was grown by Mr Hedley Galpin 69 Donald Street, who boasts of a "glad" plant no less than four feet ten inches in height and carrying 14 blooms.

Ordinarily gladioli are from three to four feet in height and bear seven or eight blooms.

Miss Elsie Irvine Attends Summer School at Ithaca

Miss Elsie Irvine, County Home Economist, has just returned from Cornell University at Ithaca, New York, where she was one of a group of eighty-three Extension workers attending a three weeks' Summer School. Included in this group were students from twenty-five states and twelve foreign countries. 'The opportunity of meeting these people and of hearing how they carry on extension work was a wonderful experience', says Miss Irvine. Eight courses were offered and each student was allowed to take two of these courses for credit.

Professor Longsdorf from Kansas State College, who conducted the course on Extension Information, told his group 'If you can get one new idea from each class, it has been worth your while', and certainly many ideas were exchanged during the fifteen lectures.

The three weeks were not all work but many outside activities were arranged such as tours and discussion groups and picnics. The graduation part on the last evening added the finishing touch to a worthwhile vacation.

Forty Girls Ready For Camp At Roblin Lake

High in spirits in anticipation of a ten-day stay at the Kiwanis Fresh Air Camp at Roblin Lake, about 40 girls from all parts of the city this morning gathered at the Salvation Army Citadel on Pinnacle Street awaiting transportation to the summer camp.

Singly and in pairs, afoot and by motor car the girls arrived at the citadel lugging huge suit cases and other bundles containing clothing for their ten-day stay at the lake. Many of the girls, making sure they would not be left behind, were on hand and waiting on the Citadel steps long before the scheduled hour of departure for the camp.

Last week 40 boys, most of them underprivileged, concluded a ten day stay at the Kiwanis Camp operated under the supervision of Major Honeychurch and the Salvation Army. This week it is the girls' turn and for the next ten days, after getting acquainted with camp routine, they will enjoy camp life at Roblin Lake.

REDS STORM SCHOOL

Singapore, Aug. 14 — (Reuters) — Expelled communist students stormed the assembly hall of Singapore's Chinese high school just before the school's re-opening ceremony today.

They kept the principal and teachers in the corridor while they harangued the pupils.

Sixty students were expelled from the school and six teachers blacklisted after the recent discovery of communist literature there. Police detained two of the teachers, but have since released one.

HIGH-RANKING

Monsignor Leacey reviewed the early days of the monsignor's priesthood, "He loved boys and girls," he said, "and always was happy when they pledged their troth with God."

"The monsignor was a soldier, and this was the whole epitome of his priestly life. If you want to know what a soldier is—ask another soldier. I am speaking not of the officers but of the men who had the mud on their boots. Captain Nicholson was gassed in Western Europe, not in a dugout but in the front line trenches in sight of death. When the Big Push came, he was among the men saying, 'Do not be afraid son, I have the whole Church of Christ beside me."

Held in High Honor

Wherever Captain Nicholson went, he was held in the highest honor and esteem, Monsignor Leacey said. "He sold the Church as no man has ever done. He left impression upon men which they were proud to keep. The presence of many Protestant friends here today is evidence of that.

His love for children, the schools, the Sisters, his faith in his Bishop enables the monsignor to stand in the presence of God without a flicker of an eye. He worked not only to save a soul but lived such an example that others might emulate him not only here but in Eternity," concluded Monsignor Leacey.

The purple-draped nave of St. Michael's Church was filled to overflowing. Many were unable to obtain admission and remained outside till the obsequies were over. Chairs were placed in the aisles to accommodate many people. It was estimated that over 2,000 were present.

Included besides the parishioners was a cross section of other religious and community life of the city. Mayor H. J. Allin and Alderman Harold Armstrong represented the city. Out-of-town Protestant clergy were among those in the nave. Bereted and bemedalled war veterans were present. Alderman Everett Liddle and Max Matthews represented the Canadian Legion. Chief of Police Walter Probert and Inspector Clare Hayes paid their last respects to a friend.

Members of the Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus headed by Faithful Controller, Walter Allore, formed a guard of honor. Outside the Canadian Ensign fluttered at half-staff on the church flagstaff.

The State Board of the Knights of Columbus for the Province of Ontario was represented by Bernard Collins, past state deputy.

Mile-Long Cortege

Escorted by city and provincial police in black cruisers, the mile-long funeral cortege moved from the church at 11:20. Traffic was held up at various points along the route by city police officers. The city paused in its every day activities as the cortege passed slowly along Bridge Street. On the top of the Army, Navy, and Air Force Veterans' building, the half-staff Union Jack dipped in final tribute.

The active pallbearers representing different organizations of the church were, William Lynch, Thomas Fleury, (School Board); Leo Callaghan, Ernest A. Cook, (Holy Name Society); Robert Kitchen, Terence Scanlan, (Belleville Council of the Knights of Columbus), and J. C. V. Truaisch, and A. B. Collins, (Genoa Assembly).

His Grace Archbishop J. A. O'Sullivan of Kingston, and His Grace Bishop Berry of Peterborough headed a list of clergy from all parts of the Archdiocese of Kingston, the diocese of Peterborough, and representatives of the Archdiocese of Toronto.

Clergy present included: Monsignor Hanley V.G., of Smith Falls; Monsignor Leacey, Monsignor McAuley; Monsignor Staley; Monsignor Burns; Monsignor O'Sullivan; Father Knox; Father M. E. James; Father Martin; Father Farrell; Father Clancy; Father Hyland; Father Sullivan, rector of St. Mary's Cathedral, Kingston; Father Pickett; Father McFadden of Peterborough and Father Corkery.

Father Carey; Father Sullivan; Father Corley; Father O'Neil of Marmora and Father O'Neil of Madoc; Father Aherne; Father Hanley, editor of the Canadian Register, Kingston; Father Meagher; Father Buckley; Father McDonald; Father LaMarsh; Father Cabaric; Father Tierion; Father Farrell; Father Fenny; Dean Garvin of Trenton; Father O'Donnell of Trenton and formerly of Belleville; Father Caruso, rector of Regiopolis College, Kingston; Father Lally of Toronto; Father Lonergan; Father Collins; Father McCabe; Father Wylie; Father Buckley and Brother Guy Francis of Graymoor, N.Y.

Nuns from the Hotel Dieu, Kingston, also attended the funeral.

Office of the Dead Read

At 3.00 p.m. Sunday afternoon, Monsignor J. F. Nicholson entered St. Michael's Church for the last time in more than twenty years as its parish priest. The church, somberly draped in purple and black, filled quietly and at 3.00 the bell began to toll and the organ to play the "Dead March".

The procession, led by the altar boys filed into the Church. Clergy from the district, including His Grace J. A. O'Sullivan, Archbishop of Kingston, the members of the Holy Name Society, Fourth Degree Knights of Columbus, and members of the military organizations of which Monsignor was a member, accompanied the casket, which was placed in the sanctuary near a stand covered by a Union Jack and bearing the late Monsignor's World War I helmet.

Then the Archbishop led the recitation of the Solemn Office of the Dead with the assembled clergy giving the responses.

Following the prayers for the repose of Monsignor's soul the clergy and assembled congregation began to file sorrowfully past the bier. Young and old, rich and poor, Catholic and non-Catholic gazed for the last time on the features of a warm-hearted priest and many overcome with emotion, wept as they paid their final respects to a dear friend.

Guard Mounted

A guard was mounted over the body and four altar boys, to be relieved hourly, began the last vigil.

Present in the sanctuary were Reverend John Knox, S. J., Toronto; Very Reverend Dean Garvin, Tweed; Father I. Donoghue, Marysville; Father W. J. Buckley, Tweed; Father E. Brysland, Read; Brother Guy Francis of Graymore; Father Bernard Walsh, Kingston; Father James Sullivan, rector of St. Mary's Cathedral, Kingston Father T. Raby, Kingston; Father F. Spence, Kingston; and Father J. Buckley, Belleville.

Accompanying His Grace were Father Hanley of Kingston, and Reverend Father Martin D.P. of Deseronto.

Congregation Gathers

At 8.00 p.m. the congregation gathered to recite the Rosary for the repose of Monsignor's soul.

All night long changing guards of parishioners and altar boys kept the vigil with the body.

Archdeacon Arthur Smith of St. Thomas Anglican Church made a feeling reference to the passing of Monsignor J. F. Nicholson in his sermon Sunday morning.

He commented on the loss sustained by the city as a whole and by the parish of St. Michael's in particular with the passing of such a distinguished servant of God.

Lawyer Joins Firm

G. Roderick (Roddy) Cameron, son of Justice and Mrs. C. A. Cameron of Ottawa, formerly of Belleville, has announced that he is now associated with the law firm of Cameron and Sprague.

Born and raised in the city, Mr. Cameron graduated from the Belleville Collegiate Institute in 1942. He then entered Queen's University in the Commerce course. Council Informally Agrees To Accept Motion of Board Respecting School Contract

In an informal meeting of city council called by Mayor H. J. Allin Saturday morning, Aldermen, without benefit of formal vote, agreed that the second lowest tenders received by the Board of Education should be accepted. Tenders for the new public school were opened by the Board Friday night, but no action was taken on them.

Crux of the matter was that a local contractor was almost $4,000 above the tender submitted by an out-of-town firm, and the board, while wishing to accept the lowest tender, also wished to help local men gain employment. The board, then, presented no recommendation to council, but merely asked for the aldermen's opinions on the matter.

The meeting, despite the mix-up surrounding the first tenders and the resultant controversy, was this time held in complete harmony as Mr. Enos David, chairman of the Board of Education, explained the situation. Mr. David told City Council that while the majority of the members of the Board preferred to keep business in town, they wanted to take council into their confidence on the matter. Mr. David was accompanied by Mr. Arnold Campbell, also from the board.

Alderman Opposes

Alderman A. M. Haig, chairman of finance, told members that he would like to see the contract awarded locally, but still felt that it should go to the lowest bidder. "I still feel the contract should go to the lowest contractor," Mr. Haig said. "It's a matter of principle that there should be no variation." Mr. Haig asked why the second lowest general contract should be awarded because it was local and why that principle should not be extended to the sub-trades, if local contractors had been undercut there also.

Alderman Don Thomas raised the question of labor. He wanted to know whether or not the outside man would bring in his labor, or would use local men. Mr. David replied that this was not specified in the contract, and hence would be an unknown quantity.

Alderman Hyde and Liddle together, favored the local contractor. "It means more than $4,000 to the workmen in Belleville," Mr. Liddle said. "We would save a lot of money for local citizens by letting it to the local contractor." Alderman Armstrong concurred with "if it's going to involve local men, I'm for a local contractor." "Me too," Alderman Tice said.

Situation Cleared

Alderman Dr. R. T. Potter cleared the situation somewhat by a direct question to the mayor. "Is what the board wants to know this—will we give them the money if they accept the second lowest tender?" Dr. Potter said.

"Yes," Mayor Allin said.

With Alderman Thomas' assertion that "there will be more than the difference of $4,000 spent in Belleville if the contract is awarded locally,", council, in an informal vote agreed that the tender of the local contractor should be accepted.

Council then agreed to meet tonight at 7.30 p.m. to pass a by-law to give the money to the board. The board will also meet to vote on the accepting of the tender. Reason for the immediate move is that the board wished to accept the tender by Tuesday in order that the increase in plumbing fixtures announced in the last ten days will not be passed on by the contractor.

Last-Hope Search Made for Missing Smith Reynolds

Lone Pine, Calif., Aug. 14 (AP) —Four veteran mountain climbers lowered themselves over the east face of Mt. Whitney today in a last-hope search for Christopher Smith Reynolds, tobacco-heir son of singer Libby Holman.

The climbers plan to search remote ledges and crevasses and, if unsuccessful, will remain on the country's highest peak overnight and start anew tomorrow.

The other phase of today's rescue operations will see the removal by basket and ropes of the body of Reynolds' companion.

The frozen body of his companion, Steven Rice Wasserman, was found in a snowy crevasse at the 11,500-foot level yesterday, a week after the two 17-year-olds set out to conquer Whitney's toughest side.

Scant hope was held by veteran searchers that young Reynolds is still alive, unless he wandered off for aid for Wasserman.

UNDERWATER

from some of the 12,000 reds who crossed the river at Chanynyong, 23 miles south of Taegu.

The United States 24th Division, moving up behind 45-ton Pershing tanks, attacked the river-crossers at dawn Monday. They shoved the North Koreans back from 1,000 yards to a mile along a flaming six-mile long sector on the allied eastern bank of the river.

Hall of Fire

The attacking Americans were met by a hail of fire from high-velocity weapons. The North Koreans in the heights outnumbered the Americans. The enemy has been trying to break out of a six mile bulge around Changnyong for eight days. The original North Korean 4th Infantry Division that crossed the winding river there has been reinforced.

Early Monday night U.S. Eighth Army headquarters in Korea said the attacking Americans at Changnyong had attained their primary objectives. MacArthur's headquarters in Tokyo said the attack was "proceeding satisfactorily."

Pour Bombs on Invaders

American army and navy planes and the Royal Australian Air Force poured a crushing weight of bombs and rockets on the communist invaders.

But for all its ferocity, the Changnyong fighting was described by a general officer at MacArthur's headquarters as probably secondary to the "critical area" which extends 20 miles north and south of the town of Waegwan, 32 miles north of Changnyong.

The communists have put four elite divisions on the Waegwan line just 12 air miles northwest of Taegu, the South Korean Republic's emergency capital. Two other North Korean divisions were behind them with armor to exploit the breakthrough the reds expect to make against the United States 1st Cavalry Division and South Korean forces.

Break Out of Area

Intelligence officers said the communist steamroller is expected to strike out momentarily from the Waegwan area for Taegu.

Both the Changnyong River crossing to the south, and the attack on Pohang, No. 2 Korean port on the east coast, were designed to immobilize as much American and South Korean strength as possible, intelligence officers said.

The Waegwan central front communists keep throwing out probing arms, hunting for weak spots in the long line.

The United States 1st Cavalry Division caught 500 communists crossing the Naktong near Waegwan early Monday. The Cavalry killed or wounded 300 of them and most of the remainder fled back across the river. Some reds took refuge in the hills and cavalry patrols were hunting them.

Pastor Claims He Was Knocked Down, Beaten

La Sarre, Que., Aug. 14 (CP)—A Baptist pastor was knocked down and beaten and one of his followers said he was taken for a five-block "joy-ride" Saturday night when members of the sect held an open-air meeting in this northwestern Quebec town.

L. G. Barnhardt, pastor of the Church of the Good News, said he was knocked down, beaten and kicked while talking to police chief Edward Carpentier of La Sarre.

Another member of the sect, Alphonse Cloutier, said he was pulled into a jeep, driven for several blocks and pummelled about the head by a man whom he identified as Claude Martel, son of the mayor of La Sarre, who died recently following a heart seizure after the first of several disorderly Saturday night meetings of the sect.

The pastor said he complained to the police chief that the town council guaranteed protection to members of the sect. He said the chief replied that police could do nothing as the attacks had taken place on private property.

But he said there is "no road back from Korea, except a victory for the principle of justice over the principle of power politics."

Quintuplets Born in India

Jubulpore, India, Aug. 14 — (Reuters)—Quintuplets have been born at Sanchara, a village in the Rewa district of central India, unconfirmed reports reaching here today said.

The reports said the mother and five children were "doing well."

A local daily newspaper urged the Indian government "to fix a generous allowance" for the upbringing of the children "as was done in the case of the Dionne quintuplets" of Callender, Ont.

The Dionne girls, now 16, were wards of the King until 1944 when the Ontario government returned to the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, control of the children except as concerns financial matters. These are looked after by the provincial government's official guardian.

Water Storage Reserves Are Above Normal

Ottawa, Aug. 14. (CP)—Stream flow conditions in Canada during July generally were well above normal, the Resources department reported today.

Run-off was deficient in Eastern Nova Scotia, sub-normal across the southern part of Ontario and above normal to excessive from Northern Ontario to the Pacific Coast.

Excessive flooding continued in the Winnipeg river watershed and, although the water level of the upper lakes along the international boundary between Ontario and Minnesota declined, these lakes are still considerably above normal elevations at the end of the month.

Flow of 22 representative rivers throughout Canada averaged 144 per cent of normal against 136 per cent in June.

With the exception of the Maritimes, reserves of storage on the principal power-producing rivers improved and, in north-western Ontario, the amount of water in storage was excessive.

By rivers, stream flow conditions in Ontario follow, with July run-off shown as a percentage of the normal run-off:

Fight Manager Sought by Police

Philadelphia, Aug. 14—(AP)—Frank (Blinky) Palermo, manager of lightweight boxing champion Ike Williams, was the target of a police manhunt today.

Palermo was sought to answer charges of conspiracy, violation of the firearms law and of threat to kill. Police officials said Palermo may be involved in a battle between numbers racketeers.

Inspector Richard Doyle dispatched a call for Palermo's arrest yesterday after two men were held in $10,000 bail each as the aftermath of a gun battle in south Philadelphia.

Sought along with Palermo are James Singleton, 42, described by Doyle as the fight manager's partner in one of the city's largest numbers banks, and Joseph Coffee, 45, said to be the ring's "strongarm man."

Palermo and his two companions disappeared following an exchange of pistol shots between two speeding automobiles late Saturday, Doyle said.

Held by police are Nicholas Marcus, 22, and Patsy Mangiello, 35. Doyle accused Marcus and Mangiello of being numbers writers for what he termed the Palermo-Singleton bank. The inspector said they allegedly were the targets for bullets fired from Palermo's automobile. No one was injured in the Saturday exchange of shots.

Marcus and Mangiello are charged with violation of the uniform firearms act, reckless use of firearms, attempt to kill, conspiracy and keeping and maintaining an illegal lottery.

Doyle said the trouble started over a welshed 75-cent numbers bet that should have paid the bettor $350.

MISCHIEF BRINGS SUSPENDED SENTENCE

Cornwall, Ont., Aug. 14.—(CP) —John Orr, 23, and John Rodgers, 22, both of Montreal, today were placed on three months suspended sentence for creating a public mischief.

The men admitted rigging up a dummy leg which protruded from the back trunk of their car as they drove along Number Two highway Sunday. They were also fined $10 and costs for having liquor in a place other than their residence.

The pair told police they had fixed up the dummy as a joke to see how far they could travel without being stopped.

Toronto, Lindsay Bakers Raise Price of Bread

Toronto, Aug. 14 (CP)—A number of Toronto bakeries today announced a one-cent increase in the price of a 24-ounce loaf.

Local prices now are 17 cents for sliced bread and 16 cents for an unsliced loaf.

W. S. Antliff, general manager of the Canada Bread Company Ltd., said growing costs of ingredients were responsible for the increase.

Lindsay, Ont., (CP)—The price of bread in Lindsay jumped one cent a loaf today. Trent Valley Baking Company, Ltd., announced that unsliced bread now will cost 15 to 16 cents a loaf and sliced bread 17 cents.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE

Montreal, Aug. 14 (CP) — The Gazette says in a newspage story today a rumor is being circulated among railway union officials that the railway companies would make another offer, possibly today, including definite dates when the 40-hour week and other demands of the unions would be introduced.

Meanwhile, however, arrangements for a wage hour strike by 124,000 railway employees in the non-operating trades set for 6 a.m. Aug. 22 were concluded by union officials.

THE IMPORTANCE OF BEING UNDERSTOOD

Information distributed by government departments and business corporations is often criticized for being presented in such a way that the meaning of the message is hidden in a hodgepodge of confusing phrases. The ideas contained in these statements are sometimes important and of interest to the general public. However, the full significance of the information is only grasped by a small number of people who are familiar with the clumsy phrasing of technicians and experts.

The persons who prepare these statements may be thoroughly familiar with the subjects they are discussing, but when they use technical terms and academic language, their words bounce off unfamiliar ears as just so much excess wordage. With few exceptions, these reports are written in such an uninteresting style that few people bother to read them. Many who do take the trouble to wade through these concentrated masses of factual material often have difficulty picking out the relevant points and interpreting them correctly.

The Royal Bank of Canada's monthly newsletter is an outstanding exception in this regard, and is, perhaps, the most widely read of any such publication. These letters always deal with topics that are both interesting and informative and they are written in a very readable style.

Some government departments are among the worst offenders when it comes to making the simplest explanation sound like a detailed exposition of Einstein's theory of relativity and reams of this obscure publicity roll out of government departments every year.

To be sure, official documents and Acts of Parliament are more concerned with certainty than clarity of meaning, because they are dealing with obligations, rights and privileges, and must cover every possible set of circumstances. It is neither sensible nor desirable to suggest that they be written in the simplest language. However, the necessity of using precise legal phrasing in certain instances does not excuse persons who explain such matters to the public by using cumbersome phrases that do more to confuse than enlighten.

SUMMER COLOR SIGNALS

Are you having a colorful summer? That is, have you yet contracted your sunburn "red" as a result of too much time at the lake? Or have you suffered from the canoe "greens" because you took a paddle on the water too soon after dinner?

And there are the automobile "blues," which are almost an inescapable part of traffic-loaded weekends these days. The "blues" are usually inspired by either a bumper-to-bumper line of new autos headed by a slow-moving jalopy, or by a daredevil who cuts in and out of traffic right in front of you. The latter often leads to apoplexy and a purple face.

Black in summer holidays is a symbol of a cottage that has just been cleaned up, with the unfortunate cleaner keeping most of the dirt to himself. White is the color of Aunt Minnie from the city who comes to the lake every year for her holidays. And if a man is colored yellow in the summertime, it's not from jaundice or any other physical ills, but from the porch railings his wife just had to have in canary color this spring.

Of all, the sunburn pigment is probably the most painful, and Aunt Minnie's white the most disconcerting. It is not bad enough that sufferers from too much sun should have the pain of it. There are always the jokers in the crowd who think that such a state is an amusing one, and their humor only serves to add to the pain of the situation. Sunburn itself is a dangerous thing, and can lead to a serious illness if it is bad enough.

Regardless of what your color is at the present time, the next time you get the reds, blues, greens or what have you, remember that each color is a danger signal. Let your shade forewarn you.

CANADIANS LACK COLOR?

It is too loosely said that our great Canadians lack color and incident which make rich biographies. American magazine editors, for example, could never see in Mr. King enough lively stuff to make one of those jazzed-up "profiles" which they are constantly building around lesser figures. That, of course, is a reflection on the editors, not on Mr. King who, in fact, was full of color and succeeded in hiding it so well.

A man who builds an artificial stone ruin on his farm in his secret yearning for antiquity, who lugs stones from the bombed British House of Commons in a suitcase, by airplane, to complete the ruins of Kingsmere and give them a final touch of authenticity, who conducts a religious ceremony around the first fire lighted in his farmhouse fireplace and is driven outside by the smoke, with his guests, because someone blocked the chimney — such a man, full of strange quirks and absurd little human weaknesses, cannot be said to lack color.

He is, in fact, a vast, untouched, bottomless vein of pure ore for the future biographer. — Bruce Hutchison in Winnipeg Free Press.

FREEDOM

Fame and Fortune! Goals afar
Every lad ambitious strives for.
Liberty and Justice are
What brave men will give their lives for.

Freedom! Far more precious than Fame and Fortune many try for.
It's that heritage of man
Once it's threatened men will die for.

What with money can be bought
Merely pleases those who crave it.
Men for Liberty have fought,
Died, and still will die, to save it.

USE OLD AGE

The Greeks were the only people ever to attain historical distinction who made it a point to utilize the wisdom of old age to its full. Perhaps that is the reason why the Greeks stand out as much the most marvelous people in human history. They did not believe that because a man had grown old he had grown useless. They did not expect men past middle age to take part in the Olympic games, but they did expect them to write epics and dramas, to design temples, to write philosophy. The result of all this was that the Greek used human capacities to the last drop. They knew that some of the best of human quality and ability is reserved for the last years of a man's life.

Observe how "progressive" modern America behaves in this regard. Are you fifty years old? Do you have white hair? You are through. When a woman is past 60 she is retired. At 70 men are told to stand aside and wait until the undertaker has time to come and get them.

If the passing years have not developed in older people certain capacities they could not possibly have had in youth, then they have lived in vain. A great step forward was taken by industry in this country when it learned how to utilize by-products and make profits by eliminating wastes. Let us stop wasting old age. There is lots of value there if we will but salvage it.

MacKenzie's Column

Communism International And Militant

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

A young woman from Cincinnati wants guidance. She is told to fear communism, but: "I don't know what communism is, so how can I fear it or fight it. What is communism?"

Let's have a go at it.

Present-day communism must not be confused with the original which was conceived long ago. The old brand was in many respects a beneficent ideology. It abolished all private property and set up a community in which everyone shared equally in everything. In some cases even wives were shared.

Soviet communism, or Bolshevism, is international in scope and it is militant. The fountain head is Moscow. Countries which become communist must abandon nationalism and surrender their sovereignty to Moscow. Their allegiance belongs there.

Russian Imperialism

Beneficent aspects of the old-time communism have been prostituted to fit the propaganda needs of a Russian imperialism which openly seeks world domination. Thus current communism is a new ideology created to meet a new situation.

Communism is the opposite of capitalism and private initiative, such as exists in democratic countries. The state controls all resources and means of production.

There is regimentation of the individual in all activities. The completeness of this is shown in the fact that even artists, scientists, dramatists, and what not must subscribe. They can't produce anything which doesn't glorify communism or add to red prestige.

Individuality is largely swallowed up by the state.

Those who evade regimentation are "purged" — that is, they are punished — perhaps sent to labor camps, to prison, or even to death. Those who serve the country best are rewarded in various ways and may become famous.

When communism came to power in Russia through the Revolution of 1917, it established the "third international," of comintern, which was known as the general staff for world revolution. It now is called the cominform.

The object of the comintern was to carry revolution to every country in the world, to establish communist governments. This was undertaken by red agents whom we call fifth columnists.

It's important to note that the red leaders laid it down that every revolution must be accompanied by violence and bloodshed. This was to impress the importance of the event on the minds of the proletariat.

That's why there has been violence in all the countries which Russia has absorbed as satellites. In some cases there has been no actual revolution, but there have been "purges" of people opposed to the change.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

MIDTOWN MUSINGS

The most depressing chore in show business is to look at a hundred girls who have answered a chorus call and say, "Sorry you're not the type," to ninety of them. . . The ladies know they're being screened for the thing they prize most-eye-appeal-and a turndown busts them right in the heart and ego . . . Which is why in recent years, I've stayed away from my own chorus calls until an assistant has narrowed the applicants down to the nobbiest. . .

There's a femine quirk I've never been able to understand: A woman's image of herself usually differs from the evidence in her mirror. . . Take, for instance, what happened the other day when I advertised for showgirls who are six feet tall. . . According to Director John Murray Anderson who interviewed them for me, two-thirds of the gals who showed up were five-three- - bulging where they should be dented and sagging where they should be uppity. . . Anderson reported that a couple of them even sported little mustaches.

To be completely objective about it, of course, the male of the species is also inclined to give himself the best of it . . . If you doubt it, let a woman walk into a room full of men and say, "Hello, tall, dark and handsome," and watch the pot-bellied runts get to their feet with a "Who, me?" expression on their faces. .

Another depressing show-business chore is answering the people who want advice on how to get started in the song-writing game. . . If you want to be honest about it, you've got to tell them that their chances of making a go of it are considerably less than their chances of getting elected to Congress.

Twenty-five years ago, when I was writing songs for a living, a fellow could walk into a music publisher's office and at least get a disrespectful hearing. . . Today, unless he has an introduction on White House stationery, it's almost impossible to get past the receptionist. . .The reason is that most of the big music firms are now owned-lock, stock and barrelhouse—by the movie studios, and rather than plug a free-lance tune which might make a few thousand, they naturally prefer to whoop it up for the theme song of a picture which might make the parent company a million.

Another factor which whittles down the new songwriter's chances is the taste-forming power of the 2,000 disc jockies who can make or break a tune—and who, as a rule make it only if it has been recorded by one of the magic-mouths like Patti Andrews, Billy Eckstine, Margaret Whiting or Bing Crosby. . . Sure, a love song of mine is currently on the Hit Parade, but what a fluke success that was! It mildewed in a publisher's safe for 17 years before David Kapp of Decca Records decided it was worth a shellacking. . .

Of course, there's no better way to impress the ladies than to write a bust-in-the-subconscious ballad and have it on everybody's lips and loud speaker. . . Consider my case: I operate a theatre and a nightclub, write a syndicated column, and I've run as many as 38 pool balls from the break. . . Nevertheless these accomplishments, or any combination thereof, have never enabled me to assume my proper place as master of the manor. . . As far as Mrs. R. was concerned I was the Sad Sack who paid the bills and who was liable to plunge Westchester County into darkness if he changed a fuse in the cellar.

But there's been a big change around the house since "I Wanna Be Loved" became popular. . . Eleanor now treats me almost as an equal, and twice last week there was chocolate profiterole for dessert.

The explanation, I guess, is that it's love that makes a woman's world go round, and she'll always have a soft spot for the gent who can give it an extra spin.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

GET A NEW BIRTH!

We are familiar with that exhortation in the Bible where it says: "Ye must be born again." Lincoln once spoke of a "new birth of freedom." All of us need new births throughout life. St. Paul spoke of putting away "childish things, when maturity arrived—a new birth of ideas and a new way of life.

Many a man or woman has experienced a new birth after the breaking of bondage to some death dealing habit. A new birth to joy and happiness. I once read of a very wealthy man who had everything that he owned practically wiped out. He had just enough left to buy a small place in the country where he raised flowers and chickens. But he told a friend that he had just started to live!

What this world needs now, more than anything else, is a new birth of values. Why should nations continue to kill each other off? After all that we know of the fiendish tragedy and uselessness of war, why do we still take up with it? How cheaply we hold the civilization that has already cost so much in sacrifices and treasures! Winston Churchill stated not long ago that the second Word War could have been prevented. Why wasn't it then? Must the entire world be bathed in blood before we can get that birth of freedom and security for which we all so crave?

Education has taken a wrong turn in the world. Too much to the brain and too little to the heart. There can be no peace of mind until there is peace of heart! Spiritual values have been neglected. Theirs is an inward birth. We can well say that a nation has failed if it has gained the whole world and lost its own soul.

Birthtime is always an outstanding event, no matter how conceived. It can be both in the mind and heart. It may be a birth of ideas that lead to constructive enterprises. It can even be a birth to new appreciations—a love of beauty, of nature, of those less fortunate than ourselves. But whenever, or wherever created, there is new light, new understanding, and new vistas. What a celebration any new birth can be!

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It is always sound policy to have two pair of pliers in the house. Two hammers. Two screw drivers. For if you have they never get lost. It is only in those highly efficient and economical household which have only one pair of pliers that they are always mislaid.

So curious is this law that, if you adopt the rule and go to the hardware store and buy two pair of pliers with deliberate intent, as sure as fate, within the next month, somebody is going to leave another pair of pliers in your car the first time you take it into a repair garage to have a new spark plug installed.

This mysterious principle is mentioned in holy writ in the parable which assert that to him that hath shall be given and from him that hath not shall be taken away.

The thing of course, can go to extremes. Tools and gadgets have a rather frightening way of multiplying in a man's house. He starts out by buying a few fundamental items which every man should possess—a hammer, saw, brace and bit, screw driver small hatchet, and so forth These he ensconces in his cellar, on a small jumbled table in a nice dark corner. The first time he needs any one of them, it is gone. He can't find it anywhere So he goes and buys another.

Next day, the original one turns up. Now he is within the orbit of the mysterious law Within a month, his wife, unable at a glance from half way down the cellar stairs to see the article on the small, untidy table goes and borrows the same article from the next door neighbor. The implacable law is now well in possession. The more tools a man has, the harder it is to find the one he is looking for under the heap. So he keeps on buying and his wife keeps on borrowing.

It is sound to have two of everything; but you must watch out that you don't end up having five.

Personal Health Talks

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis, or treatment will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Address: Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

PHYSICAL, MEDICAL OR HEALTH EXAMINATION

No matter what you call it, but, please, don't call it "check-up" if you mean an examination of the human body.

Probably but few physicians undergo voluntary physical examinations year after year if they don't believe or suspect something is the matter.

Even people who travel afar to the best advertised "clinic" for a so-called "check-up" instead of seeking an examination by a physician who practices under his own name, rarely get their money's worth, aside from the relief or the pleasure they get from being away from home for a while. The great value of the examination by a real doctor at home over the machine-testing the sucker gets in the impersonal "clinic" lies in the very fact that the doctor at home gets to know the client in a way that may prove vitally important one day.

Two readers have taken exception to suggestions I made here in respect to periodic examinations. Both of them are so valid that I acknowledge my errors and thank the two readers for their courtesy.

In reply to the query: How frequently should one have his eyes examined I said I would not have my eyes examined at all unless I felt that something was wrong with them. But one reader politely reminds me that I am a physician and hence should be capable of judging whether something is wrong with my eyes, but people who are not physicians may be incapable of deciding whether their eyesight really needs help. Further, the reader continues as a presbyope I have already found my slot in life and need only retain the visual skills I possess.

All right. All right. I admit I prefer to hold the telephone book or the dictionary a little farther away when the light is not very bright.

The reader adds that the school child whose elastic organism can maintain good visual acuity even though a visual defect is found on eye examination, may be unruly in class, have a poor reading rate, poor comprehension, etc.—all of which may be corrected by proper glasses.

I leave the last argument to the physicians, teachers and optometrists. But I plead guilty on the first two counts. I was thinking only of the state of vision—whether I was conscious of any strain or difficulty in use of the eyes.

Another reader asks whether I advise women at forty or past forty to have a medical examination for possible signs of cancer of the neck of the womb. I do, regardless of any symptoms women forty or past forty may or may not have.

Still another reader comes while I am writing the foregoing paragraphs, asking whether every one of any particular ones should have the urine tested for sugar, and if so, at what age or how often or under what circumstances. Yes, I'd advise every one to have such a test made at the age of forty regardless of any disturbance of health he or she may have noticed. The test should be made, not by a "laboratory" but by one's physician or under the physician's direction. The point is that no physician worthy of your confidence will accept the report of such a test at its face value—so having the sugar test or other laboratory tests made on your own is sheer waste of time and money.

A year or ten ago I reported here the illuminating result of a survey made in a small Massachusetts community where routine urinalyses of a few thousand presumptively well persons led to the discovery of a considerable number of cases of diabetes and institution of treatment before the disease had progressed too far.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Whew!

Your advice to be wary of sleeping pills is fine, but it is too bad you are not at liberty to tell your legion of readers that pieces of garlic simmered five minutes in milk and taken hot just before retiring will put one to sleep as quickly as a barbiturate. (W. F. P.)

Home Remedies for C-R-I

Which is the most dangerous—3 grains of quinine sulfate every 4 hours or 300,000 units of procaine penicillin by intra-muscular injection, for C R I? (Mrs. L. R. K.)

Answer—In my opinion the penicillin procaine is the more dangerous. On p. 29 of the booklet Call it Cri (copy for 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope) I tell why quinine is the first choice as prophylactic and remedy for the common respiratory infections, and why some nostrums unwary customers use indiscriminately for what the poor geeks call "cold" or "grip" or "flu" are more likely to turn the scales against recovery than to do any good.

Canadian Waterways Become More Popular With Tourists

Trenton (Special.)—A prediction that "Canadian waterways are going to be more and more popular with United States tourists every year," was voiced by an American yachtsman who tied up at Trenton dock Friday night.

Jack Aron and his wife, who hail from New York City had just returned from a 10-day cruise up the Trent to Bobcaygeon in their trim "Chris Craft" Alibubu III, and stopped over night at Trenton before continuing to Kingston and a trip up through the Rideau system of lakes and canals.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Aron were very pleased with the scenery of the Trent Valley and loud in their praise of Canadian hospitality. "It was a wonderful trip and the best thing about it is that everybody is so nice," said Mr. Aron. "Canadians seem to go out of their way to make tourists feel at home," seconded Mrs. Aron.

"It's the little things that make people want to come back," said Mr. Aron, "and from what we have seen on this trip we will certainly be back."

Tempering his praise with a friendly suggestion to the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Aron said it would be a good idea to have a "couple of more water connections, which would save the boats the trouble of moving around two or three times." At present there is only one drinking water connection and practically all pleasure craft, who tie up want to take on water. In order to do so, the boats have to tie up first to be filled up with gas, then move up the dock a few yards to reach the water connection and then move around again so that other boats will be able to reach the connection.

Another Suggestion

Another suggestion volunteered by Mr. Aron was that it would be an advantage to have outside electrical outlets which pleasure craft could plug into. "Even boats as small as 25 footers have electrical outlet as standard equipment now," he said.

Turning to the improved docks area which has been recently paved, Mr. Aron said "A paved dock is certainly very important and a big improvement over the gravel one at Peterborough. It was a bit windy that day and we swallowed dust all day."

At this point in the interview, the unmistakable appetizing aroma of sizzling pork chops was accompanied by Mrs. Aron's "hurry up before they get cold" call to supper. As he hopped aboard, Mr. Aron said over his shoulder, "Some of our friends will be up next year too, that I can guarantee."

New Hospital Will be Opened About Christmas

Trenton — (Special — Construction on Trenton and District Memorial Hospital "is going ahead according to schedule" and the Hospital Board expects to be able to open the new structure about Christmas.

Contract work on the interior finishings is proceeding and so far there have been no material shortages to hamper construction. The refrigerator is being installed and the completely automatic elevator with "micro levelling device" which stops it exactly level with the floor will arrive sometime about the middle of October.

It is expected that a construction firm which has agreed to do the landscaping on the hospital grounds will start the job this week, as the plans have been completed.

Engine Trouble Causes Forced Landing of Plane

Trenton. (Special.)—A forced landing of a Harvard training plane from Central Flying School at Trenton, resulted in little damage to the plane and no injuries to the pilot Friday afternoon. Flight Cadet K. G. McCrimmon, the pilot, set the plane down in a field about three miles west of Warkworth.

Cause of the forced landing, authorities say, was engine trouble. The pilot landed the craft with his wheels up, which is normal procedure. Damage to the plane was limited to a scraped belly and damage to the propellor.

Ontario Leads Eastern Canada's Weekend Toll

(By The Canadian Press)

Ontario led Eastern Canada's week-end death toll, claiming 22 of the 34 persons accidentally killed.

A Canadian Press survey showed nine persons killed in Quebec and three in Nova Scotia.

A boating accident at London, Ont., accounted for four of the 14 drownings. Traffic accidents caused another 10 deaths and 10 other persons lost their lives in a variety of mishaps. A child was scalded to death, another was killed when he walked into a tractor-drawn binder.

Ten by Drowning

Ten persons died in Ontario by drowning. The four who drowned when a speedboat overturned at London were: Mrs. William Klein, Mitchell, Ont.; Andrew McLellan, Seaforth, Bob Jenkins, London; and Mrs. Elizabeth McElroy, Seaforth. William Langford, 13, was also drowned at London when he tried to rescue a younger brother. Ronald Randall, 20 and Thomas Cain, 17, are believed to have drowned in a boating accident at Collingwood. Gail Spencer, 15, was drowned at Kenora and James Sperry, 45, of Sudbury at Lindsay. Joseph Smith, 51, of Hamilton, Ohio. was drowned at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., when he fell from a boat.

Traffic accidents accounted for six Ontario deaths. They were Alphonse Chartrand, 17, and Harold Cliche, 14, at Pembroke; L. H. Ennis, 15, of Carp, at Arnprior; Herbert Cowan, 43, in suburban Toronto; four-year-old Leona Seabrook, at Thessalon; and John McCormack, 23, of Montreal, near Hamilton.

Killed by Train.

Mrs. Alice May Webb, of Brandon, Man., was killed by a train while picking berries at Kenora. The body of Allan J. Drew was found by a railroad track near Windsor. Seventeen-month-old Michael Mainprize was scalded to death in Hamilton when he fell into a pan of boiling water. Marven Merkin, 29, was killed at Jackson's Point when he was caught up in the propeller of a motor boat he was repairing. Police at Sudbury are investigating the death of Mrs. Kuisa Toivonen, 38, who died of injuries suffered apparently when she fell downstairs. Eighteen-month-old Daniel Dusome was killed at Orillia when he toddled into the side of a binder machine.

Arrested Man Slashes Wrists

London, Aug. 14 — (Reuters)— William Ralph Wakeham, 35, accused of stealing a British atomic energy official's suitcase and briefcase, slashed his wrists in his London prison cell today.

The suitcase was reported to contain secret atom papers, since recovered.

It was reported lost by Frank Greenless, an official the Ministry of Supply, which controls atomic development. He was on his way to an atomic research station in the north of England when it was taken.

Greenless left the case in a corner of his railway carriage seat while he walked along the car. When he returned three minutes later, his luggage had gone.

Police said at the time there was no suspicion of espionage.

Wakeham, due to appear in court Saturday, was taken to hospital, where his condition was said to be "not serious."

STABBED IN ABDOMEN

Delhi, Aug. 14 (CP) —Clinton Durson, 38, was stabbed in the abdomen and right forearm here Saturday night following a brawl in front of a beverage room on the main intersection.

Police are holding John Rankin, of Inverness, Nova Scotia, in connection with the stabbing. Both men were believed to be tobacco workers.

CBC Answers Charges Made By Union Heads

Toronto, Aug. 14—(CP)— The Canadian Broadcasting Corporation Sunday night answered charges by Percy Bengough that the corporation's national news bulletin Aug. 10 on the pending rail strike favored railway management.

"It is not the purpose of CBC news bulletin to provide background information, commentary nor extensive review," said Donald Manson, CBC assistant general manager, in a statement. He said amplification of news reports is often made in separate programs."

He was replying to a charge by Mr. Bengough, president of the Trades and Labor Congress (A.F.L.), that the Aug. 10 bulletin was "simply a propaganda broadcast in favor of railway management." The bulletin reported developments in the threatened Aug. 22 strike of some 124,000 employees of Canada's railways.

Mr. Manson's statement, the CBC release said, was made "pending examination of Mr. Bengough's protest by chairman A. D. Dunton."

Don't Make News

"The CBC does not make the news," the statement said. "On August 10th new developments in the railway dispute were: (1) "final" proposal of the railways; (2) rejection of the proposal by the union negotiating committee, and (3) a request by the railways that another meeting be held with union officials regarding the maintenance of essential services.

These three developments were covered briefly but fairly in the CBC National News Bulletin of August 10th. The CBC report was based on news stories supplied by The Canadian Press and British United Press.

No Background

"It is not the purpose of CBC News Bulletins to provide background information, commentary nor extensive review. Review statements are made only when necessary to clarify an item. On a continuing story, such as the railway dispute, new developments are presented as they occur, without review. Amplification of news reports is often made in separate programs such as CBC News Roundup and News Commentary programs.

"This was done on August 10th in CBC News Roundup immediately following the National News Bulletin in question when the railway dispute was reviewed by an independent commentator on an impartial basis, at the request of CBC. A further news report, covering action taken by both railways and labor, was given the same night on the CBC Dominion Network News Bulletin."

Children Hurt In Explosion Of Smoke Bomb

Ottawa, Aug. 14 (CP) — Two boys, Donald McKay, 6, son of Capt. Don McKay of Petawawa, and John Binkley, 5, of Winnipeg are in hospital with serious eye injuries following explosion of a smoke bomb at Petawawa Military Camp Saturday.

The explosion was reported to have occurred at Petawawa Point outside the camp confines, after the two lads found the live smoke bomb while playing.

Hospital officials said the McKay youngster possibly will lose permanently the sight of one eye. The Binkley child's eyes were not so seriously injured.

Army officials denied reports that some officers were under open arrest because of the incident. A court of inquiry will be held today and the officials said a "full investigation" will be made.

H-Bomb Running Faster Schedule Than For A-Bomb

New York, Aug. 14 — (AP) — The hydrogen bomb is running a faster schedule than its predecessor A-bomb.

Calling in the Dupont Company to do much the same job for H-bombs as for A-bombs shows the difference. For H-bombs the Duponts were called in six months after President Truman's starting order last January. For A-bombs the company was not called for several years.

For A-bombs the Duponts made plutonium, a new metal. For H-bombs they evidently will make tritium, a new hydrogen gas, triple ordinary weight.

It took about 2 1-2 years to manufacture plutonium. Tritium may come faster because the process is similar.

Tritium is the most expensive substance ever made in quantity. The only published estimate cost is nearly $450,000,000 a pound.

Tritium is made in the same atomic reactors that make plutonium. Present reactors can make 80 pounds of Plutonium for one pound of tritium, and the prospects of speeding up the new hydrogen are poor.

A good guess is that H-bombs will not be made entirely of this precious stuff. A little tritium may be the catalyst that will enable the use of cheaper forms of hydrogen.

Tritium was discovered shortly before the Second World War. Small amounts have been made in American plutonium plants. Tritium can be made from at least six different elements. These are deuterium, helium, lithium, beryllium, boron and nitrogen. There are at least seven processes, most of them using the neutrons that are made only in atomic reactors.

The simplest process uses deuterium as a starting material. But what process will be used, or whether it is even one of the seven known, is a secret.

Making a hydrogen bomb may be difficult but it is not mysterious. H-bombs are the oldest nuclear bombs. All the scientists in the world know the principles of hydrogen bombs long before such a thing as an H-bomb was ever dreamed of. This hydrogen possibility was first mentioned in 1915, not then as a bomb, but as the process by which the sun and stars make their heat.

Hydrogen was not considered practical because the fusion won't start until temperatures are 1,000,000 or more degrees. The A-bomb unexpectedly furnished the starting heat. Immediately scientists of every country, Russia included, knew how to make H-bombs.

Sweden Accuses Russia Of 'Occupying the Baltic'

By THOMAS HARRIS

Stockholm, Aug 14 — (Reuters) — Sweden is accusing Russia of "occupying the Baltic" and leading Swedish newspapers are urging the government to take reprisals.

Russia has announced that her territorial waters now run 12 sea miles out from the coast instead of the customary four-mile limit for all Baltic powers for centuries

Her announcement followed nine Swedish protests over the seizing of her trawlers by the Russian Navy in international waters.

The Swedish and Danish foreign offices in new notes to Moscow have rejected Russia's 12-mile limit and described it as an "occupation of the high seas on which citizens of all nations have the right to fish and travel freely."

But the citizens of both countries are less concerned with Russia's present encroachment on the Baltic than with her future plans there.

A clue to these has been given in a Moscow university thesis publicized in the Russian press. The thesis tries to show that Russia has a legal right to close the Baltic to non-Baltic powers, in effect turning it into a Russian lake.

Sweden's largest newspaper, Dagens Nybeter, says the worst aspect of Russia's 12-mile-limit decision is that she does not really observe only this limit.

The paper quotes the cases of the two Swedish trawlers recently captured by Soviet naval patrols 21 and 16 1-2 miles from the Russian coast.

Their crews were held incommunicado in a Russian port for two weeks.

Dagens Nyheter recommends cancelling Sweden's 1,000,000,000-crown credit to Russia, made in 1946 to help Soviet post-war reconstuction.

Other newspapers suggest that the Swedish Navy convoy trawlers in the Baltic. But none see any effective means of inducing Russia to revert to the four-mile limit.

Yugoslav DP Ends His Life

Ottawa, Aug. 14 — (CP) — Bernard Zavodnyk, 35-year-old Yugoslav displaced person, died Saturday night after slashing his throat in a basement bedroom in the suburbanEastview home of Frank Pullman, Zavodnyk's landlord and employer.

Pullman, a tailor, who said he entered the room just as Zavodnyk slashed his throat with a straight razor, recalled that Zavodnyk had tried repeatedly to get his wife, Josepha, and two children, a 10-year-old boy and a seven-year-old daughter, out of Yugoslavia.

Pullman said Savodnyk had received a letter from Josepha saying she had received her acceptance papers from the Canadian Legation in Belgrade, but the Yugoslav government had met her requests for permission to leave the country only with silence.

Four Persons Drowned When Boat Capsizes

London, Ont., Aug. 14—(CP)— Four persons died Sunday when a pleasure boat capsized at Springbank Park about 400 feet east of the pumping station on the Thames River.

Six other persons were rescued, police said, and three of these were taken to Victoria Hospital.

The dead are Mrs. Agnes Prudence Klein, 53, of Mitchell; Mrs. Elizabeth McElroy, about 50, Seaforth; Andrew McLellan, 55, of Seaforth, and Robert Wilbur Jenkins, 22, of Quebec Street, London.

It was a day of tragedy on the Thames. An hour before the Springbank upset William Edward Langford, 13, drowned at the Komoka bridge on the Delaware Road when he went to the rescue of a younger brother.

Others in the boat which capsized at Springbank were Mrs. Roxy Apel, of Sebringville, Mrs. Andrew McLellan of Seaforth, Miss Beatrice Bannister, of Wilton Grove, all three of whom are recovering at Victoria Hospital.

Carl Ryan, 38, of London, driver of the boat; Eric Hodgins, 16, of Lucan; Ira Grosbeck, London, were rescued by occupants of the pleasure boats.

Dr. A. R Rougledge, coroner, said he has ordered an inquest and Royal Canadian Mounted Police joined the investigation in accordance with their authority under the Navigable Waters Act.

Total Of 10 On Board

Ryan said there were only seven passengers in the boat, and himself as operator.

But provincial police said they had the names of nine passengers and Ryan as driver, for a total of 10 on board.

The boat was a 17-foot, inboard motor type, and police said Ryan was operating the boat, taking picnickers on cruises.

Gordon Perry, of McClary Ave., London, said he was a passenger in a boat which had just loaded at the small loading dock about one quarter mile west of the Springbank pumping house.

"I looked up the river and saw this boat which seemed to be standing on its stern, its bow in the air," Perry said.

"A woman was driving our boat and we started at once to the rescue. We had 10 kids in our boat.

"We took one woman on board (Mrs. Klein). She was floating face up on the water when we arrived. We had to move the kids into the stern to make room for her, and when we put her into the bottom of the boat, we did what we could for her by way of respiration, but there wasn't much room."

Assembly Adopts Churchill Motion For Unified Force

By PHILIP CLARKE

Strasbourg, France, Aug 12 — (AP)—Winston Churchill, backed by the European Consultative Assembly, urged west Europe's governments yesterday to unite their armed forces for protection against Russian aggression.

Britain's wartime prime minister said such a force should be under the control of a single defence minister, but said he himself was not a candidate for the position.

The assembly adopted Churchill's motion to set up the unified force 89 to 5 with 27 abstentions, but its action will have no immediate practical results. The group is a completely - unofficial parliament with no power to create a European army or defence ministry.

Churchill said his motion was intended as "warning and guidance" for the western world.

To back up the army of united Europe large armed forces should be sent to the continent from Britain and the United States.

Although he did not mention German troops in his speech, Churchill said afterwards he would be delighted to have them take part in the organization.

He scoffed at reports that rearming Germany would precipitate an immediate Russian attack:

"Believe me," he declared, "the long calculated designs of the Soviet government will not be timed or deflected by events of this order."

Churchill said that during the two years he estimated it would take to build up the European army "we are still under the shield of the atomic bomb, possessed in formidable quantities by the United States alone. In my opinion we have a breathing space."

Be Sure That Beauty Aids Go With You When You Travel

A handy travel item is this little case which contains a lipstick, foundation stick and rouge stick. Nice in your handbag, too.

By HELEN FOLLETT

YOU can't beat American women for running all over the face of the globe. They are everywhere; getting eagle-eye views from the Eiffel tower, sitting on pyramids, motoring over an Alp now and then. They have a yen for tripping, and their smart appearance is a credit to old Uncle Sam.

Pack light, whenever you are a gadabout. A lot of luggage is a nuisance and a bother. Before starting on any kind of a pilgrimage give your toilet articles the once over. If you have favorite creams and lotions, trot to the cosmetic shop and get them in small containers so they will take up little space. Cosmetic chemists, the most thoughtful of male creatures, package their items in several sizes, which is pretty smart of them.

Beauty Kit

An excellent investment is a beauty kit for travellers, containing any number of good looks aids for which you have need. They come in all sizes, at all prices. Some of the expensive ones are pure joy. Some of them have special compartments for money and such papers as you will need during a jaunt in foreign lands.

Creams, powder, rouge and lipstick are the Big Four you are never likely to forget one of them. You will also need an eyebrow brush and mascara, if your lashes aren't dark enough to suit your idea of how they should look.

As you may never have leisure for a manicure, and may be wary of subjecting your pink talons to operators about whose skill you are not sure, you should take along your nail instruments and cosmetics. These should include a long flexible file of high grade steel; curved, needle-point scissors for removing hangnails, orange wood sticks, beveling files of emery board, cuticle cream, polish and polish remover. Sounds like a big order but the whole outfit will take up little space.

If you are going to Europe or any foreign country take along plenty of soap. Few hotels supply it to their guests.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Love on the dole

The woman who is burdened with a marital problem of conspicuous importance will almost certainly have little sympathy for the wife who is unhappy over some apparent trifle.

When a woman has a husband who comes home drunk night after night; one who doesn't come home at all because he is out with some other woman; a man who thinks nothing of batting his wife and children around if they happen to annoy him when in a nasty temper, or one so stingy with money, or such a spendthrift, that his family is hard put to it to get enough out of him for proper food or clothing, it is quite understandable that she would ask nothing more of life than the elimination from it of this one major heartbreak. For a wife to be seriously upset for no better reason than that her husband simply failed to show her as much affection as she would like would almost certainly seem ludicrous, if not completely incredible.

A person suffering the pain of an excruciating toothache can hardly be expected to sympathize very much with someone limping around with a sore blister on his heel. Yet from his own standpoint, the one with the blister is fully as uncomfortable as the other. And a wife who goes around with a continually frustrated longing for a word of endearment now and then, a loving goodbye kiss when her husband leaves her in the morning and one of affectionate greeting when he comes home to her again at night, is a wife with a blister on her emotions that is being rubbed raw.

Says one of these wives:

"My husband is a grand provider and a faithful father. He and I are happy together, but still something is missing. I do appreciate his many wonderful qualities, but I really am starved for affection—the kind of affection that's expressed in kind and loving words and tender kisses, that make all the difference between being a merely contented wife and a truly happy one.

"Are there types of men who want little more of their wives than to have them be good and faithful housekeepers and baby sitters to the children?

Well, of course the answer to that question is yes, there definitely is such a type of man. And it's a hard thing for a warm and demonstrative type of woman to be married to one. To be forced to live with feelings all bottled up inside that one longs to express, is to suffer a sort of emotional suffocation.

It's not necessary, though, to go to the extreme of two such opposite types to find this particular marital problem. Minor though it may be, it is one that distresses many a wife in many an otherwise happy marriage. For there is nothing that means more to most wives than the small and simple words of endearment and gestures of affection that keep her assured of her husband's love. Only the woman who is coldbloodedly out for all she can get in the way of material possessions would rather hear her husband say: "Here's five hundred dollars for a shopping binge," than "I couldn't possibly live without you." And conversely, if a wife doesn't get these loving assurances, no gifts of money or anything else can mean very much.

Yet this need of women to be repeatedly assured that they are still beloved seems hard for a great many husbands to understand. Having followed up their courtship declarations by actually marrying the girls, they usually consider that they have demonstrated their devotion in a way that should satisfy these foolish feminine creatures for the rest of their lives. One of the most maddening things a wife has to hear is: "You know I love you, dear. Why should I have to keep on telling you so?"

On the whole, the average young man has little trouble giving expression to his feelings during the courtship. At that time, the words "I love you" don't stick in his throat, nor does he find it just too much trouble to give his girl a kiss. It is only after marriage that he settles back comfortable and expects the wife he has wooed and won with lavish and reiterated demonstrations of affection to take his love for granted forever after. So in most cases, it would seem to be pure laziness, rather than any real inhibition, that keeps a husband from showing his wife in all the little ways she cherishes that his love is a thing warm and alive.

Obviously, it will do a wife little good to keep reminding her husband of his failings in this regard and pleading for a few more of those spontaneous premarital attentions.

Her most practical plan is to keep up the small but important demonstrations of love herself—the "kind and loving words, the tender kisses", as the wife quoted above puts it—whether or not she receives them. If she does this, she will get a good deal of emotional satisfaction out of expressing her own feelings, and some day that apparently tongue-tied and undemonstrative husband may surprise her by showing signs that the habit is contagious.

"I'm a radio actor and I'm supposed to watch the red light in the studio to cue me onto the air. One day I was so busy yawning I didn't see the light for nearly half a minute. That could have been the end of that job, but I learned in time why I was so droopy, slow, tired, and sluggish. Bad digestion and constipation were slowing me down.

"That's when the programme director put me on to Kruschen Salts. Told me what a pinch of Kruschen in a morning cup of tea, coffee or fruit juice can do for a guy. He wasn't kidding. It made a new man of me in no time flat. I'm billed for the lead in the next programme."

BLACK velvet accessories offer a neat and pretty picker-upper just now when the summer wardrobe stands in need of a tonic by way of new-season touches. Black velvet is used for a little rippled brim cloche with snug crown and shoe-string hatband. Black velvet for both sides of a stole that would be charming with filmy frocks. The dress-up pumps have criss-cross straps and a cut-out vamp.

GOOD MANNERS

To feature wedding anniversary cake

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My parents are planning to celebrate soon their 40th wedding anniversary with a dinner-party for the family, in a restaurant. There will be thirteen guests. After the dinner in the restaurant I would like to invite them all to our four-room apartment. Would you please suggest decorations, favors, and what to serve late in the evening to this group? I would like to do something novel, or have something different by which my parents can remember their 40th anniversary.

M. R.

I suggest that you dramatically feature the wedding anniversary cake for the 'late-in-the-evening performance'. Have as handsome a cake as you can afford. . . it doesnt' have to be large for that small number of guests. . . it might be made with two or three festive tiers, topped with figures of the bride-and-groom or other wedding-y decoration, or only one layer, or a now-so-popular wedding ring cake. It could be iced in white, with the dates (1910-1950) and their initials too, if you wish, in ruby-colored icing. Since ruby is the symbol of this 40th anniversary, you might use a cloth of this rich and radiant color, as the background for the cake on your dining-table.

For the dessert in the restaurant, have the simplest possible one, perhaps a fruit compote. Then late in the evening at your house, have someone announce "The bride cuts the cake". The cake will have been placed before "the bride and groom", with the cake-knife, its handle decorated with a large white-ribbon bow, placed at the side of the cake. Your father, the groom, places his right hand over the right hand of his bride, and together they cut the first slice of the cake. . . and share it with each other, as they did at the original wedding reception. Then a man guest, closest in relationship or friendship to the couple, would propose a toast "To the Bride and Groom!" All (except your mother and father) rise to drink the toast (which may be drunk in champagne or other wine or any non-alcoholic drink), and when they are finished and seated, your father rises to thank the guests for his "bride" and himself. Then someone cuts and serves the rest of the cake. As favors you might have small white boxes of wedding cake (fruit cake) to give to the guests, with the boxes stamped in gold with the date and their initials, or left plain and tied with narrow ruby-red ribbon.

Duties of server at reception

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The wedding will be held in October. There is to be a reception (it will be the first wedding reception I have ever attended), and I have been asked to serve at this reception. Would you please tell me what my duties would be? Otherwise I won't know what to do!

B. C.

The ones who will know what duties will be assigned to you are the bride-to-be and her mother (or either) . . . and you should have a very definite talk with them about this, so that everything will proceed smoothly at the reception. If there are to be several servers, perhaps a group of the bride's close friends, there should be a meeting about this responsibility of seeing that 'all will be well.' One of you may have charge of the pouring of the coffee, tea or whatever beverage; one may have charge of the sandwiches, serving them, providing replacements; one may even be given charge of the Wedding Guests Book, seeing that every guest is asked to sign. And perhaps the whole group might have charge of the cutting and serving of the wedding cake, after the bride and groom have cut and shared the first slice.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Powdering the nose is a part-time job for many girls.

First aid for shiny noses

Powdering the nose is a part-time job for many girls. They buy powder pads by the dozen, wear them thin in no time. They do a great deal of yowling about this affliction which, after all, isn't so terrible. Their lamentations are particularly loud during the good old summer time.

Sebaceous glands are overzealous. When these natural oil gushers carry on normally, they keep the skin surface smooth without putting on a mirror-like glimmer. What makes them work like mad? Any skin specialist will answer that question: too much fat in the diet. Instead of giving much time to the business of calcimining her nose, a girl should endeavor to correct the cause of her shiny complexion.

Fried foods are definitely out of the good looks diet. Cream, butter, fat meats, salad oils, peanut butter should be cut to the limit, chocolate taken in moderation. Most of us have more fat in the diet than we need to create energy.

The day should start with orange or tomato juice. Once a day there should be a green salad. All this will prove good for physical well being, will have definite effect on curbing the activities of the glands. Oiliness in excess means that the pores will become coarse, attract atmospheric dust and blackheads will form.

Sunlight is helpful in overcoming this condition. It is recommended when acne is present, as sunning dries up the tiny yellow pustules while the free flow of perspiration helps to remove the waxlike barricades in the pores. A slow sun-tan may prove effective.

Soap and water should be used freely, always at night. Every bit of the lather should be removed with clear, warm water as the slightest film will make the skin shine worse than ever. While oily cosmetics are not a part of the program, a cleansing cream can be used to remove make-up before the facial scouring starts. Creams should not be left on over night.

Some beauticians suggest the use of shaving soap as it lathers freely. They urge this customers to friction it into the flesh with their fingers, especially on the chin, nose and forehead where sebaceous glands seem to be extra ambitious.

In the morning, use clear cold water. Dry with gentle pats; apply an astringent, slapping it on with pledgets of cotton. Witch hazel serves this purpose, is healing and refreshing.

Apply makeup with restraint. Find a powder that is fine and light; the heavy ones have an oily base and are not desirable for complexions of this character. Do not grind it in with the pad; you will just add to the pore debris that is contributing toward your trouble.

Fashion Flashes

LOOKS LIKE two furs are better than one, or so think many leading furriers. A smart little shortie of black Persian lamb has cup collar, cuffs and big buttons all of black Alaska sealskin. Same design and plot in brown Persian with brown sealskin is ever so new.

A NATURAL for wear with the sheath dresses of black crepe and velvet designed for next season, is the flaring overskirt of net. A beauty, in stiffened net, is cross-barred all over with very narrow black velvet ribbon, and ties with velvet bands. It would make the simplest little black dress look important.

RICH fabrics play a leading role in the new fashions. A beautiful after-five design is a halter-necked decollete coat dress of oyster-white bengaline, the silk heavy but soft of weave. The slim coat-dress fastens with big rhinestone buttons.

DATE DRESSES look new and charming with plenty of choice for the girl who likes individual design. Deep plum colored wide wale corduroy is used for a pretty dress with a halter, horseshoe-collared neckline filled in with white lace, and closing at the side with big fake amethyst-studded buttons.

NO BUDGET BLUES for mother when she goes to outfit daughter this Fall, for never were separates nicer, more useful and more sensibly priced, and there are lots of reversibles too. For instance, a red wool wraparound skirt reverses to a black velveteen job and is worn with a reversible red and black plaid wool jacket.

MAKE WAY for the costume sweater destined for a big success come Fall. Black soutache braid covers the tiny collar and describes a deep armhole line on a pullover of royal blue wool jersey and rib-knit.

Walking Doll, Matching Girl

WANDA, the Walking Doll, is introduced here, with her so-called little mother . . . both dressed impeccably by Sophie. The frocks are made of red and green rayon plaid, and they are sized from three to six, and seven to fourteen.

The doll really walks, for three whole minutes on a single key winding. Her arms pump up and down in a natural manner as she inches along, and she and her owner can have a variety of matching frocks to wear.

MARIO... in his distinctive feature about Food ... What's Cooking?

When Mr. A. Baker married Miss Fanny Flour at Sydney, Australia, nobody was disappointed. The happy couple did the inevitable thing and opened a bakery.

Partnerships like this are not new in the British empire. Poppy and Seeds operate a bakery in Leeds, England.

Most citizens of the British empire are rabid tea drinkers and just as rabid about having small cookies, scones or biscuits as accompaniments. A Britisher doesn't expect his sweets to be too sugary.

An easy dessert is drop biscuits made with candied fruit and a simple frosting. The drop biscuits require no kneading or cutting. The baking time is a mere 10-12 minutes, and the frosting can be made in 2 or 3 minutes.

Chopped candied fruit is available in most grocery stores packed in small boxes or cans. If unavailable, you may substitute chopped uncooked prunes, drained maraschino cherries or drained pineapple. Make sure the fruit is chopped into small pieces and not too wet.

Fruit Glazed Biscuits

Measure 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour. Sift flour together with 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt and 4 tablespoons sugar.

Cut in 1-4 cup vegetable shortening or butter. Use a pastry chopper or blender to cut the fat or use two knives, drawing them in opposite directions. Shortening should be chopped until mixture resembles coarse meal.

Chop into very small cubes 1-2 cup candied or glazed fruit—citron, lemon peel, orange peel, etc. Add fruit to dry ingredients.

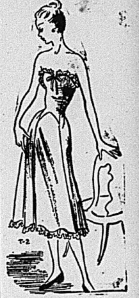
Beat 1 egg well. Combine egg with 3-4 cup of milk.

Add milk mixture to the dry ingredients. Stir with a fork only until dough holds together in one mass. Do not overmix.

Drop by tablespoons onto a greased cookie sheet. Flatten slightly with back of tablespoon. Bake in a hot oven 450 degrees for 10-12 minutes or until browned.

To make frosting add 1 tablespoon milk and 1-2 teaspoon vanilla to 1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar. Add only enough liquid to make frosting of spreading consistency. Frosting should not be spread over warm biscuits or it will melt. Add to biscuits when cooled.

Strapless Cotton Slip



Cool and comfortable

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

UNDERPINNINGS have kept pace with fashion trends, a condition that has not always obtained. To complete the bare-top dress plan there are handsome slips some of which even obviate the use of a bra. Such slips are available in nylon, rayon, silk and cotton with the latter a cool choice for warm weather. White cotton is used for a comfortable slip with an elasticized bodice to make it stay put. Ribbon is run through the eyelet embroidery at the top. The slip is gored with just enough flare.

DON'T FORGET THE FOUR BIG DAYS — AUG. 14, 15, 16, 17

TO CANADIAN RAILROADERS AND THE CANADIAN PUBLIC

It is important that you understand clearly why the managements of Canada's railways believe a railway strike is absolutely unnecessary.

Our reason for this conviction is that we have made the employees involved in the present dispute a fair offer of wage increases and improvements in working conditions which, if applied to all employees, will cost us $37,000,000 a year.

We have further acknowledged a moral obligation to implement the 40-hour week at the appropriate time, and we have explained why, in fairness to Canadian industry and all other employers of labour, we cannot put it into effect now.

To do otherwise would be to perform a disservice to industry in general and to all employers and employees alike.

The railways, after making two previous offers which the union leaders rejected, have now made a third and final offer which gives the employees the choice of either:

an increase in wages averaging 8½ cents per hour, or a reduction in the basic work week from 48 to 44 hours, with an increase in wage rates of 9.1% so as to maintain or in some cases improve present "take home" pay.

The labour leaders have made no concessions at all and have refused to budge from their original demands for a 5-day 40-hour week with maintenance of present "take home" pay, and in addition increases of 7 cents and 10 cents an hour.

The railways are thoroughly conscious of, and sympathetic to, the problems of their employees resulting from higher costs of living.

Drastic, unwarranted reductions in hours of work instead of decreasing these problems will inevitably increase them.

Not only is a railway strike unnecessary now, but furthermore, because of the tense international situation, it would endanger the entire Dominion. As the presidents of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways said in a joint statement to the representatives of the unions last Thursday:

> "The present situation ... imposes a nerve strain on all concerned at a time when we badly need to devote all our energies and thoughts to the grave threat of war and a national emergency ... It leaves the railway employee in a most uncertain and unhappy frame of mind because we are morally certain he does not wish to walk out on his job at a time like this, no matter what issues are involved ... this opinion seems diametrically opposed to the strike ballot which has been reported by the unions, but railway management retains too high an opinion of the loyalty, steadfastness and sense of responsibility of their employees to believe a strike would not mean a heart-breaking situation for them. That is not to say they will not carry out their undertaking to strike if union leaders decide to call upon them to do so but as already stated, it will cause great unhappiness and self-reproach."

The importance of the railways in Canada's economy cannot be exaggerated. Never was that importance more apparent than in World War II. And without the loyalty and intense effort of all railway employees, Canada's magnificent war effort would have been impossible. The same holds true today. As the presidents further stated:

> "... the general public is inconvenienced and business arrangements are made uncertain so long as the likelihood of a strike persists. Moreover, a railway strike would so cripple our economy that it would weaken for a long time our ability to take a strong line in international affairs and thus give great comfort to the enemy. Therefore, railway management feels strongly that the issues must be faced resolutely so that all interests, the worker, the public, and the Government, as well as the unions and railway management, will know precisely what is facing them. The time has come to remove this uncertainty which hangs as a blight over our day-to-day life."

WITH THESE CONSIDERATIONS IN MIND, THE RAILWAYS HAVE MADE THIS OFFER AS THE ULTIMATE THAT COULD POSSIBLY BE EXPECTED OF THEM, AND IT GIVES A SETTLEMENT WHICH WILL LEAVE RAILWAY WORKERS IN AN EXTREMELY FAVOURABLE POSITION COMPARED TO OTHER INDUSTRIAL WORKERS.

HERE IS OUR OFFER

(1) Recognition by railway management of a moral obligation to implement the 40-hour week at the appropriate time.

(2) Recognition by the unions in principle, subject to negotiation in detail, of minor amendments to existing contracts covering working rules to bring about more efficient operation.

(3) EITHER

(A) A 44-hour basic work week with a 9.1% increase in hourly rates so as to maintain "take home" pay. In regard to monthly rated clerical employees there will be an understanding that a 5-day actual work week may be granted by local arrangement in selected cases where the hours now actually worked are less than 44, on condition that the requirements of the service are protected up to 44 hours per week.

OR (B) A graduated increase in basic wage rates approximately equivalent in expense to that involved under Plan A. When applied to all employees, this would cost the railways $37,000,000 per year, and would average 8½ cents per hour.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

A GRAND SHOW

If at any time you happen to be a guest at any of the Royal Canadian Air Force messes at the Trenton Station, and you feel in an argumentative mood, here's a tip. Pick any subject you like from crocheting to coal mines, from fur-trapping to fish fingerlings, from sweethearts to swashbucklers, from rackets to renegades and you may stand a chance. But do not shove your verbal jalopy in high gear should the subject of yachting pop up.

* * *

For we discovered during the colorful sailing regatta held on the Bay off the station on Saturday afternoon, that many a nautical heart beats under those blue shirts of the air lads. In fact there was not a blue shirt in sight, nor was the gold of the "brass". White shirts and shorts, occasionally topped by long-peaked caps, was the order of dress for the nautical parade, appropriate indeed for the colorful background of white-winged sailing craft, wind-whipped water and breeze-tempered sunshine.

* * *

The versatility of the RCAF was very evident in the fine show that marked the resumption of station sailing regattas. It was the first event of its kind to take place since back in 1937, those good old days when the late Squadron Leader Van Vleet piloted the air force blue to an OHA Intermediate hockey championship, with the Cowleys, McNeeleys, Partridges, Legrees, and others of that Flyer team.

* * *

That the RCAF skippers and crews take their yachting seriously was definitely evident in the splendid manner in which they handled their craft. The course was no place for light-air boats. The stiff breeze whipped the water at times into foam-tipped waves. The course was laid out so as to call for the best in seamanship, and that was forthcoming. It seems these air force "sailors" can step from jet to jetty with the changing of their clothes.

* * *

The success of this revival of yacht racing in the district augurs well for the future. We were informed "by an authoritative source", "a high-ranking RCAF spokesman" or was it an air vice marshal, comfortable in sports casuals? that Saturday's show would, in all likelihood, be the forerunner of annual sailing regattas, at the station. The "source" added that the sport has increased by leaps and bounds in popularity lately. This statement was definitely substantiated by the number of RCAF entries in the different classes.

* * *

From the interest and enthusiasm shown by "civilian" craft and their crews from Belleville, Wellington, Trenton and the Presqu'Ile Yacht Club, future RCAF regattas are assured of success. With mounting outside interest, a near-perfect course and splendid facilities, the RCAF regatta could easily become one of the outstanding sports events of the summer season. And being a landlubber, Class One, an ardent admirer of flying and sailing when both feet are firmly planted on terra firma, we feel quite safe in making that prediction.

* * *

Nor is the interest in sailing and regattas confined to the men of the station. Lady members of the Aeroquatic Club, the station's sailing organization, are as enthusiastic over the sport as are their male counterparts. They were out in full force on Saturday cheering skipper-husbands and crews. Sun-tanned, garbed in smart, if abbreviated yachting apparel, they conversed in nautical language as easily as they discuss the daily menu or the bridge club. "Working jibs, spinnakers, a jibe, coming about, the mains'l, baloon jibs" and other parts of the yachtsman's vocabulary come to them naturally. And it would not surprise us in the least to see next year, or the year after, an air force craft zoom over the line with a lady at the helm.

* * *

And the traditional RCAF hospitality was in evidence. Air Vice Marshal R. Slehmon, Group Captain W. Dunlop and Group Captain R. C. Hawtrey saw to it that their guests were entertained. And the gracious ladies of the station proved charming hostesses. Mrs. Slehmon and Mrs. Hawtrey with other lady members of the Aeroquatic Club entertained visiting ladies at a buffet tea served after the races in the delightful atmosphere of the Station Social House.

THE HARD-LUCK TRIO

Keen disappointment was registered on the faces of the doughty crew of the sloop-rigged "Passan" as she eased herself at her mooring after being forced out of the Class I race. Skipper Bob Boyce and crew Al. Wickerson and Bill Smallman, the latter pair, a distinct "navy type" were crestfallen at the disaster that befell them when they were well on the way to what they believed might have been ultimate victory.

* * *

It was "Passan's" maiden race. And the lads had the saucy water-witch ready for her first appearance in competitive company. She cruised up and down the stretch of water in front of the start line with her crew gauging timing and readying for the start gun. And they were not disappointed. Twelve seconds after the gun fired from the "Black Goose" the official boat, "Passan" in a beautiful start zoomed over the line.

* * *

Heeled over at a sharp angle, she sped for the buoy marking the end of the first leg. She overtook two boats and quickly came about as she readied for the stiff reach to windward. She was drawing away from the white-winged opposition when suddenly her main boom parted with a loud crack. It snapped like a huge matchstick, and her mainsail flapped like a broken wing in the stiff breeze. She withdrew from the race and returned under auxiliary power.

* * *

Boyce, Wickerson and Smallman made no "bones" about their disappointment. "We felt that we could have won the race after such a grand start," Al. told us after the race. "Passan behaved beautifully up to the time of the accident. She was drawing away at the time, and we were sure she would cross the line ahead of the field, barring accidents. Well," Al. smiled, "one accident wasn't barred — but that is racing, I guess."

Jim Hearn of New York Giants Baseball's 'Bargain of Year', Phillies Have Five-Game Lead

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

James T. Hearn, an unheralded righthander, is the top candidate for the baseball bargain of the year.

A month ago, St. Louis Cardinals sold him to New York Giants for the waiver price of $10,000. Now, it is doubtful if they could buy him back for 10 times that amount.

Since joining the Giants, he has made six starts and New York has won five of them. Jim was credited with four of the decisions. He was beaten once.

He was never better as he pitched the Giants to a 2-0 shutout over the league-leading Philadelphia Phillies yesterday. He allowed four hits, walked one and struck out three.

The victory gave the Giants an even break in their four-game series with the pace-makers, and a record of 19 wins in their last 23 games.

Five Games in Front

Despite the loss the Phils remained five games in front of the second-place Boston Braves. Brooklyn Dodgers cuffed the Braves 8-2.

Cincinnati Reds dropped the Cards into fourth place as Lefty Ken Raffensberger whipped them 3-2. The Reds helped themselves to sixth place with assistance from Pittsburgh Pirates who swept both ends of a doubleheader from the Cubs 7-4 and 2-0.

While the front-running Detroit Tigers were idle because of wet grounds in St. Louis, their hold on first place in the American League become more secure as New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox lost while Cleveland Indians divided a doubeheader.

A four-hit batting performance by outfielder Paul Lehner and a four-hit pitching effort by southpaw Lou Brissie enabled Philadelphia Athletics to vanquish the Yankees 5-2.

Senators Edge Sox

Rookie Al Sima, with the help of reliefer Mickey Harris in the eighth, pitched Washington Senators to a 6-5 victory over the Red Sox.

Five-run innings were the decisive factors in the Indian-White Sox standoff. The Indians came from behind to win the opener 5-2 with a five-run eighth inning. The White Sox teed off on starter Dick Weik for five runs in the first inning to win the second game 7-5. Bob Feller won his 11th for the Tribe in the opener.

Lehner's homer with two on in the seventh was the winning blow for the A's against the Yankees. Vic Raschi, was the victim.

Erv Palica pitched the Dodgers to a two percentage point margin over the Cards for third place The young righthander allowed nine hits.

Bobby Adams hit four for four and drove in two runs and scored the other in Cincinnati's win over St. Louis. Raffensberger spaced nine hits to gain his 11th triumph.

Catcher Wes Westrum's infield hit with the bases loaded in the fifth inning snapped a scoreless duel between New York's Hearn and Philadelphia's Ken Johnson. Ed Stanky's triple and Don Mueller's single in the ninth made it 2-0.

Radisson Canoe Club of Three Rivers Winners

Mooney's Bay, Ont. Aug. 14—(CP) — The "Burgee" pennant, emblematic of dominion aggregate paddling championship, will rest in the clubhouse of the Radisson Canoe Club of Three Rivers, Que., this year for the first time since 1946.

They won it Saturday at the 50th annual Canadian Canoe Association Regatta held at this picturesque Rideau River course just a few miles from Ottawa.

Radisson won four firsts and two seconds in 17 events for 24 points in the day-long program leading to the total aggregate honors.

But they had to battle hard for their victory. Right behind them with 20 points was Toronto Island Canoe Club, defending champions of the pennant, who put together two firsts, three seconds and four thirds. Gananoque Canoe Club was third with 19 points—three firsts, one second and two thirds.

Norm Lane of Ottawa's Rideau Canoe Club won the featured senior singles event.

Sunday's four long-distance races, the 10,000 metre events, which do not count in the total aggregate standing, featured some good paddling as two records were broken.

Art Johnson and Tom Hodgson of Toronto Island managed to defend their title in the senior tandem and went on to knock off 33 seconds off their record time of 38 minutes and three seconds.

Ray Cordner and Gordie Ward broke another record in the double blade tandem when they flashed across the finish line in 36 minutes and 20 2-5 seconds. The previous record was 37 minutes flat set last year by Toronto Island Canoe Club who did not place.

G. Hubbs and A. Duval, both of Sudbury, were second in the 10,000 meters double-blade tandem Saturday, and D. Stringer of Sudbury won the juvenile singles.

Infielder Cannot Do Anything To Distract Batter

(By The Canadian Press)

Can an infielder gesticulate like a windmill in order to distract a batter.

National League president Ford Frick says "no." And Sunday he ordered his umpire to eject any player who makes any action "designed or intended to annoy or disturb opposing batsmen."

Such antics led indirectly to one of the stormiest free-for-all in Philadelphia's Shibe Park history.

Eddie Stanky New York Giants second baseman, attempted to rattle Philadelphia Phils' catcher Andy Seminick by waving his arms directly behind the pitcher while Seminick was at bat.

Umpire Lee Barlick asked Leo Durocher, New York manager, to tell Stanky to stop. Durocher insisted the arm-swinging was legal but he complied.

However, when Seminick smashed into Giant third baseman Hank Thompson, knocking him unconscious, Durocher was heard to say:

"Everything's off—do anything you want out there."

The umpires warned the Giants that Stanky would be ejected if he tried it. He did when Seminick came up in the fourth. Durocher protested when Stanky was tossed out.

Shortly after Stanky left the game, Seminick collided with Bill Rigney, who replaced him at second. That started a free-for-all. Seminick and Rigney were ejected. Frick fined both $25 each.

New York Giants of the United States National Football League defeated Ottawa Rough Riders of "The Big Four" 27-6 in a mid-summer exhibition football game at Ottawa Saturday.

Playing under Canadian rules the heavier New York team piled up a 13-6 lead at half time. Under American rules in the second half they got two converted touchdowns to pile up the score.

The Canadian touchdown, first of the game, was scored by Joe Asquini, who took a pass over the line from Bruce Cummings shortly after the game started.

Ontario's cricket squad won the Dominion cricket championship at Winnipeg Saturday, defeating British Columbia 121 runs to 94. Alberta downed Manitoba by three wickets for third place.

Mabel Gordon Thomson, 76, Canadian ladies' golf champion five times, died at her home in Rothesay, N.B., Sunday after a long illness.

Gerry Kesselring of Kitchener Rockway captured the fourth annual London and District Golf Tournament at the Highland Golf Club Saturday with a sparkling 141 for 36 holes.

Only the fact that he missed a pair of two-foot putts on the second round, prevented Kesselring from equalling the course record.

Williamsburg, owned by Parker Locks of Williamsburg, Ont., paced the fastest mile of his harness-racing career Saturday in capturing the major portion of the feature event at Toronto's Thorncliffe Raceway.

The strawberry roan paced the mile in 2:08 3-5, in a blanket finish at the wire with Victor Henley second and J. L. Van third.

At Osaka, Japan, a United States team beat the world's record in the 800-yard relay Sunday night in an exhibition meet, churning the distance in 7:50.

The listed record is 7:55.1 set by a Yale team in 1949.

Tom Poholsky Wins Record Game Of 22 Innings

(By The Associated Press)

Sunday, normally, is a day of rest, but you can't tell it to Tom Poholsky and Andy Tomasic after their record-shattering 22-inning performance.

Poholsky, Rochester's rookie right-hander, and Tomasic, Jersey City's seasoned veteran, hooked up in the duel—longest in International League history. It went five hours and 15 minutes and Poholsky, 10 years Tomasic's junior, emerged the winner 3-2.

The old record was set by Toronto and Baltimore April 21, 1942, when the teams battled to a 2-2, 21-inning deadlock.

A crowd of 5,863 watched the struggle. Don Richmond's single, scoring Dick Cole from Second base, gave Poholsky his 16th victory of the season. Tomasic gave up 13 hits, Poholsky nine.

Montreal Royals climbed to within four games of the league-leading Red Wings by sweeping a doubleheader from Syracuse 7-1 and 10-6.

Baltimore divided a twin bill with Buffalo and fell seven games behind Rochester. The Bisons the Orioles 6-4 in the opener but the third-place Baltimores rebounded in the nightcap 7-5.

Stan Hack's Springfield Cubs edged Toronto Maple Leafs 6-5 in 12 innings.

RCAF 'Skippers' Sweep Honors At Colorful Trenton Regatta 'Astra' Wins Fraser Trophy

Royal Canadian Air Force "skippers" swept first place honors in all three events of the RCAF Sailing Regatta held on the Bay of Quinte off the Trenton station on Saturday afternoon.

The regatta, the first held under the aegis of the RCAF since 1937, attracted nearly thirty boats of three classes and was greeted with near-perfect sailing weather. A stiff breeze that swept out of the northwest whipped the water into foam-tipped waves while a brilliant August sun shone down on the colorful picture.

Heeled well over before the spanking breeze, the trim sloop-rigged "Astra" slipped over the finish line to win the Class I race. Skippered by Group Captain R. C. Hawtrey, "Astra" led the field of ten craft over the six and one-half mile course. Her time was one hour 28 minutes.

Senator Fraser Presents Trophy

A handsome trophy donated by Senator W. A. Fraser, Trenton, was presented to Group Captain Hawtrey and his crew by the donor following a buffet tea served to crews and guests by the sponsoring Aeroquatic Club of the Trenton Air Station. Prizes were awarded to the boats finishing first and second in the various classes.

Plunging her bows in the feathery wake of "Astra" came the Wellington-owned boat "Tippy" sailed by Garratt Harris, its owner-builder, and Herbert Daubney. "Tippy", shoved her trim "nose" over the line a scant 86 seconds after the leading boat.

In third place came the sleek "Viking" owned and skippered by Senator Fraser. The craft, the largest in the regatta, sailed a splendid race on the last leg of the course overtaking a number of boats in her bid for victory and finishing just thirty-seconds astern of "Tippy."

"Bonefra" sailed by George Graham of Belleville finished fourth with J. Sills "Windrift", the "Viking" skippered by Freeman Burrows and "Passan" sailed by Bob Boyce, all of Belleville finishing in that order.

"Passan" Loses Boom

"Passan" was the "hard-luck" boat of the regatta. Skipper Bob Boyce and crewmen Al. Wickerson and Bill Smallman, sent the sleek craft foaming over the start-line just twelve seconds after the gun. Sailing beautifully with the stiff breeze to her liking, "Passan" rounded the first leg buoy well in front of the field.

She was streaking her way on the stiff beat to windward when there came a crash and her main boom snapped like a matchstick. She was forced to withdraw and came home under auxiliary power.

Air Force skippers swept the first-place prize list with Squadron Leader T. J. Powell winning the Class II race with "No 3". He negotiated the course distance in one minute, 29 seconds. A minute late R. Hank of Presqu'Ile Yacht Club sent his "Lucky Lady" over the line and scant seconds behind came "Shadow" with G. Huycke at the helm. "Dinghy II", "Poise", "Salty" and "Ubique" finished in the order named.

Woman Finishes Second

Squadron Leader McEwen's "Red Comet" flashed over the line a winner in the Class 3 for comet and dinghy class boats. His time was one hour, 34 minutes, 22 seconds. Miss G. Huycke, Presqu'Ile Y.C. sailing "Nuisance" finished second, two minutes later, and "White Comet" with Flying Officer Stinson at the helm was third.

Two craft of the Comet Class found the breeze a little too stiff for their liking and capsized. Crews and boats were brought to shore by RCAF crash boats. No one was injured.

The "Black Goose" RCAF patrol boat carried the official party to the start-finish line, and patrolled the course during the races. Members of the Aeroquatic Club were aboard besides race officials and members of the press and radio.

Kitchener Wins Eighth Contest In Nine Starts

(By The Canadian Press)

When the hottest team in the league meets a squad that's deep in a slump, the result is fairly predictable. Saturday was no exception as far as intercounty senior league fans were concerned.

The steaming-hot Kitchener Legionnaires won their eighth game in nine starts, and the sagging Waterloo Tigers dropped their fifth in a row. Final score was 5-2 for Kitchener.

Wally Beggs, slender Kitchener lefty, continued a fine round of mound performances for the hustling Legionnaires, posting a seven-hitter and fanning five while pitching Kitchener to their win. He walked none.

Afield, it was a sloppy affair. Waterloo made five boots, and Kitchener four. Beggs' only trouble came from Tiger second-sacker Jim Muldoon, who made three of his team's hits. Lefty Cy Bricker went the route for the losers.

Guelph Maple Leafs virtually dropped out of the league's playoff picture by losing an 9-0 decision to London Majors. It was that old nemesis, bases on balls that did the major damage.

Marty Philp and Harrison Fisher, pitching for the Leafs, gave up only seven hits, but two of them were homers. The Leaf pitchers walked nine men to set the stage for their own downfall, while crafty Ted Alexander was blanking the Leaf batters on but four hits.

Two Hit Over Fence

Russ Evon and Tim Burgess were the London home run hitters, both driving balls over the Guelph centre-field wall, 380 feet from home plate. It was the first time the fence had been cleared in actual play.

St. Thomas Legion rose into a tie for the league's sixth spot when they whipped the league-leading Brantford Red Sox 8-0. Doc Doherty twirled a neat five-hitter for Legion and struck out 11.

Doherty aided his own cause with two hits and one RBI, while teammates Billy McCarthy and Bill Mahlke were having a field day at the plate. McCarthy hit a two-run homer and Mahlke garnered three hits, one a triple.

London Majors scored their own weekend win over Galt Terriers. They downed Galt 7-3, largely on the basis of a five-run spree in the first inning. Frank Edwards pitched well for Majors and was in trouble only in the seventh when the Terriers scored all their runs.

Third baseman McFadden had three bingles for the Majors, batting in two runs, while Ab Cummings had two hits including a triple.

Charles Favored To Defeat Beshore Tuesday Night

Buffalo, N.Y., Aug. 14 (AP)— When Ezzard Charles defends his NBA heavyweight title against Freddie Beshore tomorrow night the shadow of Joe Louis will be over the ring.

The Negro champion from Cincinnati has everything to lose and little to gain by a victory over the blond Harrisburg, Pa. challenger. Upon the outcome depends a $500,000 September Lousi-Charles bout.

Charles enters the ring a 1-to-5 favorite over the comparatively unknown Beshore. But he can't take any chances.

The champion is fully aware the boxing world will be interested in the effect of his long-injury imposed lay-off.

"I'm not taking him (Beshore) cheap as long as he's been in training," said Charles.

"As a matter of fact, I never take it easy in any fight. It'll go 'till one of us gets in the way. I don't go in with the intent to knockout. If the guy gets in the way, well—. I always fight to win as quick as I can."

Tomorrow's fight was postponed from Feb. 28 when Charles showed up with a side injury and from March 29 when the State Athletic Commission found he had a bruised heart muscle.

The most that can be expected for tomorrow's fight in Memorial Auditorium is $75,000. The net is to be split between Charles and Beshore on a 33 1-2 and 17 1-2 percent basis.

Tony Matlock Defeats Morland To Win Tourney

Sudbury, Ont., Aug. 14 (CP)— Young Tony Matlock of Kitchener combined some hot irons with an even-hotter putter Sunday to win the third annual Idylwylde Invitation Golf Tournament.

Matlock defeated North Bay's Bill Morland two and one in the tournament's 18-hole, medal play final.

It was Matlock's second major golf title here this year. Two weeks ago he won the Seagram Cup over the Sudbury Golf and Country Club course.

The youthful shotmaker had no easy path to the crown. In the semi-finals he defeated veteran Nick Weslock of Windsor, provincial amateur titlist, and in Morland he faced the northern Ontario champion. His win over Weslock was by the same slim two and one margin.

On Saturday, Matlock breezed through Idylwylde's Lloyd Simpson in the morning round, but was forced to an extra hole to down Al Flood of Toronto in the quarter-finals. It took a 30-foot putt for a birdie to eliminate Flood.

Morland had downed veteran Frank Wyatt of Beattie Mines four and three in his semi-final match, after Wyatt had sprung a major upset with an extra-hole victory over Bobby Fair of Toronto in the first round and had squeezed through to a 22-hole win over W. J. McIntyre of Tillsonburg, Ont.

Weslock defeated Stew Watson of the host club and Jim Boeckh of Toronto on his way to the semis. Morland ousted Idylwylde's Gordon Browning and Ernie Nerlich of Toronto before eliminating Wyatt.

Weslock was the qualifying medallist, firing a brilliant 71 in qualifying play Friday. Fair was runner-up.

First flight honors went to Merv Stoughton of North Bay, who defeated T. Flanagan of Idywylde in the final. Consolation winner was M. Dennis, unattached, while W. Regan of Idylwylde was runner-up.

Australia in Challenge Round Against States

Rye, N.Y., Aug. 14 (AP)—Australia is in the Davis Cup challenge round again, but there might be a big overhaul in the team before it faces the United States in the main event Aug. 25-27 at Forest Hills, N.Y.

John Bromwich, it appears, no longer is physically fit to play two singles and hte doubles within three days. That was proved without much question as the Aussies defeated Sweden 3 to 2 in the inter-zone final which ended yesterday at the Westchester Country Club.

The narrow scrape convinced experts that Captain Harry Hopman would be wise to substitute the 20-year-old "baby" of his team, Ken McGregor, for Bromwich in the challenge round singles.

Bromwich, 32, was so tired that his first service was a set-up for Lennart Bergelin, the Swedish ace, in the closing stages of their match yesterday. Bergelin won 6-3, 6-2, 1-6, 7-9, 6-3.

It wasn't fatal, for Frank Sedgman, the Aussie's slugging young champion, squelched Torsten Johansson, the Swedes' No. 2, by 6-4, 7-5, 6-3 in the fifth and clinching argument.

Hopman has no guarantee that McGregor will do any better than Bromwich—if as well. Yet, by saving Bromwich for the doubles, he can be almost certain of winning that big point, and can hope that Sedgman will win both his singles.

Menawhile, Ted Schroeder, America's No. 1 amateur tennis player, looms as sure bet to become the top singles performer on the U.S. Davis Cup team.

The refrigerator salesman from La Crescenta, Calif., yesterday won his first grass courts tournament of the year—the Newport Casino invitation.

Alrick Ban, Jr., non-playing captain of the U.S. team, was elated when Schroeder defeated Art Larsen of San Francisco 6-3, 7-5, 6-4. But he got a scare when Budge Patty, another possible singles player and the Wimbledom champion, suffered a severely sprained right ankle. The injury might keep him off the courts for several days.

Harbert, Ransom In Playoff For Golf Prize

Chicago, Aug. 14 — (AP) — Chick Harbert and Hank Ransom match skill in a golf play - off today for about $83 per shot.

Tam O'Shanter's "world" championship is at stake — a title incidental to the $11,000 first prize, highest in golf history, and $5,000 for second.

The difference between the awards is $6,000, and a calculating machine will show that the boys will be shooting at $83.33 per shot on a par-72 route.

The 18-hole playoff is the ninth in 10 years of tournaments at the Tam course.

Harbert, 35-year-old Detroiter closed with a 34-34 — 68 to tie Ransom at 281 yesterday while some 20,000 customers flocked to the scene. The previous day he had driven into contention with a brilliant 67.

Ransom, a 39-year-old Dallas, Texan, has averaged under 71 strikes per round — in 21 tournaments this season and still hasn't won a title. He stayed on his stroke-beam at Tam with rounds of 70-69-71-71.

The 'world' women's pro crown rested on the head of Babe Zaharias with 293 — 11 under par. She also won the Tam All-American Open last week and set a course record of 70. In all she collected $3,400.

Dot Kielty of Long Beach, Cal. took the women's amateur title with 315, and Frank Stranahan added the "world" men's amateur title to his Tam All-American diadem with 289.

Sports Roundup

By JOE REICHLER
(For Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)

New York, Aug. 14 (AP) — Baseball chatter:

Roy Hamey, general manager of Pittsburgh Pirates, says if the Pittsburgh Pirates, says if the Dodgers lose the flag this season it will be nobody's fault but Brooklyn boss Branch Rickey's.

"Heck," Hamey said, "Rickey had the pennant won last December. All he was worried about was the World Series. How do you think that made the rest of us feel?

"We decided to show him there were some other clubs in the league. As a result, every club saves its best pitchers for the Dodgers."

Konstanty's Junk

When reporters ask Philadelphia's Jim Konstanty what he throws to the hitters, the bespectacled relief ace answers with a grin: "Junk."

Konstanty's "junk" includes a screw ball, palm ball, slow ball, slider and pretty good curve.

"I don't know what it is," says Jackie Robinson, "but whatever it is, I can't hit it."

Robinson has made one major league hit off Konstanty, a home run.

Down to First

Although Sam Jethroe, Bobby Thomson, Richie Ashburn, Gil Coan, Larry Doby and others are regarded as faster runners, Jackie Robinson is fastest going down to first base.

"As fast as Robinson is," says Pie Traynor, the Hall of Fame third baseman, "my vote is for the fastest righthanded batter getting to first goes to Rogers Hornsby. Arky Vaughan was the fastest going from first to third."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The novice at bridge has in store surprising adventures galore. What to skilled players, chum, is already humdrum the beginner has yet to explore.

Take the case of the opening lead of an ace against a no-trump contract. Think of the tyro's amazement when he learns its meaning for the first time. It is almost unbelievable to him.

Against no-trump there is no excuse for running with an ace in the opening lead. Plenty of time to get a trick with it. Hanging onto it holds up development of that suit by declarer.

Therefore, the opening lead of an ace against no-trump is used for a special purpose. It calls for a startling act by partner. It orders him to throw away his highest card of that suit at once.

♠A K J 10 9
♥6 4 2
♦J 5
♣10 8 4

To defeat the contract your side needs five tricks. If partner has the spade queen you can run five tricks at once. Providing your partner does not block the suit with his queen.

Lead your spade ace. It demands of partner that he fire thereon his highest spade. If he has not the queen you learn it in a hurry. If he has the queen what a grand and glorious feeling.

Meantime you have lost nothing and gained something by leading the ace. You have not lost control of the suit. Partner has learned that you want a spade led to you if he ever gets in.

With ace and king of a suit not solid the lead would be the king. Consequently, an ace lead in no-trump shows something else.

Reason tells you there is nothing fantastic about a convention of this type. Against no-trump an ace should not be led. So, if led it must signal for some abnormal collaboration.

Logic releases acts of caprices.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Aug. 14 — (AP) — Bantam Ben Hogan, the miracle man of golf, is here to watch the filming of his life story. He admits that some of the story is too fantastic for the screen.

"For instance, some of the things concerning the crash are too unbelievable—like the officer who reported at having known me when I was a kid," he said in an interview.

He referred to the Texas automobile wreck in which he escaped death. More amazingly, he tottered back to win the United States Open this year.

I tried to assure him that the Hogan comeback is enough of a legend so it could be believed on the screen. Ben said he was happy with the choice of Glenn Ford to portray him in the film.

Hogan added that his wife is delighted to have Anne Baxter playing her role.

Follow The Sun

The picture will be called "Follow the Sun." When producer Sidney Lanfield was trying to sell the idea to producer Sam Engel, he told how the professional golfers travel from one tournament to another. "I see," said Engel, "they follow the sun."

The golf champ looks hartier than he did a few months ago and says he has completely recovered from his accident. Still, he'd just as soon not have to play 36 holes in one day.

"Everybody has a time in his life when he hits an obstacle and suffers a setback," he said. "I'm glad to have mine over. It could have been a lot worse."

I asked the master if he had a few words of advice for old duffers like myself. He thought it over and then replied:

"The only thing I can suggest is to study your game. Watch yourself in a mirror or take some movies of your swing. Or get some good advice. The trouble with most golfers is they keep making the same mistakes.

No Natural Player

"There's no such thing as a natural player. People say Sammy Snead is a natural, but that's not true; Sammy has worked hard on his swing, like any pro has.

"The natural instinct is to hit the ball with the clubhead as soon as possible. That's the one thing you shouldn't do. You should hold off hitting it until the last possible moment."

RAWDON

Mount Pleasant Garden Party Well Attended

Rawdon—The church lawn at Mount Pleasant, Rawdon, was encircled with snow fence, and decorated with evergreens for the garden party on Thursday evening last.

Major Honeychurch, and ten members of Belleville Salvation Army Band provided several musical numbers which included requests.

The church shed was arranged with various booths decorated with colored balloons, flags and baskets of summer blooms.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thrasher were in charge of the confectionery booth while Mrs. Bill McAdam sold popsicles to the seated patrons.

Misses Ruth Linn, Betty McConnell, Shirley McKeown and Ruth Sharp did a thriving business at the fish pond.

Homemade Candy

Mrs. John Holmes and Mrs. Ross Hoard sold pounds of every variety of home-made candy and they also were in charge of 25 cent mystery boxes which were eagerly bought by those in attendance. These boxes when opened revealed a large array of articles ranging from children's toys, ornaments for the home, small towels and wash cloths, etc.

A large group of ladies arranged the plate lunch with sandwiches, cake, pie and coffee and the guests sat about the grounds conversing with friends and enjoyed their repast.

Gate Receipts Gratifying

The gate receipts were gratifying with over 100 local people in attendance besides visitors from Toronto, Port Perry, Kingston, Belleville, Holloway, Hoards', Stirling, Wellman's, Bethel, Carmel and other points.

The evening was a success despite the road conditions, as the McFarland Construction Company are at work on the church hill and the Anson Road.

The weatherman handed out real chilly breezes which left the mosquitoes at bay. Mrs. Roy Thrasher and Mrs. Raymond McConnell sponsored the social and the proceeds will be used to complete the payment of the church carpet and other church requirements.

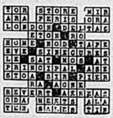
Answer to Saturday's Puzzle:



Little Benny's Note Book

Pop took me and ma for a Sunday drive in the country, and after a while I said, Heck, I'm starting to feel hungry for luntch.

I believe I am, too, pop said. It seems the human sistem can only stand a certain amount of fresh air without a certain amount of fresh food, he said, and ma said. Well, all rite, suppose we stop at the ferst nice looking little place along the road. There's a nice little place just ahead, drive in there, William she said.

Meening a place with a sine saying The Snicky Snacky Food Bar, and pop kept on driving rite passed, saying, Nuthing doing, not with any sutch name as that.

Now William, you dont eat the name, ma said, and pop said, Maybe not, but a cute name means cute food. Even a beef-steak sanwitch would taist cute in a place called Snicky Snacky. he said.

And we came to a place called The Hasty Tasty, and another one called The Teeny Weeny Wienies Place, and pop wouldn't stop at either one on account of the names, saying to ma, I'll tell you what we'll do, my dear. We'll just keep laffing hartily at these quaint sines, till finally we get back home with a roaring appetite for dinner, he said.

Well, that suits my diet, ma said, and I said, Well jimminy roozlem, it dont suit mine.

To tell the truth it doesn't suit mine either, pop said. Oh well, I guess I'll have to show the white feather and the yellow streek and stop at the next place, no matter what its name is. By gollies, patience is rewarded, look what's here, he said.

Meening a place with a sine saying, Eat Here, the World's Biggest Hot Dogs.

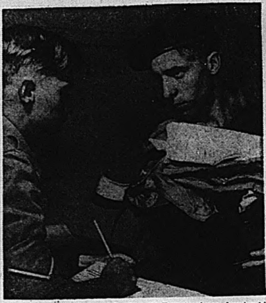
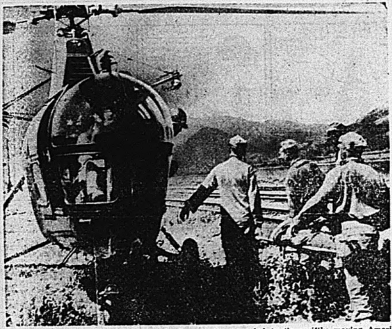
FIRST RECRUITS FOR U.N. BRIGADE GET TASTE OF ARMY LIFE

First draft of Canada's special force for the U.N. is going through induction routine at Camp Petawawa, Ont. Group shown entering trucks at Petawawa station platform is on its way to learning the routine that means "you're in the army now." — Central Press Canadian.



Typical recruit is Grant Harding, 19, Toronto, shown drawing his kit at army store. Volunteers will have to learn how to take care of their gear, wear uniforms properly, carry themselves well on and off the parade square before the serious business of rigorous training begins. — Central Press Canadian.

FLYING AMBULANCE TRANSPORTS U.S. CASUALTIES



U.S. marine helicopter proves an angel of mercy for wounded in the swiftly moving American attack on the Chinju front. The gravest stretcher cases are evacuated by air to base hospitals, thereby saving precious time and avoiding the victim's suffering as imposed by older and slower method of ambulances and trucks. — Central Press Canadian.

CHOWTIME MEANS SAME IN KOREA OR ENGLISH

Occidental or Oriental, an army must have chow time. The South Koreans, left, have simplified their military cooking to the point where two kettles cooking rice are the only utensils necessary for a regiment. The U.S. company cook, right, doesn't have to have hotel facilities either with the tank close by to remind him of the closeness of battle. He is kneading dough to make bread in the field oven to his right. — Central Press Canadian.

HINT DRAFT FOR 45-YEAR-OLDS

Chairman W. Stuart Symington, right, of the U.S. National Security Resources Board, said that the U.S. faces "greater danger" than ever before in history because of the Korean war and the potential menace of international communism. He said that military demands will be made on farm and factory workers and predicted that if an all-out draft becomes necessary the age limit, now 26, "would go up to 45 or 46." Symington voiced the warning as he testified in support of President Truman's request for sweeping economic controls. He is shown with committee chairman, Burnet R. Maybank and Sen. Charles W. Tobey, (right.) — Central Press Canadian.

The Gentle Heart

By Kay Hamilton

But Diane would not answer. She had left the room, stumbling up the stairs to her bedroom. Jenny passed a trembling hand across her eyes. Had she made an enemy of her sister? Why hadn't she been more diplomatic? Why had she had to say these things today, of all days, when she was a guest in her sister's home?

But when would I say them, she wondered forlornly? It's harder stil to do it when she's our guest. And I see her so seldom nowadays. She's changing so fast, somebody has to say something to her! I suppose she'll hate me now.

Fred called to her, "Come in and tell me what you think of this garden apartment project, Jenny!" and she went into the living room with outward composure. But she could not help but notice how much more alive Fred seemed now that Diane was not with them, how gratefully he explained under their interested questions. When Di came down again, the talk flagged, and he went back into his shell.

In the middle of the afternoon, Jack Tyson came over. "This is a personal call for help," he told them. "I've got a weekend party dying on my hands. Everybody on the place is wondering, some of them audibly, why on earth they ever came to this forsaken spot, and why they let a dull dog like myself persuade them to it. Come back with me, Princess, and put a little life into them. All of you, of course," he added, as an apparent afterthought.

Jenny did not want to go. Neither did Fred, she could see. But Natalie, with the new restlessness which was upon her these days, thought it might be fun. And Diane was eager. That really settled it, of course. Jenny told herself that she had always wanted to see what the McIntyre place was like, and made no objections.

Jack Tyson's house was beautiful inside. The conventional exterior was belied by the huge picture windows, the copper mirror mantelpiece, the silk-hung walls. There were deep boxy chairs bent bent wood chairs, chairs that looked like the floating unnamed forms in surrealist paintings. But they were all surprisingly comfortable Jenny noticed. The lighting was indirect and concealed, and there was a wall fountain in the living room which gushed and tinkled.

The guests were sprawled in various attitudes of boredom. There were some drinks on the low table of glass and mosaic. "What will you have" was the first question Jack Tyson asked them when they had left their wraps in the black and white bedroom, and had joined the others.

Afterward, Jenny had to admit that the effect of Diane upon the assembled group had been electric The minute she came into the room, her tall, perfect body in its clinging grey wool posing gracefully for a moment in the doorway, her golden hair gleaming in the light, every man in the place came to his feet. Even the women were startled into envious interest.

And Diane, as always when she was the centre of admiration, seemed to have an inner glow, a radiance which could not help but dazzle masculine eyes. Jenny saw Fred watching his wife with eyes which held a sort of wary pride. She knew a moment's discouragement. What effect could anything she might say have on her sister, when she was able to work this transformation upon a roomful of bored, listless people? It was ridiculous to think that anyone as lovely and alluring as Diane would stop to think of what the future might hold. How could it help but seem inestimably bright with promise?

They stayed much longer than they had planned. They were still there three hours later when Pete Torres walked in. Jenny saw his eyes light when he spied Diane, saw him carry a glass over to the corner where she was holding court, and followed.

"Hello, Pete," Jenny greeted him. "Where's Elsa?"

His lean face flushed a little. "Home, I guess," he said, and added in an aside, "I—I skipped out Jenny. It's difficult enough around the house these days, but Sundays are horrible. You know, with the boy home all day, and everything."

Jenny's heart sank. The weak spot in Pete Torres was growing bigger unde the strain of his new relationship with Dick and Elsa. She said, not realizing that she might sound censorious, "But did not Elsa want to come, too?"

Pete's flush deepend. "Maybe she did. I didn't stop to ask her. I tell you, Jenny, I got so fed up, I just couldn't stand it another minute. Every day I say to myself, 'What's happened to my wife lately anyhow?' Everything's changed. And not for the better, believe me!"

Those words of Pete's were to echo in Jenny's ear many times. "What's happend to my life, lately, anyhow?" And the voice he had used—bewildered, angry, helpless—was indicative of her own state of mind all too often. Sometimes she thought, looking about her, that it was true of everyone she knew. For a long time their lives had travelled serenley forward. There had been sorrow, yes. But it had been ligitimate sorrow, expected, in a way. The developments which plagued her now had all arrived in a group. And so quickly, so suddenly.

Even Mrs. Folsom, who had come back from the trip to her sister, tired and depressed from her long spell of nursing, had barely had time to open her house and pick up the threads of her life in Green Ridge, when word came that her sister had died.

She walked over to the Mayhew's on the morning she received the telegram, her old eyes red-rimmed, a tremble in her decided voice. "I'm just a selfish old woman," she accused herself when Jenny tried to comfort her. "I could have stayed a little longer, but I missed my own house, my own way of doing things. I wanted to be back in my quiet little round with nothing to do but putter about and take care of Ghillie. I—I begrudged her the work and the effort of caring for her. And now she's gone!"

"You did all you could," Jenny said soothingly. "You're not very strong, you know, and you would have made yourself sick if you had stayed on. Besides, you said you got a very good woman to take charge of her."

"It wasn't the same." Mrs. Folsom shook her head. "It was a stranger. She was alone when she died, to all intents and purposes. Well, this means another trip for me. I don't know how long I'll have to stay. "I'm executrix, you know, and there will be a lot of things to wind up. But I'll come back whenever I can."

Jenny did not wait for the request. "I'll be glad to take Ghillie again," she said. "I'm very fond of him."

"He's a darling, isn't he?" Mrs. Folsom brightened. "Not a showy sort of dog, but full of unexpected little tricks that endear him to me. And, of course, good solid scottie all through" She rose to her feet. "I can't get used to being old," she added suddenly. "It's hard, my dear. Nothing but sorrow and loss, and learning to resign yourself to everything from stiff knees to a poor memory."

"I wish you could have had Thanksgiving dinner with us," Jenny said. "We'll miss you." It was a tradition that Mrs. Folsom spent Thanksgiving with the Mayhews.

"Not as much as I'll miss you, Jenny," the old lady said, patting her cheeck with a thin, blue-veined hand. "Take care of your little family, my dear. I couldn't bear it if anything were to happen to you people."

Jenny helped her to pack, and went with her to the station this time When she had watched the tain disappear into the distance, she went about her shopping. Thanksgiving was two days away, and although she had the turkey ordered, she thought it time to get her other supplies. Se walked slowly down the main street of Green Ridge, staring into the shop windows, and trying to compile her list, but the memory of Mrs. Folsom's sad face was with her.

At Jessup's store she almost bumped into the hurrying figure which came down the alleyway. "Jen!" Brent's hands reached out and grasped her arms. "Did I hurt you?"

"No. I was dreaming, I suppose. I didn't see you at all."

"And I was in brown study," he confessed. "I'm stumped on one of my compositions. That's why I haven't been over to the studio today."

"Why don't you take a day or two off?" Jenny asked. "You've been going at this assignment like a wild man. You're sure to be played out."

"That's a good idea," he told her with a twinkle. "I was going to do-it anyhow, but it helps to have a disinterested party tell you so."

"But I'm not a disinterested party!" she said vehemently. "I'm at least as interested as you are."

"I know it," he said in a low voice, "and it makes me very happy, Jen." Suddenly he caught her elbow, looked down into her upturned face. "Let's go for a drive in the country, and blow away the cobwebs together!"

Jenny hesitated briefly. "I'd love to. But we'll have to take Ghillie along." She explained about Mrs. Folsom's bereavement, and he nodded sympathetically. "And perhaps," she added, excitement taking hold of her, "I'll see something along the road for Thanksgiving."

Brent's car was disgracefully old, but it ran very well. Brent had a strong mechanical streak and his favorite pastime was tinkering with the engine. They picked up Ghillie, left a note for Natalie who was visiting a friend, and turned inland.

A valiant sun made efforts to come through the low-hanging clouds and here and there a patch of cerulean blue rewarded the eye's search for color. The leafless trees ranged up the hills in gaunt fro mthe mall puddles left beside formation, and light glanced back the road after last night's rain.

"I like the hills when they are bare like this," Jenny said with satisfaction. "You get a feeling of their construction, their solidity."

Brent turned his head briefly, smiled at her. "You like all fundamental things," Jen. You're not easy to fool with surface trimmings."

swirling it will continue to swirl for a very long time. For this same reason, it will creep up the sides of the beaker and down the outside, so that it appears to dribble out of the bottom. Many materials change their color at temperatures close to absolute zero. Just why these things happen scientists don't know, but they hope to find out eventually."

Significance of extreme low-temperature research is indicated by the 1949 award of the Nobel Prize in chemistry for work at temperatures close to absolute zero.

Helium was first liquified at Leiden, Holland in 1908, but because it was so difficult and required such an extensive amount of equipment, little work was done in this field. After the Second World War the Cambridge concern undertook development work on simplified helium liquefaction systems under the direction of Dr. S. C. Collings of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Dr. H. O. McMahon of Arthur D. Little, Inc.

The new gadget is available and simple, and the N.R.C. feels it will lead to a better understanding of the fundamental laws of matter.

Thinking about it may make the non-scientist, seeking to elude the summer heat, feel a bit happier.

Come to think of it, it might be a good gadget to consider next winter, too, when it's 40 below. You could be thankful you aren't liquefying helium at minus 456.

If you are within a step or two of a building corner, a doorway, a tree—or even a trench-like hole in the ground—leap there and take shelter, with your back to the light.

If you are inside a house or other building drop to the floor, with your back to the window.

Crawl behind or beneath a table, counter, or other shelter. The closer you are to the interior partitions of the building, the better off you are.

Without mentioning the hydrogen bomb, the book pointed out that the damaging effects are increased as the energy of any atomic bomb goes up—although not in direct proportion. But it said that "fears are groundless" that atomic explosions could ever contaminate the whole world with radioactivity.

It told of medical measures designed to treat atomic casualties. Medical experts declared that people who survive the initial blast and its immediate effects have a good chance of recovery even though injured.

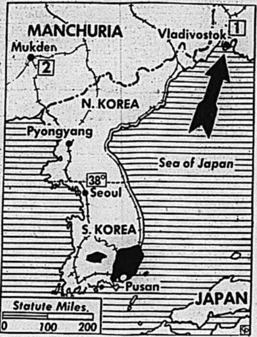
SHIPS, TROOPS MASS ABOVE KOREA



In the harbor of Vladivostok, Soviet Pacific port, Russia is secretly masing floating drydocks, ships and supplies, according to the American Merchant Marine Institute. Indicated on map by arrow (1), the scene of this sudden and ominous activity is but 500 miles north of Korea. At the same time, the joint chiefs of staff in Washington were reported keeping an anxious eye on Mukden, (2), 100 miles from Korea, where 250,000 Chinese reds have concentrated.—Central Press Canadian.

G.I.'S KEEP VIGIL IN KOREA

Pfc. Johnnie R. Long of Byers, Tex., watches for the enemy while buddies get some sleep somewhere in South Korea. The enemy is losing ground on the southern front as American troops advance toward Chinju. Large numbers of fleeing communist troops were trapped near Chinju when two American columns joined forces and cut off a North Korean escape corridor. Recent loss to Allied troops, however, is Yongsan, 35 miles northwest of Pusan. — Central Press Canadian.

New York, Aug. 10 (AP) — Harry Johnson, 48, awakened to go to work today. He opened his bedroom door.

Hanging from a kitchen pipe was the body of his wife, Viola, 43.

Then he smelled gas. He turned off three gas jets in the kitchen stove and dashed into a bedroom. There, dead in bed, were his wife's two sons by a

Commoner Wife Of Belgian King Leaves Geneva

Geneva, Switzerland, Aug. 14—(AP) — The Princess De Rethy, beautiful commoner wife of Belgium's King Leopold III, took off from Geneva today for Brussels, airport officials said.

With her was the Princess Josephine Charlotte, Leopold's daughter by his former marriage.

The two princesses boarded a Belgian military plane for the flight, which had been kept a closely-guarded secret.

They had remained behind when Leopold left his exile in Switzerland to return to Belgium July 22. There had been persisting reports that Leopold's brunette second wife soon would leave Geneva to join him, but members of the royal household here had refused to comment.

The Princess, whom Leopold married in 1941, a year after he had surrendered Belgium's army to the Germans, has been the target of some of the most vitrolic anti-Leopold speeches in Belgium.

So pronounced did the feeling become that Leopold announced on the eve of his return to the throne that his wife would never be queen. Last week Leopold turned the rule over to his eldest son, Prince Baudouin.

The Princess, born Mary Baels, acquired her present title shortly after her marriage to Leopold.

She featured in the news last month when it was announced that she could not travel to Ostende, Belgium, for her mother's funeral because she was expecting a second child.

11.75 Inch Rocket Used for First Time in Combat

Tokyo, Aug. 14—(AP)— The "Tiny Tim", a big new American 11.75-inch rocket, was used yesterday for the first time in real combat. Results were reported good.

Fired from a carrier-based United States navy corsair fighter plane, one of the armor-piercing rockets knocked out a bridge at Chungju, 30 miles northwest of Taegu, in its first war test, an announcement from Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters said.

Other corsairs using the "Tiny Tim" destroyed 13 enemy locomotives, damaged 23 more, blasted eight cars of ammunition, set two fuel-oil trains afire and strafed seven cars loaded with communist soldiers.

The "Tiny Tim" is the second new rocket-launcher introduced in the Korean war. The first was the 3.5-inch, fired by a two-man team—a loader and a holder-aimer. It is fired only from the ground.

Both new ones are outgrowths of the original 2.35 bazooka developed during the Second World War.

The 2.36 and 3.5 are fired without recoil from a shouldered tube that looks like a kid's bazooka humming instrument.

Despite its name, said a navy spokesman, the rocket is "neither tiny nor timid." It has high explosive quality. Apparently it is the most powerful rocket-type weapon carried by plane in combat.

A timely change from bad to good weather played an important role in Sunday's air work.

United States and Australian fighter planes poured rockets and machine-gun fire on North Korean troop concentrations in the buildup area around Waegwan, 12 air miles northwest of Taegu.

Other enemy targets were hard hit by the allied planes.

Discusses Use Of Radio-Active Minerals in War

Washington, Aug. 14—(AP)—Use of radio-active materials to make enemy territory uninhabitable offers intriguing military possibilities, but the United States government says the only practical way of waging nuclear war at present is with atomic bombs.

The first comprehensive official discussion of the untried art of "radiological warfare"—the technique of killing or sickening persons by poisonous nuclear fission products—was contained in a government book published during the weekend.

Los Angeles, Aug. 14—(AP)—Super soap salesman Charles Luckman has turned to his first love—architecture. The 40-year-old former head of Lever Brothers Company is joining an old university classmate, William Pereira, in the firm of Pereira and Luckman, architects and engineers. Luckman quit last January after a row with Lever Brothers' British owners.

Replica of Gates To be Shown At Exhibition

Toronto, Aug. 14—Those "Pearly Gates", as Royal Canadian Air Force personnel fondly call the Memorial Gates at R.C.A.F. Station, Trenton, will be on the mezzanine floor of the Automotive Building at the Canadian National Exhibition in three-quarter size replica. Presented to the R.C.A.F. by the governments of the United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand, the gates are a tribute to that proud accomplishment, the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

The replica of the gates was made up by the Air Force in case of rain on Dedication Day, Sept-30, 1949. Clear skies prevailed, and it was unnecesary to use the replica when dignitaries of the three Empire governments presented the gates to Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent.

New Order of Succession

London, Aug. 15 — (AP) — The new order of succession to the British throne:—

1. Princess Elizabeth, 24, the heiress-presumptive.
2. Prince Charles, her first-born, now 21 months old.
3. The new princess.
4. Princess Margaret, 19.
5. The Duke of Gloucester, 48, brother of the King.
6. Prince William Henry Andrew Frederick, Gloucester's first-born.
7. Prince Richard Alexander Walter George, Gloucester's second son.
8. The Duke of Kent, 14, nephew of the King. The Duke's father, brother of the King, was killed in a plane crash in Scotland in 1942 while on war service.
9. Prince Michael George Charles Franklin, eight, brother of the Duke of Kent.
10. Princess Alexandra Helen Elizabeth Olgo Christabel, 13, the Duke of Kent's sister.

The line runs on through various relatives of the King.

By E. S. JOHNSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Aug. 15. (CP)—A baby girl was born today to Princess Elizabeth, heiress-presumptive to the throne, touching off jubilant celebrations throughout the Commonwealth.

"Both doing well" was the official report on mother and daughter, who becomes third in line of succession to the throne. She is the second child of Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip. Their first, Prince Charles, is 21 months old.

The baby Princess weighed six pounds, an official announcement disclosed.

A name for the infant was not immediately announced. As both her parents are descended from Queen Victoria, that name may be chosen. Another possibility is Mary, after the baby's great grandmother, the Queen Mother, and her great aunt, the Princess Royal.

Cheers Greet Bulletin

Threatening weather failed to keep a crowd from its vigil outside the wrought-iron gates of Clarence House, London home of Princess Elizabeth. Cheers went up as the official bulletin was posted.

Minutes later the roar of cannons spread the news abroad. In the ancient Tower of London the honorable artillery company, following an old tradition, fired a 62-gun salute. In Hyde Park the regular army signalled the birth with 41 guns.

Naval units through the Commonwealth also marked the event. At Halifax the aircraft carrier Magnificent boomed out a 21-gun salute.

Inside Clarence House toasts were drunk in champagne. Prince Philip, home on leave from his duties as a lieutenant-commander in the Royal Navy, is due to return to sea in about two weeks as commander of the frigate Magpie, his first command.

King Advised by Telephone

The Queen was in Clarence House when the baby was born. The King, who is in Scotland, was advised by telephone.

Princess Margaret, who dubbed herself "Charlie's Aunt" after her sister's first baby, heard the news at Drumlanrig Castle in Dumfriesshire, Scotland, where she is visiting friends. She passed along the message that she was "very, very thrilled".

Man and Woman Killed Near Galt, Car Hits Train

Galt, Aug. 15. (CP)— A man and a woman were killed and another couple seriously injured when a speeding automobile plowed into a backing freight train near here early today.

James Nellis, 39, of Woodstock died instantly when the car he was driving pulled out to pass another car, stopped at a Grand River railway crossing, and struck a loaded coal car after skidding 94 feet.

An unidentified woman died in hospital a few hours later from multiple fractures of the legs and internal injuries.

In hospital are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Strang, both of Woodstock. Mr. Strang, 26, has face lacerations and is suffering shock. His wife, Marjorie, 30, has a compound fracture of the right leg, lacerated face and a possible fracture of the skull.

The party was returning to Woodstock from Hespeler at the time of the accident.

Early reports said the dead woman was the wife of Mr. Nellis but provincial police later said they had learned that Mrs. Nellis was in Montreal.

She couldn't speak a word of English when she went to Forest Hill Collegiate three years ago.

CABINET PLANS DISCUSSION ON THREAT OF STRIKE

Gregg Hopes Settlement May be Arrived at

Ottawa, Aug. 15 (CP) —Labor Minister Gregg said today the railway strike likely will be discussed at a cabinet meeting this afternoon.

With the Aug. 22 deadline for a walkout now less than a week away, the minister said the wage deadlock will be dealt with at either today's or tomorrow's scheduled cabinet sittings, or perhaps at both.

Today's meeting is scheduled to convene at 2 p.m. EDT.

Mr. Gregg said in an interview that he could not make any statement on the possibility of government intervention aimed at bringing about a settlement.

He was hopeful that the railways and their unions would be able to work out a settlement between themselves.

Tonight, company and union officers will present their cases to the public in national radio broadcasts.

Donald Gordon, Canadian National Railways chairman and president, and A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, will be heard in addresses.

On Thursday, a Canadian Pacific spokesman will speak, followed by Frank H. Hall, chairman of the negotiating committee of 15 international unions.

Mr. Gordon and Mr. Mosher will speak tonight between 7.30 p.m. and 8 p.m. EDT, on the CBC's trans-Canada network, to be heard in Western Canada between 11 and 11.30 p.m. EDT. The Dominion Network will carry the speeches in the east 8-8.30 p.m. EDT and in the west 11.30-12 midnight EDT.

Times of the Thursday broadcasts, all EDT: Trans-Canada network, Eastern Canada, 8-8.30 p.m.; Western Canada 11-11.30 p.m.; Dominion Network, Eastern Canada 8.30-9 p.m.; Western Canada, 11.30-12 p.m.

Confirmation Still Lacking About Quints

Jubbulpore, India, Aug. 15 — (Reuters) — Confirmation still was lacking Monday night of reports reaching here Monday that Quintruplets have been born at Sanchara, a village in the Rewa District of Central India.

According to the reports the mother and five children were "doing well."

Meanwhile, the Indian government was urged to aid the children. A local newspaper said the government should "fix a general allowance" for the upbringing of the children "as was done in the case of the Dionne Quintruplets" of Callander, Ont.

The Dionne girls, now 16, were wards of the King until 1944 when the Ontario Provincial government returned to the parents, Mr. and Mrs. Olive Dionne, control of the children.

Car Blockade Set up as Ruse To Prevent Garbage Dumping

Hamilton, Aug. 15 — (CP) — Police today removed a car-blockade set up last night at the city dump by striking civic employees.

The roadblock was established by a ruse in order to prevent private citizens dumping garbage.

Nineteen cars manned by strikers drove up to the picket line and edged through, accompanied by the jeers and catcalls of the strikers. Police on duty thought the cars were being driven by private citizens attempting to dump their garbage and made no attempt to halt them.

When the cars were through they stopped, blocking the road for further traffic. A police tow-truck removed them this morning.

As the strike of some 1,000 city employees for better wages and hours entered its seventh day, picketing continued at the dump without violence. The workers, who include grave-diggers, garbage-collectors and other "outside workers," are demanding an increase of 10-cents-an-hour. City officials and union representatives are scheduled to meet with members of the Ontario Labor Board in Toronto today.

Canada, States and Britain Work Together to Streamline And Standardize Their Navies

Ottawa, Aug. 15 (CP)—Canada is working with the United States and Britain in an effort to make their three navies as much alike as possible in the way they fight and function.

It was announced simultaneously in Ottawa, Washington and London today that standardization of naval operations by the three powers has been under discussion by a tripartite committee as part of the drive for Allied military standardization.

Canada's naval chief, Vice-Admiral H. T. W. Grant has approved for this country's navy a report by that committee which has laid the groundwork for staff discussions to proceed over a wide area of functions.

The staff discussions will take place in the broad fields of submarine and anti-submarine operations, air defence at sea, minelaying, sea command tactical needs, communications, amphibious operations, defence of ports and bases, and others.

Canada's representative on the tripartite committee that took the first steps was Rear Admiral F. L. Houghton, vice-chief of the naval staff. The second phase is that of the broad discussions in the various fields and it will be followed by a third phase in which there will be detailed studies of individual items.

The detailed studies "will be carried out by working-level members of the naval staffs and will aim to the gradual development of common designs and standards in arms, equipment and training methods," the navy said.

The three navies can draw on much practical experience at working together, particularly in the North Atlantic in the second world war. The most recent case is off Korea where units of the three fleets are once again working together.

The navy said in its statement that the work of the top-level committee on which Admiral Houghton worked is "part of the over-all tripartite arrangements for collaboration in the broader military standardization program among all the armed forces of the three countries.

"The detailed studies which will follow the staff discussions are a step toward the fulfilment of the wider arrangements in general military standardizations under the North Atlantic Treaty Military Production and Supply Board which call for promotion of standardization in military equipment in the North Atlantic area. These arrangements are similar to ones already made by the Brussels Treaty powers.

"The arrangements made will reduce the operational and technical obstacles to co-operation among the navies and will achieve the greatest possible economy in the use of combined resources and efforts.

"The co-operation arrangements to be made for this purpose do not impair the control of any country concerned in any activity in its territory. No treaty executive agreement or contractual obligation has been entered into by the participating nations."

Royal Salutes Fired in Honor Birth of Princess

Ottawa, Aug. 15 — (CP) — Royal salutes of 21 guns will be fired today by Canada's navy and army in honor of Princess Elizabeth's new daughter.

Naval headquarters said the 18,000-ton carrier Magnificent at Halifax fired the honors on the east coast and the 8,000-ton cruiser Ontario, now visiting at Seattle, Wash., will provide the salute on the west.

Army artillery batteries at all provincial capitals as well as at Vancouver and Ottawa roared at noon.

The air force will hold special color-hoisting parades at Canadian stations. Station chaplains will say a special prayer for the welfare of the infant princess.

July Fatalities In Traffic Highest In Thirteen Years

Toronto, Aug. 15—Ontario last month had its worst traffic fatality record of any July since 1937. Ninety-five persons were killed.

Highway deaths to the end of July totalled 371, 25 less than in the first seven months of 1949. Last year, August and September were the worst months, with 94 and 104 deaths respectively.

Veterans Named To Command Units Of Special Brigade

Ottawa, Aug. 15 (CP) — The army late Monday named three distinguished veterans of the last war—one only 31—to command the infantry battalions of the special brigade group being formed to fight aggression in Korea or elsewhere.

They are:

Lt.-Col. R. A. (Bob) Keane, D.S.O., 36, of Fort William and Ottawa, who will command the 2nd Battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment. He commanded the Lake Superior Regiment in the recent war and remained in the permanent army.

Lt.-Col. J.R. (Jim) Stone, D.S.O., M.C., 42, of Salmon Arm, B.C. who will command the 2nd Battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry. A colorful veteran of the 1st division, he rose from private to the command of the Loyal Edmonton Regiment in fighting in Italy and northwest Europe.

Lt.-Col. Jacques Dextraze, D.S.O., a 31-year-old lumber-business man near Montreal, who rose to command the Fusiliers Mont Royal of the 2nd Division while still in his twenties and who will now command the 2nd Battalion of the Royal 22nd Regiment.

The commander of the brigade is Brig. John M. (Rocky) Rockingham, D.S.O., of Victoria and Vancouver.

TWO BODIES FOUND ABOARD SHIP GUTTED BY FIRE

Search Goes on For Unaccounted Person

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Tadoussac, Que., Aug. 15 (CP) —Two bodies were found today aboard the fire-gutted St. Lawrence cruise ship, S. S. Quebec, owned by Canada Steamship Lines.

The Canadian Press received this official information from Quebec Provincial Police even while a search was going on for a third person known to be unaccounted for among the 400 passengers carried by the Quebec.

The bodies were not immediately identified, but they were believed to be those of two members of the R. N. Shapiro family of the town of Mount Royal, Que.

Tadoussac, Que., Aug. 15 (CP) — Quebec Provincial Police today blocked off the fire-blackened hulk of the river cruise ship "Quebec" and prepared to conduct a search aboard her in this small St. Lawrence port for three passengers still unaccounted for.

Not accounted for were a Mr. and Mrs. Shapiro of the town of Mount Royal, on the fringe of Montreal, and their small son, Leonard.

Another son, six - year - old Bernard Shapiro, was safely landed last evening along with 397 other passengers and was taken to Murray Bay, Que.

Ship's officers told The Canadian Press that the three Shapiros were the only persons not yet accounted for after a dramatic disembarkation.

Mr. Shapiro, his wife and a son named Leonard were listed by C.S.L. officials as being unaccounted for earlier in the day.

Boy Escapes by Window

A second Shapiro boy, six-year-old Bernard, made his way off the fire-swept ship late yesterday after being passed out a cabin window by his mother. That was the last he saw of his family.

He made for shore with 396 other passengers who were disembarked safely on the wharf of this lower St. Lawrence River town about an hour after fire was discovered aboard the Quebec when she was some miles above here.

Police said they did not know whether the bodies were those of both parents or of one parent and a child.

Until early this morning it was believed that all 400 passengers and 150 members of the crew of the river vessel had made shore safely, leaving the burning, smoke-shrouded vessel via ladders after she had been placed alongside the wharf here.

A later check of the passenger list, however, showed that three members of the Shapiro family were unaccounted for.

SAFE CRACKERS BLOW SAFES

Ayr, Ont., Aug. 15 — (CP) — Safe crackers blew two safes and pried open a third here last night. It is not believed they obtained more than $200. The safes at the Ayr Feed and Supply Company and the Ayr Co-Op were blown open with nitro-glycerine. The safe at the county garage was pried open with crow-bars and sledges.

Thousands Jam Town for Visitation Of Virgin Mary Forecast by Farm Wife

Necedah, Wis., Aug. 15 (AP)—A gaunt, prematurely-aged mother of seven children awaited patiently today for what she believes will be her seventh visitation from the Virgin Mary.

She is Mrs. Mary Anna Van Hoof, 41-year-old farm wife who is convinced the Virgin Mary will come to her today—as she contends she has on six previous occasions.

Thousands of people are here. There is no way to estimate the number. Some believe the apparition of the Virgin Mary will take place at noon today. Others are merely curious, while still others frankly scoff at her claims.

The visitors jammed every available highway leading into this little town of 1,000 yesterday and last night, despite admonitions from the Roman Catholic hierarchy to members of their faith to stay away.

They came from all parts of the country to crowd every inch of the farm where 57-year-old Fred Van Hoof, husband of Mary Anna, tries to eke out a living from barren, sandy soil.

Communists Cross Naktong R. Line In Three Places

Seven Northern Divisions Mass for Taegu Attack

Tokyo, Aug. 15 — (CP) — The whole west wall and northwest corner of the United Nations defence box in Korea showed signs of crumbling today under the weight of incessant communist probings of the Naktong River defence line.

Spurred by their leaders' demands for a "liberation month" victory, the communists tonight were across the Naktong in strength in three places. A fourth important crossing was reported, but not officially confirmed.

Reuters News Agency reported that Taegu, provisional capital, was already within earshot of the battle. It was directly menaced by two expanding bridgeheads north of Waegwan and a new reported communist drive from the north through Kunwi.

Ominous Massing

Communist tank spearheads moving out of Waegwan bridgeheads were probably within 12 miles of Taegu tonight through aggressive South Korean counter-attacks may have halted them, Reuters said.

Behind these two bridgeheads is the ominous massing of up to seven northern divisions with extra mechanized regiments.

Two regiments of communists are following the tanks from the Waegwan bridgeheads which are being fed over underwater stone and concrete bridges.

Bloody but indecisive fighting also was in progress farther south near Changnyong.

A field dispatch from Associated Press correspondent Jack Macbeth said the reds surged six or seven miles east of the Naktong on their deepest penetration in the Changnyong sector.

The red gain was considered serious.

A Russian-made Yak plane, on the first North Korean combat mission in days, dropped two 500-pound bombs on Masan, southern port, and strafed the important communications centre to the rear of U. S. lines.

U. S. Gains Eliminated

Front-line reports said the reds at Changnyong, 23 miles southwest of Taegu, rubbed out most of the gains made by the U. S. 24th Division Monday.

'It's a Girl' King's Message To Commonwealth

Balmoral, Scotland, Aug. 15. (Reuters)—The King had ready in advance a batch of telegrams to flash to all Commonwealth countries the news of the birth of his latest grandchild. He left a space for the word "boy" or "girl".

As soon as the news came from Clarence House, the King's private secretary filled in the blank, and the governments of the Commonwealth were told: "It's a girl".

Most Violent Quake in Years Shakes World

Boston, Aug. 15. (AP)— The most violent earthquake in many years has shaken the world.

But its violence was so great that seismologists studying the records could not interpret them and their estimates of the point of origin ranged from north or northeast Turkey to the South Pacific.

Only Boston College seismograph station in Weston, just outside Boston, offered a positive estimate of location within three hours after the earthquake wave wrote wild, incoherent records on the instruments.

There, father Daniel Linehan said he would estimate the quake 5,215 miles distant from Boston—possibly in north our northeast Turkey or the Caspian Sea.

A few minutes earlier, observer Philip R. Berger of the Harvard University seismograph station in the town of Harvard, Mass., hazarded "a guess" that it originated 7,500 to 9,000 miles distant. Probably in the south Pacific.

Both agreed that the records were so violent as to be hard to interpret.

Inquiry Turned Over to Police At Petawawa

Ottawa, Aug. 15—(CP)—Military authorities at Petawawa military camp Monday turned over to the Provincial Police the inquiry into the exploding of an undetonated smoke bomb which brought severe burns to three young boys.

Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes, in charge of the camp as officer commanding the Central Military District, announced in a statement late Monday that "names of the personnel involved" in the incident have been given to the police "who, it is expected, will lay charges if such are deemed in the public interest."

His statement did not elaborate but reports current during the weekend said a bomb was tossed into a bonfire during an officers' party outside the camp Friday night, failed to go off and that the boys found it while playing Saturday.

The youngsters—Donald McKay 6, of Toronto, and John Binkley, 5, of Winnipeg—are under treatment in hospital here for facial burns. Physicians have expressed fears for the sight of the McKay boy.

A third youngster, Derek Binkley, 7-year-old cousin of Jackie, suffered leg burns and was treated in hospital at Pembroke.

PRICES DECLINE ON CITY MARKET

Raspberries made a comeback on the farmers' market this morning, with more being shown today than showed on the weekend market. Prices varied from 40c to 45c for reds, and from 35c to 40c for the blues. This was five cents cheaper than Saturday prices.

Tomatoes took a dip to 75c for a six quart basket, but most other produce remained at weekend levels. Corn sold this morning from 25c a dozen to 45c, depending on quality. Blueberries remained at $2.25 for six quarts, 50c per quart.

GLADIOLUS HAS FIFTEEN SPIKES

It looks like the battle of the gladioli has started. Last night the Ontario Intelligencer reported a gladioli sporting 14 blooms. This morning Mrs. Fred Cook, 6 Strachan St., reported she picked one of 300 gladioli in her garden. This one has 15 spikes, Mrs. Cook said, and is 55 inches high. The plant is bearing red blossoms.

Baby Show One of Largest Ever Held in This District, Ninety-Six Babies Entered

"God puts you to live in a garden,
In village or city, or town;
And the name of this beautiful garden
Is the home where you "settle down."

God plants a white rose in your garden;
Tender and pure and true;
Sweeter than any flower of earth,
The baby God sends to you."

Such were the thoughts of the 95 mothers as they handed over their 96 little ones to the seven blue-gowned nurses of the St. John Ambulance Nursing Division No. 150, and their assistants, to be weighed and judged at the annual Baby Show yesterday afternoon, on the initial opening day of Belleville bigger and better fair.

The spacious tent was a great improvement upon the sultry, cramped quarters of former years and was filled to overflowing with babies, little, dimpled, dark-haired babies, fair-haired babies, with one or two 'titian' haired little fellows to add 'color' to the picture Some had eyes of blue, blue as the sky above, and some had eyes that were deep and dark as some woodland pool and all had voices, and used them to good effect. Some squeals were uttered in plain disgust at all the unwanted handling, and curiosity as to how long he or she was, or whether he or she had any teeth. Several had, but it must be acknowledged that the male of the species outnumbered the female in their dental attainments. Whether this has any bearing on their future epicurean tendencies, is left strictly to conjecture.

Some Children Timid

Then there were the babies who cried because they were timid, and wondered at all the strange faces around them, although those faces were smiling and gentle ones. Still they wanted 'mother' and wanted her badly. Quickly and deftly the nurses weighed, measured, noted the general appearance, hair and teeth, and texture of skin, and handed the little one, wrapped in large sheets of white paper back to the eager, waiting mother.

Only one pair of twins were entered, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Ryan; a lovely pair, a boy and a girl. The boy had dark hair and the girl light hair. A double blessing.

Much credit is due the nurses of St. John Ambulance Nursing Division No. 150, Mrs. L. Ashley; Mrs. A. McLuskie, and Mrs. J. E. Boyd, with their assistants, Mrs. D. Enright, Reg.N., who acted as judge; Mrs. C. Ray, Reg. N., Mrs. M. Reid and Mrs. R. Raymond, of St. John Ambulance Nursing Division, and the St. John cadets, Miss Margaret Steed and Miss Barbara Wright. Appreciation is also extended to Mrs. E. S. Denyes, who acted as secretary, and to Mr. E. Sandercock who was master of ceremonies.

Merchants Show New Merchandise To Fair Visitors

Main street moved a few blocks west yesterday afternoon. Up on the hill, at the Fair Grounds, businessmen from downtown worked to get their exhibits in shape in two buildings. And many of them, possibly not expecting so many people on opening day, looked a little sheepish as the public poured in on them.

"Haven't got my sign yet", one man moaned. "Promised it to me Saturday, and here I sit without it." He had his display all set up in fine style, but by 3:30 p. m. his booth was still barren of signs.

Possibly the greatest drawing card in the two buildings were the television sets. Early in the afternoon, Stewart - Warner - Alemite had two sets going, getting the TV from Rochester, N.Y. More than usual interest was possibly shown because the United Nations was being screened and everyone seemed to want to take a look at Jacob Malik, Russia's top dog at Lake Success.

Other eye-catchers were in evidence from the Walker Hardware Company and Air-Way Sanitizor, Ltd. Walker's had a large beach ball bouncing in the air, held up by a blast of air from a fan. Air-Way, using the same principle, had a small plastic ball bouncing on a jet of air. Another outstanding show was that of the Belleville Camera Club. Members' prints were displayed on two walls, and many were very impressive.

Other exhibitors showing or getting ready to show were C. R. Clapp & Son, Howe and Hagerman, Dobbs Appliances, Gordon A. MacEachern, Belleville Lock, Percival Furniture (two booths), Leslie Shoe Store, Seymour Hardware, Arthur A. Sills and Son, The John Lewis Co. Ltd., Vandusen Bros., Ltd., The Department of Labor, Bill Deline Ltd., Farrar's Furniture, Lorne McDougall, Insurance, The Georgia Salon, Roluf's Music Store, T. A. Tucker & Co., Ltd., Optimist International, David's Electric Shop, Goodman's, Paul Mercier, Singer Sewing Centre, Moffat, O'Neil Sales, and Stradwick-Valleau.

On the outside, the farm machinery was drawing crowds. One ingenious exhibitor had a tractor moving; driverless, in an endless circle. The kids, young and old, grouped around it, with looks of wonder written all over their faces. At the rest of the farm exhibits, tractors and other machines puffed and snorted as the showmen warmed them up.

Farm implements were shown by Riggs Garage, Trudeau Motors, Truck and Farm Supply. Brands shown were Allis-Chalmers, Fords, International-Harvester, Farmalls and others. De Laval and Chore-Boy represented milkers.

St. Lawrence Contracting Company Given Contract to Build New School in East End

The Belleville Board of Education with the approval of city council Monday evening at a special meeting voted to award to the St. Lawrence Contracting Company of this city the contract for the construction of the new public school in the east end of the city.

The St. Lawrence tender, the second lowest of the four tenders received was for $246,793, which with architect's fees, landscaping, equipment allowance and other incidentals, would bring the school cost to $299,657.

The lowest tender, that of the Eastwood Construction Company of Peterborough, was for $241,000 but in this price the cost of marboleum flooring was not included. This would be roughly $2,000, which would bring the contract price to $243,586, or a difference of something over $2,000.

Other tenders were from the Andre Construction at $249,963, and Bradford Horshal at $254,660.

In the original tenders called last March the lowest tender by the McFarland Construction Company was for $219,000, while that of the St. Lawrence Contracting Comapny was for $242,000. The Board of Education voted to award the contract to St. Lawrence but council refused to provide the money claiming the lowest tender should have been accepted. Had the St. Lawrence tender been accepted last March the total school cost would have been $293,190.

Change in Plans

In the second call for tenders, however, there was a change in boiler specifications with the additional for the twin boilers specified amounting to slightly over $2,000.

Passing of the by-law to provide the school board with $300,000 to build the new school met with little opposition in council although, Aldermen Haig and Clarke did register opposing votes.

"I do not want to appear to be an obstructionist," Alderman Haig said, "but I feel the lowest tender should be accepted."

He admitted that acceptance of the tender of a local contractor, local labor might stand to benefit but he pointed out that in any event most of the labor would be local with the possible exception of skilled trade. He noted that local sub-trade tenders in some cases were higher than those of outside firms.

Goes to Board

The by-law will now go to the Ontario Municipal Board for final approval following which it will be returned to council for the third reading. To allow the school board to award the contract immediately council gave assurance there would be no holdup in approval of the by-law in its third reading.

When the question was raised by Alderman Haig as to whether the amount of $300,000 would provide the Board with sufficient funds to build the school and issue debentures., school administrator L. A. Kells said that some money may be saved in awarding of the sub-trades. The board met later to decide on these.

Attending the Board meeting held prior to the council meeting were Chairman Enos David and members Miss Josephine Tickell, Seldon, Symons, Wilkin and Campbell. Alderman Argue was the only member absent at the council meeting.

Flag Presented At Rotary Luncheon

It was "Bring Home the Bacon Day" at the weekly luncheon meeting of the Belleville Rotary Club held Monday noon in the Hotel Quinte. Sixteen lucky winners took home sugar, groceries, polishing cloths, assorted brushes and other bits of loot, but there is no record of anyone taking home any bacon.

Rotarian Reg Gage presented president Ken Griffiths with the flag of the Pawtucket Rhode Island Rotary Club, which he received while visiting them recently.

Leo Riggs and John Deacon led a song recital in preparation for the coming visit of District Governor Art Ferguson early in September.

President Ken Griffiths gave a brief account of his recent trip to the Rotary International Convention held in Detroit.

Two Sea Cadets Take Special Training Course

Selected by their commanding officer and by members of the local Sea Cadet committee, two members of the "Quinte" Sea Cadet Corps at Belleville are on their way to Cornwallis, N.S., for a two weeks' training course at the Maritimes naval training base. They are Petty Officer Cadet Ed. Richards, 17, of Wills Street, and Leading Cadet Clarence Kaiser, Foster Ave.

The two local sea cadets left the city early Sunday morning for Montreal where they were met by a naval officer. Later they entrained with other cadets from across Canada for Cornwallis. Approximately 400 cadets, selected from their various "ships" will attend the course at Cornwallis.

During their two weeks stay at the Nova Scotia training base the cadets will take a special training course in which gunnery is expected to play a prominent part.

This is the third year in which P/O Richards has been chosen to represent his "ship" at summer training camp.

HOGS

Toronto, Aug. 15 — (CP) — Dressed, Grade A hogs, delivered, were $32.50 at Hull, Que. today.

At Stratford, Ont., hog prices were not established.

COMMUNISTS

Taegu is the south republic's emergency capital and objective of 60,000 communists poised in the Waegwan sector, 12 miles northwest of Taegu.

Red tanks and armored cars hit hard in the Waegwan area. They availed themselves of a Russian-style submerged suspension bridge to move a regiment, about 3,000 men, and tanks over the river against South Korean defenders. Such bridges are built just below the water's surface to hide them from aerial detection and are capable of supporting armored river-crossings.

A U. S. Eighth Army communique issued at 9:05 p.m. Tuesday (7:05 a. m. EDT) said the South Koreans successfully counter - attacked the river - crossers near Waegwan and found that allied air support presumably had knocked out red armored cars.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Aug. 15 — (CP) — Industrial stocks pushed ahead as moderate buying chalked up gains over a wide list of sticks on the Toronto stock exchange today. Volume was about 825,000 shares.

Activity in the industrial list was a carry over from yesterday's strong advance when the exchange's industrial index reached a 16-year-high. 11 groups showed gains with steels, utilities, foods, papers and liquors especially strong.

Base metals went up. Late downward pressure reduced several advances. Key issues, including Quemont and International Nickel, were fractionally higher.

Western oils improved quietly over a broad front.

Golds also attracted considerable buying, especially among seniors. Higher were Dome, Hollinger, and Kerr-ddison. Among the juniors which brightened were Macassa, Frobisher, Conwest and Hurricana.

Judging of Large Entry Of Horses Gets Under Way; Many Jersey Cattle Shown

Judging of the large entry of horses at the Belleville Fair got underway today with classing of the various entries scheduled to continue until Thursday, the last day of the fair. The horse exhibit is one of the largest to be seen at the local fair and chairman of the horse committee W. D. Reid, promises all entries will be given good showing and will be judged on schedule.

Possibly attracting the greatest attention at the fair by lovers of fine horses will be the six stallions being shown by the Arnoldwold Farms of Granville, Que. These breeders of fine horses are showing three fine Percheron stallions, two Belgians and one Clyde stallion.

Other exhibitors in the special classes are O'Keefe's Brewery who will show their six-horse team, and Sawyer Stoll Lumber Company of Kaladar, which is back with a fine pair of Percherons.

Light Horse Classes

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Gerow of Picton are back with their saddle and driving horses, while other exhibitors in the light horse classes include White and Heard of Peterborough with two Hackneys, G. Doucette of Foxboro and the Ferguson Coach Line of Peterborough, also with a pair of hackneys. W. H. Lindsay of Campbellcroft has three roadsters, while John Sheridan of Stirling has one roadster. Haig Kelly of Peterborough also has two hackneys.

Verney Heath of Stirling is showing in the light draught classes, Alan B. Mann, of Peterborough is showing two hackney mares with colts and also a two-year old colt.

In the general purpose class H. L. Aylesworth of Napanee is showing a fine team.

Many Stallions Shown

There is also a large exhibit of stallions by local breeders, these including Emmoy Farms of Codrington with A. W. Moyne showing a Percheron stallion, two register Percheron two-year-olds and one three-year-old. Victor Ervin of Campbellford is showing a fine Percheron stallion with Francis Rush of Stoco, showing a Belgian stallion, also Murney Ferguson of Picton with a Belgian stallion.

Still another local exhibitor, Cora Howard, R.R. Belleville, is showing a fine Percheron team.

The majority of the horses came in to the fair this morning and exhibits were still being brought in at the noon hour.

Thus far the cattle exhibit is not as large as in other years and this goes for the sheep and swine, although other exhibitors were still expected to register later on in the day.

Jersey exhibitors at the fair included Garnet Kerr of Campbellford, W. Matthews of Cannifton, and Aylesworth of Cataraqui who has brought his fine herd of Jersey milkers.

Judging Competition

Guernseys are being shown by the Quinte Guernsey Breeders Association and these cattle and the Jerseys were being used this morning for the junior farmers and farmerettes for their junior judging competition. The Guernseys will be officially judged this afternoon.

Holstein judging will commence on Wednesday by which time at least three district breeders are expected to have their herds on the grounds. Holstein breeders expected to show include Alan McComb, Sidney township; and Max and John Burnside of Madoc. Poll-Angus will be shown by Max Bailey of Indian River.

Two Sheep Exhibitors

Up until late morning there were only two sheep exhibitors on the grounds. These were Foster Snowden of Oshawa with Oxfords and Leicesters, 25 head, and Alan Ayre of Hampton with Southdowns.

Hog exhibitors included Arthur Chambers of Napanee with his three year old Yorkshire entries, boar and other Yorkshire entries, and Don Heath of Stirling with Hampshires

Outstanding Poultry Show At Fair, 450 Birds Exhibited

One of the finest poultry shows in the history of the Belleville Fair, was the way one poultry enthusiast described the current poultry exhibit at the local fair.

Every available pen in the poultry building is filled for the show with approximately 450 birds of all breeds being exhibited. Poultry judge R. J. Messervey of this city said it was the largest showing of poultry and fancy fowl at the fair in 15 years.

Judging of the various classes got underway this morning with fancy fowl from as far away as Toronto and Peterborough being shown.

Heaviest exhibitor in the poultry classes is R. H. Brown of Peterborough who has about 215 birds of all classes in the show. Many of these are in bantam classes, while John Tytler of Toronto, one of the best known breeders in the province, also is showing some of his best birds. All told there are 120 bantams shown with about 40 geese and ducks.

One of the feature exhibits of the outstanding poultry show is the exhibit of Charles J. Tebworth of this city, who, although ill at home, is showing 12 pens of Old English game birds.

Unable to look after his own entry Mr. Tebworth had despaired of showing his game birds at the fair this year but two local poultry fanciers and good friends of Mr. Tebworth volunteered to make his entry and look after the birds at the fair. For the good deed Mr. Tebworth has Jack Holley and R. J. Messervey to thank.

All in all the poultry show is outstanding and easily the best show of this kind at the fair in past decade and a half. Visiting the poultry building is a must for all interested fair visitors.

Among the exhibitors at the poultry show are P. H. Day, Purdy St.; Alfred Ayre, Oshawa; R. J. Messervey, Gordon St.; H. Caldwell, Ameliasburg; C. J. Tebworth, St. Charles St.; W. P. Marvin, Wellington; John Holley, Front Street; John Tytler of Toronto and R. H. Brown of Peterborough.

National Council Of YPU Meets At Albert College

Approximately 175 delegates of the Y. P. U. of the United Church in Canada, representing every province in the Dominion are convened in the city this week to attend the 1950 National Council being held at Albert College. The convention is held every four years.

The various convention sessions are being held starting this afternoon with an opening banquet scheduled for this evening at which council leaders will be introduced. The council program includes a trip to Moira Lake to visit the Y. P. U. Quin-Mo-Lac camp, while the 25th anniversary banquet is scheduled for Friday evening at the college. Speakers at the banquet will be Dr. Manson Doyle of Hamilton and Dr. R. W. Jones of Montreal.

Exhibits of School and Home Daintily Arranged at Fair And Viewed by Large Crowd

The Horticulture building was a bower of interest and loveliness with its beautiful flowers, its fine fancywork, needlecraft and crochet, quilting and knitting, fruits and vegetables, preserving and home-cooking, not forgetting the splendid exhibit of honey, and grain, as well as the display of school exhibits and fine arts.

Of all the buildings, which were splendidly arranged to advantage, with superior exhibits, the horticulture building still reigns supreme, drawing many back again and again to bask in its attractive displays.

On entering one is unmistakably made conscious that Canada belongs to the Commonwealth of Nations, for above, from every rafter, the Union Jacks wave gently to and fro in the breeze, and just to firmly fix this idea, is the booth of Canada's Sea Cadets, selling tickets on a $100 bond. In the foreground the pillars are lined with evergreens, as are the lintels of the doors, and stretching down the centre are the beautiful floral exhibits, in their attractive containers and pedestal arrangements, with the pyramid of massed gladioli in shades of lemon yellow, salmon-pink, dark, velvety purples, deep reds, henna-tinted-pale-pink and shades of lavender and mulberry, intermingled with long spikes of white having shaded pink centres, all arranged in tall handled baskets with here and there sprays of feathery asparagus fern. This exhibit is that of the Horticulture Society of Belleville.

Beautiful Flowers

Passing down the aisle, are seen the Zinnias, huge golden disks, some red like fire, some snowy white, and here and there are clusters of the tiny, button variety, having the same delightful shades. Asters too, are here, deep pink, red, mauve and white, and a growing favorite with many, the dark, velvety cosmos, which lingers until the heaviest frost, thus making itself ideal for cut flowers.

Urns and hanging baskets, and window boxes are seen, with their ivy, and trailing vines of green, white-edged, and some with bright golden four-petalled tiny flowers. Table centres, beautifully arranged, of sweet peas, blue and red corn flowers, and one all white, like a poem. Marigolds, rich in their golden crests, some orange, rosy-colored nasturtiums, and sweet-scented phlox shading from deep pink to lovely mauve and snowy white, and scarlet.

Then came the bell-like salpiglossis in all their dainty shades of yellow, pale pink, deep red and dark mauve, backgrounded by the tall scarlet salvia, and tall black-dotted tiger lilies and annual larkspur.

Dwarf Trees

On another table were two dwarf trees, one lemon having three ripe lemons and two green ones, while other fruit was forming from the latest flower; the orange tree also had fruit, ripe and green, both at the same time. Speaking to the owner, it was learned that the trees were about eight years old, and bore hundreds of small flowers whose perfume was so heavy that it permeated every corner of the home.

On the bench along the side were many varieties of flowers, and several African violets and beautiful begonias, some in red, others in yellow, and one in pink. Here too, were the favorites of many a home, the cool, lacey ferns, Boston Conpuctors, and the hardy swords. There were several cacti exhibited, of nearly every variety known, and rare species of begonias, the Angel wing, Youth and Old Age; beefsteak, right and left, and many others, intermingled with the tall sancaveria, and the orange sultana with its multi-flowers.

The most outstanding bloom of the exhibit was a tall spike of a henna-pink gladioli whose petals measured a good seven inches from tip to tip. A gorgeous flower. Another lovely exhibit that missed the first prize, because of wrong arrangement, was a pure white basket of gladioli, and other white flowers. A truly lovely basket. One special dahlia in dark, velvety-red merited much attention. Other single blooms of yellow, and pink were noticed, as well as some outstanding red geraniums, which were a mass of bloom. All in all, the floral exhibit was spectacular, in the wealth of its coloring and also in its pleasing arrangement.

Fruit Section

In the fruit section, pyramids of Wolfe River apples were arranged before a wall-background denoting the progress in spraying from 1900 down to the present year, from the barrel-pulled-on-runners, oy hand, through the horse-drawn days, to the present tractor-drawn spray drum with its great volume.

Taking into account that this is an "Off-year" for apples, the exhibit was praiseworthy, and showed 25 varieties of apples; including McIntosh reds; Wealthies; Red Astrakan; delicious; old fashioned August apples; transparents, and crabs. There were five or more varieties of pears, and four or more of plums, a few grapes, and two muskmelons.

Vegetables included carrots potatoes, beets, peppers, sweet and hot variety, cucumbers, both table and pickling, egg plant, onions, tomatoes, red and white cabbage, and vegetable marrows, as well as the large green Hubbard squash, and the curly, yellow variety.

Canned goods was attractive, showing tomatoes, peas, corn, beans, pears, peaches, berries, plums, and several others. Several jars of this year's maple syrup were on hand, a fine addition to the dainty muffins enclosed in glass just across the aisle. These were not alone, for turning the attention here, could be seen huge angel cakes, luscious chocolate cakes, white cakes, golden cookies, glistening pumpkin pies, berry pies oozing scarlet juices, lemon pies with mounds of frosting, bread, buns, candies, and delicious looking cocoanut macaroons.

Fine Honey Display

One of the finest displays seen in some time was that of the honey. Here was the model apiary of A. R. Holland, of Eldorado, in miniature, complete with hives, honey-gathering apparatus, extracting house, with equipment. A section of bees was also shown, as well as honey in the comb, in jars, and in pails of varying sizes and cartons.

While talking with the proprietor, it was learned that honey when extracted is pasteurized to prevent its souring, due to the 18 per cent water content. Honey also needs no digestion as it is an invert sugar, and contains minerals, enzymes, and aromatic bodies. Honey also when added to lemon juice, is a fine relief and cure for coughs. The bees on exhibit are given sufficient honey to last during the days of exhibition, and when this is over, will again be returned to their hive. One hive has from 150 to 180,000 bees.

Across from the honey exhibit could be seen the sheaves of oats, barley, wheat, showing that farming still gives the result of labor.

Among the school exhibits were some fine mural displays of "early Pioneer Days," "life in China", and mounted leaves. Several "set-ups" consisted of creative expressions, showing the early "cave-men," and their habitat. "A trip to clean-up town" portrayed a castle and courtyard, streets, with trees, whose leaves were washcloths, whose roads were mirrors, all leading to clean-up castle. This was made of cardboard boxes, each room having something to do with cleanliness. Over all was a blimp carrying the children of Point Anne School whose project this had been.

School Work Prominent

There were also maps of Canada, and of North America, health posters, and a facsimile of Queen Alexandra School, with grounds and trees, models of ships, historical, past, and present, bird houses, and crayon-work, water-colors and pencil drawings. The playground children also had a section showing what they had done during the holidays, of crayon work, basket weaving, paper flowers and shell work. Specimens of hand writing were also displayed from the various schools.

Among the fine arts were some nice water colors and oils showing real talent, with a good appreciation of composition and color. One seascape was outstanding and showed movement and life, and could be entitled, "The Coming Storm." This showed dark clouds rolling up, waves breaking their foamy crests upon the rock-bound shore. The painter had caught the live color of the breaking waves, and the rolling clouds with fine understanding of the subject.

Another painting worthy of mention was that of the head and shoulders of a habitant, wearing a red kerchief round the neck. The expression was well done, and was alive

The art of china painting is still a delight to the eyes. On view was an exceptionally nice piece of work, in the shape of a tall pitcher-like vase showing the grape and leaf design in rich golden, green and purple tints. Other fine pieces included cups and saucers bon-bon dishes, and comports.

Interesting Work

The exhibit of "The Dutch Family" was an interesting piece of work This depicted a green field backed by a large, grey windmill of Holland construction while over the field were groups of Holland children in pairs, as well as a cart drawing two others, and on either side two Holland ladies, dressed in their Sunday best, each with an umbrella, or parasol open, over their shoulder. One doll was dressed in white trimmed in blue, a winsome lady, with long flaxen braids, while the other was dressed in green, lace trimmed, with matching umbrella. This group had been made and dressed by Mrs. G. A. Ritchie.

In the sewing section, which consisted of women's clothing, household linen, quilts, bedspreads, rugs, cushions, children's wear, boys' and mens' wear, and miscellaneous, which covered tatting, crocheting, fancy knitting, needlepoint, cut work, cross stitch, Irish crochet, and fancy socks and mitts, one was charmed with the variety and daintiness of the articles shown. The directors in charge of this were Mrs. B. Docter, Mrs. Ben Bleecker, Mrs. M. B. Weese. Mrs. Thomas Walker and Mrs. S. M. Nicholson.

The women's clothing showed dainty blouses, bed jackets in pink, knit in leaf pattern, silk nightgowns, smart house-dresses, aprons, both useful and fancy tea aprons. One which especially appealed was made from white organdy and blue printed organdy, having two white panels on the outer sides, and the printed panel in the centre. All were bound with narrow blue piping and on the two outer panels were appliqued blue lilies. There were also knitted sweaters, and many other lovely articles.

Dainty Linens

The linens were dainty, and showed cut work, tray cloths with crocheted edges, embroidered place mats, crocheted table cloths, chesterfield sets, pillow cases hemstitched, and with crocheted edges. Among the quilts some were appliqued with flowers, and one had the favorite Dresden plate design with a scalloped blue border, and white background. A really lovely quilt. Bedspreads were of crochet and others knit, or tufted. Afghans were knitted in rainbow colors, and crocheted in the wild rose detail.

The cushions were beautiful and of many designs and manner of making, including satin tuft, needlepoint, and were made of silk or wool as the case might be. The children's wear included baby saques, and bonnets, and were in white with matching hoods and mitts, edged with either pink or blue. There were also little play suits, rompers, and all the baby needs, including complete layettes.

Daintily Done

Among the men's wear were sport shirts, work shirts, hand knit pullover sweaters, gloves, socks, heavy and fine, diamond socks in grey with diamonds of red, yellow, blue and green.

The tatting was daintily done, showing runners in ecru, and in cutwork, doilies with brown-eyed Susans round their edges, others with appliqued roses on Irish Crochet, and many, many others, all lovely and too numerous to mention.

One outstanding feature of the fancy work department this year was the new exhibits in every field, with extremely few repeaters being seen. Altogether, an especially fine demonstration of the handicraft of woman in the home.

Six-Pound Ling Hooked by Boy

Other Izaak Waltons may catch their muskies or bass, but 15-year-old Lloyd Milton of Cannifton will be satisfied if he can continue catching the type which recently gave him an interesting few minutes off the shore of the Bay of Quinte. Lloyd's catch was a six-pound ling measuring 21½ inches in length.

The happy fisherman says he was casting off the bay shore west of Belleville when the big fellow hooked his spinner. He hauled him in without a net after a spirited five minute struggle.

What is a ling? Our informant says they look and taste very much like a lake salmon.

Committee Given Power to Acquire Additional Help

Alarm over the delay in the completion of office work in connection with local improvements was expressed in council Monday evening by Alderman A. M. Haig. He said that this work should soon be completed if charges for the local improvements completed were to be included in next year's tax bills.

It was pointed out that despite the increase in the public works staff, the work in connection with local improvements was being held up owing to illness of the city engineer with result that Clifford Mathews was unable to devote his full time to the above work

The finance committee was authorized to hire the necessary clerical assistance to complete office work in connection with local improvements.

FAIR MAKES HISTORY

Belleville Fair has made a place in history and is making history for this district. More than a century of progress is the enviable record of this institution which touches so deeply the life of the community and district.

In its century and more of progress there have been changes of course. Fairs develop and so has Belleville Fair developed. One of the happy signs of the stability of this institution is the fact that generations after generations of families have had their names mentioned in the prize lists. As well new names are mentioned, a sign of growth and prosperity of the agricultural industry.

In its century and more of development a great deal of energy and interest has been put into the exhibitions year after year. The result is that the institution thrives and occupies a leading place among the exhibitions in the Province. It stands among the fairs which have lasted more than a century and are still growing in interest and importance to their communities.

Now on a larger scale than ever the fair carries on its service to the residents of this fine countryside and the urban municipalities. It gives the promise of continued growth in the years which lie immediately ahead as well as in those years in the distant future.

To see the throngs which are attracted to the exhibition is the best proof of the importance of the fair to the district and to the city. They are an inspiration to those who have borne the burdens of office and of planning for the annual exhibitions. Those who have held in their hands the authority to direct the exhibition have rendered yeoman service to agriculture and to the city for farming and city industry together make for a stable and progressive community and offer the promise of continued prosperity and growth in both agriculture and industry.

OLD KING COLE AND COLCHESTER

Modern cities and towns which take pride in their progress may feel somewhat taken aback when they come to realize that in England is the old city of Colchester which has just been celebrating the 1,900th anniversary of its founding by the Roman Emperor Claudius in the year 50 A.D. He gave it a charter and made it the first Roman colony in Britain. In the New World the age of towns and cities has come to be counted by centuries in many cases as even Canada and the United States are growing old in years. But these New World cities are in years far behind cities which flourished and dominated their world in the days when Roman arms flourished.

Newer cities have one advantage, they have a wealth of knowledge of the past century or more of their growth. Yet cities like Colchester have to deal with a far-off age when conditions were vastly different from those in these modern days. Colchester grew up in another world, in a world something like that in which London grew to maturity. How far away Colchester's founding is may be gleaned from the fact that it is a city of the times when only romance can give anything of an idea of what things were like so long ago. It came to life in an age when the Romans held sway in their days of worldwide imperialism.

Now some young cities have lost almost all traces of their early settlement. But Colchester has an advantage over them, it was settled by the Romans and became the capital of the province of Britain occupied by the Romans and it still exists.

In the long stretch of time from the days of Caesar and his successors in the imperial city on the Tiber there also came into being another city which was known from early days as London, which is only fifty miles from Colchester. By the fifth century London took the lead which she occupies today as the leading capital of the world.

In the new world of North America there are already cities with records which date back far more than a century. These gather traditions as time passes and in the course of years add more and more to their fame in history by the great men who come upon the scene in age after age. Of course it is impossible for the modern town to grow into a city with myths gathered about it as Colchester, which had the honor according to tradition of having once upon a time been able to acknowledge Old King Cole the Merry Old Soul of the nursery rhyme as its ruler. Tradition won't go that far with modern cities and towns even if they should carry on as many centuries as King Cole is suppose to have lived in Colchester.

FAT FIREMEN

A few years ago it was considered an asset to have stout firemen. The firemen could then adequately defend their laurels in the annual tug-of-war which used to be featured in civic gala days.

The heavy fireman was also a good man to have around when the steam engine needed a little more coal, or when strong men were needed to help a fire department horse to its feet after it had slipped on icy streets. — Sudbury Star.

WHAT A FISHERMAN THINKS ABOUT

Watching a deer come down to drink
And, undisturbed, having time to think —
Afar from the city's cry and hue —
"The forests," thought he, "are peopled, too.

"Teeming with life are the hills and dales;
With the mother does and the antlered males;
With creatures large and creatures small,
And the Lord has made them one and all.

"There are hidden paths which they know full well,
Where in homes which suit them best they dwell.
They have hurts to fear as their lives they plan,
But the greatest of all is their fear of man.

"One splash of an oar and that frightened deer
Would turn and run lest I draw too near.
One glimpse of me and he'd take to flight."
There is much to think of when fish don't bite.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THAT INWARD URGE

We are each born into a world of projects and wonder. Endless generations have contributed to us in one way and another. Urges sprout out, like the roots of a tree, seeking nourishment and substance with which to support the one great urge of one's heart.

It is highly important that none of us neglects these urges, especially the ones that promise happiness and which build the fires of incentive and enthusiasm within us.

I have a friend who was born with an artistic urge. He wanted most of all to be an artist and thus to express himself, but his father considered this foolish and a waste of life. He insisted that he go to college and become a lawyer, which the boy resented. He went to college but paid little attention to his studies. He wanted to draw, and draw he did! But so strong was the father's resentment that he refused further to aid that boy and created a hatred that the boy never got over. He left college and continued to draw until he became a famous cartoonist—and was happy.

I have another friend, whose father resented his son's desire to be a musician. He wanted to play a violin and so saved his money and got one. The father discovered this and took it away from him. He bought some tools and told him to get busy with them, but he would not be thwarted—that boy. He, too, became a famous cartoonist for a big newspaper, but with money coming in he bought another violin, and to this day plays it to soothe his soul. He was my guest for a few days, in my summer camp, and played it to the tune of the stars, and the wash of the waves.

Natural wants and urges should never be neglected. They are the guide posts to our success and happiness in this world. Wealthy souls are all too rare in this world. God's voice and encouragement are always near to that one whose freedom of choice has been given a clear road ahead. It is even more profitable to aim at something that you want, and miss it, than to aim at something you don't want—and get it!

Meteor Crosses Path of Car

Toronto, Aug. 15 (CP)—Provincial Police Constable Ed Whitehead braked his car sharply to a screeching stop early Sunday as an object with a blazing 100-foot tail swooshed by and landed in a field 30 yards away. The object that interrupted his post-midnight patrol near Langstaff, 10 miles north of here, turned out to be a baseball-sized meteorite.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

WITHOUT WHEAT

Morris, Man.—A few days ago a delegation of some 400 farmers, representing the grain growers whose fields were flooded this year by the Red River went to Winnipeg to ask Premier D. L. Campbell and his coalition cabinet what was going to happen to them.

They went back to their farms next day with a ringing assurance from the premier that "I am not losing sight of the problems of flood victims."

It was an empty promise for a farmer like Charles "Dixie" Dixon who has 660 acres a few miles north of Morris, and one of hundreds hereabouts who know the bitter taste of ruin.

Dixon is a handsome, English-born middle-aged man with a black, military mustache, a one-time junior bank executive who turned to farming and made a success of it.

As we drove out to his farm this morning, "Dixie" Dixon spoke with the bitterness you come to take for granted in Morris.

I'm not mixed up in any kind of politics, but I vote Liberal," he said. "The men I helped put in office have failed miserably in getting the farmer out of this mess. What you see in Morris is a town dying on its feet. There'll be almost no crop here this year. A great many of us are going to need relief from the municipality to keep us alive, to get seed for next spring, to get fuel to keep our tractors running.

"So far there's been nothing at all done, or announced, to let us know how we stand.

"The farmer is just naturally an independent cuss," he went on. "We don't ask for charity. Hell, we've been hailed out, dried out and drowned out by rains in the past. But with those things you had a fighting chance. It was all part of the gamble. This flood has been different. It hit right into the economy of Manitoba. It isn't a matter for the individual, but for the province. And they've failed us badly."

In the Ruins

It seems incredible that this limpid, brown, sluggish stream, lying deep down between its banks, is the same swollen river I saw last May. Standing at the top of the bank on the prairie level I noticed a power line eight or ten feet above my head. A great cluster of straw like a stork's nest had been caught on the cable, a weird water-mark.

The large gabled farmhouse, an immense new barn and the other buildings stood like gaunt derelicts. Two small buildings had been torn from their foundations and had floated a short distance away. Inside the piggery the grey silt was thigh-high.

Dixon stood looking around at this disorder with his jaw out.

"The men around here have been great," he said. "They're all pitching right in. But it gives you a down-deep, hopeless feeling when you see the amount of work that's got to be done. You just don't know where to start."

Some of the returning farmers seeded their land, late as it was. About 10 percent of the flooded land was seeded, six weeks late. But Dixon and other experienced men I talked with say this was done in desperation. An early frost will put these farmers still deeper in the hole.

Even working the land as summer fallow, as Dixon is doing, is difficult since the oil companies have suspended credit to flooded farmers. (It costs Dixon about $800 a year for fuel for his machines.)

"Most farmers live on credit," he pointed out. "The harvest is the payoff. Now we can't expect a crop until the fall of 1951. Just means that those farmers with some capital will have to use it. The poor fellow who lives from year to year will have to get what municipal relief he can."

Help Wanted

Dixon, himself, will be living for the next 16 months on the cash from the sale of his 40 head of Black Angus beef cattle. "We'll get by," he says, "but we'll be paupers this time next year. It'll be a long time before we have cattle again."

Like the others I met, Dixon is not ungrateful for the help he is getting.

"We are getting assistance in restoring the house and furniture and the money donated by the rest of Canada is being fairly spent," he told me, "but, for us on the farm, it is just a beginning. We desperately need a farm assistance program, compensation for our unseeded acreage, help in getting credit to see us through."

We walked over to what had obviously been a well-equipped tool shed. Now the implements were rusted and caked with mud and lay in a tangle that was evidence of the flood water's swift current.

"This is the kind of picture they can't seem to grasp up in Winnipeg," Dixie Dixon said. "How a man is expected to go about replacing this sort of mess I don't know. The government just shrugs or makes some noise intended to be encouraging and in actual fact have done nothing. The rumor is that we're to get some help if there's money left over from the Canada-wide fund. It seems to me we're entitled to more than rumors."

Private Deer Ranch Operated in Quebec

Verdun, Que., Aug. 15 (CP)—A 150-acre farm in the Laurentians that was hardly worth farming prompted Joseph Lareault of this Montreal suburb to open his own private deer ranch.

Lareault, a Verdun alderman, purchased the small farm north of here three years ago. Tests showed the soil was unsuitable for farming so he built a fence and converted the lot into a deer sanctuary.

Stocking the ranch came naturally. One day three young deer wandered in and nature did the rest. Now, despite trouble with stray dogs and poachers, a fair sized herd lives in the enclosure.

Soon Mr. Lareault plans to add several elk to his preserve. The animals, descendants of elk from the royal forests of Germany and Poland, will be turned loose among the deer on the ranch.

FOOD AND FERTILITY

Medical authorities find that the man is the sterile partner in most barren marriages.

Man or woman may be sexually potent yet incapable of reproducing—sterile.

Therefore it is clear that if the marriage is not blessed within three years—a good many newly married women conceive only after they have been three years married—it is the duty of the husband to consult the physician first. The physician can determine with considerable certainty whether the husband is fertile, by microscopic test. Only after the husband's fertility has been determined should the wife seek medical advice about the barren marriage, and her husband should accompany her upon her first visit to the physician. The matter is a fifty-fifty proposition and a happy outcome can be hoped for only when both partners cooperate fully.

Recent reports in medical literature indicate that the character of the everyday diet and the nutritional condition of husband or wife has a good deal to do with his or her fertility or lack of it.

Twenty-eight years ago Drs. Evans and Bishop demonstrated, in animal research, the existence of an anti-sterility vitamin, which they called vitamin E.

Laboratory animals kept on a diet otherwise adequate but deficient in vitamin E become sterile (males) or abort (females).

It should be clearly understood that nearly all of our present knowledge of vitamin E applies to animals.

Chief food sources of vitamin E are wheat, wheat germ, barley, corn oil, cottonseed oil, palm oil, lettuce, cabbage, parsley, green peas, brown rice, oatmeal. Best medicinal form of vitamin E is wheat germ oil.

We do not know how much vitamin E may be required daily by child, man or woman. Scientific investigators believe that vitamin E deficiency accounts for some cases of sterility, abortion, poor muscular development in infants, pseudo-hypertrophic muscular dystrophy (I'll endeavor to render this into English as soon as I can untangle the type bars) and the presence of an excess of creatine in the urine, a sign which may be detected before the child develops the characteristic symptoms of pseudo-hypertrophic muscular dystrophy.

Pseud means false; hypertrophic means enlarged, overdeveloped; and dystrophy means defective nutrition. Boys are affected more than girls. The characteristic symptoms appear when the child is five to ten years old; in the case of a girl the symptoms first appear in the early 'teens. Boys at school may be blamed for months for being "lazy" and "clumsy" before medical advice is sought. Slowness in running, frequent falls, bruised knees and hesitancy about going up and especially down stairs, low hollow back and pot-belly and waddling wide based gait are familiar signs of pseudo-hypertrophic muscular dystrophy. As the legs grow weaker the muscles grow larger—parents sometimes take a pathetic pride in the youngster's fine calves.

Fresh wheat germ is superior to any synthetic or natural vitamin E product, both for prevention and treatment or cure of any of the conditions which may be due to insufficient daily intake of vitamin E.

I say nothing about the use of vitamin E as a remedy for heart disease. Magazine and newspaper stories of the miraculous effects of vitamin E on heart disease have no foundation in fact and are cruel in effect. If increased intake of vitamin E can benefit the condition of one with heart disease, the regular use of fresh wheat germ in the everyday diet will insure all the benefit the vitamin can give.

The character of the everyday wheat in lpace of much of the retility is not a matter of the vitamin E content alone. Wednesday, June 21, a reader told in a letter how she and her husband were beginning to think they were not to be blessed with children, after three years of barren marriage. Then she began taking the iodin ration and using plain wheat in place of much of the refined white flour in the daily diet, and now, say what I will about old A. J. Coincidence, they are happily preparing to welcome what it takes to convert a house into a home. I do sincerely believe that a good many barren houses could be similarly converted if both partners in the enterprise built their everyday diet on the plan of the basic health diet outlined in the booklet The 7 Keys to Vite—for which send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Accident accounts for the discovery of no end of useful things. It would be interesting to compile a list of all the countless articles we employ today that owe their origin to a fumble.

Unbreakable glass, so the story goes, was discovered by a French chemist who left a bottle that had contained cellulose acetate unstoppered on his shelf. Some time later, he upset the shelf and all the bottles on it fell and were smashed save one It merely crinkled and cracked into a thousand bits, but still remained intact.

The material known as Masonite, a beautiful hard and almost indestructable fibre board, is said to have been the result of a Negro workman, in a fibre board plant, falling asleep and neglecting to open the machine in which a batch of fibre board was being pressed. It cooked instead, and the foreman found a wonderful, almost metallic sheet instead of the expected fibre board.

Windsor blue is a color much beloved by artists. Its origin was comic, according to legend. The Windsor and Newton color factory in Britain was running off a batch of color known as Prussian blue, but when it was finished, it had an indefinable and very beautiful difference from the harsh tone of the expected Prussian. They sent samples to the best chemists for analysis, hoping the secrets of the new color might be revealed. All the chemists could say was that some foreign body, of an unkonwn nature, must have got into the batch.

Intense enquiry finally brought a confession from the workman who had been in charge that his lunch had accidentally fallen into the vat, and he had been afraid to admit it for fear of losing his job. You might suppose that Windsor blue now comes of throwing lunch into vats of Prussian blue —but all that goes in are the chemical counterparts of that workman's lunch.

COMMON GRAMMAR

Sometimes as we listen to people talking we wonder why they never learn to use better grammar. Have they never noticed their mistakes? It all seems pathetic and unnecessary.

But it is equally pathetic and unnecessary when we realize how little some people seem to learn in other spheres also. For instance, some people need to revise their grammar of relationships. They need to learn that God is the third person, fellow man is second person,, and self is the third person. How many people there are in the world who plant themselves right down at the center of their universe. Everything is I, I, my, and mine. For them there is no second and third person, only first person, singular and plural, and they are "it". No God, no consideration of others, just self.

Do they never get tired of themselves? We wonder as we look at them! What makes them so nervous? Why do they smoke so much and drink so much? Why are they always on the "outs" with folks? Well, one answer would seem to be that they have never learned anything about the grammar of relationships. And we repeat that they need to learn that God is the first person, fellow human beings the second, and themselves the third.

Storm of Protest Directed At Brighton Hydro Com. For Action on Overdue Bills

By DON SWAIN

Trenton — (Special) —An electrical disturbance is causing quite an uproar in Brighton, 10 miles west of here. The source of the trouble is not a thunder storm, but a storm of protest that is being directed at the Brighton Hydro Commission.

The controversy started early last spring, when a check of meter reading revealed some discrepancies between the figures listed on the bills and the actual readings on the meters. As a result, between 150 and 160 of the 2,000 residents were billed for electricity used as far back as six years ago. Monday was the deadline set by the local hydro commission for paying these back bills which range from $10 to as much as $100 and a 11-day stream of irate citizens was going to the hydro office to pay bills "under protest."

Wall Of Secrecy

In Brighton, the hydro commission is about as popular with some people as a reporter is with the hydro commission. The only difference being that the hydro commission has wrapped itself in a tight wall of secrecy and flatly refuses to talk to reporters, while the people who are being forced to pay for electricity they are certain they have already paid for are talking plenty..

'I have no comment to make at this time," stated Hydro Commission Chairman Fred Thorne. When it was pointed out that the dissatisfied customers were telling everyone their story and that the commission's side of the question was essential to obtain an objective picture, Mr. Thorne repeated his statement and added that he had told "Toronto papers the same thing." Mr. Thorne said that the manager of the hydro commission, M. D. Yearwood, had also been instructed not to talk to reporters. The Commission chairman even refused to confirm or deny reports that everyone who failed to make a payment on these arrears by Monday night would have their lights cut Tuesday morning.

Meters Read Wrongly

Reeve W. H. Conn, who is a member of the hydro commission proved more approachable. He explained that "some meters were under read and others overread. We are just asking people to pay for the hydro they have used. If everyone does not pay their share then some one else has to make up for it."

A few doors down from the hydro office, Ross Brothers' automobile showroom was the focal point for dissatisfied hydro users. "We have always paid our current bills on time but we are only paying these under protest," said R. J. Ross. We have retained a Belleville lawyer and we are going to sue the commission. About $245 has been collected from 45 or 50 people who kicked in to help fight the thing," he said.

Mr. Ross, who is a school trustee, is one of the leaders of the opposition to the commission, along with councillor Scotty Broughton, who called an indignation meeting to protest the commission's action on June 20th. "This meeting was the largest meeting ever held in Brighton,' said Mr Ross. "For those of us who are able to pay, it is bad enough, but for old age pensioners and widows it is much worse. Some old age pensioners have been billed for as much as $50, and this is a real hardship, even though the commission is letting them pay the amount off at so much a month," said Mr. Ross.

Consumers Receive Letters

On August 4th, the hydro commission sent a letter to all users of hydro who were being billed for energy used during the last few years which stated, "there have been irregularities in taking the meter readings from the electric meter installed in your premises and in consequence you have been underbilled for energy used on your premises. Your commission regrets that these irregularities have occurred and that you are now in arrears for energy supplied through no fault of your own."

It is this last phrase "through no fault of your own" that is the touchy point with those who have received back bills. Everyone interviewed emphasized they were not trying to evade honest debts, but they had always paid their bills in good faith and that the commission had not offered a satisfactory explanation for these "irregularities."

Pay Under Protest

A typical example is Jack Loomis. Mr. Loomis said he had paid all his electric bills and was led to believe his account was up to date. Then he received a bill "estimating" what he would have paid for if the meter had been read properly which amounted to $67. "My wife is sick in bed and requires an electric heating pad. I cannot afford to take chances on having my power cut off so I have no alternative but to pay it under protest," he said.

Oscar C. Morgan who had also received an "estimated bill for several years back," said he had been away at a cottage for two months each year for the last six year. Mr. Morgan pointed out to the commission manager that this amounted to a full year he was away from home and not using electricity in the last six years, but the estimate had been based on six full years. Mr. Morgan said the manager Mr. Yearwood refused to listen to his claim and he too saw no alternative but to pay the bill until the matter could be settled in court.

Lands and Forests Dept. Displays Pens of Animals

The Department of Lands and Forests is back at the fair this year. And with them they brought a small black bear, a couple of beavers, a fawn, and an almost full-grown deer. The display was banked with pine and spruce, and if you shut your eyes, you could almost smell Algonquin Park.

The booth was intended to be more instructional than amusing, and signs such as "Green forests mean jobs and lumber— fires mean waste and destruction" were in prominent display.

But it was the animals that drew the crowd. The bear, one Department official said, came from down near Carrying Place or Rossmore. He wasn't right out of the wild, being owned by "a man named Parsons," the official thought. The beaver, he said, had been caught somewhere around here and would be released after the show.

None of the animals showed as much interest in the public as the public did in them. Beaver, in particuar, studiously ignored all comers. They were content to flop down on the floor, with their heads as far away from the moving crowd as possible. The bear was a little more restless. The fawn and the deer, in separate pens, with their own peculiar sort of majesty, did not deign to even raise their heads.

Best eye-catcher in the booth, however, was a sort of tableau representing the swath a forest fire cuts when it gets going. The piece of work stands about a foot high, has a glass front, on which is painted the forest. Behind the glass, moving red lights give the impression of fire in the background. It's a very effective exhibit.

But the animals which could have made a real show for the kiddies on the traditional Children's Day, refused to co-operate. They wouldn't even sniff politely, let alone look.

MUDDY THAMES

Great Yarmouth, Eng.—(CP)—Five sea cadets, ages 14 to 18, sailed through storms and dirty weather to London without any trouble. When they arrived, they took one look at their 27-foot whaler and groaned. It was filthy from Thames River water—after they'd taken three months to get things ship-shape for the trip.

EXPERIMENTAL FARM

Fort William, Ont. — (CP) — Lakehead Technical Institute has announced acceptance of an 18-square-mile track west of Jessie Lake on the Nipigon River for use as an experimental forest and farm for students.

Taffy Puller Gives Children Plenty of Thrills

The only free show on the midway at the fair yesterday was the best. Over behind the ring games and the shooting galleries, an elderly man had the children swarming around his booth by pulling taffy all over the place.

The oldsters got a kick out of the show too, "Haven't seen a taffy pull for years," one said. The man had about five feet of the candy in a rope about eight or nine inches in diameter, and he was throwing it around in front of his booth just like everybody else flips a coin.

The taffy man had a large hook anchored to one of the posts of his booth, and he was throwing the taffy over the hook in large loops. All the while, he kept up a steady line of chatter. When the taffy was the right consistency, he placed it on a greased tin, and proceeded to hand out free samples to all the kiddies.

It was good. too.

THOUSANDS

Bishop John Treacy of the La Crosse Diocese, of which Mrs. Van Hoof's church is a parish, issued a pronouncement last week forbidding church-sponsored religious exercises at the farm. He warned that attendance of priests nuns and lay Catholics "may bring dishonor to the traditional devotion of the Mother of God.'

To this Mrs. Van Hoof replied, "I must go ahead with it or else our Blessed Mother will punish me."

Today is the feast of the assumption of the Blessed Virgin, a holy day of obligation for Roman Catholics and they are requested to attend mass. Bishop Treacy has urged Catholics to attend mass at the Necedah Parish Church.

A shrine has been erected of rough planks in front of the black-and-white, tar - papered home of the Van Hoofs. On it stands a white statue of Our Lady of Fatima, a gift of Milwaukee religious organization. It is banked with flowers brought by neighbors.

In back of the shrine are three small ash trees. It is in this little clump of trees that Mrs. Van Hoof contends she first saw the apparition May 28 last coming out of a blue mist. She also contends she heard the voice of the Virgin Mary on one previous occasion but did not see her.

Children Have Gala Time At Fair's Unofficial Opening, Thrilled by Attractions

It was Children's Day at the Exhibition Grounds yesterday when the 1950 edition of the Belleville Fair got unofficially under way.

The official opening with the customary speeches and ceremony took place at two o'clock this afternoon.

However yesterday was King Kid's day to howl and he wasn't fooling by any stretch of the imagination. Thousands of the youngsters, some of them carried in mama's or papa's arms, thronged the grounds in what was estimated to be the best unofficial opening day in years.

The Conklin Midway was the mecca for a shouting, laughing, gesticulating throng of kiddies in the afternoon with their numbers scarcely diminished at night. Adults, too, took in the preliminaries, if they can be called that, and the result was a large enthusiastic crowd that enjoyed the first day and night.

Midway Crowded

The Midway is a 1950 edition of other years. There are the traditional rides, games, "feed stalls," contest booths and other colorful entertainment paraphernalia that is part and parcel of any fair, only in a large quantity.

Local "Gene Autreys" and "Hopalong Cassidys" had a field day at the shootin' galleries. Potential bookies and race track enthusiasts enjoyed backing mechanical horses in an exciting race game. Adepts at ring tossing had plenty of opportunity for their special accomplishment. A new game of darts with good prizes in the balance tested the skill of youthful miniature harpoonists. In fact there are all kinds of skill-testing contests that were well patronized both afternoon and evening.

Plenty of Rides

Along the Midway there is plenty of entertainment. For instance howls of mechanical laughter emanate from an enclosure marked a "Ride to Mars" and they tell us that there is plenty of fun riding this midway edition of a rocket ship. Then there are the pygmy horses, a bevy of miniature dobbins that is a distinct novelty.

There is a monkey circus too that delighted the kids and oldsters yesterday. A motordrome that features the smoking hellions of the motorcycle in death-defying rides thrilled crowds last night. "Hells Belles," a feature showing twelve strange women, opened today and proved one of the attractions of the midway.

There are plenty of rides including the ubiquitous merry-go-round, tilt-a-whirl, huge tub of water in which miniature speedboats cavort, rocket planes, aerial cars, chair-o-planes, and many others dear to the heart of the kiddies.

Stage Extravaganza

The stage extravaganza produced by the George Hamid Company of New York City is a delightful entertainment departure from that which has featured this phase of fair fun in the past.

New and novel acts, outstanding artists, many of whom have been featured on top-flight television programs in New York and the West Coast, offer a variable attraction that pleased large crowds yesterday.

Each act from the personable master of ceremonies, Bob Bruce an outstanding harmonica virtuoso in his own right, down to eight-months-old Jackie, a chimpanzee, is a feature by itself.

Helen Haag's educated chimpanzees proved one of the outstanding features of the show. Margaret, a lady chimp, is almost human and does stunts that many a human being cannot do. She is tight rope walker, equilibrist, acrobat, motor cyclist and bicycle rider among many other accomplishments. Last night for the first time, she took her buddy, Patty, for a tandem ride on her motor bike while the audience howled.

Thrills by Acrobats

There are the Aerial Snyders, two daring aerialists who thrill the crowd with their stunts atop a 130-foot high trapeze. The climax of the act is a spine-thriller and should not be missed by the public.

The clown act of Slim Collins and Rube Simmonads is a sidesplitter. The pair go through a sequence of funny but clever stunts that mix humor with artistry in a rapid-fire act.

Shirley Lavalle, an attractive contortionist, was well received at yesterday's shows, while the Eddies, a European novelty act from Denmark, is cleverly done. The pair execute a tap-dance routine plentifully interspersed with acrobatics and in turn offer trumpet duets to the accompaniment of twinkling toes.

Joan Wilson performs at the electric organ and provides the musical background for the show. She is an accomplished organist and her offerings were well received. Bob Bruce the master-of-ceremonies "gives" with a brilliant performance on his harmonica. Kric and Kroc, a comedy pair, and Mike Munro, tramp-o-line comedian, round out an excellent stage bill-of-fare.

Ideal picnic weather prevailed during the recent annual Cannons' reunitn which was held on the shore of North Bay, Consecon. Members of this family began to assemble at 11 o'clock and at 12.30 all sat down to a bountiful repast following the singing of grace.

After a time spent in visiting, the president, Mrs. Rachel Mathews, of Cannifton, called the gathering to order.

It was decided to meet at a later date to decide the date and place of the reunion next year. The same committees were re-elected being president, Mrs. Rachel Mathews, Cannifton; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Dorothy Istead of Consecon, R.R. No. 1.

Inexpensive gifts were distributed by Mrs. Dorothy Istead as follows:

Coming longest distance—Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lywood, Galt, Ont.; eldest lady, Mrs. Peter Grass, of Brighton, R.R. 1; eldest gentleman, Mr. Ernest Margetson, Consecon, R.R. 2; longest married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Margetson, Consecon. R.R. 2; newest married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fry, of Belleville; youngest child, Dean Freemantle, Port Hope.

Other prizes were given for different ages and racing.

A candy and peanut scramble was given to both young and old.

A treat of ice cream was enjoyed by all.

In all there are now 79 relatives residing in Canada, and of these 62 were able to attend.

They were present from Galt, Port Hope, Brighton, Frankford, Trenton, Kingston, Belleville, Cannifton and Consecon.

This was one of the most enjoyable get-togethers ever held by the friends and relatives of the Cannons family.

Whirlwind Romance Of Septuagenarians

Port Elizabeth, South Africa—(CP)— A "whirlwind romance of two months culminated here recently in the marriage of 79-year-old Willem Hendrik Stoltz and Mrs. Susanna Jacoba Le Roux, 73.

Both have been married before and they have a total of 17 children.

They were married in the dining room of Mr. Stolz's house here by a minister of the Dutch Reformed Church. Present at the ceremony were four of Mr. Stoltz's sons and their children, and one of Mrs. Roux's children.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He disappointed her—She's afraid to trust him

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A few months ago I introduced a girl friend of mine to the man I am planning to marry. She made a big play for him, and he went out with her a few times. I didn't find out about this until later, when he came to me and told me about it. He said he does not know himself why he went out with her, and asked my forgiveness. I did forgive him because I love him very much.

Since that time, however, I can't seem to trust him as much as before. If something comes up that he has to break a date, I think right away that he is cheating again. I feel that I cannot go into a marriage with him if we do not trust each other completely, because I know we would never be happy.

R.

Dear R.:

You are quite right in thinking that it would be a mistake to marry someone without trusting him. You would have a pretty unhappy time of it if you were always wondering where he was and what he was doing when he was away from you, and not believing what he told you about his actions.

On the other hand, you are probably taking this too seriously. Of course it isn't very nice of an engaged man to hurt his fiancee by taking another girl out. Still, he did come and tell you about it himself, which shows, I think, that he is basically honest and trustworthy. After all, he didn't even have to mention it, if he had not wanted to.

If I were you, I wouldn't make an issue of this, but just forget about it. Some day, you know, you may want him to be understanding and forgiving about some thoughtless thing you might do.

Thanks for your interest, Reb—It's appreciated

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I enjoy your column very much, and want to express my gratitude, because it has helped me immeasurably. Several times I was going to write to you about my problems, but I found my answers in your comment on letters from people who had similar problems.

What I'd like to say is that the letter from the girl who had her friends beat up a girl who was going with a boy she liked shocked me. I agreed with your answer to her wholeheadtedly, and hope she has taken your advice to see a psychiatrist. I don't believe people in their right minds would do such things.

Reb.

Dear Reb.:

Thank you so much for taking the trouble to write me such a nice note. It is always very pleasant when people are thoughtful enough to let me know that they like my column.

It was indeed a very shocking thing that was described in the letter you mention, and I hope that what I said in my comment on it may have helped somewhat to make the girl in the case realize what a dreadful thing she did.

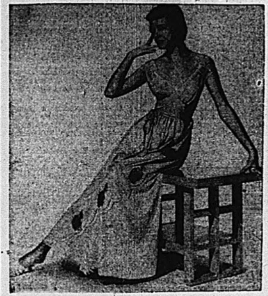
Gown With Flower Appliques



By PRUNELLA WOOD

WINTER roses is the name given this new nylon nightgown which will give you an idea of what the new season's lingerie will look like. Quite different from the froufrou, transparent lace and net summery models, but just as pretty, and mildly priced.

The model has a new off-shoulder neckline which becomes draped cap sleeves, and a girdle midriff cut; it is the garland of flower appliques, set in double rows of hemstitching scallops, that gives the title.

Colors are pretty and imaginative beyond good old pink and blue: French gray with pink appliques, pale iris with lavender, white with poppy red.

The radishes weighing up to 40 pounds apiece that are grown in the Orient aren't needed for today's recipe.

Radishes were eaten in Egypt long before the building of the pyramids. Ancient Greeks made replicas of radishes in gold, so valued were radishes as a food.

The pungent flavor of radishes makes them perfect for bland salads, like macaroni or potato, but you do not want radishes that are so strong they bring tears to the eyes.

Generally young radishes with green leaves are more mild than radishes with yellow or wilted leaves. Older radishes are inclined to be spongy or pithy. Use firm white radishes to make a cold macaroni salad.

Cook the macaroni only until it is barely tender. Wash it in 3 or 4 cold waters to remove all loose starch. Just as macaroni and cheese make a hot casserole, so can this combination make a delightful summer salad.

Prepare the salad 2 or 3 hours before serving so that the macaroni can marinate in the dressing and all flavors can be blended.

Macaroni and Cheese Salad
4-5 Servings

Drop 2 cups elbow macaroni into 3 quarts of rapidly boiling water to which 1 tablespoon salt has been added. Stir at once to keep macaroni from sticking together. Boil 8-10 minutes or less if possible.

Drain macaroni. Wash in cold water, stirring well. Rinse and wash until water is left clear. Drain.

Cut enough radishes, white preferred, to make 1-2 cup slices. Cut 1-2 cup celery into small cubes. Cut 1-4 cup canned pimiento into cubes.

Combine macaroni, 1-2 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing, radishes, celery and pimientos. Add 2 tablespoons grated onion. Add 1-2 cup sharp American cheese run through the grater or cut into small cubes. Add salt and pepper to taste. Mix well.

If a more moist salad is desired, add dressing. Add lemon juice or vinegar for a more piquante flavor.

Women Forecasters Predict Weather

Toronto—(CP)—Canada's male meteorologists are joking about silk stockings replacing the windsocks at airports now that women have taken over some forecasting jobs throughout the Dominion.

The women forecasters, all Master of Arts graduates, are given field training by the Canadian Meteorological Division's Forecast Service, then left to find their own jobs.

Mrs. Gloria Ellenton, 22, formerly of London, Ont., has taken over holiday forecasting duties at nearby Malton, and Lillian Dunn of Edmonton is assigned to the Weather Bureau in her home town. Both received M.A. degrees from the University of Toronto last spring.

Until recently, Armelda Ann McCulloch of Vancouver, University of British Columbia graduate, had been forecasting at Moncton, N.B. Now she has resigned to get married.

Mrs. Ellenton found a way to combine marriage and a career. Her husband is on the Malton Weather Bureau staff.

P. D. McTaggart-Cowan, head of the Meteorological division, said women forecasters were employed in Great Britain during the Second World War "with varying success."

Canada's only wartime woman forecaster, Mrs. C. H. Sutherland, worked successfully at Moncton and now is married to a member of the Weather Bureau staff at Gander, Nfld.

Sister Emma Wields Plane

Winnipeg — (CP) — Sawdust speckled the black gown of Sister Emma St. Gabriel of the Sisters of the Cross.

A sharp planing tool in her grasp, Sister Emma was busy fashioning a coffee table in the workshop of Manitoba Teacher's Summer School.

Sister Emma, one of 35 students in the school's woodworking section, teaches that subject to Junior High School students at Willow Bunch, Sask. This year she is brushing up by attending summer school.

The woodworking section was one of many activities at this year's summer school. In another room, Miss Ruth Crowe of Aberden, Man., who teaches mathematics all winter, was giving instruction in weaving technique to 18 beginners.

Another group of 46 teachers collaborated on a series of murals, one depicting the journey of the Selkirk settlers from Portage La Prairie to York Factory.

GOOD MANNERS

Wife is hostess at store's opening

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My husband is planning a "Grand Opening" of his large new store (a Super-Market) in the near future. The opening is from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. My husband has asked me to be at the door to welcome the customers. He tells me that I should wear an evening gown, but I don't really think this would be proper. Please advise me as to what I should wear.

2. Although I don't live in that community yet (I will soon when our house is completed), I know practically everyone in that neighborhood. However, I am sure there will be many strangers there that day too. What would be the right thing for me to say to them as they arrive at the store?

Marie E.

1. Your judgment and taste are right and sure. . . for this occasion you should be dressed simply, appropriately . . not inappropriately "dressed up"! Wearing an evening dress at 9 a.m. would certainly look strange, and the customers would wonder at your taste. For this occasion, from nine in the morning till nine in the evening, you would show best taste by wearing a simple day-time dress, a tailored sports dress, for example, (simple design, simple lines) not too light and not too dark in color.

2. Say your greeting graciously "Good morning (or 'Good afternoon' or 'Good evening'), Mrs. Clark. It's very nice to have you come . . . and welcome to our new store." To those customers whom you don't know, you would introduce yourself in your welcome, "Good morning . . . I am Mrs. Edwards, and my husband and I are so happy you came today."

Shade of dress for the groom's mother

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Would it be proper for me, the groom's mother, to buy a periwinkle-blue lace evening gown for my son's evening wedding, when the maid of honor has told me that she is going to wear a blue dress but what the shade of blue and the material are not decided yet? I should explain that this is to be a Jewish wedding, in which the bride's parents and the groom's parents stand at the front under the canopy to wait for the bridal couple, maid of honor, bridesmaids, and ushers to come up the aisle.

M. W.

You could charmingly show your thoughtfulness and courteous co-operation by consulting with the bride's mother and/or the bride to find out what shade of blue the bride has chosen for her maid of honor to wear. The color of your dress must harmonize with the color of the bride's mother's dress. . . and certainly it should not be identical or even similar to the color or shade-of-color of the maid of honor's dress.

Correct to have only one bridesmaid

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In my bridal party for my wedding this Fall would it be proper for me to have a maid of honor and only one bridesmaid? I have been told that it is proper to have two or more bridesmaids or none at all—but not only one bridesmaid.

P.K.

Certainly it is proper for you to have a maid of honor and only one bridesmaid, if this is your wish. The bridesmaid would walk alone in the processional, after the ushers and before the maid of honor. And the dresses of the maid of honor and bridesmaid might be of the same design but of different colors, or the designs might vary as well as the colors. Also to emphasize the difference of position, that the maid of honor is your chief attendant as well as official witness, you might have the maid of honor's bouquet of more important design.

Handicapped Woman Guiding Cripples

Saskatoon, —(CP) — Dr. Ann Carlsen, child guidance director of the Jamestown, N.D., School for Crippled Children, is an excellent example for handicapped children to look upon.

For what she accomplishes in her work with crippled children is done under the constant burden of her own extreme handicap.

Dr. Carlsen was born without arms or legs. She handles herself expertly on artificial legs.

She passed through here on her way home from Regina where she attended the opening of a four-week clinic for cerebral-palsied children.

In an interview, she said the crippled child's future depends on the help given by parents. She emphasized that mothers and fathers of cerebral-palsied children should realize their child's illness was no one's fault and that, with patience, work and understanding, these children can be made happy, self-sufficient and worthwhile citizens.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR FAIR'S HONEY

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMIESON

Little girls want to be pretty

As soon as a little girl is old enough to stand before a mirror she is interested in her appearance. A new hair ribbon can send her into a state of happy excitement. By the time she is ten she has definite ideas as to how she should look. Mainly, she must be dressed like others in her age bracket. The wise mother will let her express her wishes and opinions, gently direct her toward suitable selections. Every woman knows how she hates to wear a frock that no longer appeals to her. Children are even more sensitive about these matters.

One should start early to teach a child to be neat and dainty. She must take care of the items of her wardrobe, hanging up her frocks and coats, putting her shoes on shoe trees, keeping her room in order. She will acquire good habits that will remain through life, helping to build for attractiveness and self-respect.

The little girl, who doesn't care if her hands need washing and whose tousled hair gives her no concern, will develop into a slovenly wife and housekeeper. Order must be instilled in the youthful mind for the sake of the child's happiness.

Little girls are interested in their appearances

The daily bath should be considered a pleasure, not a stern duty. Nothing like it to import freshness; it has a glowing and stimulating effect upon the skin.

Little daughter should have her own brushes, wash cloths and towels which should be kept in their proper places in the bath room. Every night before going to bed she should wash her face thoroughly; this ritual is extremely important, as, at the age of fourteen, a child is likely to have an excessively oily skin, one that forms blackheads which may develop into acne. Soap must be rinsed away.

If her skin is rough she should have her own jar of cold cream to use after the facial scrubbing. It is scarcely necessary to say that she must have her own brush and comb, be taught to keep them clean, to use the brush frequently upon her silky tresses. Hair that receives care in childhood has a good chance of avoiding ills of the scalp and moulting periods that may come later in life.

It is not to be expected that a girl can give herself a shampoo. It is to be expected that she will accept it gracefully, not fly into tantrums. A shampoo halo, which can be purchased at almost any notion counter, will keep the soap suds out of her eyes. Once a week is the rule for the head scrubbing.

Now that mamma has short hair daughter will want a 3-inch-cut. After all, that is the most sensible mode, being easy to keep clean, no trouble to arrange.

Most important of course is care of the teeth. Little Cutie should brush hers night and morning, no matter how loud her protest may be.

PRINCESS GIVES

Princess Margaret also is in Scotland visiting friends.

Both the Duke and the Princess had hoped for a girl.

News of the birth was promptly transmitted to the home secretary, James Chuter Ede, who followed custom by pinning a notice to the door of the home office.

Queen at Home

Queen Elizabeth had arrived at Clarence House just a few minutes before the birth of her second grandchild.

The little Princess was born in Princess Elizabeth's Queen Anne style bedroom in Clarence House, the home of Elizabeth and Philip, not far from Buckingham Palace. She is the first royal baby to be born there.

A patient and growing crowd of several hundred had waited expectantly outside Elizabeth's residence throughout the morning.

Air force units in Britain had received special orders in deference to the birth, which had been expected since last week. All airmen were instructed by their commanders not to fly over Clarence House until after the baby was born.

Princess Third in Line

The infant automatically ranks third in line for the crown — a position which has led to the throne for 12 of England's 39 sovereigns since the Norman conquest in 1066.

Five of the last six monarchs, including the present king, George VI, were at times ranked third.

The baby, however, could lose her rank as third in line to any children born to her brother, Prince Charles.

Princess Elizabeth herself was third in the line when she was born 24 years ago. The death of her grandfather, George V, and the abdication of Edward VIII—now the Duke of Windsor — put her father on the throne and made her heiress - presumptive. Edward, too, ranked third when he was born.

Elizabeth, known as heiress - presumptive rather than heiress-apparent because if a son were born to her mother, Queen Elizabeth, he would become first in line of succession. It is officially presumed, however, that there will be no further children born to the King and Queen.

The new child starts out life with a lot of hand-me-downs.

She will be pushed around in Prince Charles' baby buggy. But her older brother shouldn't mind. He has a new sit-up stroller. Anyhow, the old buggy had been used by Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret long before.

The same goes for the crib, for the layette and Prince Charles' toys. All of them go to the newborn; but this may ease the strain on the household budget enough to assure Prince Charles a new bed and new toys befitting a young man of 21 months.

Then in Malta

First official hint to the public that Princess Elizabeth was expecting another child came in an announcement from Buckingham Palace April 17—four days before her 24th birthday — that she would undertake no further public engagements.

She was then in Malta with the Duke of Edinburgh, serving as First Lieutenant on the destroyer Chequest. On returning to London the Princess attended a few public functions during June and July before retiring to the seclusion of her Clarence House residence.

Late in July the Duke was granted extended leave and on his return to duty will assume full command of a frigate.

Princess Elizabeth was born in London April 21, 1926.

Elder daughter of the King and Queen —then the Duke and Duchess of York—she was a fair-haired, merry girl of 10, when the news arrived that her uncle King Edward VIII had abdicated and would be succeeded by her father.

Real Love Match

Her marriage Nov. 20, 1947, to Lieut. Philip Mountbatten, was a real love match.

Only son of the late Prince Andrew of Greece and Princess Alice, eldest daughter of the first Marquess of Milford Haven, Lt. Mountbatten's first recollection of meeting the girl was to be his wife, was at the coronation of the King in 1937.

They met again when the King and Queen visited the Royal Naval College, Dartmouth, where Philip was a cadet. The war came and he went to sea but the two young people corresponded.

July 9, 1947, a court circular announced the King and Queen had "gladly given their consent" to the betrothal of the Princess to the man of her choice.

Given High Honors

Before the wedding in Westminister Abbey Nov. 20, 1947, the King conferred on Lieut. Mountbatten the titles of Duke of Edinburgh, Earl of Merioneth and Baron Greenwich. He also authorized his future son-in-law to use the prefix "His Royal Highness" and made him a Knight Companion of the Garter.

On her marriage the Princess was voted by parliament a personal additional allowance of £25,000 a year. The Duke was voted an annual grant of £10,-000.

There was great rejoicing when Nov. 14, 1948, their son, Prince Charles, Philip Arthur, George, was born.

The atmosphere inside Buckingham Palace was one of excitement and tension. Outside crowds gathered early in the evening. They cheered lustily when a royal servant walked across the courtyard to the palace gates and announced: "It's a boy". He weighed seven pounds, 10 ounces.

In High Spirits

The Duke, who like any other prospective father, had been nervously pacing the palace corridors, was in high spirits and the King and Queen, too, were delighted at the arrival of their first grandchild. Queen Mary drove over later from Marlborough House.

More than 4,000 telegrams of congratulation, a record for the court post office in a single day, were received by the Princess and the Duke.

The bells of St. Paul's and Westminster pealed in celebration the following day and the salute of guns boomed in Hyde Park and the Tower of London. Similar celebrations took place in the Dominions, where the governors-general had been informed by the King's private secretary.

Princess Margaret, who was away for the week-end did not see her nephew until he was nearly two days old.

By an edict of the King, issued under the great seal, the title of "Royal Highness" and the titular dignity of "Prince or Princess" was extended to the children of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh.

THREE MISSING

An effort was being made to learn if by any chance they might have escaped safely and have been dispersed without record among passengers taken to hotels here, at Murray Bay and Quebec.

An Saguenay Cruise

Early today C. S. L. officials in Quebec said they had been informed all passengers and crew members were safe. Crewmen of the ship also said they thought no one had been left behind.

The passengers, many from the United States, boarded the 22-year-old ship at Montreal Sunday and Quebec yesterday for the famous Saguenay River cruise.

Only cool-headed work by the ship's crew, the passengers' calm behavior and the top-speed dash to Tadoussac, a half-hour away when the fire broke out, avoided a major disaster.

The fire, its origin not yet definitely established, broke out on one of the upper decks of the slim white ship shortly after 5 p. m. EDT as she approached the Saguenay River, a St. Lawrence tributary 137 miles below Quebec.

Many of the Canadian and United States tourist passengers were scattered about the several decks of the cruiser observing the approach to the Saguenay — an abrupt cut between high walls of rock.

Over loud-speakers came a recorded talk about the history of the Saguenay and Tadoussac and their beauties.

Dr. D. W. Bussmann of Clayton, Mo., a suburb of St. Louis, travelling with his wife and five children, had gone out on deck for the approach to Tadoussac.

Ordered Full Speed

"Then a woman came along and said that the boat was on fire," Dr. Bussmann reported. "I doubted that there was a fire but sure enough I saw smoke coming out of a corridor. I figured it wouldn't be long until we reached Tadoussac but I was worried.

Capt. C. H. Burch, 60, of St. Lambert, Que., a suburb of Montreal, ordered full speed for Tadoussac, a resort settlement built on the Saguenay cliffsides.

Passengers moved to forward and after decks and all cabins were cleared. The holidayers donned life-belts while members of the crew went to work with hoses and fire extinguishers.

Guy Paquet of Sillery, Que., who had boarded the ship at Quebec with his wife for a lower St. Lawrence vacation said:

"There was no panic. All was very calm. The crew got out hoses and fought the fire but few of us saw any flame, just the smoke."

Eyewitness Account

F. I. Ker, publisher of the Hamilton Spectator, holidaying at Tadoussac said that Capt. Burch brought his ship into a jetty about 5.40 p.m. He told about the passengers evacuation, most of them making their escapes ashore by emergency ladders.

All the ship's fire-fighting equipment was kept in action after the Quebec tied up and Tadoussac firemen joined in the battle. Four hours after docking practically all parts of the Quebec above water had been ruined.

Some passengers thought the fire originated in a linen cupboard near cabin 121 but there was no confirmation of this report from C.S.L. representatives who awaited the official version from Capt. Burch.

Archaeologists Seek Lost Tomb of King Midas

Ankara, Turkey, (Reuters) — A team of American archaeologists working 100 miles south of here hopes to find the tomb of King Midas, the legendary Phrygian ruler with "the golden touch."

Professor Rodney Young of Pennsylvania University and the group working with him hope to complete the excavations next year. They are working at Gordion. From the tenth to the seventh centuries B.C. the capital of Phrygia stood on this site.

Legend has it that Baccus, God of Wine and General Revelry, gave Midas the power that everything he touched would turn to gold. The gift backfired on the varicious old King, however. Bathing was made difficult, if not impossible, and tragedy resulted when Midas touched his daughter —turning her into a little gold statue.

At any rate, the expedition so far has found no fantastic treasure trove as might adorn King Midas' burial place. Not until next year do they expect to crack open an exceptionally high burial mound which may turn out to be the tomb of Midas.

The central point of the diggings is a large burial mound some 1800 feet by 900 and more than 45 feet high. Around it are about 50 other mounds, most of which are probably burial sites also.

One of the highest, possible the burial place of King Midas, rises to about 120 feet and is among the highest known in Europe or Asia Minor. It is the one scheduled for investigation next year.

No startling finds have been made by the diggers. But they have unearthed a number of exquisitely-fashioned gold bracelets and necklets, a silver mirror with an ivory handle and an ivory rouge-box in the shape of a duck. Archaeologists believe the woman who tinted her cheeks with the aid of this mirror and the rough-box lived about six centuries before the birth of Christ.

A striking feature of the bracelets is the joints, formed by interlocking lions' heads. The necklets, of equally fine workmanship, show representations of acorns and pomegranates.

Russians Design Jet Fighter For Night Work

Washington, Aug. 15. (AP)—A Soviet jet fighter designed especially for night operations against bombers is listed among four Russian warplanes reported developed recently.

The 1949-model Lavochkin twin-jet night fighter is described in an article appearing in the current issue of flying magazine. It was written by Charles W. Cain, instructor at the Birtish War Office School of Aircraft recognition who edited the Russian sector of the authoritative book Jane's "all the world's aircraft."

Top speed of the night fighter is estimated as "in the region of 650 miles an hour." Its wings are swept back to a 35-degree angle, its fuselage narrow and tapering, its armament believed to include either two or four heavy cannon.

Another of the four new planes is reported to be a twin-jet Lavochkin day fighter, perhaps a modification of the Yak-15 or the MIG-9 designs which appeared about five years ago.

Still another Lavochkin type is a single-jet model with an extreme (54-degree) sweep-back of the wings. One interesting feature mentioned by the magazine is the reported use of dive brakes in the wings—a device used for tactical operation of a plane in close-in pin-pointing of targets in support of ground troops.

The fourth plane is a single-jet Mikoyan fighter, with a top speed reputedly more than 625 miles an hour. Cain notes the presence of long tubes on each side of the nose which he says indicates Russian engineers may have developed a "small air-to-air missile, possibly guided, or that the plane is equipped with recoilless cannon."

Early Wynn Keeping Cleveland Indians in the Pennant Fight By Defeating Detroit Tigers

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Early Wynn's contribution to the Cleveland Indians' pennant drive is greater than his record indicates.

The 30-year-old righthander has turned in 13 victories but 7 of them have been over the other first division teams — Detroit, New York and Boston.

Only Bob Lemon, ace righthander, has a better record on the Cleveland team. Lemon, who goes after his 19th victory today in the final of a two-game series against the pace-setting Tigers, has scored eight triumphs against first division teams.

Wynn considerably brightened the Indians' pennant outlook last night as he turned back the Tigers, 3-2, in a 10-inning thriller before 60,120 fans in Cleveland's Municipal Stadium. The triumph moved the runner-up tribe to within 2½ games of the Bengals.

The Indians scored a run in the second inning and Wynn nursed this slender margin until the ninth.

In the ninth, with one out, Hoot Evers beat out a slow bounder. Johnny Groth followed with a home run.

The vast throng began to move silently toward the exit gates as Hal Newhouser retired the first two Indians in the last of the 9th. But Al (Flip) Rosen brought them back by socking a home run well over the left field fence to tie the score. The belt was Rosen's 31st of the year.

The Tigers threatened in the 10th but Wynn struck out George Kell with a runner on second to end the bid and the Indians quickly broke up the game in their half of the inning.

Allie Clark started things with a double. Bob Avila went in to run for Clark. Jim Hegan was intentionally passed and Wynn sacrificed the runners along. Newhouser then purposely walked Ike Boone to load the bases.

Manager Lou Boudreau sent left-handed hitting Dale Mitchell up to bat for highthanded hitting Bob Kennedy. Mitchell sent a high bounder to short. Connie Berry fired the ball home but the speedy Avila slid under the throw to win the game.

The game was the only one in the American League. The other teams were not scheduled to play.

Action in the National League also was slight. In the only games played, the Chicago Cubs nipped the St. Louis Cardinals, 7-6, and the improving Cincinnati Reds thrashed the Pittsburgh Pirates, 13-8.

Sports Roundup

By WILL GRIMSLEY
(For Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)

New York, Aug. 15 (AP)—We haven't enrolled yet in Mrs. Figure-Flatter's School of fashion and designing, but that is not to say we don't think it's an excellent idea. We do.

For a long time we have felt it is not enough for the well-rounded sports writer today to know how to describe an athletic combat. He also must be conversant with things sartorial, be ready with a quick, fresh word on what the athletes do and don't wear.

Why, just in the last few days the news wires carried a report that gorgeous Gussy Moran might surrender to the lure of professional tennis gold—if enough of it is offered.

Brunette and Bing

The California Miss suddenly has become the No. 1 desirable of the pro promoters—more so than Wimbledon champion Budge Patty, say, or Louise Brough, perhaps the best female tennis player of them all.

Miss Moran is a nicely-arranged brunette who hits a fair tennis ball. But as far as we can ascertain she has never won any of the big ones. The pros want her because she is given to wearing lace on her tennis shorts.

Miss Moran became the sensation at Wimbledon last year because when she stooped for a low ball, a delicate bit of fringe peeked out from the flaired skirt. The tournament became secondary.

When Wimbledon came up again this year, we read reams, decorated with pictures, of her outfit—a bloomer-type affair, with pleats, no less.

When Gussy played in Egypt she excited the natives with a pair of provocative black shorts. They raised such a commotion that it became necessary for her to issue a communique later insisting they weren't under-things, at all, just a regulation garment of another color.

Now sports writers properly equipped for their job would have recognized the distinction right away.

Staid old St. Andrew's, Scotland didn't enthuse this spring over Frank Stranahan's crisp two-iron shots or Willie Turnesa's deadly wedge play.

Ransom Defeats Chick Harbert For Big Jackpot

Chicago, Aug. 15 — (AP) — "Daddy" Henry Ransom defeated Detroit's Chick Harbert by three strokes, 69-72, yesterday in a playoff for the Tam O'Shanter "World" Pro Golf Championship.

Ranson's first prize—$11,000 — was a treasure chest unmatched in golf history. Harbert's cut was $5,000. The difference of $6,000 was decided in a four-hour match followed by 10,000 spectators. Among the crowd was Mrs. Ransom, her 20-months-old son, Henry, Jr., and nine-year-old daughter, Marsha.

They wanted to see what "Daddy" was doing the same as the rest. Well "Daddy" was hot.

The 39-year-old Ransom went six strokes under par on five consecutive holes. He rolled in 12, 13, and 15 foot putts and dropped a 70 foot pitch shot.

The $11,000 skyrocketed Ransom from 10th on the pro money-winning list to second with a total of $18,885 for the season. Sam Snead still is well ahead with $29,048. Jim Ferrier dropped from second to an unofficial third with $18,771.

When the playoff was all over and Ransom clutched his check in nervous fingers, his wife and the little Ransoms got into the act.

Hank, Jr., was placed in the prodigious "World" Championship Trophy which was big enough to swallow him up.

Mrs. Ransom and the daughter beamed delightfully.

"Daddy" Ransom planted a kiss —on the $11,000 check.

Charles Favored To Beat Beshore In Title Match

Buffalo, N.Y., Aug. 15 (AP)— Ezzard Charles returns to action tonight an almost prohibitive favorite to blast longshot Freddie Beshore out of his path to a lucrative crack at Joe Louis.

Sharp-shooting Ezzard is rated at least 1 to 5 to defeat Beshore and hold his N.B.A. heavyweight championship. The 15 - round title fight starts at 10 p.m. EDT.

Sidelined by a rib and heart injury for almost six months, the 29-year-old champion aims to renew his ring campaign in a different role.

Hitherto an efficient but cautious performer, Charles plans to gun for a quick kayo.

A spectacular job against the 26-year-old Harrisburg, Pa., challenger will bolster Charles' box office appeal against the comebacking Louis. The International Boxing Club wants to put the two on in Yankee Stadium Sept. 27.

The prospects, of a one-sided battle plus two postponements caused by Charles' injury has hurt the ticket sale. Promoter Dewey Michaels is looking for a crowd of around 10,000 and a gate of "over $60,000."

Charles is down to receive 40 per cent of the net gate while Beshore will collect 17½.

Waterloo Tigers Rapidly Becoming Loop's Doormat

(By The Canadian Press)

Waterloo Tigers, once invincible in Intercounty League play, are rapidly becoming the league doormats.

Everyone's beating them. Last night it was the last place Guelph Maple Leafs' turn to win, and win they did, 7-6. It was Waterloo's sixth straight defeat, and it dropped them into fourth place.

Leafs reaped the benefit of some solid socking by Nick Ciani and old Oscar Judd, and they needed it. Tigers came from behind twice to knot the score, and had the winning run on base in the bottom of the ninth before Billy McCarthy halted the rally.

Ciani hit four for five, and Judd banged out three hits, one a triple. Don Oberholtzer and Larry Archambault each had three hits for the losers.

Meanwhile the topsy-turvy struggle at the top of the league continued with Brantford Red Sox and London Majors moving into a tie for first place for the simple expedient of winning one game apiece. That dropped the erstwhile leaders, Kitchener Legionnaires, into second.

Majors defeated Kitchener 9-4 for their fifth win in six starts. Young Stan Slack had the honor of winning the game—his first of the year—that put Majors into the top spot. He lasted seven innings, but was yanked for Duane Gottschall when he hit a wild streak in the seventh.

Many Free Gifts

Both teams connected for eight hits, but Nick Martinovich and Bobby Schnurr, pitching for Kitchener, gave up 12 bases on balls between them. Johnny Bain of Kitchener had three hits, while Ken McFadden of London had two for four.

Brantford Red Sox caught veteran Alex Martin on an off night and walloped 10 hits for a 6-3 win over Galt Terriers. The loss, coupled with St. Thomas Legion's win over Stratford Nationals, gave a gloomy outlook to Galt's chances of catching the sixth-place playoff spot.

Tom Quest restricted Terriers to seven hits, two of which were by Andy Garbas, Galt shortstop. Garbas had a good night, picking up seven assists and six putouts afield.

St. Thomas scored a convincing 12-4 win over Stratford in a slugfest. Dick Long went the route for the winners despite being touched for 11 hits, including two apiece by veteran Irish Miskimmons and George Boniface, and three by Billy Flick.

Catcher Bill Mahlke of the winners had a home run to pace a 17-hit assault on Jerry Hamm and Billy Russ. Johnny Futcher and Jim Myers each had three hits, while Long kicked in with a pair. Two of Futcher's hits were doubles.

Welland Stokes got a neat three-hit pitching performance from Rollie Larouche to down North Tonawanda Dodgers 4-1 in a Niagara District senior game The win gave Stokes a full game lead in the tight league pennant race.

SWAMP IS SEARCHED

Ingersoll, Ont., Aug. 15 (CP)— Police searched a swamp two miles west of here Monday for a man believed to have stolen an automobile in nearby Woodstock last week.

After the wrecked and abandoned car was found, a farmer told police he had seen a stranger with a bloodstained face and an injured arm and shoulder. Police said they believed the man was the person who took the car.

Rochester Wings Breezing Along In Top Position

(By The Associated Press)

While Rochester continues to breeze along on top of the International League, there's a real battle brewing between Jersey City and Springfield for fourth place — the final berth for the playoffs.

Jersey City now holds a two-game edge on Springfield, but the Cubs are moving fast. They have won five straight.

The Cubs picked up a game last night by defeating Buffalo 4-1, while the Little Giants lost 3-1 to Montreal.

Other league play saw Rochester trim Syracuse 11-2, and Baltimore sweep a doubleheader from Toronto, 4-1 and 10-9.

Bill Moisan stopped Buffalo on seven hits to register his 10th victory. He needed Tony Jacobs' help in the ninth, when the Bisons scored their lone run.

Montreal's Omar (Turk) Lown bested Tony West at Jersey City. It was Lown's 11th triumph.

Rochester's Mike Schultz tamed Syracuse on six safeties. Don Bollweg sparked the Red Wings' 18-hit attack with three runs batted in on two doubles and two singles.

While Baltimore won its two games with Toronto, it was the losers' Bud Heslet who highlighted the action. After drawing a blank in the opener, Heslet clubbed three home runs, a double and a single in the second game to drive home eight runs. His home run and runs-batted-in output tied all-time Toronto records.

One Player Chosen Never Has Played For Davis Cup

New York, Aug. 15—(AP) — Tom Brown of San Francisco has a chance to be a hero when the United States Davis Cup tennis team defends its title against Australia at Forest Hills, N.Y., Aug. 25-27.

He and three veterans of the international classic were named yesterday for the four berths on the squad. The others nominated were Ted Schroeder of La Crescenta, Calif.; Gardnar Mulloy of Coral Gables, Fla., and Billy Talbert of New York, all former Davis Cup players.

A sprained right ankle kept Budge Patty, the Wimbledon champion from Los Angeles, from making the team.

Brown, whose only ranking among the top 10 over the years was in 1946 when he was placed fourth, never has played a Davis Cup match. He was on the squad which brought the trophy back from Australia in 1946 but illness prevented him from competing.

Australia, whose challenge round team has not been announced, lost to the United States in all four meetings since the International Classic was resumed after the war. Last season, the Aussies could only take the doubles, losing 4-1.

Remember When

(By The Canadian Press)

C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville of London, Ont., won the Canadian Amateur Golf Championship for the fourth time by defeating Arthur Yates of Rochester 3 and 2, 16 years ago today. Sandy went on to take the title twice more before retiring from competitive golf.

SIGNS TO DEFEND CROWN

New York, Aug. 15 —(AP)— Jake LaMotta will defend his middleweight crown next month. He signed yesterday to meet France's Laurent Dauthuille at Detroit Sept. 13.

LaMotta is superstitious about fighting in Detroit. He thinks it's his lucky city. It was there he won the title from Marcel Cerdan, and earlier, defeated "Sugar" Ray Robinson, the welter champ.

Dauthuille whipped LaMotta in a 10-round bout at Montreal Feb. 21, 1949. LaMotta will receive 45 per cent of the gate and Dauthuille 15. The latter has agreed on a return bout in 60 days if he lifts the crown from the Bronx bull.

Lynn Patrick Will Coach All-Star Team

Montreal, Aug. 15 (CP)—Lynn Patrick recently apointed coach of Boston Bruins, has accepted the National Hockey League's offer to coach the league's all-stars against the Stanley Cup champion Detroit Red Wings, it was announced today. The fourth annual all-star classic will be played in Detroit Oct. 8.

Patrick, who coached New York Rangers to the cup final last spring, was invited to act as coach when the league held its annual meeting in June. He was in Victoria at the time and his letter of acceptance has been received by president Clarence Campbell of the N.H.L.

Patrick listed 12 of the 18 players he plans to use. He will select the remaining six later.

It is the usual policy for the all-star coach to name at least three players from each of the other N.H.L. teams. Of the 12 already selected, Patrick has named five from Toronto Maple Leafs, three from New York Rangers, two from Montreal Canadiens, and one each from Boston Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks.

Those chosen:

Durnan Won't Play

Bill Durnan of Canadiens, goalkeeper on the No. 1 all-star selected last spring, will not play this year. Big Bill, six-time winner of the Vezina Trophy as low-average goalie in the league has retired.

All players named to the first and second all-star team as selected by the six N.H.L. coaches last spring are automatically starters in the game. But Sid Abel, centre, and Ted Lindsay, left wing of the Red Wings who were named to the first all-star team, will not play for the all-stars but with their own champion Detroit team. The same applies to defencemen Red Kelly and Leo Reise and right-winger Gordie Howe, named to the second all-star team.

These five places will be filled by players who made the third team or others chosen by Patrick.

Tommy Ivan, coach of the Red Wings, who has handled the all-stars the last two years and master-minded them to victories, will direct his own Red Wings this year.

In the three previous all-star games, the stars have come out on top.

63 Players Will Report to Toronto Training Camp

(By The Canadian Press)

President Conn Smythe of Toronto's hockey Maple Leafs announced Monday 63 players will report to the fall training camps of the Leafs and Pittsburgh Hornets Sept. 17.

The National Hockey League Leafs will work out at St. Catharines, with a roster of 30 players. The list includes all last year's team with the exception of defenceman Garth Boesch, who has retired.

Hornets, Leafs' American League farm club, will train in Niagara Falls, Ont. Smythe said 33 players had been assigned Hornets.

The Toronto club's annual pre-training camp hockey school will be dispensed with this year. Reason given was raising of the age limit for signing players to a C form to 18.

The Leaf training camp will be under the supervision of Joe Primeau, former Leaf centre star who was appointed to succeed former coach Hap Day after the close of last season. Day was raised to the post of manager.

Walter (Babe) Pratt, large, amiable playing coach of New Westminster Royals, Pacific Coast Hockey League champions Monday terminated a short career as a boxing promoter.

Pratt bowed to an ultimatum from Royals boss Ken MacKenzie who told the big defenceman last week that he must make his choice between hockey and boxing.

Pratt and Gene Mason staged a successful card Aug. 1 at nearby New Westminster. It was Pratt's only promotional job.

Baltimore Orioles Monday announced they are ending a working agreement on players with St. Louis Browns and taking up instead with Philadelphia Phillies.

Jack Dunn, president of the International League team, said the move becomes effective at the close of this season.

Under the St. Louis agreement of the last two years, Baltimore was to have first call on any player to be disposed of by the major league team. St. Louis, in turn, had the privilege of buying at the end of the season for $10,000 each any two eligible Orioles.

Dunn said a contributing factor toward termination of the agreement was the Brown's desire to make it more limited next year.

Baltimore will replace Toronto Maple Leafs, another International League team, as the Phils' only triple-A affiliate. Terms of the agreement were not disclosed by Dunn.

Ford Frick ruled out Monday the protest of New York Giants over Saturday's wild game with Philadelphia Phillies, and told Leo Durocher to curb the antics of Eddie Stanky.

Manager Durocher played the game under protest after Stanky was thrown out for jumping up and down and waving his arms to distract Andy Seminick, who was at bat. The Phillies won 5-4 in 11 innings.

The "Stanky manoeuvre" may result in a new rule being written for baseball, said Charlie Segar of the National League Service Bureau in explaining the action of Frick, the league president. No rule now covers it, but it won't be allowed anymore anyway.

Barrie Flyers of the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A loop will be doing business at the same old stand this winter.

Club officials and the executive of the Barrie Arena, at odds over next season's rental, reached an agreement Sunday, ending a threat by coach Hap Emms to find another home for his club.

Emms also announced inauguration of a minor-league farm system including juvenile, midget, bantam and peewee clubs, to be operated at Barrie as a source of playing material for the Flyers. Jack Dyte, former defenceman with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League, will head the system.

Five top juniors, to be picked from any Ontario club, will help the provincial junior A champions in their effort to regain the Minto Cup and the Canadian Junior Lacrosse title, Chuck Rowan, secretary of the Ontario Lacrosse Association, announced Monday.

THE BEST IN USED CARS BATEMAN

Sure we didn't forget that the Whipper meets his feuding foeman Ferocious Freddie, the Atkins in a return bout come Friday night, but matters have reached the stage where even their pictures refuse to go side by side, so we are forced to slip in Ray Villmer to prevent the "hardrock" from jumping off the page. Atkins figures he defeated Watson last week (so did we) but he claims that the ropes jumped out and grabbed him by the leg, causing "Bugs Bunny" Dunlop to give the Whip the nod. Atkins has demanded that the ropes be removed from the ring on Friday, thus removing any possibility of a freak victory like that won by Whipper last week. Villmer meets the Masked Marvel in the semi-final while "Goon" Henry tangles with Warren Bockwinkle in the opener.

Bakelite Wins Uphill Battle From Energetics

A three-run rally in the top of the ninth broke a 5-5 tie last evening as Belleville Bakelite, waging an uphill battle all night, finally overcame Energetic Club's most determined bid for a win this season, 8-5.

The Energetic Club came up in the bottom of the first frame with four runs on two hits and four Bakelite errors to take a lead that almost proved too much for the second place Bakelite squad. They added their final run in the sixth on two errors and a single by Outingdyke.

Bakelite took advantage of a walk, two passed balls, and a single in the top of the first inning to count one run for a short-lived lead. Three singles netted them two more tallies in the 3rd, and they tied the game at 5-5 with a two run effort in the seventh. Two walks, and two singles accounted for the runs.

Three singles, a passed ball, and a fielder's choice gave the Bakelite their winning margin in the ninth.

Lefty Lou Middleton went all the way on the hill for the Energetic Club, walking four, striking out four, and being tagged for 10 safeties and eight runs. Clark Burtch toiled the route for the win, walking one, striking out five, and giving up 10 hits for five runs.

Line ups:

Pt. Anne Ousted From Playoffs By Sixardee

Point Anne Cementmen, which strew more rocks along the championship path of the Sixardee Repairmen in the Belleville and District Baseball League this season than all the rest of the opposition put together, lost a heartbreaking 3-2 contest last evening to the repair crew in the third and deciding game of their best in three playoff series.

Leading 2-1 behind the superb pitching of Bill Strahan, the Cementmen booted the ball once as the airmen connected for two safeties and that was the ball game.

The Sixardee crew advance to the final round to meet the winners of the Cannifton-Belleville Cubs series. The Cubs won the first game 8-1. The date of their second meeting is to be announced.

Picton—Picton scored a 9-2 win over Napanee in a COBL fixture at Picton fair grounds, Friday night. Frankie Dyer starred on the mound for the winners going four innings with but two hits. He allowed a total of seven in the six-inning encounter. Stan McTaggart was touched for seven hits. Each team had two errors.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Akoolap Oxpert likes to argue with me. So, when I quote a rule in bridge he does not first accept its many good qualities. He picks out some lone reason why it may not be good.

The lead of an ace against no-trump asks partner to throw on it his biggest card. This unblocks the suit. With the unseen high card out of the way the leader can run the rest of that suit.

♠A K J 10 9
♥6 4 2
♦J 5
♣10 8 4

Against three no-trump west leads his spade ace. This orders partner to throw thereon his biggest spade. Even if it is the queen. If not the queen, the highest spade he has.

Comes Akoolap with this objection: "You must think opponents are fools who bid no-trump without a stopper in spades. With such a west holding it is not likely that east holds the queen."

Evidently Akoolap has not been very observant. Many a player winds up in no-trump without a stopper in some suit. Even experts at odd times. Mostly after finding no satisfactory trump suit.

But even if declarer in south has the queen as a stopper this lead is important. The east discard shows where it is. West then switches to another suit and waits for east to get the lead.

With such strong spades in the west hand the east hand would not know enough to lead a spade, unless he was advised, of course. Being advised, he will eagerly take the first trick he can.

If necessary, east will gladly forego any attempt to establish tricks for his own hand. He will concentrate only on taking a trick of some kind; and kind. Just so he can get the lead.

He will then return a spade with full confidence that west can take all the spade tricks. Only the ace lead would so tell him.

Profound molecules are components of rules.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Aug. 15—(AP) — John Hupston is a tall, lean-looking man with a genius for writing, directing and picking players. The latter talent is demonstrated in his choices of Audie X Murphy and Bill Mauldin for leading roles in "Red Badge of Courage."

Murphy and Mauldin are two of the leading names that came out of the Second World War.

Murphy, the quiet farmer boy and orphan, fought in Italy and France and won more medals than any U.S. soldier of that war. At 21, he was a national figure. His face on a magazine cover prompted James Cagney to invite him to Hollywood. After a slow start, his acting career is gaining steam.

Top Artist

Mauldin, a baby-faced pencil artist, shot to fame with his cartoons which captured the muddy flavor of soldier humor. His influence was widespread.

Mauldin has reached the advanced age of 28 and Murphy is pushing 26. Murphy got fed up with the "most-decorated-hero" business and has given all of his medals away to kids, including the "Congressional Medal of Honor, the United States' highest military award. Mauldin tiffed with his syndicate over his post-war cartoons and chucked the works. He turned to writing books.

I asked him what he thinks about his acting debut.

"I think it's a damn fool idea," he said. "But I'll go along with it. I can make enough money to go home and finish my book." The book will be his fourth.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was downtown with ma, and we went in the Zipper Tea Room and ma ordered tea and I ordered ice creem, and we kept on waiting for it and the waitress kept on not bringing it, and after a while ma held up her finger at her while she was walking passed, saying, We've been waiting some time, I hope you haven't forgotten us.

Not at all, I just cant wait on everybody at the same time, that's all, the waitress said.

And she kept on going with her tray. Being a red hedded waitress with a little tern up nose, and ma said, Well of all the insolent impertinence, I've got a good mind to walk out without my tea.

Aw G, ma, I dont want to walk out without by ice creem, I said, and ma said, I wont leave a tip for her, that's what I'll do.

What were you going to give her, ma? I said, and ma said, Oh, probably a dime, that would of been ample and generous for sutch a small order.

Well gosh, ma, how will she know you did it on purpose? I said. I mean maybe she'll think you forgot to tip her, I said, and ma said, That's true, I wouldn't want to give her the dubble satisfaction of thinking that she had been snooty to somebody that doesn't even know the orderry rules of social deportment I'll leave her 5 cents, a snub for a snub, that's what I'll do. No, I'll leave her 20 cents, and I'll sweep out without a single glance in her direction, as though I were casting perls before swine. I'll teach her she's not the only one who can go through life with her nose in the air, she said.

FAR-NORTHERN INSPECTION

Mother General Courville of the Grey Nuns paused briefly at Churchill, Man., after a long trip from Montreal before continuing her inspection trip of northern outposts operated by her order. From Churchill, she will travel by boat to Chesterfield, 350 miles north on Hudson Bay, to inspect a hospital staffed by Grey Nuns. She was accompanied by her secretary and two sisters of the Grey Nuns. — (CP Photo.)

HUNGARIAN CATHOLIC PRIESTS CRITICIZE VATICAN

At a conference of progressive Catholic priests of Hungary, in the University of Budapest, more than 300 Catholic priests signified they wanted an understanding between the Hungarian state and the Catholic Church as soon as possible. They sharply criticized the policy of the Vatican towards the Hungarian Peoples Republic, and joined in the Stockholm Peace resolution. This is a scene from the conference with Jozsev Darvas, minister for education, at the microphone. — Central Press Canadian.

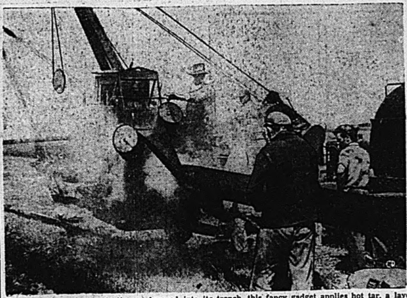
WEST COAST GUSHER

A water main broke in the downtown section of Vancouver shooting a spray 40 feet into the air. Nearby stores got a free washing until repairmen could shut off the flow. Traffic had to be rerouted but damage was slight. — (CP Photo.)

SUNDAY SCHOOL WORKERS CONVENE

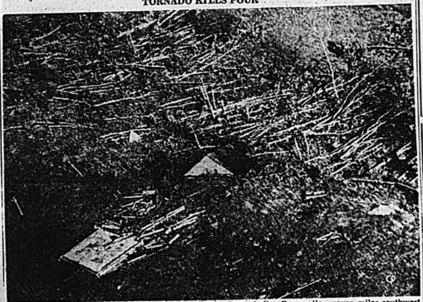
Over 15,000 Sunday School workers from all parts of the world, now attending the World Convention on Christian Education, jammed Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens Sunday night for a service of prayer. Earlier in the day 3,000 delegates assembled in Queen's Park at the statue of Robert Raikesm, founder of the Sunday School movement, to place a wreath. Among those taking part in the service were John Cozens, left, Toronto; Rev. Ayad Zakhary, Egypt and Sudan; Fred Cook, Toronto; Lord MacIntosh, president of the World Council, London, Eng.; Dr. Luther Wesley Smith, Philadelphia, and Mrs. Naomi Sumiekikuta, elder of the Church of Christ of Japan who placed the wreath. — (CP Photo.)

SMOKY JOB



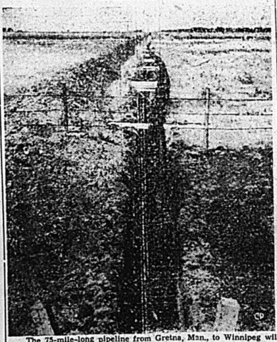
Just before a new pipeline is dropped into its trench, this fancy gadget applies hot tar, a layer of glass fibre and a coating of asbestos paper to prevent corrosion. The covering layers unwind automatically as the machine rolls along the pipe spinning the big bobbins as it goes. — (CP Photo.)

TORNADO KILLS FOUR



A tornado which swept through a section of the Stony Indian Reservation, seven miles southwest of Morely, Alta., last Friday killed four Indians and injured six others. This aerial photo shows all that remains of the house of the Ear family. The force of the tornado tossed the heavy logs that formed the wall of the dwelling around like matches. The floor is seen in the approximate centre of the photo while the roof lies to the right. The fallen trees were poplars which fell during the storm as it cut a swath a quarter-mile long through some 25 acres of the reservation. — (CP Photo.)

READY FOR OIL



The 75-mile-long pipeline from Gretna, Man., to Winnipeg will be finished by the end of September. This section, between Altona and Rosenfeld, is ready to be buried. The line stretches absolutely straight for many miles across the flat prairie farmland. — (CP Photo.)

PICTON

Picton.—Mr. and Mrs. Richard Tuttle, Sr.; Mr. and Mrs. Russel Tuttle and son, Bobby, all of Windsor; and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Tuttle Jr., and two daughters of London, Ont., spent the past week with Mr. and Mrs. Ford Curlette of Green Point, returning home on Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Russel Tuttle and son, also visited her mother, Mrs. Hazel Dainard and brother, Mr. Garnet Dainard, of Picton, and spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Dainard and family, London, Ont.

Mr. Charles Howard, of Bloomfield, and Mr. John Howard, of West Lake, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Howard, Bowery Street, on Sunday.

Miss Lois Byers has returned from a vacation spent in Pembroke and Renfrew.

Mr. Bill Peeling, Brock Street, Kingston, was a guest over the weekend of Mr. Garnet Dainard.

Mrs. Geoffrey Vickers and three children, returned to their home in St. Catharines on Sunday after visiting for two weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lightfoot. They were accompanied by Mrs. Alice Seeley and son, who had been guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Rist.

Misses Marion and Winnifred Wycott, are spending holidays with cousins in Watertown, N.Y.

Leo Power of Picton, R. 9., came in first for the five mile race at the Elks' picnic at the Sandbanks. On Sunday, George Baverstock, of the Outlet, was second and Donald King, of Picton, third. The prizes were $25, $15 and $10.

One young lad of the R.C.S.A. (AA) Camp in Picton, had tough luck. In order to be in time for the race, he had to leave the Artillery camp without his dinner. He led the race until within a 100 yards of the finish, when he would have fallen except that three Elks caught him. They kept repeating "You are finished"; "you are finished". They thought he was done out, but he understood them to mean he was at the end of the course. So he gave up, but afterwards felt that after a moment's rest he could have carried on for the final spurt and captured the prize.

Miss Irene Shannon, of Black Creek, is a guest this week of her aunt, Mrs. D. A. Fournia.

The Gentle Heart

By Kay Hamilton

Jenny felt the warm blood creep under her skin at Brent's praise. "I think most people really prefer the 'fundamentals,' as you call them, Brent. But they get confused. So much of life seems to consist of camouflage of one sort or another, extraneous things tacked on to disguise the form underneath. You can't blame people for being deceived."

He shook his head. "That's your kind of heart speaking," he said. "You'd never believe the worst of anyone, would you, Jenny, even if it were thrust at you No, I don't agree with you. I think that plenty of people are afraid of the solid things of life; the big things. They feel small beside them and they turn to the fluff so that they can build up a sense of their own importance."

Jenny wanted to deny this. She had opened her mouth to continue the argument, when she spied a sign. "Apples." She put out her hand. "Oh, stop, Brent. I need some apples, and maybe these are cheaper.'

"Don't you believe it. Farmer arithmetic goes like this: 'If I save twenty cents on transportation because the buyer comes to me and I don't have to tote these apples to town, and if I save another twenty cents that the distributor wouldn't pay me, then I can charge the customer fifty cents more.' Something like that!"

But he stopped the car and Jenny, with a shake of her head at his cynicism, went up the walk to the farmhouse door. A brisk, middle-aged woman answered her knock, drying her hands on her apron.

"I see you have sdme apples," Jenny began, but the woman interrupted.

"That sign! I told Lew to take it down. Lew! LEW!"

No answer. "Probably hiding out to the barn," she said with disgust. "No, we haven't any more apples; sold the last of them in October, excepting what we kept for ourselves, of course. Tell you what, though; I've some extra pumpkins, if you're interested."

Jenny was. Pumpkin pie was a must for Thanksgiving, of course and although she had basely considered buying some pureed pumpkin in a can to use for her pie filling she decided against it. She followed the woman into her cold pantry, picked out a large one. "Better get your husband to carry this out for you," the woman said. "It's pretty heavy and that Lew knows better than to show his face at this stage of the game!"

Jenny blushed and called Brent. "Did you get some apples?" he said as he came up the walk.

"You're going to have pumpkin pies, young man," the woman told him with a smile. "And good ones too, I'll bet. Anybody can see your wife is a good cook. She's got the look of a real sensible girl. Not many of them nowadays, either."

Brent said, without turning a hair, "Yes, but it's hard on my clothes. I'm getting fat on her cooking. And then, you know, she gets mad if I don't clean my plate so what can a man do?" He grinned at the woman, and she laughed.

"I don't think you need much coaxing! Well, I'm glad my punkins are going where they'll be appreciated. I raised them myself. Lew won't be bothered with nothing but the stock half the time, and if I want any vegetables that's my lookout. If I'd clamped down on him easy, but I let it slide, and now I've got it all to do myself. You remember that," she said to Jenny.

Jenny's cheeks were fiery by the time they were settled again in the car. "Well, Mrs. Evans, where to now?" Brent asked her with a mischievous smile.

"Oh, don't, Brent!" she said in such real distress that he swung toward her with surprise. "Don't say that!"

The laughter went out of his face and his hands tightened on the wheel. "Of course not," he said quietly, after a silence which seemed to prolong itself indefinitely to her waiting ears, "if it upsets you.'

It was impossible, after that, to recapture the earlier happy mood of their excursion. They found no apples; the sun gave up the struggle and retired behind the heaviest of the cloud banks; the roadside puddles were slate gray or muddy; the hills were heavy and threatening. All the joy had gone out of the day. When they went back to Green Ridge Jenny shopped half-heartedly for her Thanksgiving dinner, and Brent stowed the packages in the tonneau of the car in a strained silence. Home again, he did not offer to come in, and she did not ask him.

Ghillie trailed her disconsolately about the kitchen seeming to sense her dismay. Her cry to Brent had been a natural one. Her love for him was so strong, her longing to be his wife so real, that the farm woman's remarks had flicked her on the raw. And then, when Brent himself had gone on with the game, it had been more than she could bear. What she had wished to say was, "Don't say that, Brent unless you want it so!" But of course she had not put it that way and now he was offended, and understandably so.

Jenny stepped backward from the cupboard and trod on Ghillie's foot. His anguished walls brought her to her knees. 'Oh, Ghillie, Ghillie!" she sobbed. "I didn't mean it!"

And Ghillie, understanding dog that he was hobbled up to her, his stumpy tail wagging frantically, as if he were trying to comfort her in his turn. "I didn't mean it!" she repeated in a whisper, hugging the shaggy form to her. "I didn't mean it, Brent . . ."

Jenny was not a girl to let her emotions ride her, and after that one outbreak regained her customary calm, although no one would have suspected the effort it cost her. Thanksgiving was always a happy occasion in the Mayhew household and this year the girls decided to ask the Owens and Max as well as Brent and Gary.

When Gary's name had come up there had been a noticeable hesitation on Natalie's part and Jenny had said quickly. "Poor chap! It must be horrid, living in one room as he does and taking all his meals out. I should think. . . "

"Oh ask him! Ask him!" Natalie had cried impatiently. I doubt if he'll come though."

However, Gary accepted the invitation with instant enthusiasm "I'll be there," he told Jenny over the phone, "with an extra notch in my belt. But you must let me bring something." And so Jenny told him to supply the olives and some pickled onions.

Faith insisted on bringing mints "We're going to need them after one of your turkey dinners," she explained. And Brent although he had not mentioned contributing anything specific, arrived with a large package of delicacies "So you can have little Thanksgiving throughout the year," he said pulling jars of cavair, anchovies, mushrooms, and liver pate out of the paper bag.

"Brent, you shouldn't have!" Natalie expostulated. "I know what these things cost. And you've brought so many!"

"Have you forgotten that I'm rich at the moment? he asked her. "A fellow like me can't go out and buy himself a beautiful copper-colored brocade suit when he gets a big check," he eyed her new dress with appreciation, "or a lot of cosmetics, or a new permanent. All he can do is decorate the inner man"

"Oh, so you expect to be around when these are eaten, is that it?"

"Of course. Unless you girls decide to kick me out."

Natalie laid an affectionate hand upon his sleeve. "We'd never do that, Brent," she assured him.

Jenny turned away, busied herself with arranging the crisped celery on a long cut glass dish. "This thing is heavy as lead," she complained. "Haven't we anything lighter in the pantry, Nat? How about the one that used to belong to the Limoges set?"

Each time the doorbell rang, Jenny held her breath waiting for the Owens to arrive. But first it was Diane and Fred both of them seeming happier than they had been for some time; then it was Max. with an anticipatory grin. "I could smell that turkey the minute I turned into this street," he swore, "and I ran all the rest of the way."

Gary come next, quiet and reserved as always stepping into the kitchen to deliver the promised olives and onions, which he had purchased somewhere in outsize containers. "Gary!" Jenny cried. "We'll be eating olives till next Easter!"

"Well, they're good for the digestive processes. At least, olive oil is, and olive oil comes from olives so—"

"Don't go on; my reasoning processes are too rudimentary," she objected. "I'd probably end up by deciding that therefore one should eat pickled onions before every meal!"

"Onions are healthful too, and not objectionable if the volatile oils are—"

"Take him away!" Jenny said to Max. "Talking to me about volatile oils when I'm trying to baste this creature! The next thing I know he'll be telling me about the specific viscosity of turkey gravy!"

At last, when she looked out of the kitchen window Jenny saw the Owens arriving. Until this minute she had not been sure Mrs. Owen would really come. It was Faith to whom she had given the invitation, Faith, who had accepted it for them both. And Faith, of course, was unaware of that brief exchange in the church vestibule.

Mrs. Owen, apparently had decided to put a good face upon matters and greeted Jenny pleasantly, if without any undue amount of cordiality. She said, "It was very kind of you girls to ask us to share your Thanksgiving with you." Jenny had to be content with that. She knew the older woman had not forgiven her, and the only thing which still worried her—whether Mrs. Owen had discovered the relationship between Faith and Max—remained a mystery unsolved by Mrs. Owen's attitude.

There were two extra leaves in the dinning room table. "Half the pleasure in a good meal can be removed by cramped quarters," her father had always said, and so the nine people at table had plenty of elbow room. Natalie and Brent served and Jenny, after grace had been said went back to the kitchen to heap the vegetables dishes high She wished that Mrs. Folsom could have been with them, and thought of the unhappy day her old friend must be having. Ghillie lay under the old-fashioned sink, a beef bone happily held between his paws, and gnawed on it ferociously. He would be in later for tidbits from the table but just now he had more important business to attend to.

Natalie had made the seating arrangements and Jenny saw when she came into the dining room, again that she had put Brent next herself and Gary at the opposite side of the table. But the centerpiece of fruits was not high and Gary could gaze his fill at Natalie. Today even Diane was eclipsed by her darker sister for the new copper brocade made Natalie's creamy skin glow with an inner fire. Her large dark eyes seemed to shoot sparks and even her hair in the light of the candles, held copper lights. She wore a pair of Victorian gold earrings which had belonged to their grandmother, and the fine gold fringes danced gracefully against her smooth cheek when she turned her head.

FUTURE LIES WITH U.N.; THE PRESENT WITH SODA POP

A sermon could be preached on this picture. Seven-year-old Kenny Ley of Port Jervis, N.Y., is gazing across New York's East River at the imposing United Nations secretariat building. He may be pinning his dreams on the wish that what it stands for will work and that by the time Kenny is ready to face the world as a man the threat of atomic disintegration will have vanished from the face of the earth. On the other hand, Kenny's dreams may be focussed entirely on the flavor of the soda pop he is sipping through a straw. — Central PressCanadian.

OR DOOMSDAY BOOK

The doomsday book, the survey of England made by William the Conqueror, was thus named because to the people it seemed like the great reckoning of doomsday.

No Indications Of Settlement Between Parties

Cabinet Will Decide Today If Govt. Will Move Into Issue

By JOHN LEBLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Aug. 16 — (CP) — The cabinet went into session at 10.30 a.m. EDT today with its most urgent business the consideration of action to halt the threatened Aug. 22 rail strike.

The meeting, convening with less than six days to go before the strike deadline, was expected to bring a government move of some kind aimed at breaking the union-management deadlock.

Cabinet ministers entering the session said the rail situation would be high on the day's agenda. They could not estimate when a decision would be reached.

Labor Minister Gregg was on hand before most of his colleagues. All available ministers were at the session.

Hamilton Strike Deadlocked as Talks Break off

Hamilton, Aug. 16—(CP)—Another week of steadily-mounting piles of garbage is the prospect facing Hamilton's 190,000 residents today following breakdown of talks between the city and representatives of striking local 5 of the Hamilton Civic Employees Union. (C.C.L.)

The two parties met in Toronto Tuesday with the Ontario Labor Department in an attempt to reach a settlement in the seven-day strike. They remained deadlocked on the union's demands for higher wages and shorter hours.

William Patterson, president of the union local, said after the meeting the breakdown meant at least another week before the strike could be ended.

"It's a deadlock now," Patterson said. "The city broke off negotiations. They walked out of the conference first after we made our counter-proposal."

Some 1,000 city employees, including grave diggers, garbage collectors and other outside workers, struck last week for an increase of 10 cents an hour. Since then, the city has had no garbage collection, and bodies have had to be stored in mausoleums awaiting burial.

Mayor Lloyd Jackson said the city made "a generous offer" yesterday in an attempt at settlement. He said the city gave the union specific dates for inauguration of a 40-hour week and also a cost-of-living bonus.

$1,000,000 Fire At Amherstburg

Amherstburg, Ont., Aug. 16—A three-storey alcohol distilling plant and grain storage warehouse were destroyed in a spectacular explosion and fire which rocked this Essex County community last night.

Executives of Calvert Distillers Ltd., owners of the plants, could give no estimate of damage early today although unofficial firgures set the loss at close to $1,000,000.

Alex Traeff, plant manager, said he thought the fire was started by an internal combustion explosion in grain stored in the building. The first blast apparently touched off nearly simultaneous explosions in four giant alcohol vats on the third floor, wrecking the roof and third floor.

The only two persons near the building at the time of the blast — plant policemen William Clague and maintenance man Earl Renald—escaped injury.

The blast was felt five miles away, and pieces of the wall and roof were found as far as 300 feet from the building.

Firemen, unable to check the flames, succeeded in saving a nearby bottling building, warehouse and two outdoor tanks filled with alcohol.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Aug. 16 (CP)—Synopsis: Widely scattered showers and thundershowers are reported over Southern Ontario this morning. This shower activity is expected to let up during the day, occuring again by late afternoon today and Thursday. Temperatures should reach the mid-80s, somewhat above their seasonal normals.

Unsettled weather continues over Northern Ontario. An active disturbance moving eastward across Manitoba will bring rain to the James Bay region and thundershower activity to other northern regions tonight. Much cooler air, that gave snow in the Peace River district Tuesday, is pushing southward across the prairies behind this disturbance. This cooler air will warm up considerably before spreading into northern regions Thursday.

Two of Family Killed in Truck Crashing Train

Chelmsford, Ont., Aug. 16 — (CP) — Two members of a family were killed and a third critically injured last night when a truck in which they were riding crashed headlong into a passenger train at a level-crossing near this town, 10 miles south of Sudbury.

The dead: Leo Demore, 20, of Capreol township, and his 34-year-old sister Mrs. Angeline Bratant, of Hanmer. Critically injured and in hospital here is Norman Demore, 23, brother of Leo.

Police said that shortly before 10 p.m. the three were returning home from a movie at Chelmsford. The truck driven by Leo Demore was travelling south along the Chelmsford road when it crashed into the side of the Canadian Pacific Railway's transcontinental passenger train No. 4.

The force of the impact scattered the truck's occupants in all directions. Le Demore's decapitated body was found near the railway track about 20 yards from his truck, the head more than 50 feet from the body.

His sister lay in a pool of blood only a few yards from where the crash took place. Norman was found in a stretch of tall grass.

NAMING PRINCESS NEW GUESSING GAME OF BRITONS

Mother and Daughter Both Doing 'Well'

London, Aug. 16 (AP)—Happy Britons had a favorite new guessing game today—naming their new princess.

A six-pound girl was born yesterday to Princess Elizabeth, first in the line of succession to the throne. Attending doctors reported last night that both mother and daughter were doing well.

The newest member of Britain's Royal Family is the second child of 24-year-old Elizabeth and her naval-officer husband, Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh. Their son, Prince Charles, is 21 months old.

Britons cheered the new baby and toasted her health. Royal salutes boomed out throughout the Commonwealth. The bells of historic Westminster Abbey pealed for an hour, and those of famed St. Paul's cathedral rang out for 45 minutes.

There was no indication that England's future queen and her husband have decided on a name for their new baby, but they are getting plenty of suggestions. Most newspapers already are speculating.

The favorites seemed to be Victoria, Elizabeth and Mary — all familiar names in the family There was strong support also for Alice, Alexandra and Margaret.

Also mentioned among many others were Caroline, a feminine version of Charles, and Angela, Queen Elizabeth's middle name. The new princess, like the rest of the Royal Family, probably will have several names.

Even if the baby's parents have made a choice, it may not be announced for several weeks.

Prince Charles' names—Charles Philip Arthur George—were not disclosed until the day of his christening, when he was four weeks old. No arrangements have been made for the christening of the baby.

Some speculated the ceremony would not take place until October, when King George and Queen Elizabeth, the baby's grandparents, return from their usual holiday in Scotland. The King already is there. The Queen is expected to join the King as soon as the doctors consider Elizabeth and her daughter out of all danger.

Insecticide Fogs Used in Britain To Fight Polio

London, Aug. 16 (AP)—British doctors today used war - tested insecticide fogs in their fight against an infantile paralysis outbreak which so far has hit nearly 1,400 persons in the United Kingdom.

Machines developed in the Second World War were employed to fill infected homes with a fog of DDT and pyrethrum and to spray ponds and other areas with the insect-killing mixture.

The Ministry of Health described the outbreak as "serious" but said it was not yet at an epidemic stage. The number of confirmed cases stood at 1,388, nearly double the number reported at the same date last year. Deaths this year from the disease were 195 against only 83 to August 15, 1949.

Hydrogen Bomb Like Fireworks Piece That Shoots More Than Once

By HOWARD BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

New York, Aug. 16 (AP) — The hydrogen bomb, if 1,000 times more powerful than an atomic bomb, is like a fireworks piece that shoots more than once.

The first shot is a flash of heat at the speed of light. This shot covers a circle 40 miles in diameter with heat that can be fatal to anyone without shade. In Japan the similar area of fatal flash burns from the A-bomb was less than two miles in diameter, but it accounted for 20 to 30 percent of the deaths.

The 40-mile circle is not the limit of H-bomb flash heat. In Japan the A-bomb flash caused serious skin burns up to 10,000 feet. This means that a thousand-fold greater H-bomb would burn the flesh painfully within 100 miles.

The second shot is blast or concussion. This is a wall of compressed air about 1,000 feet thick for the A-bomb, much thicker for the H-bomb. The wall is followed by big winds, blowing out and back.

The blast will flatten nearly every kind of man-made struc-

Canada's Destroyer Cayuga Successfully Bombards Red-Held Port in South Korea

Ottawa, Aug. 16 (CP) —Canada's destroyer Cayuga has carried out a successful bombardment of harbor installations of a communist held port in South Korea, the navy announced today.

It was the first official report that the three ship flottila provided by Canada for the United Nations has fired its guns at enemy positions. They had been on convoy duty.

The navy said the Cayuga, senior ship of the three, joined a British frigate in pouncing on a harbor and blazing away at ships, docks, cranes, warehouses, railwya rolling stock and rail terminals and large buildings.

There were no casualties. All targets were either destroyed or seriously damaged.

Athabaskan's Activity

Of other activities, the navy made this report:

Recently the Cayuga, under Capt. J. V. Brock of Victoria, was ordered to make a high-speed sweep in the western area to investigate a reported buildup of enemy troops. The Athbaskan, comanded by Cmdr. R. P. Welland, of McCreary, Man. and Victoria, intercepted orders while at sea and without specific instructions, joined her sister ship and assisted in the sweep. Cmdr. Welland was later commended for his iniative in this action.

The Sioux, under Cmdr. Paul D. Taylor of Victoria, and the Athabaskan are at present engaged in screening Royal Navy forces carrying out a blockade in the area of the west coast of Korea.

The Sioux recently completed a trip to Pusan, main U. N. supply port in South Korea, with a high-speed convoy. The Athabaskan has completed three voyages to the same port on similar duties. The Cayuga has carried out two such missions and has spent four days with the west coast blockading forces.

Three Aboard Cruise Ship Listed as Dead as Police Guard Burned-Out Hull

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Tadoussac, Que., Aug. 16—(CP)—With three passengers listed as dead, Quebec Provincial Police stood guard today over the burned-out hull of the river cruise ship Quebec, tied up at the wharf of this lower St. Lawrence port.

Because of the charred condition of the bodies, positive identification of the dead posed a problem for investigators. But Canada Steamship Lines, owners of the 7,000-ton Quebec, listed Mr. and Mrs. Norman Shapiro and a son, of the town of Mount Royal, Que., as missing. A second son escaped.

The company in a statement listed the missing boy as Bernard. But in this there appeared to be some confusion since in Montreal garage operator Andy Levinson, long-acquainted with the Shapiros, said the rescued lad was eight-year-old Bernard and that Bernard's six-year-old brother, Leonard, must have been the missing lad aboard the Quebec.

Levinson, queried about the listing of Bernard as missing said:

"I drove him up from Murray Bay myself. Bernard was rescued and Leonard burned to death."

The rescued Shapiro boy, when he reached Murray Bay Monday night after the fire with other rescued passengers, told of being handed through a cabin window by his mother.

Quickly Headed For Port

At the time the ship was smoking and afire from a blaze first noticed about 5 p.m. Monday as the Quebec stood off the mouth of the Saguenay. She was quickly headed for Tadoussac, half an hour away, when it became apparent that the fire could not be quelled and that more than 400 passengers and the crew of 150 made the safety of the wharf by going down ladders.

Until mid-afternoon yesterday C.S.L. officials insisted that all passengers and crew had been disembarked safely. Then the company announced the finding of three bodies and listed three Shapiros as missing, in this second C.S.L. cruise ship tragedy in 11 months. Last September the lake cruise vessel Noronic burned at her Toronto wharf with loss of 119.

Object of Inquiry

The charred body of a woman and a child were the object of an inquest yesterday before district coroner Roland Hould but the inquiry was adjourned indefinitely due to lack of evidence sufficient to identify the two victims.

The C.S.L in a statement said that three bodies were recovered.

The announcement that three passengers were dead was made yesterday after earlier company announcements that all passengers Canadian and United States holidayers, and crew members had been evacuated safely.

Part of a woman's torso and a section of a child's body were discovered during a search of the cooling wreckage yesterday.

The discovery was made near the spot where B deck cabin 157—the Shapiros—was located.

Dr. Victor Gagnon said at the inquest that the dead child was probably under 10, and evidently a boy judging by a piece of red suspender clinging to the remains.

Dr. Gagnon said the adult remains were those of a "big woman." Another witness said that Mrs. Shapiro weighed about 135 and 140 pounds.

AID TO BUILD UP SAGGING SPIRITS IN EUROPE URGED

U.S. Officers in France Pressing Washington

By PRESTON GROVER

Paris, Aug. 16—(AP)— United States officials in France are pressing Washington for a solid promise of aid to Europe in the form of United States troops to build up sagging west European spirits.

Their proposals are double-barrelled:-

1. The United States should deliver at once, or promise to deliver quickly, at least five or more divisions on European soil.

2. A commander, preferably American, should be appointed to unify present undirected efforts at rearmament.

The same officials believe Britain also should agree, now, to send five more divisions to Germany or northern France.

The crisis in Korea has brought the American position in France to a low point. The first blush of gratification at American intervention in Korea has been succeeded by a wave of dismay at U.S. reserves.

The French long have expected the strength of American arms—especially the atom bomb—to give them time to get well from the last war, and to rearm.

Harden Determination

Americans newly - arrived on this side of the Atlantic report that the defeats in Korea have hardened American determination to rearm, if necessary, to be ready for a showdown with Russia.

There has been no such reaction in France. Top French government officials are facing the problem to a degree that generally is pleasing to American observers. But a sampling of sentiment among the French population, brings no such responses.

The lack of a "will to fight," such as resulted in the French collapse of 1940, is in evidence again. Many Frenchmen solemnly weigh these alternatives.

Would another war be worse than simply to sit down and wait to be occupied by the Russians? Or would it be better to try to take a neutral course in the hope that Russia would not march into France?

The philosophy of "sit and wait" is widespread in France.

The French appear to have lost confidence in aerial bombardment—even with the atom bomb—as a means of stopping ground forces.

Her injuries were said to be not serious.

Man's Evolution During Last Millions Of Years May be Solved by Discovery

Johannesburg, Aug. 16 (Reuters)—The problem of man's evolution during the last 2,000 or 3,000 years may soon be solved as a result of finds by the world-famous South African scientist, Dr. Robert Broom.

Dr. Broom and his assistant, J. T. Robinson, have found in the Transvaal two skulls which, they believe, provide a close link between the ape-man and the human race.

Both skulls, probably female. have brain cases about the same size as those of many modern men.

"Both are almost man, and it seems highly probable that man originated in Africa," Dr. Broom says.

Dr. Broom first came into world prominence in 1936 when he discovered the skull of an ape-man (or rather, woman) at Sterkfontein.

This new "missing link," till then the nearest type to modern man, was christened "Pleasiantropus Transvaalensis". Further discoveries proved that "Mrs. "Ples"—as she was irreverently known—was a small man-like being about five feet tall, who

U.S. Tourist Killed In Car Collision Near Shannonville

Six Other Persons Injured Result of Skid on Wet Road

An American tourist was killed this morning and six other persons were injured, two critically, as result of a head-on collision between two autos on Highway No. 2 near Shannonville.

Killed was Robt. Zeender, 3030 Chestnut Street, Washington, D.C. who died an hour after the accident in Belleville General Hospital. Critically injured are Zeender's son Roland, age 11, and Morris Martin, 36, Bayview Heights, Belleville, passenger in the second auto.

Other persons injured are Mrs. Zeender, broken leg; and her two sons, Robert, 18, and Roger, 7, both with fractured legs, and Robt. Gillen, 263 Foster Ave., driver of the second car.

The accident occurred shortly after nine thirty this morning as Gillen, with Martin as passanger was proceeding east. When just at the eastern limits of Shannonville, the westbound American car skidded on the wet pavement as it rounded a curve and the car swerved across the highway, the Gillen vehicle plowing into the side of the new sedan. Both vehicles were complete wrecks.

Five Freed From Wreckage.

Provincial Police Constable Arthur Watson was practically an eye witness of the crash and was almost instantly on the scene and assisted in freeing the five Americans pinned in their wrecked auto.

First, however, he was forced to use his fire extinguisher to put out a blaze which started under the hood of the American car following the accident.

"I had visions for a moment of the people trapped in the car burning to death before I could get them out," he said.

The officer said he had been driving east when as he met the westbound American car it started to skid on the wet pavement. Glancing up into his rearview mirror he saw the car swerve across the road behind him. Then there was a crash. He said he did not know where the second car came from.

Two Ambulances Called.

Two ambulances were called to the scene of the accident, while Dr. D. C. McVicker gave first aid and rushed one of the Zeender boys to hospital. The other injured were taken to hospital in the two ambulances.

Complaining of chest injuries, Robt, Gillen, driver of the eastbound car, said at the hospital that he had no chance to avoid the collision when the car swerved across in front of him.

"I was following the police car when the westbound car suddenly skidded directly in front of me," he said. "It all happened so fast."

Gillen is chief dairy grader for the Central Ontario District with offices in Belleville. Martin, who was passenger in his car, is his assistant.

Dr. McVicker stated that Martin had severe facial cuts and head injuries and termed his condition as serious, while the one Zeender boy was also in serious condition with undetermined injuries.

Washington, Aug. 16 — (AP)—White House talks aimed at settling the 40-hour week dispute of 300,000 trainmen and conductors broke down Tuesday night and the unions urged President Truman to seize the railroads.

Missing Plane With Four Men Is Located Safe

Winnipeg, Aug .16. (CP)—An R.C.M.P. plane, missing two days in the far north with four men aboard, has been located safe at Cape Smith on the East Coast of Hudson Bay.

Superintendent E. H. Terlson said today: "Everything is okay—they just came down to sit out bad weather."

R.C.A.F. headquarters said the police aircraft was located by a four-engined Lancaster Bomber which took off early today from Coral Harbor to start a search.

"The Lancaster has reported that the plane appears undamaged and that the men were seen walking around," said an R.C.A.F. spokesman.

"We are trying to make radio contact. If we don't, a Canso from Coral Harbor will land at Cape Smith to confirm that all is well."

Coral Harbor is on Southampton Island which is at the north end of Hudson Bay.

R.C.A.F. headquarters here said a Canso flying boat and Lancaster Bomber took off shortly after 5 a.m. C.D.T., from Coral Harbor, on Southampton Island at the northern end of the bay.

One plane was to fly east to Cape Smith, then turn due south to Port Harrison where the missing R.C.M.P. Amphibian was headed when it disappeared. That route is entirely over water.

The other was to go to Cape Smith, then follow the indented Hudson Bay shoreline to Port Harrison.

Names of the four policemen aboard the missing aircraft were not announced by the R.C.M.P. here. They were on a routine flight from Coral Harbor to Port Harrison, and had fuel for 4 1 hours. Flying time normally is about three hours and 20 minutes.

Assistant Commissioner J. D. Bird said last night the Grumman Goose probably had landed on the bay at Povungnituk or Point Smith, north of Port Harrison, to await better weather. He said bad weather probably had cut off wireless messages from the plane.

CAMERA CLUB HAS FINE EXHIBIT AT THE FAIR

The photography exhibit of the Belleville Camera Club at the local fair is a focal point of interest for the numerous camera fans and others in the city and district. Over 30 large prints covering a wide range of subject matter are included in the display as well as a collection of color pictures.

The quality of the photography is exceptionally good with the two judges, Robt. McCormick, of McCormick's studio and William Riley requiring considerable time for scrutiny and comparison before deciding on the winners.

Joan Bromskill with a bridge scene won first honors, while Bill McCormick with a park scene copped the second prize. J. M. Holmbolt with an industrial scene came in for third prize.

NAMES OF PARENTS INCORRECTLY GIVEN

With close to 100 babies entered in the baby show at the Belleville Fair, it appears the names of the twins' parents were given incorrectly in the list of prize winners appearing in the Ontario Intelligencer. Names of the twins' parents are Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Ryan, 27 St. Charles Street, and not Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Ryan as was given in the paper.

MAYOR FOREGOES ATTENDANCE AT MAYORS' MEETING

Mayor H. J. Allin has decided not to attend the mayor's convention in Saskatoon. The convention, which will be a gathering spot for the mayors of the Dominion, starts next Monday. Mayor Allin told the Ontario Intelligencer that he felt that it would not be right to go to the convention with the tax rate of Belleville at its present level. The mayor intimated that he had decided that what he might get out of the convention might not be worth the taxpayers' money spent on the trip.

BICYCLE BROKEN IN ALLEYWAY

Miss Doreen Ellis, 40 Benjamin Street, is without a bicycle today. It is not lost as she at first suspected, but is a total wreck.

Miss Ellis, a salesgirl at a downtown store, has been in the practice of riding her bicycle to work. She parked it in a recess of a Front Street alleyway and when it was missing Tuesday evening reported it stolen.

But it had not been stolen. During the afternon a Riggs Motors truck driven by Gerald Bailey had passed down the alley. The rack of the truck or fender caught the handlebar of the bike and it fell under the dual wheels of the vehicle.

The truck driver was unable to locate the owner of the bike and the girl later reported it stolen. Her loss is $75.

Camping Life Coming to End All Too Quickly

Happy days for a capacity enrolment of girls at the Y.M.C.A. Moira Lake Camp are coming to an end all too quickly according to the reports of those who have reluctantly returned to the city at the conclusion of their period. The camp has now entered on its final week and there is a great rush to get craft work and projects completed and tests passed. With very few exceptions the record of the boys' camp has continued and girls who arrived as non-swimmers have learned the fundamental principle of water safety under the careful teaching of a staff of skilled instructors.

The highlight of the camp has been the amateur show produced and presented to an audience of parents and friends on Friday night. The ability of the girls to present such a fine performance with little experience and a limited amount of time for practice in a crowded program is recognition of the able leadership they received. Bill McKenzie, Doug. Eaton and Sylvia Motley had the major share in the direction:

Humorous Skit

A humorous skit "The Night Before Christmas" was performed by Shirley Smale and Sylvia Motley.

The vaudeville team of Deanna Halsey and Ruth Watson presented a version of "Dearie" adapting it to many camp characters.

The mock wedding included in the cast Deanna Mansfield, Sophie MacKenzie, Janet Wardle, Sandra Winters, Deanna Halsey, Pauline Hall, Josephine Hurst, Barbara Keel, Beverley Samuels and Linda Keel.

Joanne Clarke, Molly Buchan, Deanna Mansfield and Muriel Morton gave several quartet vocal numbers.

"Chattanooga Shoe Shine" was the presentation of Cabin 6, assisted by Doug Eaton.

Operatic Numbers

The camp counsellors presented a fine selection of operatic numbers and Sylvia Motley's vocal and piano numbers were well received. The square dance was another head line feature.

The girls return to the city on August 19th after one of the most successful of camping seasons. Included among the campers this season were over fifty boys and girls who attended at no expense to themselves, or at a reduced fee because of their inability to pay. The below cost rate enabled a maximum number of children to enjoy the benefits of camp life with wholesome environment, safety and skilled leadership.

Plans are already underway in preparation for the camp of 1951. Alterations in equipment will be undertaken this fall and leadership selection training and planning will be a continuous process during the winter.

Much of the success of the camp has been due to the efforts of the director Kenneth Hansel and Mrs. Hansel who out of experience and influence have supervised a staff of instructors and counsellors in the performance of very excellent service.

Inter-County Flavor Seen At Opening of Fair as Wardens Of Two Counties Preside

There was an inter-county flavor to the official opening of the Belleville Fair yesterday afternoon.

Warden Clarke Rollins of Hastings County and Warden Norris Whitney of Prince Edward County collaborated in the brief ceremonies that took place on the stage in front of the grandstand.

Political, civic and municipal representatives occupied the spotlight as President Harry Rollins of the Belleville Agricultural Society got proceedings underway.

On the stage were Frank Follwell, M.P. Roscoe Robson M.L.A. Elmer Sandercock, M.L.A., Don Baxter, M.L.A. Prince Edward Lennox, Mayor Jack Allin, Belleville, Erle Denyes, secretary and Ben Bleecker, treasurer of the Fair Board.

President Rollins prior to introducing officialdom spoke briefly on aspects of the 1950 edition of the fair. He issued an official welcome to the people of the city and district adding that while the officials of the Fair Board had worked hard to give the city of Belleville and Hastings County the best exhibition possible, there could be room for improvement. He welcomed suggestions and criticism that would tend to build a bigger and better fair next year.

Mayor Jack Allin who introduced the special guests of the Fair Board, welcomed the capacity-filled grandstand and others on behalf of the city.

Warden Clarke Rollins referring to Hastings County as the "banner county of the Province of Ontario" drew attention to the fact that the county played no small part in making the fair the success it was.

"It was a splendid indication of the co-operation that is always evident between the city and the county," he said. He paid tribute to the directors of the fair and added his congratulations on a "fine effort."

Warden Norris Whitney recalled the fairs that were held here years ago. Great changes have taken place, he pointed out, change that have elevated the Belleville Fair to a position equalling that of the best fairs in the province.

"The great expansion of your fair," he said, "augurs well for its future. This fair, like others is a place where all walks of life rural and urban can meet on a common ground."

The 1950 Belleville Fair was then declared officially open.

President Rollins in a brief address concluding the official ceremonies, stressed the point that next year municipal, provincial and federal governments would be approached with a view to assisting in the cost and construction of a new grandstand.

"Next year, ladies and gentlemen," the president smiled. "I hope to see you sitting in a brand new grandstand.

Upwards of 15,000 people a second-day attendance record filed through the turnstiles yesterday afternoon and evening.

Special attraction of the day were the harness horse races that thrilled the huge crowd with its close finishes and colorful atmosphere. The races attracted another large crowd today and will finish the three-day card tomorrow afternoon.

Luncheon Held Before Opening Of Local Fair

Previous to the official opening of the fair on Tuesday, executive officers of the Fair Board, members of Parliament of both Federal and Provincial and the wardens of two counties immediately concerned convened at the Shrine Club for luncheon prior to going to the grounds.

Harry Rollins, president of the Fair Board, spoke a few words at the conclusion of the luncheon and called upon Frank Follwell, M.P. for South Hastings. He praised the board for their advancement in the way of exhibition for this district and hoped for the continued success of the fair.

Don Baxter, M. P. P. for Prince Edward - Lennox added his word of praise, stating he knew the trials and tribulations that faced a fair board in developing a fair that would appeal to all classes in the district. He brought greetings from the sister county. Roscoe Robson, M.P.P. for Hastings East and Elmer Sandercock, M. P. P. for Hastings West, also praised the board for their progress and the officers for putting so much time and ability into a project without any thought of renumeration.

Those present at the luncheon were: Harry Rollins, Erle Denyes, Ben Bleecker and Dr. J. Russell Scott of the Fair Board, Mayor H. J. Allin, Wardens Clarke Rollins of Hastings and Norris Whitney of Prince Edward. Frank Follwell, M. P., Donald Baxter, M.P.P., Roscoe Robson, M. P. P., Elmer Sandercock, M. P. P., Clarence Jewel, Arthur Bateman, Al Reynolds, Bert Docter. Frank Conklin, manager of midway, and Ald. Claude D. Tice.

Mayor Allin thanked the board for the gesture and praised the society for their efforts in the fine exhibition that was being presented and promised the closest co-operation between the city and this body. The luncheon was quite informal.

Arnold Farms In Quebec One Of the Largest

There are times when winning prizes gets monotonous. In fact, sometimes it is an event when a judge omits to place a ribbon on a nag's head.

That is the case of twenty-one year old Jeffrey Arnold of the fabulous Arnold Farms of Grenville, Quebec.

Gilbert, a personable young man, who lives, breathes and exists on horses, is a son of 43-year-old Gilbert Arnold, who owns the 25,000 acre farm.

The Arnold's are well represented at the Belleville Fair. Their entries ranging from the proud Percheron and other heavy draft dobbins to the high-stepping Hackney, have drawn the admiration of thousands of horse-lovers and other visitors to the fair.

Jeffrey has a trunkful of prizes. The ribbons the Arnold horses have won would paper an ordinary ice arena.

Upwards of 250 "hands" keep the Arnold prize-winning dobbins in condition and raise the feed that is necessary for their maintenance.

Yep, 2,000 blooded equines get their three meals a day at the Arnold Horse Restaurant.

Just name your breed, and nine times out of ten Jeffrey or his assistants will fill your order.

Percheron, Belgian, Clydesdales head the heavy draft family. Roadsters, standard breds, Hackneys and "pure breds" are part of the light classes.

A special too is the French-Canadian breed, a light draft horse raised and bred especially on the Arnold Farms. There is even a Tennessee Walking breed on the place.

The Arnolds show their horses at all outstanding Canadian exhibitions. Their name is a byword at the Canadian National Exhibition, Toronto and the Royal Winter Fair at Toronto and Ottawa show. They have yet to show their prize winners at a United States Show.

KILLED TRAIN

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 16 — (AP) —An eight-year-old deaf mute girl was killed by a train yesterday, just as her brother was killed several years ago. Frances Devine was struck by a freight while returning home from an errand for her parents. A five year-old-brother of the girl was killed by a freight several years ago.

Fire Dept. Prepared for Emergencies at Fair

"Make every week fire prevention week" is the motto of the Belleville Fire Department which during fair week has some of its equipment stationed at the fair grounds for use in case of emergency.

Thus far in the fair there has been no call for use of the fire fighting equipment inside the grounds but preparedness is the motto of the department. One of the department's pumpers is stationed at the fair during the four days of the fair.

Only one run was made by the department during the past day or so, that being to Cannifton Road where a tar pot boiled over while being heated. The blaze, which was quickly extinguished, was at the new home being built by Chas. Parm south of Cannifton.

Bay of Quinte Crop Situation Up to Standard

Farm crops in central and eastern Ontario will be at least well up to standard this year, the latest weekly report from the Ontario Department of Agriculture indicates. In Durham, farmers have been harvesting fall wheat in good weather. Most of this wheat, because of low prevailing prices, will be kept by the farmers for feed.

In Hastings county, the indications are that wheat will be yielding from 40 to 45 bushels per acre with oats approaching the 60 bushels per acre mark. What is said to be the largest grain crop in years is being harvested in good condition. In Ontario and Peterborough counties, the wheat crop is good and spring grain yield is expected to be better than average.

Prince Edward county shows a drop in milk production, but wheat and oats are above average. The tomato crop appears to be particularly promising.

In eastern Ontario, most crops above average. In Carleton, corn is slow and grain is 80% in stock. Frontenac is showing an extended demand for cattle for slaughter and export, as there is in Glengarry. In Lanark, movement of cattle to the American market continues to be brisk. Fall wheat at its best is averaging 50 bushels to the acre, with spring grains predicting the same yield. Since August 4, weather has been ideal for harverting operations in Lennox & Addington.

175 Delegates of National Council of Young People Gather at Albert College

More than 175 young people from St. John's, Newfoundland, to Victoria, B.C., flooded into the city yesterday to attend the National Council of the Young People's Union of the United Church at Albert College. At a late hour last night the delegates were still arriving. The council, held once every four years, will continue its meetings until Sunday.

Registration of delegates was scheduled to start Tuesday at 2 p.m., but the visitors were arriving much earlier than that. "We hope there aren't more than 175", officials said "because we don't know where we would put them." Delegates are being billeted at Albert College, in the Manor, and in one or two tourist homes. Billeting officers even have a tent set up on the College grounds in case of emergency.

Open Forum

First actual step of the Council was the opening banquet last night, at which the Council Leaders for the sessions were introduced to the delegates. Following that, an open forum, over which Dr. Graham Hudson, of Ottawa, the national president of the Council, presided. He was aided by the Rev. Lloyd Shorten, of Toronto, Young People's secretary of the United Church in Canada.

Dr. Hudson, in formally declaring the session open at the evening round-up session said, "Each one of us must have a great sense of humility for what we have done to provide leadership for young people. Let us not feel that we are establishing something new," he said, "but we must continue to search for what is the will of God for us."

After the National Executive had been introduced to the group, the forum swung into a discussion of mutual problems and campaigns across the country. Subjects discussed informally were the need for more Bible study, missions, summer "caravan" work, and leadership training and education.

Told of Activities

Delegates from all the provinces told the group what their activities were in each area, and pride of accomplishment brought many to their feet to speak. Members of the Western Conference presented Dr. Hudson with a Stetson hat, and one member from the West objected, in fun, to the way in which Easterners tried to conduct a round-up. "You people don't know what it's all about," he said.

When the open forum was over, delegates moved into the chapel of the College to listen to Bishop Stephen C. Neill, the assistant to the Archbishop of Canterbury, London, England. Bishop Neill chose as his topic "A Man and His Faith."

Bishop Neill, in stirring message to the representatives of the young people of Canada, said that strong faith can be the only thing that will save the world of today. He spoke, in illustration, of Winston Churchill, whose determination and hope carried not only himself but the free world through to victory. "Have you got a faith like that?" Bishop Neill asked. "Nothing else is going to be any good in this word."

Made Part of Ours

"The problem facing the Church in these tormented days," the speaker said. "is to find out what the common man in the pew is thinking. "What is the ordinary churchgoer's faith?", Bishop Neill asked. Then he showed the delegates that the faith of the church is that God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son. God broke into this world, lived in it, and made His life part of ours, the speaker said.

"Good advice to the younger generation is not good enough," Bishop Neill said. This is proved by the fact that the Bible offers not good advice, but a Saviour.

Comparison Made

The speaker compared salvation to the process of mountain climbing. "One experienced man" he said, "shows the way, and the rest can follow." So it was, Bishop Neill added, that God put Jesus Christ on the earth to lead the people. "Unless you're a perfect fool," he said, "you're not too proud to accept the help that a friend offers you."

"That is the simple, 20th century way of saying salvation," he said. God put His son on earth to be the guide, but young people in this day, the speaker continued, are in a life that is "so dreadfully trivial."

The sacrament, Bishop Neill, has come to be "just something men do in honor of a man who lived and died long ago." If that is all Communion amounts to, the Bishop said, then it is of no use, and if it is what the world is lacking in these days, then there must be a more active and personal participation in the Communion. People must realize what Jesus Christ did for them, and that He is still doing things for them.

In conclusion, Bishop Neill urged "Let Jesus have free course in us; let Him take the poor raw material that is in us, and build us into men and women." God is looking for a man, and that man must have faith in Jesus Christ as a Saviour.

The session continues, with full programs for each day, through the rest of the week. Highlights are expected to be the elections of new officers on Thursday, a supper and picnic at Lake Quin-Mo-Lac, and the 25th anniversary banquet on Friday.

Theme of the council as "Alternative to Futility."

NEED LIGHT VESSELS

Stockholm, Aug. 16 (Reuters) —Sweden needs light vessels to meet "the submarine menace" the Swedish navy said last night in a request for additional shipbuilding appropriations. "Destroyers are suitable but could not be assigned to continual submarine chasing as conditions now demand. A large number of light vessels is therefore needed," the navy said.

Junior Boy and Girl Farmers Conclude Busy Day at Fair With Banquet in Church Parlor

The largest number of girls in the history of junior competition at the fair —84— took part in homemaking demonstrations, while 52 junior farmers competed in the livestock judging.

Carl Reid, of Stirling, member of the Stirling Calf Club was high point getter among the boys, while Miss Ruth Deviney, Northumberland county, member of the Wicklow - Vernonville Garden Club rated highest efficiency among the girls. Both were presented with Northern Electric radios donated through the firm at Belleville.

A Full Day

It was a full day for the juniors as starting promptly at nine thirty, judging classes commenced at the fair grounds, while the girls convened at the Bridge Street United Church parlors for demonstrations and skits. Agricultural representatives and home economics from the various counties represented assisted in the day's program.

Concluding the day's activities the boys and girls were guests of Trenton Dairies, Trenton, Swift Canadian, Belleville; Belleville Creameries, Trent Valley Creameries, Glen Roy Creameries, and the Belleville Fair Board, at a banquet held at Holloway Street United Church. Here the boys and girls were congratulated by fair president Harry W. Rollins and Warden Clarke T. Rollins, as well as by Mr. J. M. Purvis, English and economics instructor at the Kemptville Agricultural School. Mr. Purvis was guest speaker for the evening, while Ralph Banbury, agricultural representative for Northumberland, acted as chairman.

Authority Rests With You

As guest speaker Mr. Purvis called upon the boys and girls to assume their responsibilities as citizens in a democracy. He differentiated between a citizen and a subject by saying that a citizen shared in the responsibility of government and contributed to authority while the subject did not.

"Years ago," he said, "authority rested in a very few hands, while today final authority rests entirely with you. You do not even have to wait until you become of voting age. In the meantime, you can be thinking and assist in creating public opinion."

Declaring that democracy needed them just as much as they needed democracy, Mr. Purvis told the boys and girls that they could not afford to "let George do it." If they did they stood to lose many of the glorious privileges which they have today.

Through their own junior farmer organizations rural boys and girls had a splendid opportunity to create interest in municipal and national government. A wider program was urged to permit learning of government and civic affairs.

Think Ahead

"Think ahead and look forward to the day when you can take part—to the day when you can pull your weight and be a citizen, not merely a subject," he concluded.

Miss Elsie Irvine, home economist for Hastings, read the results of the girls' competition, while the winning girl, Miss Deviney, was presented with the radio by Mrs. J. G. Little, wife of Mr. Little, the Northern Electric representative. A. O. Dalrymple, agricultural representative, announced the boys' results and Mr. Little presented the radio to Carl Sills.

Other Winners

As a junior boy Carl Sills topped by one point the efforts of two senior boys, Bill Curle of Campbellford and Douglas Harry of Trenton who were tied with 497 points.

Other winners in the junior section were Robert Burkitt, Frankford, 494; Mel Merril, Campbellford, 4, 490; Tommy May, Picton, 485; John McComb, Belleville, 480; Jack Dorland, Hilton, 469; Glen Wilson, Stirling 468; Gerald Harry, Trenton, 464; Raymond Stickle, Trenton, 460; Jim Dorland, Hilton, 457; Robert Mallory, Trenton, 457; Allan Wallace, Stirling, 455; Frank Harry, Trenton, 454; Harvey Homan, Corbyville, 454; Merle Moore, Springbrook, 452; Robert Bush, Glen Miller, 450; Wayne Herrington, Frankford, 448; Ed. TURN OUT MORE CARS

London, Aug. 16 (Reuters) — British automobile manufacturers have turned out 100,000 more cars in the first six months of this year than the same period last year—itself a record year. The British Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders yesterday put the six-month output at 262,500 cars and 135,000 trucks and buses. Australia remained the biggest customer, taking 70,000 cars. Canada tripled her imports to buy 38,500.

Drastic Cut in Mail Services In Event RR Strike

Ottawa, Aug. 16. (CP)—"Drastic" curtailment of mail services will take place in Canada if the threatening Aug. 22 railway strike develops, the Post Office department announced today.

The emergency will make it necessary to place an embargo on parcel post, newspapers and other printed matter, the department said.

These classes of mail may not be accepted "several days" prior to the effective date of the strike in cases where delivery to the public cannot be assured by Aug. 22.

No immediate restrictions on local mail service are being planned, but the department emphasized that the strike would mean limitations in service to out-of-town points to these types:

1. Letters in ordinary form.
2. Mail prepaid at air mail rates.
3. Medicines, including analyses, specimens and other similar items prepared at normal rates.

These restrictions will be the "minimum" expectable if the strike materializes, the department said. Further reductions may be imposed as transportation facilities become snarled.

The department made the announcement as the Cabinet took matter of the rail wage dispute and possible government intervention under detailed consideration.

Leslie Sanders, 38, Orders Barrel For Falls Attempt

Nigara Falls, Ont., Aug. 16—(CP)—Leslie Sanders, 38, of New York, says he will try to go over the Horseshoe Falls in a steel barrel in September. He has ordered a barrel from a welding company here and will return to the city within a few days to complete details for the plunge, he said.

Major Lloyd Hill, who made an abortive attempt to go over the Falls last July, has announced plans for a second attempt September 11.

Sanders, an interior decorator, has attained a certain amount of fame from eccentric pastimes. He glued together 51,000 beads and 167,000 toothpicks to make a 16-foot replica of the Eiffel tower. The job took 11 years.

VIGILANCE PAYS OFF

Poliomyelitis, the annual summer crippler, seems to be taking a holiday this year. The total number of cases reported so far in 1950 is about 115, compared with 880 at this time in 1949. Deaths recorded for all of 1949 reached a figure of 175, while to date this year only five deaths have occurred.

Ontario, which usually leads the polio parade, has dropped its total to 55, with one death. Last year, a staggering 483 cases and 24 deaths had been reported within the province up to this time.

Authorities in the health field admit that they don't know why the polio incidence should be lower this year, except that the crippler runs in cycles, and that this must be an off-year. If this is so, then the panic that is sometimes attendant on a polio scare will be absent this year. This panic, if and when it comes, can be controlled by a sensible look at the situation.

Health authorities, while still stumped by polio and its origin, do offer some common sense precautions to which the public should pay heed. The careful washing of fruits and vegetables is a piece of common sense that everyone should apply; pasteurized milk and good drinking water are things that people are inclined to take for granted in these days, but their use can possibly prevent polio.

Other practices which should be observed are the covering of garbage, control of flies and other disease-carrying insects, and the proper maintenance of toilet facilities. Observance of these rules of thumb can and will help immensely in the prevention of poliomyelitis.

THEY FIND THEMSELVES

Something new under the sun has been found, according to the New York Times. From New Jersey there is word of a new method in caring for the mentally ill. Women prisoners are being used for this purpose with such inspiring results that "many of the women, after their term expired, remained with the patients preferring their newly acquired profession to former jobs."

This idea is credited to Dr. Bixby and it was born of necessity. "The state hospital at Trenton, N.J., suffered a shortage of help while the state's only women's prison at Clinton Farms was desperately overcrowded. When the Navy turned over its air station at Mercer Field to the state for mental patients, the commandant's former home became the living quarters of twenty-eight women prisoners at the time, all carefully selected and supervised. They represented the main care for 660 women patients of the Mercer Field unit of the state hospital."

One of the remarkable facts brought to light is that "there seems to be a bond of sympathy between the prisoners and the patients. Not one case of mistreatment has occurred and the prisoners, when interviewed, spoke of the need to try the patients with gentleness and sympathy. Everyone seems to be benefited from the plan."

Dr. Bixby has come in for the highest praise for his imagination in seeing the possibilities which lay in the situation whereby the women prisoners were given an inspiration in the service they could render as ward attendants to the 660 patients. The Times sees in this step a lesson in advanced penology which can be of the greatest benefit in redeeming many lives to great usefulness and service.

Sympathy for suffering humanity is one of the great forces at work in the world today. In the case of the 300 women prisoners who served chiefly as ward attendants they seem to have found one of the secrets and values in life in the rendering of service to others.

There never was an age in which there is so much attention directed to the care of the sick and the mentally ill. Surely those who serve those in the latter category have found one of the secrets of happiness and a means which not only helps others but in giving that very help make themselves worthwhile citizens rendering an outstanding service to their unfortunate sisters.

HANDLING A SCYTHE

On Manitoulin Island, says the Sudbury Star, the town administrators at Little Current have been looking for men to cut the weeds along the roads. The fruitless search brought this comment from town constable Wesley Taylor:

"Handling a scythe is a forgotten art. It is hard to find anyone who can handle one properly. The young fellows break them, and that's expensive."

And that just about sums up how far we are removed from the days when a man took pride in his ability to wield a scythe in a masterly manner.

People living in Eastern Ontario and other divisions of the Ontario Hydro Power Electric System have long enjoyed what some people in Western Ontario are now getting for the first time — light that does not flicker.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST
(Copyright, 1950, Edgar A. Guest)

THE UGLY NEIGHBOR

How deal with a neighbor who wants his own way
And denies to the children their children to play;
Has a dog that is vicious his dwelling to guard;
Keeps the ball or the kite that goes into his yard;
Cares for nobody's pleasure, save that of his own?
The answer is simple: Just leave him alone.

When cheery "Good mornings" he answers with sneers
And his tantrums of temper the neighborhood fears,
Though you've tried to be friendly and pleasant and be Still continues uncivil and surly to be,
There's only one way to get on with him known,
And that's very simple: Just leave him alone.

When your efforts to please him have proved to be wrong
And it's plain as can be that you can't get along;
When experience has taught that his manners are bad,
That no understanding with him can be had;
When he snarls and he growls like a dog with a bone,
The best thing to do is to leave him alone.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

TWO WORLDS AT A TIME

The true Christian lives in two worlds. He is born into the world of things; he is reborn into the spiritual realm which is characterized by heavenly treasure, where moth and rust do not corrupt and where thieves do not break through or steal.

You may say that this is a lot of silly, visionary chatter. How can people live in one world and visit in another. And strange as it may seem, the world in which they live is not the world of things. They live in a world of ideas and ideals, of firm religious conviction, of commitment to high and noble purpose. Their intercourse with the world of things is in the nature of an occasional visit. They live in the kingdom of God; they visit in the world which we are accustomed to call the real world—that is the world of material things.

People who have learned how to live in the higher world and visit in the lower are a happy lot of folk indeed. Sometimes they are rich in this world's goods. But not very often. Yet such people are happy —always happy. They have learned the great secret that wealth consists not in things but in peace of mind, in quietness of conscience, and in the joy of loving and being loved.

In this world of love, light, joy, and faith, they live; in the world in which most take their delight, they visit.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The law of averages is against us in the atomic bomb. So far, science has groped and probed so cautiously into this terrifying realm of atomic force that there have been no serious accidents—at least none that we have been told about.

What has me more scared than the possibility that the Russians may have the atomic bomb is the probability that some dope of a scientist, eager to make a name for himself, will take that one step more which may blow us all to blazes.

Up to a certain point, scientists can discipline themselves. But already there have been several instances of bad eggs amongst the atomic scientists, as regards giving secrets away to enemy nations. A bad egg of another kind might be the ambitious type who thinks up some bright theory and, without discussing it with his colleagues, touches off the trigger to a blast that would remove one planet from the sun's little collection.

In the past ten brief years, science has advanced an immense distance into the forbidding realm of atomic force. They have succeeded in discovering and mastering powers so monstrous that even the most learned of the scientists must have the bull-sized jitters. Every day, the law of averages mounts against them. So far, nobody has been hurt save about 80,000 Japanese. That was no accident. How about accidents?

In this matter, as in all human experience, the mass of mankind it at the mercy of a few characters who do the exploring. If Plato had been a surly man, not much given to conversation; If Euclid had died young; if Charlemagne had muffed a battle; if Columbus had been scared of his crew—where might we all be now?

Let us hope the atomic scientists can bear up to their jitters without their pots cracking.

PITCHING HORSESHOES

By Billy Rose

THREE FACES EAST

I don't know enough about military matters to sound off on the wisdom of buddying up to Franco of Spain, but I recently heard a story about collaborating with collaborationists which might be worth three minutes of your reading time.

It was told to me at the "21" Club by a pleasant-mannered member of the Australian delegation to the U.N. General Assembly who had just returned from a mission to Hong Kong.

"How do things look in China?" I asked him. "Do you think there's any chance of shaking the Commies loose from all the territory they've grabbed?"

"That's a difficult question," said the gentleman from Down Under, "inasmuch as there are plenty of Chinese who don't care a great deal, one way or the other."

"It's hard for me to believe that," I said.

"Well, perhaps I can best illustrate what I mean by telling you about a refugee who recently slipped into Hong Kong from North China. He applied for a job as porter at our temporary office, and when I asked him how things were up north, he said. 'Bad. Things are always bad up north.'

"He told me he had worked for years in a small factory which made dishpans, and that his boss had grown fat and rich overworking and underpaying the employees. And there was nothing the workers could do about it—the owner was in cahoots with the mayor, a petty despot who ran the town as if it were a private concentration camp. On one occasion when the men had appointed a committee to talk to the boss, the mayor had sent over a squad of policemen who beat them up and threw them in jail.

"When the Japanese invaded China in '37, most of the workers secretly hoped they would take over the factory and shoot their two tormentors. But a few minutes before the troops marched in, two big Japanese flags appeared on the main street, one on top of the factory and one on top of the town hall. And before the day was over, the boss had convinced the Japanese officials that he could be useful to them manufacturing mess kits, and the mayor had convinced them he could do a valuable job maintaining public order and collecting taxes.

"From then on, instead of working ten hours a day, the workers were required to put in 12—at a twenty-five percent cut in pay.

"The refugee told me that last year, when the Commie troops took over, two new flags again showed up on the main street—this time red ones with hammers and sickles. The welcoming committee was headed by the boss and mayor, and in no time at all they had convinced the commissars they could be useful in keeping thing going for the glorious army of liberation. A week later, a 16 hour work day was announced—at virtually no pay.

"When the refugee had finished his story," my Australian friend went on, "I told him not to despair—the United Nations were certain to drive the communists out of Korea, and one of these days would probably do the same in China.

"The refugee shrugged his skinny shoulders, 'It won't make any difference,' he said. 'If I know that boss and that mayor, they already have United Nations flags hidden away in their cellars.'"

Allies Fighting To Make World Safe From Fear

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

You are a United Nations soldier on a battle line in Korea, half a world away from home.

Why are you there? What are you fighting for?

Those are questions you are bound to ask yourself — and probably the answers don't come quickly. If you were at home, defending your country from invasion, the answers would be easy.

But why Korea? That's a long, long way from your family hearth.

Is it an ideal you are defending? We fought the second world war "to make the world safer for democracy." Is that what we are doing now?

You ought to know the answer to that, as you fight through the mud of the rice paddies or over the precipitous heights against a foe whose language and ways of life are wholly strange. What does he mean to you?

You are entitled to a good reason for your assignment. After all, war is concrete and it is cruel; ideals are intangible.

Well, idealism of course does enter into the sacrifice. The Western Allies again are fighting "to make the world safe for democracy" — to protect a small state against aggression which it couldn't deal with alone. Furthermore we are doing it under the banner of the United Nations.

After Korea, What Next?

However, we must look deeper than that. There are many who feel that this wouldn't be sufficient cause to send our boys to such a war.

We find a far more substantial reason in the fact that the Korean War is part and parcel of the world conflict between communism and democracy. From that viewpoint we are defending our own doorsteps, and in a big way.

The Korean conflict is an important part of the rapidly-swelling conquest of Asia by communism. There is a tendency in the west to overlook this fact, because the dangers and the trials of the European conflict have been so much closer.

But the red offensive in Europe has lost its steam. Having overrun a vast amount of territory which was made vulnerable to it by the World War, it now has been halted by the firm stand of the western powers.

Red Strategy

So we see Moscow shifting the weight of its offensive to the Asiatic theatre. Korea is an important phase of the Far Eastern conflict which, in the long run, may be decisive in the ideological struggle.

Should communism overrun the Orient, its next main objective would be the Western Hemisphere. Thus, in the larger sense, when we send aid to Korea now we are in fact defending North America from an assault which is bound to come if communism gains further great strength.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

KINDRED SPIRITS

How we delight in the companionship of those whose ideas and enterprises dovetail with our own! We at once feel akin to them. We inspire each other. We see things differently but on the same level. We supplement each other.

In the world of nature there are kindred spirits. We can easily become a part with them. Thoreau knew every flower by name that he came in contact with as he walked about Walden Pond. He knew the animals and birds, and even the fish, the aroma of the trees, and the whistle of the train had a voice that he loved. There was nothing dull about his days.

On my writing desk, here on my island retreat, are wild flowers of a dozen varieties that speak to me in their own language. Colorful, fragrant, and inspiring, for each is a work of art, fashioned by the Creative mind that is so watchful over us all. The tiniest flower has a fascination for me. I wonder about its creation, hid in some obscure spot along the shore of my lake, or edging its way to the sunlight between a tufted mass of velvety moss!

The small birds that gather outside my bedroom window, flying from the colorful pines at early morn, are as kindred to me as though they knew me by name. What happy creatures as they chirp in their mutual manner, and uncomplainingly live out their days!

Near me is a beaver dam. My friend "Bucky" and I rowed to it one day and discovered a nest of young ones within it. The parents swam all about it, watchful and waiting, but we did no disturbing. We simply took pictures and studied every movement, seeking for knowledge of their life and habits. Then we quietly moved away. So sure were these animals that we would not harm them, that one of them, a few feet away, climbed to a rock and sat there and washed his face! Kindred spirits we were!

What a world this could be if only human beings could look upon all others as kindred spirits, each determined upon a happy way of life, not disturbing others, but helpfully cooperative!

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

(Signed letters pertaining to personal health and hygiene, not to disease diagnosis, or treatment will be answered by Dr. Brady if a stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Letter should be brief and written in ink. Owing to the large number of letters received only a few can be answered here. No reply can be made to queries not conforming to instructions. Address: Dr. William Brady, care of this newspaper.)

THIRTY TO FIFTY SHOULD NOT BE SO COLD

In a preceding talk I said the woman with sub-oxidation, low metabolism, not only complains of the cold when other persons are comfortable or maybe too warm, but she really is cold, that is, her body temperature is below normal when measured with the clinical thermometer.

Because we understand her we do not sympathize with her condition. As likely as not she feels cold or chilly all the time just because she does not heed the advice we give her. We ordinary family doctors, I mean.

Somewhere between thirty and fifty we all begin to die. In other words, physical degeneration begins the instant we attain the peak of growth and development. We are like roses, cabbages or apple trees.

Apple trees. They let me down, the apple trees in that wonderful orchard up on Head Street in Penn Yan. When I was a country doctor there, starving but happy, the owner of that orchard sometimes received a cool five thousand dollars—an incredible sum—in cash for the season's crop. We never saw as much as five thousand cents in one lump.

Well, we travelled across the country two or three years ago, to visit Penn Yan, Canandaigua and unimportant places roundabout. Our motive was two-fold, first, to drive over some of the lovely back roads in the country around Penn Yan with my first wife—who came along with us on the trip. She and/or I had some silly notion that..well, let it go—in order to recapture the halcyon days we required a sorrel horse and rubber-tired low-sill Whitfield buggy, which are not to be had today, and anyway there are no lovely back country roads left around Penn Yan. Just paved highways and unromantic gasoline buggies. My second motive was to see that wonderful orchard two or three blocks south of Main Street. When we arrived at the scene, we found only an old stump or two to mark the spot where the apple orchard had flourished. That was a jolt. It imparted a melancholic tinge to what has promised to be a delightful vacation. It's no use. You can't go back. We laugh about it now, for we know it would be dreadful if we had to go back. Life as it is suits us perfectly.

As I said, we all degenerate after we have thrived for our allotted time, like the apple trees. There's no sense sniffling or whining about it.

On the other hand, if or when we begin degenerating (growing old) prematurely it is foolish to accept the situation as inevitable. Countless individuals have proved to their own satisfaction and the satisfaction of their friends that one can retard or postpone the cold gradations of degeneration (the poet called it decay, but there's nothing rotten about it). They did it by following the simple health rules laid down in The 7 Keys to Vite—for a copy of the booklet send twenty-five cents and stamped self-addressed envelope.

One of these health rules is, get your iodine. In most parts of the country today the food and drinking water do not provide sufficient iodine to fulfill the minimum nutritional requirement. This is one common cause of the low metabolism, the subnormal body temperature, the cold hands and feet, the oversensitiveness to cold, the sallow appearance, the lassitude, mental depression and perhaps the weak knees of so many women in their thirties or forties.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Here We Go Again

In your column recently you told of peg teeth screwed into the jaw. Please send me the names of the dentists in——, —— and —— who do this work, (A. W. A.)

Answer—I have no data on dentists. The article merely described progress in experimental work as reported by Alvin E. Strock, D. M. D. from the surgical laboratory, Harvard medical School, in '39, and by another Strock also of the dental service in Brigham Hospital in Boston, in '50. Few practicing dentists have mastered the technic of direct implantation of peg teeth.

Lifelong Abuse

I have taken mineral oil as a daily laxative for more than 30 years. I have always been hard to move. My 10 years old son is too. Heard that this may cause cancer. (Mrs. J. D.)

Answer—I don't believe it will cause cancer, but it is a senseless habit and certainly it tends to impair nutrition because it interferes with assimilation of vitamins and minerals from food. Send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope and ask in writing (no clipping, please) for booklet The Constipation Habit and Colon Hygiene.

Removing Poison Spray Residue from Fruit and Vegetables

Twice recently I have had nausea, cramps and diarrhea from eating salad greens, which I think contained some residues of lead arsenate spray. (E. W.)

Answer—Wash fruit or vegetables with 1 per cent of hydrochloride acid in water and rinse in running water, to remove arsenic residues which ordinary washing fails to remove.

Rebel's Death May Mean End Of Uprising

Rangoon, Aug. 1—(Reuters)—Military quarters here today said they believed the death of Sau Ba U Gyi, Karen rebel chief, meant an end to the 14-month-old rising by Karen tribesmen in Burma.

The Karen chief was killed with Capt. Davis Vivian, former British army officer, and an English adviser named "Baker," in a battle with Burmese government forces in a village near the Siamese frontier.

Betrayed by Karens loyal to the central government, they were surprised while completing plans to flee to Siam on elephants.

Sau, self-styled leader of 2,500,000 Karen tribesmen, proclaimed a separate Karen 'sovereign state" in Burma in June, 1949, and launched full-scale attacks on central government forces.

Council Criticizes Chamber of Commerce For Circulating Petition Urging Early Closing By-Law

Trenton (Special)—The Chamber of Commerce was severely criticized by council Monday night, for asking retail merchants to sign a petition urging council to pass a by-law requiring all stores to close at 6 p.m. week nights and at 9 p.m. Saturday night.

Two grocers Peter Deduke and Gordon Shoniker, appeared before council to protest the petition which they expected would be presented at Monday night's meeting. However, the Chamber of Commerce has not yet completed its survey.

"If a man is ambitious and wants to keep open extra hours and we cut him off by forcing him to close, we are getting as bad as Russia," said Mayor Kenneth J. Couch. "We have paid our share as a member of the Chamber of Commerce but if the only thing they are going to do is reduce our hours, I don't know whether we will do it next year or not."

Says Petition Not Complete

Mr. Deduke said that the petition was not complete because he knew of several grocery stores who had not been asked to sign the petition and were opposed to it in any case. Clerk-treasurer O. W. Larry said that such a petition would require the signatures of 75 per cent of all merchants in each class affected before council would be obliged to pass the by-law. Mr. Deduke replied that he was certain the petition would not be signed by three quarters of the grocery stores.

"They could certainly find a lot more useful things to do than this," said councillor Vic Ryan in referring to the Chamber of Commerce petition.

"This is regulation of business and I do not approve of it," said Councillor Charles Allore. "I think the Chamber of Commerce is overstepping themselves. I can not see how a man can be forced to close a legitimate business."

Sees Inconvenience

Mayor Couch said he did not feel it was a good idea to reduce the hours of closing on Saturday nights because it would be an inconvenience to people in the country who come to Trenton to shop Saturday evening. He told council that last Saturday night, after closing his business at 10 p.m. he drove to Madoc and the stores there were still doing "a landoffice business" when he arrived at 11.30.

Trenton Chevs Hammer McComb For Twelve Hits

Trenton (Special) — Tagging Campbellford hurler Bruce McComb for 12 hits half of which were good for extra bases, Trenton Chevrolets defeated the visiting Campbellford team 9 to 4 at Bayshore Park, Monday night. Postponed earlier in the season because of rain, the game affected the final standing of the two tail end teams in the Trent Valley League.

While the Chevrolet were hammering Campbellford for five doubles, a one run homer and six singles, Wooler was busy in Frankford handing the second-place Merchants a 7-2 setback. As a result of the two games Monday night, Wooler is safely entrenched in the fourth and last playoff berth while Campbellford won the cellar position in the five team loop.

Trenton finishes the schedule three games in front of Frankford and Hastings is in third place.

Both McComb for Campbellford and Curtis for the Chevs went the distance and both retired eight via strikeouts and allowed three free trips to first. In the hitting department it was a different story, as the hard-hitting Chevies outslugged their visitors 12 to seven.

First baseman O'Sullivan was the big gun for Campbellford with three hits in four tries, a single and double topped off with a two run homer in the third. O'Sullivan's opposite number on the Trenton squad, Lou Carswell, hit a one run round tripper in the seventh. Jefferey paced Trenton at the plate with two singles and a double while Miron and Flynn helped the Chevrolet cause with a two bagger and a single each.

Chevrolets started out in high gear with two runs in the first on Istead's lead off double followed by Flynn who was safe on an error. The next two Chev hitters fanned on the third strike and Jefferey came up with his double scoring Istead and Flynn. Campbellford was held scoreless until the third when Curtis walked Hoard, McComb struck out and O'Sullivan clouted his two run homer to tie up the count. Trenton went ahead three runs in their half of the third and led the rest of the way adding one in the seventh and three more in the eighth.

Line score:	R.	H.	E
Trenton	203 000 13x-9	12	1
Campbellford	002 010 010-4	7	4

News of Stirling Area

Stirling—A purple and gold pennant will be awarded the family with the largest number in attendance at the 75th anniversary observance of the Carmel Church in September.

Marriage by proclamation of "banns" is favored in this pastoral charge. With the advent of civil marriages, the publication of "banns" lifts any marriage contract above the suggestion that marriage is purely a civil contract. The minister announced that while some denominations continue to read "banns" three times, once is all that is required by the laws of Ontario.

The people of Stirling are rejoicing in the improvements made at the Stirling Post Office by the Dominion government. Painting the stone wall and repairing of the lawn would further enhance the appearance of this fine building.

The Stirling agricultural office has set a fine window-cleaning example to the keepers of all public buildings in the community. Brass decorations should be kept polished or replaced.

Jr. Farmers' First Church Service

The Rawdon and Huntingdon Junior Farmers will hold their first church service on Sunday, Sept. 17 when the festival of "Harvest Home" will be observed. The offering will be devoted to some worthy cause to be decided upon. It is expected that young farmers and homemakers will attend from all parts of the county for this great evening service.

Farmers and villagers alike are anticipating the finest from field and garden for the "Harvest Home" church decorations. These will include fruit, grain, vegetables, flowers, honey and other produce. This district has been blessed with a wonderful harvest and the people are expected to gather gladly to "raise the song of Harvest Home."

Registrations are now being made for the Royal Stirling Junior choir. Mrs. S. Abernethy is the secretary of the Choir Board. Practices will commence every Thursday when school re-opens.

Historic Records Sought

Historic records are urgently needed, and readers are invited to help supply the following information: When were church services first held in what is now Stirling, (a) by the Methodist Episcopals, (b) by the Wesleyans? Where is Clover Hill? Who can show the earliest circuit plans of the Episcopal and Wesleyan churches? Information for the period 1820-1875 is especially sought. Are there pictures of the first Methodist and Episcopal churches in Stirling? What were the locations of the first schools in Stirling, Rawdon and Sidney? Where was the Town Line school house?

Major Rev. J. W. Oliver, who served with the 139th Battalion and was later a runner of the First Division in World War I and a chaplain in World War II, will be the pulpit guest next Sunday at St. Paul's and Carmel.

"Gypsy Rover" rehearsals will be resumed the last week of August. Upwards of $200 has already been spent in costume material for this colorful entertainment.

Members of the Women's Association of Carmel have been on their knees scrubbing and painting the floor of their Silver Jubilee Hall for several Wednesdays.

The pedestal flower stands at St. Paul's church will be filled with flowers next Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Martin in loving memory of their son, Major Ivan Harold Martin, D.S.C. (U.S.) who gave his life at St. Lambert Sur-Dives, Normandy, on August 24, 1944.

Mrs. R. B. Duffin and Mrs. Percy Uttman, flower conveners at St. Paul's Church and Mrs. Lorne Brooks, flower convener at Carmel, are to be congratulated on the variety, color and arrangement of the flowers in the sanctuaries each Sunday. Their thanks is expressed to all who have given and who continue to offer flowers on Sundays.

Visitors to Falls In Record Numbers

Niagara Falls, Ont. — (CP) — Visitors to this world - famous scenic resort may establish a record this year if the influx of travellers continues at the pace of the last three months.

In June, automatic automobile and bus counting devices installed in Queen Victoria Park, central area of the 35-mile-long Niagara parks system, recorded 223,948 automobiles entering the park. July traffic averaged close to 12,000 a day. This is considerably higher than 1949, despite prolonged cool, wet weather.

Since the counting devices were installed a year ago, the largest single 24-hour period was the Sunday preceding Labor Day last year, when 29,015 vehicles were registered.

Douglas Allan, supervisor of the Ontario Department of Travel and Publicity, said visitors registering during June at the Department's information booth numbered 14,836, an increase over 1949. In July, the daily registration was estimated to be double the June figure.

The Falls continue to attract visitors from all parts of the world. Aside from representatives of most of the 8 states, a total of 37 countries were represented by June visitors. Among them were Germany, Japan, Finland, China, Alaska, Malta, Egypt and Switzerland.

GOLDEN FISH

Winnipeg, Man. — One of life's most rewarding experiences is to sit before a table in the hushed and slightly solemn atmosphere of the dining room of Winnipeg's Royal Alexandar Hotel and make a pig of yourself with Winnipeg Goldeye.

The hotel itself doesn't compare with other, more modern railway hostels in Canada (for one thing it's so close to the transcontinental track that a sleepless guest once phoned the desk and asked what time his room reached Regina), but the dining room is my favorite of all, being frankly old-fashioned and perfectly suited to a reverential consumption of Amphiodon Alosoides.

Amphiodon Alosoides or Winnipeg Goldeye, is the world's finest eatin' smoked panfish a statement one may make boldly, and one made frequently by distinguished visitors to Winnipeg, including H. V. Kaltenborn, a bold-statement maker from away-back.

Along with every other correspondent who converged on Winnipeg to cover the big flood this spring I indulged in a Goldeye orgy and determined that if I ever came back I'd find something of the background of this splendid fish.

Of course the Royal Alex has no monopoly on the delicacy. Indeed, Albert Zanzig, the retired maitre d'hotel of the Fort Garry Hotel (who insisted on serving them with the heads on and moaned at the necessity of offering them without a suitable white wine) is generally credited with being the No. 1 Goldeye salesman.

The fish are also on sale over the counter in these parts at 70 cents the pound or three for about a dollar and are just as delicious cooked on a Coleman stove as anywhere else. On this my research is not to be questioned.

With The Chef

I introduced my gang to Goldeye last night at the Royal Alex, successfully passing on my passion for that delicate flavor and firm, blushing flesh, and then retire to the kitchen to bow and scrape before the chef who accepted my plaudits with becoming modesty.

The hotel's chef is one Horace Swain who has been doing excellent things with Goldeye since 1922. He is a precise, smooth-skinned man who looks, except for the great white cap, like Hollywood's idea of The Famous Surgeon and is anxious not to be quoted too directly on controversial points.

M. Swain favors a Goldeye of about 10 ounces and 12 inches in length and usually gives the fish about eight minutes in a steam chest, serving with a strip of grilled bacon and maitre d'hotel butter in which ice cold chicken broth, lemon juice and parsley are subtly blended.

There are, however, a great many other ways of serving the fish, including grilling in which the Goldeye is slightly toasted, or, again poached (recommended for Coleman stoves).

M. Swain—oh, excellent fellow!—also has a superb recipe for Goldeye a la Creble with a Spanish sauce and Goldeye Paupiette in which the fish is gently baked in paper.

He occasionally has calls from gourmets for a Marinate of Goldeye in which the Goldeye is filleted and placed tenderly in a bed of lettuce leaf with red and green peppers, celery, sliced tomatoes and French dressing. "Sharp French dressing," Mr. Swain adds

The chef himself, occasionally finds a Goldeye or two left over from the day and sits down in his office, bows thrice to the east, and despatches same without trimmings. Indeed, he and I split one right from the ice chest in this manner, and it was How you say? —superb.

Part of the joy of Goldeye is doing your own filleting since a knife takes away the sunset-colored outer skin as if by magic and the tender meat then may be parted delicately from the skeleton in an operation so clean that one marvels that a fish so toothsome should be so obliging architecturally.

Via Alberta

Fifty-odd years ago when Goldeye were as common as frankfurters the fish was not considered anything special and nobody dreamed that someday they'd be a $4.50 delicacy on the Stork Club menu.

Traditionally, the Goldeye is from Lake Winnipeg (fishermen drop their nets through the ice from portable heated shacks, I'm told), but in recent years the Goldeye have been running thin in Manitoba and most of the supply now comes from Lac Claire, near Athabaska Lake in Northern Alberta. Some even come here from Minnesota.

The "processing," as they call it, is a Winnipeg specialty and apparently as secret as the formula for Coca-Cola. Goldeye is a silver-colored sort of bass, but when it is smoked over smoldering scrub oak bush and tinted, it takes on the bronze-gold color and its flavor.

Chef Swain can't remember when he was last asked for fresh Goldeye, which he describes as "soft and unattractive." I've been invited to see how this processing is done, but I think I'll skip it. Does the steak-lover visit the abbatoir?

In the course of a normal day M. Swain may serve three or four dozen Goldeye, but sometimes, for banquets he will have three to four hundred. M. Swain likes those days. There are always a few left over for M. Swain.

Oh, yes, Winnipeg Goldeye is a fine game fish when taken on a light tackle and responds to either a wet or dry fly. But it's a lot simpler just to sit in the Royal Alex dining room and give your order, softly and thoughtfully, to a waiter.

Charge May be Changed After Woman's Death

Sarnia, Aug. 16 (CP) —Florence Helen Anderson, 23, wounded when she was shot in the head with a 12-guage shotgun Sunday night died Tuesday in Sarnia General Hospital without recovering consciousness.

Her fiance, James Walker Clarke, 25, is in Lambton County jail on a charge of wounding with intent to murder the attractive brunette.

"In all probability charges will be changed to murder," Sarnia township Police Chief Lewis Risdale said Tuesday night.

Meanwhile Bruce Stanley, 29, of Strathroy is in Strathroy hospital shot through the arm with a .22-rifle bullet. Hospital authorities say Stanley is not in serious condition but is in hysterical state.

It is alleged that Stanley was found lying outside the family home wounded in the arm with a .22 rifle by his side.

Strathroy Police Chief George Tanton said Tuesday night no charges had been laid as yet.

Stanley is alleged to have been involved in the Sunday argument at Sarnia which led to the death of Florence Anderson Tuesday night.

The Sunday shooting is said to have grown out of an argument involving the dead girl, her mother, Mrs. Freda Hornby, Strathroy, Clarke and Bruce Stanley. Sarnia police said Stanley had been attempting to persuade Miss Anderson to return with her mother and him to Strathroy. Blows were exchanged between the two men before the shooting took place, police said.

WEDDINGS

GENTILE—FARMER

Picton.— St. Gregory's Church, Picton, was the scene of a lovely wedding at nine o'clock this Wednesday morning, Aug. 16, when Rev. J. G. Clancy united in marriage, Lois Ruth Farmer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Fletcher, 25 Queen Street, and Vincent Joseph, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gentile, Bloomfield Road. Gladioli decorated the altar.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. Burns and Miss Jeanne Seeds sang 'Ave Marie', 'Panis Angelicas' and 'On This Day'.

Given in marriage by her father, the lovely bride made a pretty picture in a floor-length gown of blue French lace over taffeta, featuring a ballerina length full skirt, high neck with dainty collar and buttons to the waist. Her white Juliet hat had a shoulder length veil and she wore long white gloves. Her flowers were a corsage of roses with streamers on a white prayer book.

Miss Teresa Smith was bridesmaid, wearing a floor-length gown of grey crepe with pink and white accessories. Her flowers were pink carnations. The bride was also attended by Miss Mary Mason and Miss Gladys Jones. They were gowned in coral taffeta with navy accessories and wore corsages of carnations.

Samuel Gentile was groomsman for his brother.

A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents following the ceremony. The assistants were Misses Mary Mason and Gladys Jones and Mrs. V. VanDusen.

For travelling through the United States, the bride donned a fine check English gabardine suit with navy and white accessories. They will reside at 25 Barker Street.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. D. Buchanan, of Guelph and Mr. and Mrs. D. Andrews, of Hamilton.

COUCH—BUSH

St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, was the setting for a lovely summer wedding on Saturday, August 12, at high noon, when Marjorie Anna Bush, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Bush, of Stirling, was united in marriage in a double ring ceremony to Harvey Wilson Couch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Couch, of Rawdon Township, Stirling, R.R. 3, with the pastor Rev. A. E. Baker, officiating.

The church entrance was festive with baskets of white phlox and the church altar was banked with white baskets of gladioli arranged in various blending colors against background of potted ferns. The church pews were decorated with white satin ribbons and sweet alyssum.

Mr. Jack Blakely, Napanee, cousin of the bridegroom, was soloist and sang "At Dawning", preceding the ceremony and "I'll Walk Beside You", during the signing of the register.

The winsome bride, given in marriage by her father was a picture of loveliness in a floor-length gown of eggshell slipper satin, fashioned with a molded bodice pointed at the front, and was buttoned down the back; a nylon yoke trimmed with Brussels imported lace, long sleeves ending in points at the wrists. The full gathered skirt was lace trimmed and caught with sprays of lily-of-the-valley. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held in place by a tiara headdress trimmed with seed pearls. Her only ornament was a double strand pearl necklace, the gift of the bridegroom. She carried a bouquet of Bettertime red roses tied with matching red satin ribbon.

The bride's sister, Miss Adelene Bush, was maid of honor, wearing a floor-length model of yellow embossed organza over matching taffeta. The nylon yoke was fashioned with a boat neckline dotted with pearls. The skirt which was in hoop effect with several rows of lace at the hem, was caught up with satin ribbon. The bodice was in a point effect with rows of buttons at the back. She wore matching mitts, a sweetheart bonnet of shirred net with the edging in drape effect and carried a crescent bouquet of Briarcliffe pink roses.

The bridesmaids were Miss Eleanor Bush, cousin of the bride, gowned in floor-length mauve brocaded organza over matching taffeta and Miss Doris Pollock wearing turquoise brocaded organza over matching taffeta. Both dresses were identical except for colors and were fashioned like to that of the maid of honor, with matching mittens, sweetheart bonnets and they carried crescent bouquets of Gloria yellow roses.

Miss Carol Sharp was flower girl in a long gown of pink brocaded organza over matching taffeta, fashioned similar to those of the other attendants. She too, wore matching mitts, sweetheart bonnet and carried a basket of pink Pinnochio roses tied with rainbow ribbon.

Mr. Burton Wallace, West Huntingdon, attended the bridegroom. The ushers were, Mr. Bob Burkitt, of Frankford, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Eddie Begg, Campbellford, cousin of the groom.

Following the ceremony, the wedding party were grouped on the church lawn, where various pictures were taken.

A reception was held in the church parlors at one o'clock, with St. Paul's W.A., catering. The room was decorated with baskets of gladioli and the tables were centred with bouquets of sweet-peas, pink candles, and streamers with a three-tiered wedding cake on the bride's table.

Mr. Jack Bush invited the guests to the reception door, where Mrs. Alex Bush, wearing a frock of navy sheer with navy and pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses, received over sixty guests. She was assisted by the groom's mother, gowned in navy sheer with navy accessories and corsage of pink roses.

Those who served were Miss Evelyn Bush, Mrs. Carman Richards, Mrs. Burton Wallace, Mrs. Jack Bush, Mrs. Kenneth Butler, Miss Jean McIntosh, and Miss Lois Weaver, wearing white crepe paper aprons with pink trim.

At the reception the Rev. A. E. Baker read a telegram of congratulation from Mr. and Mrs. James Beatty, of Mimico, Ont. Mr. Jack Blakely sang "Because".

Mrs. Couch chose for travelling to Niagara Falls, Brantford and points west, a navy sheer model frock with navy felt hat; matching accessories, beige shortie coat and corsage of pink roses.

Guests were in attendance from Toronto, Belleville, Trenton, Brighton, Napanee and Campbellford.

The bride's gifts to maid of honor, bridesmaids, and pianist, were costume pins with matching earrings; to the flower girl, a birthstone ring and to her husband, a Gladstone bag with utility case.

The groom's gift to the groomsman, a gold key chain; to soloist, a utility case, and to the ushers, tie clips.

On their return they will take up residence on the groom's farm, 2nd concession of Rawdon.

ROYLE—BELCH

Gladioli and ferns formed the background for a lovely midsummer wedding in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, on Saturday, August 12, when Margaret Lorraine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Belch, of Belleville, R. 5, became the bride of Aylwin Milton Royle, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Royle, of Belleville. The Rev. F. R. Harback, pastor of Tabernacle United Church, performed the ceremony.

Mr. Alec Gordon, church organist, rendered the wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charming in a bridal gown of white satin with train and fingertip veil of tulle illusion. She carried a horseshoe bouquet of red roses and fleur-de-lis.

Miss Betty Murray, of Belleville, was maid of honor, becomingly gowned in an aqua net gown over taffeta, with matching shoulder length veil, and Miss Bernice Belch, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, wearing a lemon net gown over taffeta, with matching shoulder length veil. Both carried nosegays of mauve flowers.

Mr. Harry Abbott, Jr., of Belleville, was groomsman, and Mr. Tom Morris, uncle of the bride, and Mr. Mac Royle, brother of the bridegroom, were ushers.

The reception was held in the church parlors, decorated with streamers of pink and white and pastel-tinted gladioli, where the bride's mother and the bridegroom's mother, received the 75 guests. The former wore a street-length dress of pink net over taffeta, with white accessories, and a corsage of mauve orchid gladioli, and the latter, grey crepe with black accessories, and corsage of yellow roses. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Thomas Hood.

For the wedding trip to New York and Sackett's Harbor, N.Y., the bride chose a wine ensem with corsage of white fleur-de-lis. Mr. and Mrs. Royle will reside in Belleville, upon their return.

Out-of-town guests were present from Oshawa, Newburg, and Point Anne.

The dictionary defines dumplings as an ill-shaped piece. This is about the most that can be said for some of the pieces of dough that are served as dumplings.

This needn't be so. Dumplings can be both light and rich without being soggy. They can be baked as apple dumplings, boiled as soup dumplings or steamed as stew dumplings. Like other doughs cooked with meat, dumplings are a way to extend the size of the portions.

Steamed dumplings naturally absorb moisture of the liquid with which they are cooked. But it shouldn't make them heavy. If, for instance, you drop a piece of biscuit dough on top of a stew, then cover the pot with a tight lid, and steam the dough for 20 minutes, you will have a dumpling. If the dough is tender in the first place, the dumpling will be tender. A tough biscuit dough which has been overmixed will turn out to be a tough dumpling.

If the biscuit dough is made with pastry flour instead of bread flour, it will be more tender. If part of the flour is replaced with bread crumbs and apples added, you will be making today's recipe.

Creamed Ham with Chopped Apple Dumplings. 4 Servings

Melt 3 tablespoons fat in a saucepan. Remove from flame. Add 3 tablespoons flour, mixing well. Gradually add 2 cups of hot milk, beating with a wire whisk until smooth. Return to flame. Simmer 5 minutes.

Add 2 cups of cooked ham cut into thin flat pieces about 1 inch square. Add 1 tablespoons grated onion, 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Simmer 5 minutes. While ham is simmering prepare dumpling mixture.

Sift together 1 cup cake flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder and 1 teaspoon salt. Cut in 3 tablespoons butter or margarine until mixture resembles coarse meal. Add 1-2 cup chopped raw or canned apple. Add 3-4 cup sifted white bread crumbs.

Beat 1 egg slightly and combine with 1-4 cup milk.

Add liquid to dry ingredients, stirring only until flour is dampened and is still lumpy looking.

Drop dumpling mixture by tablespoons onto ham. Cover pan with tight lid and simmer 15-18 minutes. Do not use too strong a flame or sauce will burn. Do not remove lid while cooking. Spoon ham over dumplings on serving plates.

Berlin, Aug. 16 (Reuters) — West Berlin postal authorities said today Russian border officials recently have confiscated more than 1,000 parcels from inter-zonal trains. In the evening, a number of amateurs presented an enjoyable program and the evening was topped off with a colorful display of fireworks which brought many 'ohs and ahs'.

In a five-mile road race, three of seven starters finished the hot grind. Leo Powers, R. 9. Picton finished in first place in 37 minutes, to win $25, George Baverstock, the Outlet, won $15 for second place, a minute behind, and Donald King, $10 for third place. The amateur show at night saw two little brothers, wards of the Children's Aid Society, Archie and Larry Weldon, popular winners of a $25 prize. They sang 'Peter Cottontail.' Second prize, $15 went to Nancy Dulmage, Cherry Valley for her piano solo and third to Joan and Eileen Nutley, Picton, who sang 'Forever and Ever' in harmony. Exhibition boxing bouts provided action. No decisions were given.

Those taking part were Dick Wilson and Stan Pitman, RCSA; Sgt. Bing Cogland and Brd. Bobby Smith, RCSA; Gunners Devine and Cadeaux, RCSA; Eugene Cole and M. Henry, Picton. Lieut. McLeod was in charge.

Home, Family Must be Basis Of Christianity

Toronto, Aug. 15. (CP)—Christian educationists from all over the world agreed today that the home and the family must be the basis of Christian Education.

Dr. Gerald E. Knoff, of Chicago, associate general secretary of the International Council of Religious Education said: "The home is an indispensable agent in the teaching of the Christian religion."

Vimala Rajamanickam of India said: "The making of the Christian home should be the most important business of the church, to which all else should be subordinated."

Mrs. Josephine H. Kyles, director of Christian education for the Washington, D.C., Federation of Churches, said: "If there is to be a new era in religious education that will influence the conduct and witness of mankind, we must use the home, which is a major resource for teaching and develing Christian personalities."

They were speakers before discussion groups at the world convention on Christian education.

Miss Rajamanickam, a student in religious journalism at Syracuse, N.Y., University, said the church must strive to influence home life and make every home "a miniature kingdom of God on earth." Many Indian Christians were neglecting home worship because, living among non-Christians, they did not see the need for it.

Dr. Knoff said many families now are not carrying their full responsibilities in Christian teaching.

"This lack of concern," he said, "must be met by a new vigorous emphasis upon Christian education of adults, and especially of parents, by a new evangelistic zeal, and a new sense of urgency about the relevance of the gospel of Christ to modern family life."

Building Line At Rate of One Mile Per Day

Winnipeg, Aug. 15 (CP) — A 10-inch steel pipeline, to bring the oil wealth of Alberta to the Manitoba motorist, is moving toward Winnipeg slightly faster than a mile a day.

The $2,500,000 75-mile spur line, to shunt crude oil to Winnipeg refineries from the main Alberta-Lakehead line at Gretna, Man., is about six weeks away. When completed, the line's 6,000 tons of Scottish-made pipe will deliver 1,050,000 gallons of oil daily.

Huge mechanical ditches started the pipeline trench at Gretna on the international boundary July 8. Sixty days was estimated time needed to sink the pipe.

Some 150 men are on the job, financed by a Manitoba subsidiary of Imperial Oil.

KELLOGG'S ASTHMA RELIEF

LET'S STOP THIS RAILWAY STRIKE!

A strike on Canada's railways would be, at any time, a tragedy. Today, as we prepare to meet the threat of expanding military aggression, such a strike would mean national disaster.

The Boards of Conciliation, which reviewed in detail all the facts of the dispute, said in their report:

> "It is our firm opinion that the recommendations herein contained embody the utmost in the way of concessions which the railways ought to grant at this time."

Yet, the railways offered the unions concerned in this dispute a settlement far more generous than the Boards' recommendations.

HERE IS WHAT WE HAVE DONE

Our offer, which we published in detail, included these benefits for our employees:

(1) A shorter work week for the great majority, with no loss of pay
OR (if the unions prefer)
A substantial increase in "take home" pay.
These higher hourly rates would result in higher overtime rates.

(2) Acknowledgement by the railways of a moral obligation to put the 5-day 40-hour week into effect at the appropriate time. The Board of Conciliation said this: "The 40-hour week is not in Canada, as it is in the United States, the normal work week. On the contrary, the evidence before the Board indicates that the 40-hour week is very rare in Canadian industry."

(3) Separate consideration to be given the claims of hotel and water transport employees on merit.

WHEN APPLIED TO ALL EMPLOYEES, THESE BENEFITS WOULD COST THE RAILWAYS APPROXIMATELY $37,000,000 A YEAR

THE TIME IS NOW!

The welfare of every Canadian is involved in this critical dispute. The Board of Conciliation said: "In the consideration of increases of this magnitude in railway wage scales there is, besides the employers and the employees who conduct the negotiations, a third party, unheard at the council tables, whose rights must be weighed — the ordinary Canadian citizen." Let's stop this railway strike NOW! The time to do this is not at the eleventh hour, or after a strike begins. The time is NOW!

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

George Lynch, rated one of the outstanding Collegiate distance running prospects in the U.S.A. and a Canadian Olympic hope, is now living in this city.

* * *

Lynch, who has completed the first year of a physical and health education course at Illinois University, was one of the most brilliant teen-age track athletes ever to compete in Canada. A charter member of Sports College's famous Testing Group, he was the first winner of the Viscount Alexander Award, given annually to the outstanding junior athlete in the Dominion.

* * *

The 20-year-old Lynch, who moved here with his parents this Spring, is working for the McFarland Construction Company during the summer. His training for the coming cross-country season at Illinois is continuing under the coach who started him on his career, Sports College director Lloyd Percival, now vacationing at Stoco Lake, near Tweed.

* * *

Percival regards the stocky, dark-haired youngster as an outstanding example of what any Canadian athlete can do through hard work and determination, provided he is given proper opportunities and supervision. In addition to Lynch, Percival's testing groups have produced such brilliant young runners as Rich Ferguson, holder of Canadian native senior records for two and three miles, Ron Miller, fifth in the Pole Vault at the British Empire Games, and Don Stonehouse, holder of the U. S. indoor Interscholastic 60 yard record, now at Georgetown University.

* * *

Illinois coach Leo Johnson expects Lynch to become the main opposition to another great Canadian runner, Don Scott McEwan of Ottawa, who is now rated tops on the U.S. College circuit in the two miles. McEwan attends Michigan University. The two lads are expected to form the nucleus of Canada's distance-running squad in the next Olympics.

* * *

Lynch's career during his high school days in Toronto brought him recognition as one of the outstanding junior runners in North America. He won innumerable championships on both sides of the border at distances from half to three miles, including a record-breaking performance in the mile at the Junior Olympics in Cleveland.

MUSHBALL ROYALLY

Ted (The Moaner) Reeve writes a piece on this novel softball foursome "King Eddie Feigner and his Court." Here is what the Tely columnist has to say:—

"Speaking of strange clubs, the great sport program at the CNE this year starts off with the startling four - man fastball club known as the King and his Court. Four—count 'em — Four, although the shortstop moves around so much you sometimes have a hard time with your adding.

"Eddie Feigner is the pitcher for this club, who won 86 games, lost one and tied one in four years, and what with freak deliveries and sleight of hand, along with stuff that would do credit to big Bill West or Chas. Justice, he manages to strike out enough opposition to keep down the scores and, naturally, having four good men hitting in succession, with no weak spots in the batting order, is an advantage that works for the Feigner quartet when they are in.

"The King pitches blindfold in some exhibitions and also gives a school between games for any kids who wish to learn a few "holts" on the big apple. George Duthies has arranged no setups for him and First Baseman White, Catcher Kinzer, Shortstop Mellicke and Jerry Jones, the Utility Man. They play the Tip Tops and Peoples on successive nights, Aug. 25 and 26. Before that they have a warm-up with the peppy Robertsons of the Beaches League at Sunnyside on Mon. Aug. 21, and will stay over the following Sunday for a return game with Robertson Motors in the Kew, in aid of the Toronto East Arena Gardens.

"They are certainly something new and novel for these parts. We have heard of Rube Waddell on a good and goofy day bringing in his outfield while he struck out the side, and also Satch Paige, in his barnstorming hey-hey-day, pitching with his infield sitting down, but Feigner is the first gent since Spofforth the Demon can get along practically all the time with only two fielders. Even the star of the Ball Councing Alexandras at Shea's needed more help than that."

"THEM GUYS IS HERE AGAIN"

Dapper William Watson, better known as the Whipper, or the Pride of East York, was not in an amiable mood the other night after he had won the bout over Ferocious Freddie Atkins. The ex-British Empire champion figured he had not won the bout the right way, and immediately went a-gunning for a return fiesta. He had as much trouble being accommodated as a rabbit looking for a wildcat, and the stage was all set for the second brawl for Friday. The Australian bulldozer nearly went berserk in the dressing room following the bout and "Bugs Bunny" Dunlop had a lot of explaining to do. All of which was "sweetness wasted on the dressing room air" for Ferocious Freddie would have no part of the official "halibis". He demanded a continuance of the bout there and then but finally settled for a second "crack" at the handsome Whip. The bout is definitely categorized as a grudge affair and the fur and fireworks should fly come Friday. Rapid Ray Villmer is back again and the popular ring dynamo will attempt to tame the roughie toughie Masked Marvel. Should be quite a tilt in itself. Jim "Goon" Henry also returns to the "rasslin' " wars, meeting Warren Bockwinkle in the opener.

Johnny Groth Hits Grand-Slam Homer and Detroit Tigers Take Game From Cleveland 4-1

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

A difference of $5,000 once kept Johnny Groth from wearing a Cleveland uniform. Today the Indians would pay that sum many times over to get him out of their hair.

Since joining the Detroit Tigers two years ago Groth has made a career out of belting Cleveland pitching. If the Tigers beat the Indians to the wire it can be traced directly to Groth's batting feats against the club that once spurned him.

It was not Groth's fault that the Tigers could get no better than an even break in their two games with the Tribe.

He slammed a home run in each game. Unfortunately, only one came with the bases loaded. That was yesterday's. The Tigers didn't need any more to defeat Bob Lemon and the Indians, 4-1.

Groth's homer Monday night came with one on. Since it happened in the ninth inning to overcome a 1-0 deficit, that blow appeared sufficient. The Tribe, however, came back with single runs in the bottom halves of the ninth and 10th to win.

Groth went to Cleveland for a tryout after the war and was offered a contract. As he was about to sign,, Groth's father reminded the boy he had previously promised the Detroit club a chance to match any offer. The Tigers offered $30,000 Cleveland would go no higher than $25,000.

Detroit's victory opened up a three and a half game spread between the league leading Tigers and their pursuers. The New York Yankees split a doubleheader with Washington to move two percentage points in front of Cleveland in their race for second place. Washington won the opener, 10-5. The Yankees took the second 9-0.

Red Sox Take 2

Boston's Red Sox moved within seven games of the top, taking two from the Philadelphia Athletics 8-3 and 9-4.

Philadelphia increased its National League lead over Boston to six games, defeating the Braves 9-1. Brooklyn climbed to within three percentage points of Boston with a 1-0 triumph over the New York Giants. Chicago's Cubs tallied twice in the eighth inning to dump the St. Louis Cards, 3-2. Pittsburgh rallied for six runs in the ninth to match Cincinnati's total in the top of the inning and Ralph Kiner clubbed his 33rd homer for the Bucs.

Curt Simmons won his 15th game for Philadelphia, with the help of Jim Konstanty in the eighth. It was the 53rd relief appearance for the Phillies' fireman. Johnny Sain was the loser.

The Red Sox double victory was dimmed by an accident to Walt Dropo, their sensational rookie first baseman. Dropo suffered a cerebral concussion when "beaned" by Hank Wyse in the first game. X-rays showed no fracture. He is expected back in the lineup within a few days.

The Chicago White Sox and St. Louis Browns were not scheduled.

Ezzard Charles Stops Beshore In 14th Round

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 16 (AP)—Joe Louis' stock rose sharply today following Ezzard Charles' one-sided but lacklustre conquest of Freddie Beshore.

A "new" Charles was supposedly to be unveiled in Memorial Auditorium last night but it was the same old cautous Ezzy in action. The N. B. A. heavyweight champion, who made good in his third title defence by stopping Beshore in 2:53 of the 14th round, certainly wasn't a "tiger."

But Charles and his managerial brain trust of Jake Mintz and Tom Tannas, expressed satisfaction with the lean Cincinnati Negro's performance.

"He needed the workout," said Mintz as Charles nodded agreement. "It was his first fight in 10 months and he wasn't as sharp as he should be. His timing was off. But he'll be ready for the next one, whoever it is."

"Whoever it is" refers to one Joe Louis who once ruled all of the heavyweights until he went into temporary retirement. Ezzy is recognized only in 47 states of the U. S. New York doesn't list a champion at the moment.

The comebacking Brown Bomber and Charles, are tentatively scheduled to meet in Yankee Stadium, Sept. 27.

Louis in Training

Louis already has started preliminary training in West Baden, Ind. Charles, who suffered a slight cut over his right eye last night, said he will be ready to resume work again in a couple of weeks.

When discussions first got under way about a Louis - Charles scrap, the experts' consensus was that Charles would be a big favorite to outstab and outrun the aging, one-time destroyer. After last night, the bomber's stock soared.

The 29-year-old Charles never was able to floor the 26-year-old Beshore who outweighed Charles 184½ to 183¼.

Felix had the champ ahead, 12-2 Judge Anse Carroll scored it 12-1-1 and Judge Leo Stachowiak made it unanimous for the champ 9-3-2. The AP scorecard had it 10-2-2.

JAP VESSELS TO CALL

Washington, Aug. 16 — (AP)— Japanese merchant vessels shortly will start calling at United States ports for the first time since 1941, the army announced. The army said that the government had granted clearance for Japanese sea-borne trade to and from American ports but that initially only tramp vessels engaged in bulk cargo – carrying will take part.

Victory Hi Wins Fast Pace At Local Fair

Victory Hi, owned by Stan Blewett of Peterborough, made every post a winning one in the 2.17 class that opened the racing program at the Belleville Fair on Tuesday afternoon. The horse, which has been blind since birth was capably driven by Bob Bayne, the horse seeming to sense every movement of the reins. Victory Hi has been racing successfully at Thorncliffe all summer and is in the pink of condition.

After scoring the first heat in fifth horse position he was taken out on the back stretch the first turn of the track and was never headed in the three heats. Silent Joe, owned by Harry Inglis of Brighton tried to make it close each heat but the winner had too much lick in the stretch drive.

In the slow class a merry battle was staged between Ted Harvester and Mike Dolan with the first named horse getting the decision after dropping the first heat. The two horses staged a terrific stretch battle in the last two heats with Ted Harvester getting up in the last few strides to take the decision each time. The track has not been raced on for some time and was a little heavy through the stretch, which accounted for the slow time made during the afternoon. The starting gate was used and the fans were not bothered with lengthy scoring. The fields were handled most capably by the "gate crew" and each horse had plenty of racing room leaving the barrier.

HARVEST LOOKS PROMISING

Toronto, Aug. 15—(CP) — As threshing of fall wheat and spring grains continued throughout Ontario this week, farmers relaxed just long enough to say that the harvest looks "promising."

Actually, when all the grain is in, famers may find they have harvested the greatest crop in Ontario's history.

The Ontario agriculture department's weekly crop report said today that yields are generally excellent and that damage from sprouting in the stook is not as great as at first believed. Fall wheat in some counties is yielding up to 50 bushels an acre and oats up to 60.

Briefs From Training Camps

(By The Canadian Press)

Coach Les Lear of Calgary Stampeders is living up to his reputation as the toughest task master in the coaching business. But his Stampeders appear to be taking the tough training grind in stride. They're a lot happier about their chances this year since Royal Copeland, former Toronto Argonauts speedster, signed. On the other hand, Stamps probably will be without Woody Strode, ace, pass-receiver, who is expected to desert football this year for wrestling.

Coach Annis Stukas of Edmonton Eskimos probably will start brother Bill as quarter back for Eskimos exhibition game with Montreal. Lindy Berry, impressive import from Texas Christian University, has been kept out of the signal-calling slot with a knee injury. Stukus says he's very optimistic about Edmonton's chances this year—especially since Bob Paffrath, former Ottawa Rough Riders star back, is expected to sign with Eskimos momentarily.

Ottawa's Rough Riders were back in training last night, still nursing a few bruises after taking a 27-6 drubbing Saturday from the powerful New York Giants in an exhibition game. Tony (Golden Boy) Golab, still strengthening a knee weakened by injuries last year, showed up for the practice. Golab said that despite his weak knee he wants to "play football the way I always have . . . If the knee fails to hold up, I'm willing to forget about the game."

Toronto fans get their first look at their beloved Argonauts this Saturday when the team splits into two squads for a benefit game. Coach Frank Clair figures his team this way:, "we simply haven't got the reserve linemen. We have some reserve backs that will hold up and our front lineup is good."

In Winnipeg, coach Frank Larson still has the problem of cutting from six to 10 men from his over-strength squad. Three squads now are working out—one under Larson, another under line coach Sol Kampf and the third under former Winnipeg backfield star Bob Sandberg who won't be playing this year.

Plumbers Win From Point Team By 5-4 Count

Failure to hit in the clutch last evening cost Ramsay Paints what may prove to be the game they needed to make the playoffs, as they were nosed out 5-4 by Howe and Hagerman at the Alemite Field.

The win left the Plumbers safe on top of the loop while the loss dropped Ramsay Paints into a fourth place tie with Stewart Warner for the fourth and last playoff berth.

The Plumbers scored all their runs early and then hung on to win. They gathered in three counters in the first frame on a walk to Tomaso, a single by Rollins, a sacrifice by Ed Donovan, and a single by Don Adams that scored Tomaso and Rollins. A wild throw at second base permitted Adams to come all the way around. They added their final two runs in the third after going down in order in the second. Tomaso, Rollins, and Ed Donovan singled in order. Harry Wardaugh fouled out to first and then Don Adams rolled out pitcher to first as Tomaso scored. Marty Fitzgibbon unloaded a double down the right field line to score Rollins. Spafford grounded out short to first to retire the side.

Jack Reid came on in the fourth inning to relieve starter Frank Baldwin and over the rest of the route blanked the Plumbers on four hits walking none, and striking out two.

Drills Home Run

The Paintmen scored their first tally in the bottom of the third frame when Lyle Wannamaker drilled a home run to right centre field with no one on. Bing Cross homered in the fourth with the bases empty for their second tally. Pitcher Jack Reid ended their scoring with another home run in the eighth to score Bellis, who had singled, ahead of him.

Ramsays loaded the bases in the second inning with one out and failed to score. They filled the sacks again in the seventh with a walk to Reid and singles by Charlie Peters and Jack Scanlan and again failed to score. Altogether the Paintmen let ten men wither away on base.

Al Adams started and went eight innings to claim the win for the Plumbers. He walked one, struck out seven and gave up 11 hits for four runs. Bob Hunter pitched the ninth without incident.

Frank Baldwin went the first three innings for Ramsays walking one, striking out two, and giving up five hits for five runs.

Big Walt Dropo Out for Period With Concussion

Boston, Aug. 16 (AP) —Boston's Red Sox and their legion of supporters, thought it was rough when the club lost Ted Williams and his menacing bat, but now the fourth-place locals must get along for a time without big Walt Dropo and his heavy bludgeon.

The slugging rookie, who leads the American League in runs batted in, was struck just above the left ear by a Hank Wyse pitch last night. He is under observation for a cerebral concussion at Sancta Maria hospital in adjacent Cambridge.

Wyse, righthanded pitcher for the Philadelphia Athletics, not only insists "I never threw at a man's head in my life," but intends to visit the rugged Boston rookie today.

The "beaning" occurred in the fifth inning of the first game of a twi-night doubleheader at a time when the lights were on but full darkness hadn't closed in.

Some immediately accused Wyse, former Chicago National League hurler, of throwing a bean ball because Dropo had hit him for a two-run homer in the previous inning and Vern Stephens had hit him for another two-run four bagger before Dropo came to bat.

Sox manager, Steve O'Neill, said after the game: "No I don't think Wyse threw at him (Dropo). Walt sometimes seems to have trouble getting out of the way of a high inside pitch."

Roosevelt Urges More Production At Niagara Falls

Washington, Aug. 16—(CP)—Congress was urged Tuesday by representative Franklin Roosevelt (Dem. Lib. N.Y.) to authorize a step-by-step in electric power production at Niagara Falls.

The House of Representatives Public Works Committee opened a hearing on a bill by Roosevelt to authorize the use of more of the Niagara River's waters near the falls. Modern power plants also would be built.

The increased diversion of water has been approved in a treaty with Canada which the Senate ratified last week.

Roosevelt told the committee the power which it is possible to develop at Niagara exceeds that at any other single site in North America.

Total production, he said, would be near 23,000,000,000 killowatt hours a year. This would be shared equally by Canada and the United States.

The estimated production, he said, would be about three times greater than the present capacity of the Falls.

Roosevelt said Niagara alone could produce 65 per cent as much power as the whole Tennessee Valley Authority System. The American portion, he said, would equal that of Boulder, Bonneville, and Shasta dams combined.

Desperately Needed

"This potential power," Roosevelt said, "is desperately needed by upstate New York—industry, farmers and domestic users."

"But even more important," he added, "is the fact that this power is a critical factor in America's defence effort."

Roosevelt said federal power commission engineers estimated that the new power works would cost between $308,000,000 and $350,000,000 depending upon the type of construction used.

There is little likelihood that the House will act on the bill this session of Congress. The present hearing, therefore, is mainly to acquaint Congress with the project.

William R. Farley; chief of the Federal Power Commission's division of licenced projects, testified there would be an ample market for not only the Niagara project power but also for that of the proposed St. Lawrence River project.

The St. Lawrence proposal for Canadian-U.S. joint development of the river is not a part of the Rossevelt bill. The St. Lawrence project authorization bill has been pigeon-holed for this session of Congress.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

Lead deviations are present in bunches. But only the ignorant choose them from hunches. Expert digressions are simply summations of several phases of rule combinations.

When an expert player breaks a rule it is not some wild guess. It is the result of considering several rules that apply to the case at hand. He unites them to fit the current situation.

Rule says you should first lead the suit your partner has bid. Unless you can first make a lead in your own suit without losing control of the lead. You can then still lead partner's suit.

But take the west hand shown here:

♠9 2
♥6 4 3
♦J 10 5
♣K Q J 10 8

South is the declarer at a contract of three no-trump. Your own partner in east had bid diamonds. If you first lead the top of your club suit you might lose control of the lead.

Ordinarily, this advises your partner that you have no diamond to lead. At least, this would be the first inference by rule. So, your lead of a diamond seems called for by custom.

But stop to consider further. Recall other rules that should be familiar to you. Combine what you know with what should happen if you momentarily ignore the rule of leading partner's suit.

The only stopper south could have in clubs would be the ace. With only one stopper at notrump, rule says declarer should holdup until partner of leader is out of the suit led.

Declarer would be wrong by rule to take the first club trick with his ace. He may let you hold the first trick. You can then lead a diamond if the situation warrants a switch.

You may be sorry you led your club king instead of the suit your partner has bid. But you can see why an expert might. His is a decision made from a combination of rules.

PERCENTAGE IN FAVOR

Tokyo, Aug. 16 — (AP)—The newspaper Yomiuri said today a poll of 4,000 residents of large Japanese cities showed 37 per cent favor creating a defence army and 34 per cent oppose it. The others were undecided. It also said the Japanese are undecided generally on the effect of the United Nations action in Korea.

Three Airmen And Army Officer Under Arrest

Pembroke, Aug. 16 — (CP) — Three airmen from the Rivers, Man., station and one army officer have been arrested in connection with a bomb explosion which injured three children at nearby Petawawa last weekend.

The men are LAC. Gordon Hunt, LAC. Albert J. Peters, and LAC. Willard E. Pyett, all from the Rivers station, and Capt. Joe Liston of Petawawa Military Camp. Authorities said the four will be charged with criminal negligence and theft.

The servicemen were taken into custody Tuesday and bail was set at $500 cash or $1,000 property.

Crown Attorney H. B. Johnson of Pembroke, said the charges follow an intense investigation by Ontario Provincial Police, after army authorities turned the case over to them.

The explosion of a smoke grenade resulted in injuries to Donald McKay, 6, of Toronto, John Binkley, 5, of Winnipeg and Derek Binkley, his cousin.

The children found the bomb Saturday while playing at Petawawa Point—outside the camp grounds—after what was reported to be an outdoor party the night before.

Little Benny's Note Book

Us fellows had a relay race startin at my house and running in different directions around the block, and I was the last runner for my side and I came running up winning the race and ma was standing at the frunt door, saying, Goodness Benny, do you have to come racing and tearing up the street like an old fashion fire horse? Just because you're only 9 years old, that doesn't mean you haven't got a heart to take care of, she said.

Aw, my heart takes care of itself, I said, It's not even beeting. If anybody started another relay race rite now, I'd be the ferst one to get in it, I said, and ma said, Well all rite in that case I suppose you still have enough strength to run gently around to the market for me, I'm in a hurry for a duzzen eggs, she said.

Me thinking, Aw heck, good nite, a errand. And I said, Well jimminy roozalem, ma, dont you realize I just ran around the block all my mite as hard as I could go?

Well of all the inconsistent things I ever heard, ma said. Just a minute ago you were bragging about how you could run on and on forever without drawing an exter breth, she said, and I said, Well so I could ma, but not on errands.

Now you've heard my last werd on the subject and I hope I've heard yours, ma said, and I said, Okay, ma, but I better not hurry too mutch unless you want something to happen to the eggs.

I'll tell you what I want, ma said. I want you back in 10 minutes without an unbroken egg, she said.

Being what she got.

NO INDICATIONS

There were no indications of a settlement from the disputants themselves—the railways and the unions representing 124,000 employees that have scheduled a strike for wage and hours concessions.

The strike, which would paralyze rail transport, was under discussion by cabinet at a session that lasted 4 1-4 hours yesterday. The ministers recessed overnight to reach a decision today.

One strong report here was that the eventual decision would be to ask the railways to set a definite date in the future—likely two years from now—for bringing into effect the 40-hour week with unreduced take-home pay sought by the employees.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, asked after yesterday's cabinet meeting if the report were correct, declined to comment on it.

But indications were shaping up that the question of the timing of the 40-hour week might be the remaining major barrier to a settlement.

The unions have asked the 40-hour week with the same pay as 48 hours, plus an hourly increase of seven or 10 cents. The railways' "final" offer delivered last week was for a 44-hour week with unreduced pay and a recognition that the 40-hour week should be put in at the "appropriate time" in the future.

No Shipments After Aug. 17

This has been rejected by the 15 international and two Canadian unions involved, but there have been developing signs that the unions would be inclined to settle for the proferred 44-hour week with an assurance of the 40-hour arrangement at some specific later date.

For that, it is reported here they would forego the straight hourly wage increase.

The crisis was brought sharply into focus today when the Railway Association of Canada announced that all freight and express agents in Canada that the shipment of all livestock and perishable goods will cease at 11:59 p.m. Aug. 17.

From that date, no shipment of such goods will be accepted, the Association said.

Of the cabinet meeting, Mr. St. Laurent said only that "very serious problems" had been under discussion.

Cabinet broke up less than an hour before two major railway and union spokemen took to the air last night in national radio broadcasts which did not indicate any change in views on either side from their attitudes of last week.

Both Take to Air

Donald Gordon, president of the Canadian National Railways, and A. R. Mosher, president of the 30,000-member Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees (C.C.L.), spoke largely in defence of the already-disclosed policies of their organizations.

Mr. Gordon said the railways' "appropriate time" commitment for the 40-hour week was an undertaking to put this into effect when it becomes the normal work week in Canada.

Mr. Mosher, who also is president of the 360,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor, said the "appropriate time" assurance is "not nearly definite enough."

Speaks to Employees

The company head, addressing his message particularly to C.N.R. employees, said if they were aware of the facts of the dispute they would decide at once that strike action was not justified. Railway management had tried honestly and fairly to deal with the union demands.

Full acceptance of the union requests, Mr Gordon said, would cause "ruinous inflation in the price of everything we eat, drink, wear or use. Freight rates would have to go up 38 per cent to cover annual additional costs of $124,000,000.

"Don't be fooled, by higher wages under such conditions," Mr. Gordon said.

Mr. Gordon said the eventual company offer, which would cost $37,000,000 a year to the railways, had gone "far beyond" the recommendations of federal conciliation boards that investigated the dispute.

"I believe we have done our best," he said. "In the light of these facts, it is unthinkable that a railway strike should take place."

No Improvement

Mr. Mosher said the railway workers he spoke for have been getting less than the average worker in manufacturing, despite and idea that rail workers are highly paid. Also, there have been no improvement in hours for railway workers in more than 32 years.

"As far as their hours of work are concerned," he said, "railway workers are just where they were in the horse and buggy days. They don't intend to stay there."

"Railway labor," he said, "suspects that management is seeking to capitalize on our long-standing reputation for fair dealing. And railway labor is convinced that right now is the time to call a halt —the time to say that we don't intend to be second-fiddle citizens forever."

Mr. Mosher also accused the railways of an "unyielding attitude" and of misrepresenting the union position. He said "misleading propaganda" by the companies had undermined efforts aimed at a peaceful settlement.

Regular Fighter Squadrons Will Be Increased

Ottawa, Aug. 16 (CP) — The chief of the air staff said Tuesday night the RCAF is going to expand its total of regular fighter squadrons "considerably beyond" the five originally approved by cabinet and disclosed they will be trained and available to fight anywhere.

This statement by Air Marshal W. A. Curtis was the second indication in little more than a week that the government now is looking on the question of peacetime forces in an extra-territorial as well as a national light and not simply as something involving Canada's own frontiers.

The first move was formation of a special army brigade to fight aggression in Korea or elsewhere to back up its obligations to the United Nations or the Atlantic Pact. The second indicates the government intends to have air-power ready for that purpose too.

Air Marshal Curtis went on the air with Defence Minister Claxton to call for thousands of recruits—particularly air crew—to fill the ranks for an air expansion program that will:

1. See not only a sharp increase in the number of fighter squadrons—there now are two—but formation of "a number of radar units across Canada and the activation of other organizations particularly related to the defence of Canada."

Canada-Made Planes

2. Increase the number of Maritime—coastal patrol and anti-submarine — squadrons in the next year. There now is one.

3. Equip the fighter squadrons with Canadian-made planes — the jet fighters CF-100 and F-86A—as the result "of our determination that the RCAF should not be dependent on outside assistance for the provision of vital aircraft in war."

4. Immediately expand pilot training facilities "to meet our increased requirements and also to help other countries." Canada already is training Atlantic Pact country pilots from Europe and may train more.

5. Speed ground crew training.

6. Increase the number of combat aircraft with reserve squadrons and expand the number of reserve radar units.

7. Possibly open the way for short-service commissions for a limited number of pilots trained in the last war provided they are under 27. They should apply to RCAF headquarters.

The RCAF's main requirement Air Marshal Curtis said, is "for young men to fly our new airplanes." He added: "If you are physically fit and between the ages of 18 and 24, have junior matriculation or its equivalent and are single you are the man we are looking for."

FIGHT TO DRAW

Toronto, Aug. 16 (CP)— Hard-punching Don Grinton of Brantford and Toronto's Maxie Males fought to a five-round draw in the feature bout outdoor boxing show at Oakwood Stadium Tuesday night.

A crowd of 1,000 booed the decision lustily, believing Grinton, who scored six knockdowns, the winner. One judge voted for Grinton, the other for Males and the referee called it a draw.

The draw preserved Males' unbeaten streak at 19 straight. Both were fighting in the 118-pound class.

MAN'S EVOLUTION

walked and ran on its hind legs and used its hands for manipulating tools and weapons.

The latest finds, made at Swartkrans within the last few weeks, indicate a type even closer to man. Dr. Broom and Robinson, in a joint article, say the Swartkrans ape-man differs from the earlier examples in many particulars.

The scientists say the brains of both the new skulls are large. The teeth are not larger than in man.

"Pretty certainly," they say, "both come well into the human range. Above the eyes there are well-marked bony ridges, a little like those of Rhodesian man, but a little less robust.

"But as the jaws are huge, the temporal muscles have also been huge and have gone right up on the sides of the brain to the middle line. A well-marked bony crest is developed, such as is generally found in most male gorilla skulls

"This character, we believe, has never before been found in a human skull."

HYDROGEN BOMB

ture inside a circle 20 miles in diameter.

The circle is not the limit. The H-concussion goes 10 times farther than the A-concussion, and at Nagasaki a barracks collapsed at five miles. Buildings near the barracks were unharmed. This means that in a circle of 100 miles some buildings will topple.

The H-bomb with this immense spread will be detonated several miles above the earth. If exploded lower, its reach will be shortened.

Assume a prefect H-hit on New York City, some miles directly overhead of Broadway and 42nd St.

The blast would flatten all but the strongest buildings in all Manhattan. Brooklyn would fall, almost to Coney Island. Northward the Bronx and everything to the north city limit at Van Courtland Park would go down. Across the Hudson, Bayonne and Jersey City would be destroyed and nearly all the great city of Newark.

Eastward on Long Island the blast would flatten Jackson Heights, Forest Hills, Flushing and many other large suburbs. It would destroy Laguardia Airport and even reach the edges of Idlewild, the new international airport. Fort Totten, on North Long Island's shore would be at about the eastern limit of complete blast destruction.

Down New York harbor the concussion would knock over the Statue of Liberty and tear down the buildings on the north shore of Staten Island.

Steel skyscrapers probably would not fall. Their walls would be blown out. Their upper storey steel ribs would stand bare and twisted.

WARNING!
DUE TO WORLD CONDITIONS
There May Not Be Enough
HAMCO COKE
Today the demand for Hamco Coke for essential industry is so great that from present indications there will not be sufficient Hamco Coke available to supply domestic demands.
Consequently, if your fuel merchant cannot supply you with Hamco Coke, you will be wise to take delivery of other solid fuels, which are available in sufficient quantities and sizes. This co-operation will be greatly appreciated by your fuel merchant.
We at Hamco Coke pledge that as soon as the present emergency is past, hard, hot, money-saving Hamco Coke will again be back to your fuel bin.

TIRED OF POLITICS

Winnipeg — (CP) — A drowsy air enveloped the committee room at the city hall. The public work's committee still had a long way to go on its 80-item agenda. A gentle snore rose from the end of the table followed by a loud crash. Rising with dignity, the alderman picked up his chair and remarked: "Well, that's one way to wake up."

MASS FIST FIGHT

Tokyo, Aug. 16 — (AP) — A Korean communist "peace rally" exploded into a mass fist fight Monday and 18 police were sent to hospital, Japanese press reports said. An estimated 300 police clashed with some 700 Koreans at Okayama, near Kobe. The rally was staged by communist dominated Korean organizations in defiance of a police ban against demonstrations. Police tried to break up the meeting. Five persons were arrested.

The Gentle Heart

By Kay Hamilton

Yes, today Natalie was beautiful and Gary could scarcely eat his dinner for looking at her. He sat between Faith Owen and Jenny, but neither one could get more than a word out of him.

Jenny noticed too, that Natalie had arranged the table unfortunately in the matter of the Owens for Mrs. Owen could stare directly across at Faith and Max, seated next each other. Jenny more than suspected that they were holding hands under the table and feared that Faith's mother-in-law would realize it, too. Yet the older woman gave no sign and ate heartily.

"I wish we could have had the Torres," Natalie said. "That would have made a round dozen of us at table."

"Pete said Elsa was insisting on having the meal at home," Diane declared with an informed air, "and he was groaning at the prospect because, of course, she's no cook."

"I should think they would have jumped at the chance to come here," Faith said wonderingly.

Jenny knew what was behind the refusal. Elsa was afraid Dick would get one of his spells of showing off. She did not trust him in public since their unfortunate trip together and his display of bad manners the night they had dined with Jenny.She had tried her best to get around their refusal but Elsa had been adamant. "No." she said, "this is our first Thanksgiving together, and I think we should have it in our own home. Heaven only knows what it will be like, but I'm going to have a try at being a chef for one day. After that we'll go back to beef stew and frizzled ham!"

Diane said, "I think Pete is afraid of Dick's manners in public It seems he can eat well enough at home, but the minute they go somewhere he acts like a little savage."

"Oh," Jenny breathed in indignation, "he shouldn't have said that! It's not true. Or at least she amended, "it's not fair."

Mrs. Owen made a pronouncement. "Boys of that age change from day to day. The fact that he acts like a boor today is no guarantee that he will be the same tomorrow. More than likely, he will blossom out into a perfect Chesterfield, with more manners than you realized you had ever taught him."

Jenny knew she was thinking of her Ken, and Faith said softly, "Kenneth had wonderful manners Mother Owen. You must have taught him well."

The older woman's face twisted for a moment, then she said courteously, "Good manners come from within, really and Ken's were that kind. He was thoughtful of others. Sometimes," she added slowly, "much more thoughtful than his own mother."

She turned her head and stared directly at Jenny. "My dear,' she said. "I have never eaten better stuffing. You must give me the recipe. There are herbs in it, I know, but I can't quite identify them, you have used them so subtly. And properly, too, as herbs should be used. Not reeking with sage, so that you can't taste anything else!"

Jenny's heart leaped. She was forgiven. What memory of her son, she wondered now, had prompted this capitulation?

"It's not only the stuffing," Fred said with enthusiasm, "it's everything! Three cheers for Jenny!"

"Oh, no! I can't!" Faith groaned "Cheers are too strenuous. And after a meal like this—"

Gary said suddenly, "Remember that buffet supper party Jenny gave on Nat's birthday That was super, too. Come to think of it, that was when you and Max announ—"

Faith must have kicked him on one side. Jenny knew she had kicked him on the other. He let out an anguished "Ouch! What's—" and choked.

"Oh, dear! A turkey bone?" Jenny cried and pulled him with her into the pantry. "Go on and cough!' she admonished him when she had closed the dining room door firmly and when he obeyed her in astonished bewilderment, she explained, "Mrs. Owen doesn't know about Faith and Max. And they don't want her to know yet. Do you understand?"

"Oh! Oh, sure!" He coughed compliantly a couple of more times, then asked with a plaintive air, "But why didn't somebody tell me "

"I thought Natalie had," she whispered. "I know I warned the others who were her that night."

But Gary's face had sobered into the mask he usually wore. "Nat doesn't tell me anything," he said. 'She—I don't know what has. ."

"I don't either," Jenny confessed. 'But I'm sure of one thing. Natalie is too proud to run after any man, and if you really love her—

"Love her! he groaned. "Jenny, I'd give my life for her. She must know that."

"Well have you ever told Natalie you love her?" Jenny demarded of Gary. "Better cough some more so they won't think we're staying out her forever. Have you ever asked her to marry you?"

"No, of course not," he said indignantly. "How can I? She earns so much more than I do. I'd never live off her bounty, I. . ."

Jenny held her head in her hands. "Is that all that holds you back?" she cried. "Why, that's downright silly! What if she is earning more right now? She'll never earn so very much more than this, but you will. You'll go ahead in your field. You'll be earning a big salary ten years from now if what everybody says about you is true. And you wouldn't be 'living of her bounty. as you call it. Not at all! I never heard such nonsense! You'd pay your way as you do now, wouldn't you? And every year you could pay a larger proportion. Nat wouldn't want to give up her work, you know."

"I wouldn't want her to," he said slowly. Then suddenly, catching at her hand, "Jenny do you think she'd have me? Do you think she loves me?"

But those were questions Jenny couldn't answer. "I don't know," she told him. "Here, you'd better go back awhile, and I'll get the salad ready. And don't forget about Faith and Max!" she cautioned him before he returned to the dining room.

The guests did not stay long after dinner was over. Most of them had such a torpid look, so obviously yearned for a digestive nap, that Jenny was not surprised when they straggled home, one after the other. Only Brent remained, and he had beckoned Natalie into the studio. "Come here a minute, Nat. I want to show you something.'

They had been there now for more than half an hour and Jenny busied with the dishwashing wondered what had come up that needed such a long talk behind closed doors. Surely they had time for this sort of thing during their working hours! She felt a little indignant about it, because Natalie usually helped her with the dishes after a large party and it seemed to Jenny that there were mountains of them today.

Reds Open Massive Drive For Taegu

30,000 Men Pour Through Steep Mountain Passes

U.S. Marines Pulled Back 20 Miles in South Area

Tokyo, Aug. 18 — (Friday) — (AP) — Thirty-thousand North Koreans opened a massive drive on Taegu on the central Korean front Thursday.

The reds poured through steep mountain passes 15 miles north of the South Korean emergency capital. They were east of the Naktong river.

Only two South Korean divisions stood between them and Taegu. South Koreans controlled the mountain-pass roads.

The communists poured out of an area west of the river which was heavily bombed by B-29s Wednesday. They jumped off from an area between Waegwan and Kunwi.

Not Stopped by Bombing

Their attack started a few hours after U.S. marines and infantry struck at the 30,000-man red bridgehead on the east bank of the Naktong River near Changnyong, 23 miles southwest of Taegu.

The marines had been pulled out of the south coastal area where they had made advances on Chinju. They were ordered back 20-odd miles to the east and then shunted northward for the Changnyong attack.

U.S. infantry took the marines' places in the coastal line just west of Masan, southern port which is 27 airline miles east of Pusan.

It was on the north central front, north of Taegu, that the reds were making their most dangerous threat, however.

The sudden outburst to the north developed after U.S. marines and infantry began a counter-attack in the reds' Changnyong river-crossing bulge.

Attack Centred on Hill

The marine-army attack centred on a steep hill near Changnyong, 23 miles southwest of Taegu and produced some of the finest fighting of the war.

The marines were withdrawn 27 miles from their Korean south coastal gains and moved to the Naktong River line.

They hit at a craggy hill position as part of an offensive against the bridgehead which the north Koreans have held for 12 days south of Changnyong.

Stan Swinton, AP correspondent attached to U.S. infantry which now defends the south coastal area, reported a build-up of red forces there.

Swinton said an attack on U.S. defence positions west of Masan, 27 airline miles east of Pusan, the No. 1 U.S. seaport on the south-eastern tip of the Korean peninsula, was building up.

Wants Emergency Declared

Another major development today was a call from the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, representing 400,000 farmers, for the government to declare a national emergency and take over operation of the railways as a last resort against a strike.

Meanwhile, preparations for the crippling strike went forward. Tonight was to bring its first tangible effects on rail traffic, with an embargo going into effect at midnight on the railways' acceptance of livestock and perishable goods.

The two Canadian unions are the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees (C.C.L.) and the Brotherhood of Express Employees (C.C.L.)

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Aug. 17 (CP)—Synopsis: Hot summer weather is once again giving Ontario the brush-off. An extensive area of cool, sunny weather has entered the northwest part of the province and will affect all Ontario by tonight. A few hours of cloudiness and showers precede the cooler air which will tumble most of Ontario's mid-afternoon temperatures to near the 70 mark on Friday.

Fog Machines Will Spray Piles Rotting Garbage

Hamilton, Aug. 17 (CP) —Four fog machines tomorrow will spray piles of rotting garbage on Hamilton streets as a strike of 1,000 civic employees enters its second week.

The machines were brought in from London and Toronto to augment city equipment which has been spraying fly-infected dumps in the Hamilton area. Civic employees picketing the dumps have allowed the sprayers to cross their lines.

Dr. L. A. Clarke, medical officer of health, appealed to citizens to stop leaving garbage on the streets. The council of the adjoining town of Dundas warned of "drastic action" to be taken against Hamilton residents who dump refuse in Dundas.
